STAMFORD, CT (JULY 5) COMTEX - Portec Inc., the Oak Brook, Ill., maker of rail shipping equipment and railway track components, has received a $5.4 million loan from The First National Bank of Chicago that it will use to post bond for its patent infringement case against The Read Corp.

On March 16, Read won a jury trial in which it charged that Portec infringed on its patent for a screening plant, according to a Securities and Exchange Commission filing.

The jury awarded Read damages that, when trebled and added to legal expenses, totaled about $5.4 million.

Portec is appealing the verdict.

This 8-k Filing was submitted to the Securities and Exchange Commission on JULY 3, 1990

STAMFORD, CT (JULY 5) COMTEX - Troubles continue to mount for Bolar Pharmaceutical Co. Inc., the Copiague, N.Y., generic drug manufacturer that was sued by the Federal Drug Administration for falsifying test data, as several shareholders file additional suits against the firm.

In an action filed June 21 in federal court in Philadelphia, Julia K. Masnik and Frank Fallon, among others, charged the company with racketeering and securities fraud for submitting false data to the FDA.

The defendants are asking the court for class action status, according to a Securities and Exchange Commission filing.

Several other purported class action suits also have been filed against Bolar.

In addition, Smithkline Beecham Corp., the giant pharmaceutical manufacturer, has also filed suit against Bolar and its former Chairman Robert Shulman alleging racketeering and fraud.

Bolar was cited by the FDA for falsifying test data in order to market its generic version of Smithkline Beecham's product, Dyazide, a high blood pressure treatment.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) - Pilots landing after long flights are more alert if they have been allowed to take a nap in the cockpit, investigators say.

The study of 10 Boeing 747 crews provided the first evidence that short rest periods serve as "safety valves" to cut fatigue and maximize alertness during a long flight, the investigators said Monday.

The study was co-sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the Federal Aviation Administration.

Currently, only military transport crews are allowed rest periods during flights. Some airlines in other countries have adopted the practice, officials said.

In the U.S. study, volunteer crews from Northwest Airlines and United Airlines on flights across the Pacific were divided into a rest and a non-rest group. NASA officials monitored the crews from the flight deck.

"The researchers found that given the opportunity to rest in their seats, the pilots generally were able to fall asleep easily and sleep well," the report said. "Later, these crew members demonstrated significantly higher levels of vigilance than their no-rest counterparts."

The differences were most noticeable near the end of the cruise phase of the flights, just before the pilot begins to descend for landing, the report added.

Crew reaction was measured by the NASA investigators and by monitoring equipment attached to the subjects' wrists.

Crew members who were allowed to rest were given 40-minute snooze periods on a rotating basis, so the planes were controlled by two pilots at all times.

SEOUL (JULY 3) - South Korea registered a 230 million dollar trade surplus in June after suffering five consecutive months of deficit, the Trade and Industry Ministry reported on Tuesday.

It said that exports amounted to 5.667 billion dollars in June, up 4.4 per cent from the corresponding month of last year, while imports rose by 2.1 per cent to 5.437 billion dollars.

Ministry officials said the first monthly trade surplus this year was due to a gradual recovery in sluggish exports coupled with a drop in imports from the previous month.

But the June performance did little to dent the trade deficit for the first half of the year which amounted to 2.77 billion dollars, more than the ministry forecast of two billion dollars for the whole of 1990.

Exports for the six months totaled 29.74 billion dollars, up a mere 1.7 per cent over a year ago, while imports rose by 11.5 per cent to 32.51 billion, the ministry reported.

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA (JULY 3) - Australia's ailing economy is forcing the nation's largest company, Broken Hill Proprietary Co. Ltd. (BHP), to look further overseas to secure healthy growth.

BHP hopes that booming Asian economies, its Escondida copper mine in Chile and petroleum exploration leases in Algeria, Burma and Argentina ensure its profitability.

Nippon Steel Corp. announced in Tokyo Tuesday it and two other Japanese steelmakers had signed a new contract to buy 3.1 million tons of BHP iron ore per year for seven years.

BHP started mining in Australia 105 years ago and began major foreign operations only recently. But its officials said the federal government's high-interest-rate policy had slashed short term opportunities at home.

BHP owns assets worth more than 21 billion Australian dollars (16.7 billion

U.S.), employs about 50,000 worldwide, sells about seven per cent of the nation's exports and made a 1.1 billion dollar (860 million U.S.) net profit in the year to May 31.

Brian Loton, BHP's deputy chairman, told a seminar here Monday Asia's dynamic growth ensured ready customers.

"While many may look to eastern Europe and Russia for a boost to demand for consumer products, we see our particular area of interest as the Pacific Basin.

"As the current slackening of economic activity in Australia is hurting many firms, large and small, BHP's global spread of businesses and our linkage to world economic growth provides a solid base for the future of the company."

Peter Willcox, the head of BHP's petroleum arm, said the company was exploring for oil in more than 20 countries.

Algeria was the most likely place an oil bonanza would be struck, he said while Burma was another good prospect.

"This country (Burma) has never been explored using modern methods. Nobody has looked at it since the second world war."

He said BHP were close to agreement to explore in a 23,000 square kilometre (9,200 square mile) block offshore Vietnam.

Jim Curry, chief executive of BHP's minerals arm, said earnings this year would be boosted by the December opening of its 57.5 per cent owned Escondida copper mine in Chile

The world's largest known copper ore body would open eight months ahead of schedule and provide the company with its "most significant lift in earnings" this decade.

"Staged expansion is planned for the Kalimantan Mines (in Indonesia). New customers during the year included cement plants in India and Thailand and power plants in Hong Kong and the People's Republic of China."

Syama Gold Mine, BHP's 80-per-cent-owned joint venture with Mali government, might not be the last venture in the west African country, he said.

"Discussions are underway with the Malian authorities to obtain permits for additional exploration."

John Prescott, chief executive of BHP steel, said steel exports, which jumped 57 per cent to 1.22 million tonnes in 1989-90 were the only way to combat falling domestic orders.

"Our exports will grow another 30 per cent this year," he said adding that 40 per cent of these sales would go to Asia while 20 per cent would head to North America.

BHP is also concerned about environmental opposition here.

Recently greenies halted production at BHP's Coronation Hill gold mine in the Northern Territory, arguing that mining could pollute nearby rivers which flow through Kakadu National Park, a tropical wilderness made famous by "Crocodile Dundee" movies.

BUDAPEST (JULY 3) - Coal mines at Oroszlany in the north west of Hungary were being disrupted for the second day on Tuesday as 2,000 miners continued a strike in support of demands for pay increases of 25 per cent to 30 per cent, the MTI news agency reported.

The striking miners, who began their action on Monday as negotiations with representatives of the government broke down, were also demanding the removal of plant managers whom they hold responsible for a worsening situation in the mine and in the country.

The miners have drafted a 16-point list of demands including employee participation in plant output.

A delegation of 10 miners went to Budapest on Tuesday for discussions with Commerce Minister Aos Peter Bod. The miners have said that they would resume work if progress were made in the talks.

The management has said that it intends to take legal action against miners who went on strike without warning.

The mine management has said that surface workers earn on average 220,000 forints (about 3,400 dollars) per year and that face workers earn 300,000 forints.

BRUSSELS (JULY 3) - Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama arrived here Tuesday for talks with EEC and NATO leaders ahead of a forum of western countries that are aiding eastern Europe, Japanese officials said.

Mr. Nakayama was to meet with Belgian Foreign Minister Mark Eyskens before heading for the headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO), where he was to hold one-hour talks with the alliance's secretary-general, Manfred Woerner.

In the evening, he was to dine with foreign ministers of the European Economic Community's "troika," the EEC's top diplomatic representation.

The troika gathers the previous, present and next holders of the EEC's rotating six-month presidency -- in this case, Ireland, Italy and Luxembourg.

Mr. Nakayama and Mr. Eyskens were to discuss international aid for the Soviet Union and, in bilateral affairs, landing rights in Japan for the Belgian state airline, Sabena, a Belgian foreign ministry spokesman said.

Japan so far has taken a cautious line on the question of Soviet aid, arguing that the Soviet Union has abundant natural resources that need far-reaching economic reforms in order to be unlocked.

The meeting "will focus on matters of common interest," such as the unfolding situation in the Soviet Union, a NATO source said.

It also marks the strengthening informal ties between Japan and the western alliance, which is seeking a new political role.

Japan, for the first time, attended a NATO seminar last month. Its representative, Deputy Foreign Minister Hisashi Owada, said that Japan did not want to be "formally associated" with NATO, but wanted to be included in consultations.

On Wednesday, Mr. Nakayama was to join other foreign ministers of the so-called "G-24" group of industrialised democracies that are channelling aid and fresh credits to eastern Europe.

The group will allow Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and East Germany to join the programme, which has already been the umbrella for more than 12 billion dollars in help for Poland and Hungary.

Late Wednesday, Mr. Nakayama was to meet with the vice president of the EEC's executive Commission, Frans Andriessen, Commission sources said.

Talks could cover the delicate issue of giving Japan full access to the EEC car market when the Community scraps its internal barriers to trade.

The Commission reported last month that Japanese car manufacturers are willing to restrain their exports for a transitional period after 1993, in order to give their European rivals time to adjust to increased competition.

Japan at present has less than 10 per cent of the EEC car market -- the world's largest -- thanks to voluntary restraints or enforced quotas in five national markets.

OSLO (JULY 3) - The board of the state-owned oil company Statoil said Tuesday it had given the green light for a giant methanol plant to be built in Norway with Conoco, a subsidiary of U.S. chemical giant Du Pont.

Statoil will hold an 80 per cent stake in the plant, which is to cost an estimated 384 million dollars, and Conoco the remaining 20 per cent.

The new plant will cover 15 to 20 per cent of Europe's methanol needs at peak production of 830,000 tons per year.

The site for the plant is to be decided in the next few months.

Gas deliveries to the plant are due to begin in 1996, from the Heidrun oilfield off the central Norwegian coast, which is to be operated by Conoco and is due to go into production in 1995.

SYDNEY (JULY 3) - Australia's high interest rates boosted the local dollar to a 1990 high against the U.S. unit on Tuesday, dealers said here.

The currency finished at 79.80 U.S. cents compared to Monday's close of 79.45 U.S. cents.

The trade-weighted index edged up from its previous close of 61.8 to end at 61.9.

Some dealers said that the dollar's rise above 80 U.S. cents was inevitable while others warned that the currency could tumble.

"I feel we must be nearing some form of consolidation" on the Australian dollar, one dealer said.

Foreigners have chased the Australian dollar recently to capitalise on the nation's high interest rates, which show no sign of falling, dealers said.

In early April the unit was trading at 75.40 U.S. cents.

WARSAW (JULY 3) - Trade between Poland and the Soviet Union is to be denominated in U.S. dollars instead of transferable rubles as of January 1 next year, a decision which has taken Warsaw by surprise, press reports said here Tuesday.

The Gazeta newspaper quoted deputy minister for foreign economic cooperation Stanislaw Dlugosz as saying that "on Saturday, the Soviet Union denounced a trade agreement with Poland based on the transferable ruble and indicated that from now on exchanges would be denominated in dollars and at world market rates."

But Mr. Dlugosz indicated that Moscow's decision had come as something of a surprise to Warsaw, which had been calling for the gradual introduction of the dollar as the trading currency over three years.

The Soviet move is also not entirely in Poland's interest, Mr. Dlugosz said, particularly a decision to stop taking Polish machinery.

Some 260 Polish factories send a large part of their output to the Soviet Union, but will now have to modernise and seek customers in more competitive markets, he added.

Trade within the eastern bloc trading alliance COMECON has been largely carried out on a barter basis and denominated in the transferable ruble, a unit of account rather than a real currency.

Poland is to abandon the transferable ruble in favour of the dollar in trade with other COMECON partners next year.

BERLIN (JULY 3) - It will take seven years to modernise East Germany's telephone system, but a distinct improvement should be noticeable from next year, telecommunications chief Heinz Uhlig said here Tuesday.

Mr. Uhlig told a joint press conference with representatives of the West German telecommunications organisation that the modernisation programme, due to be completed in 1997, would cost some 55 billion Deutsche marks (33 billion dollars), half of which would be provided by East Germany.

The outdated East German telephone system is one of the main obstacles to the country's economic development, analysts say.

Some 1.2 million people are on the waiting list for a telephone, a number which would take 20 years to clear at last year's level of 60,000 new lines.

Some 100,000 new lines are set to be installed this year, and 300,000 next year.

But to reach the same level of service as West Germany, the East German telecommunications network will have to install 7.1 million lines and 60,000 public cabins, not to mention specialist services such as digital data transmission or mobile telephones which do not exist here at all.

Horst Gellert, a director of the West German Telekom company, told the press conference that mobile phone users would be limited to calls of around five minutes to avoid overloading the system.

Since the fall of the Berlin Wall last year, mobile telephones -- which can connect with the West German network from the Berlin and Leipzig areas -- have been an indispensable tool for businessmen and journalists here.

BONN (JULY 3) - French Economy Minister Pierre Beregovoy warned here Tuesday of the dangers of protectionism and inflation in the wake of German monetary and economic union, which took effect Sunday.

Mr. Beregovoy also told his West German counterpart Helmut Haussmann and some 1,000 French businessmen operating in West Germany that uncertainties over the legal, fiscal and social rules and free competition in East Germany should be lifted "as soon as possible."

He warned against "the temptation towards protectionism" which could in turn spark inflationary pressure.

But Mr. Beregovoy said he saw no "immediate risk of increased inflation in Germany," adding that fears of inflationary pressure due to economic and monetary union had been "exaggerated."

In the medium term, the risk of inflation would depend on the choices made by the authorities, particularly on how to deal with increased domestic demand which could be fed by increased imports from the European Economic Community.

"There are two ways to absorb demand growth: imports or inflation. Whichever Germany chooses, it will alter the perspective of Europe."

French businesses should be given "very quickly a guarantee that they will be treated on exactly the same footing as West German businesses, thanks to appropriate legislation on competition," Mr. Beregovoy said.

He said that he had received assurances that public works and infrastructure contracts would be open to bids from throughout the European Economic Community, and that legislation on privatisation, mergers and capital investment would not exclude companies outside West Germany.

"The introduction of a market economy does not mean replacing state monopolies by private monopolies," Mr. Beregovoy said.

He also called for a total customs union which would mean "banning all new protectionist measures by one side or the other, and suppressing those which are currently in operation."

Turning to the areas in which French industry could become involved in East Germany, Mr. Beregovoy particularly stressed cement group Lafarge's plan to buy an East German plant at Karlsdorf, saying that if it went through it would be significant as "showing clearly that Germany has chosen to open its market."

JERUSALEM (JULY 3) - Three Palestinian youths aged between nine and 15 years old were killed by a hand grenade thrown by another as yet unidentified Arab in a West Jordan village late Monday, Israeli authorities disclosed 12 hours later on Tuesday.

Twelve other Arabs were wounded in the attack, in which a grenade was hurled at a protest march staged by members of the Fatah faction of Palestine Liberation Organisation (Plo) leader Yassir Arafat.

The official report of the incident at Idna, southwest of Hebron, was withheld by Israeli censors for twelve hours.

The three killed were identified as Mahmud Ahmed Nimr Naim, nine years old, Hasem Tameisi, 13, and Mahmud Abdallah Farajallah, 15.

Arab sources ascribed the attack to factional infighting among the local Plo groups, while the Israeli military said a family feud was the the cause.

The military believed that members of a family which had been driven out of the village a month ago for alleged collaboration with the Israeli occupation authorities were behind the grenade attack. Several months earlier, a member of the family, Jerred Tameisi, was killed by Palestinian extremists who suspected him of collaboration.

Arab sources said the Israeli military did not arrive at the village until four hours after the attack. The attacker had not yet been arrested, they said.

In another development meanwhile, Israel's ambassador to Egypt, Shimon Shamir, on Tuesday quit his post to express his dissatisfaction with the Mideast policy of the rightwing government of Premier Itzhak Shamir.

The ambassador, no relation to the premier, in his resignation letter to Foreign Minister David Levy said he hoped to use his two remaining months in Cairo to promote the peace process.

The career diplomat is known as a strong backer of the foreign policy line of former premier and opposition Social Democratic party leader Shimon Peres.

Levy said he ''regretted'' Shamir's resignation.

For Jerusalem the move comes at an inopportune time, the Israeli leadership having hoped to enlist Cairo's help in setting up a dialogue with the Palestinians, political observers here say.

LONDON (JULY 3) - The International Press Institute (Ipi) protested to Turkey on Tuesday at the closure of two Turkish magazines accused by Ankara of weakening national unity.

The magazines ''2000'' E dogru'' and ''Halk Gercegi'' were closed indefinitely and the Ilicek Printing House which publishes them shut for 10 days under a decree enforced by the interior ministry.

''The statement by the ministry of interior that 'the magazine had got into the habit of making publications with the purpose of weakening the national unity and integrity of the Turkish republic' has worrying implications for freedom of speech and people's right to be informed in your country. Furthermore, it is a grave violation of internationally recognized human rights,'' the Ipi said in its protest to Turkish President Turgut Ozal.

The institute urged ''this harsh enforcement'' be immediately lifted, that ''2000'' E dogru'' and ''Halk Gercegi'' be allowed to publish without repression, and that press freedom be restored throughout Turkey.

MOSCOW (JULY 3) - The three Baltic republics are to hold a summit meeting next week to prepare for talks with Moscow on independence, Tass news agency reported Tuesday, quoting Lithuanian Premier Kazimiera Prunskiene.

Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia would seek to coordinate their positions, and the summit would "assess jointly the draft documents prepared by us, including the draft treaty between Lithuania and the Soviet Union," she told a press conference in Vilnius.

The Soviet Union last week lifted all sanctions imposed on Lithuania after the parliament in Vilnius adopted a moratorium on its independence declaration.

The 100-day moratorium will come into effect from the beginning of negotiations.

Meanwhile, Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis predicted that negotiations with Moscow would first involve "talks about talks" to decide "what kind of delegation will represent the two sides, what kind of powers they will have, and where the negotiating table will be set up".

The talks would also deal with the issue of how and when "all powers of managing the economy, transport, communications, law enforcement and border controls" would be transferred from Moscow to the republic.

MANILA (JULY 3) - The head of the American Chamber of Commerce in the Philippines warned the government Tuesday that several proposed laws and security and infrastructure problems were scaring off new foreign investment.

Mark Blacker also warned that highly-publicized investigations into such projects as a proposed Japanese industrial park and a Taiwan petrochemical plant in the country were harming Manila's efforts to attract more capital.

He stressed that the Philippines still held economic potential and that foreign firms already in place were faring well under President Corazon Aquino, but the country was doing poorly in attracting newcomers.

"The message is loud and clear. If you have a large, visible investment (in the Philippines), someone is likely to make it difficult for you," the U.S. banker told foreign correspondents.

He cited "perceived anti-multinational company bills in congress, extended public debates after major investment projects have been approved, bureaucratic inertia that defeats investors, and corruption," as scaring away investors.

Mr. Blacker cited a pending bill limiting local borrowing by foreign firms to 10 per cent of their equity, and reiterated foreign investors' appeals to relax laws limiting their ownership share in most local firms to 40 per cent.

He also noted the the Philippines suffered from inadequate power supply, inferior communication networks, poor roads, and personal security concerns, including alleged communist rebel threats against U.S. Peace Corps volunteers.

Mr. Blacker, noting that the power crisis causes daily blackouts in Manila and its suburbs, said a U.S. firm, Cogentrix, had been prepared to develop along with Caltex a 220 megawatt power generation plant.

But after two and a half years of negotiating on the price at which it will sell power to the state-owned National Power Corp., project leaders were told to do an environmental impact study that could take another 18 months he said.

Caltex is now reconsidering a 160 million dollar expansion plan, while a 110 million dollar sulphur mine and 35 million dollar telephone facility have been relocated to other countries, Mr. Blacker said.

"Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand have made it very clear they want foreign investment. I am convinced the Philippines is not sending the same kind of positive message to the rest of the world," he said.

PRAGUE (JULY 3) - Czechoslovak Prime Minister Marian Calfa said Tuesday that his new government's main aim was to achieve a faster transition to a market economy taking into account social and ecological interests.

"Our task will not be easy and cannot be completed in the life of the current two-year legislature, but we will do all we can to come close to reaching our objective," Mr. Calfa said as he presented to parliament his government's programme.

Free elections were held in early June and President Vaclav Havel named the new government on Wednesday last week.

During a one-hour speech, Mr. Calfa unveiled the broad lines of a programme of economic, social and ecological reforms which would be undertaken "before the end of the year."

There were no signs of Polish-style shock therapy, but indications of a thought-through transition to a market economy which seemed to rein in the progressive liberalism of Finance Minister Vaclav Klaus.

Mr. Calfa said that gradual privatisation of state-owned enterprises would begin in the second half of this year.

The government would support the entry of foreign capital into privatised companies, while maintaining foreign debt at its current level of seven to eight billion dollars.

Wage and tax reform would include a fixing of company profit tax at a uniform level of around 55 percent, against the current system where in some cases it is as high as 90 percent.

On ecological issues, Mr. Calfa said that several lignite-fired power plants, which cause pollution by releasing sulphur into the air, in north and west Bohemia would be closed this year, as well as some lignite mines.

Prague is seeking to put an end to coal pollution, the cause of the devastation of almost 80 percent of the country's forests, by increasing use of natural gas and nuclear power as energy sources.

Mr. Calfa said that the Soviet Union would remain the country's "most important" economic partner -- it currently accounts for 40 percent of Czechoslovakia's foreign trade.

He also stressed that the economic reforms would be accompanied by a complete restructuring of the social security system, which would enable the introduction of a guaranteed minimum wage, higher pensions and savings and would allow mothers to remain at home for the first three years of a child's life.

In an interview published in the trades union newspaper Prace on Tuesday, Mr. Calfa said that these reforms would be carried out in consultation with the unions.

On defence issues, Mr. Calfa said that Czechoslovakia would like to appear at the Paris summit of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE) "as a state whose army is subject only to its own national command."

"This is obviously linked to changes underway within the Warsaw Pact," he added.

"We will remain within this alliance on condition that reforms of the Pact initiated by Czechoslovakia are realised by November."

Prague favours the continuation of the Pact as a political rather than a military organisation.

JEDDAH (JULY 3) - Saudi Arabia Tuesday blamed Israel for blocking the Mideast peace process and urged the superpowers to adopt a balanced stand towards the Arab-Israeli conflict in order to achieve a just and comprehensive solution.

The remarks were contained in a joint address by King Fahd bin Abdul Aziz and his brother Crown Prince Abdullah to Moslem delagtions who performed the annual pilgrimage to Mecca.

The Saudi leaders expressed ''great disappointment'' over the emigration of Soviet Jews to Israel, saying the influx represented a danger to the Palestinian people and the peace process.

On Lebanon, the address reiterated Riaydh's support for the peace accord reached by Leabnese deputies in Taif, Saudi Arabia, last September, saying it was the ''only suitable framework to settle the Lebanese crisis and end 15 years of the Lebanese people's suffering.''

King Fahd and Crown Prince Abdullah expressed their satisfaction at the progress in efforts to break the deadlocked peace talks between the former Gulf war adversaries Iraq and Iran.

TAIPEI (JULY 3) - Taiwan's economic officials said Tuesday they would move to revitalize the local stock market, hit by capital depletion and a confidence crisis, after shares plunged more than 60 percent in five months.

At an emergency meeting called at the weekend by Premier Hau Pei-tsun, officials agreed on a package of measures to resurrect the stock market in which some 20 percent of Taiwan's population has a stake, the officials said.

The finance ministry is to open more financing options to some securities houses, allow foreign investors to enter the local bourse and consider investing a 40 billion dollar (1.46 billion U.S.) pension fund in the market,

The Stock Exchange Commission (SEC) is also encouraging institutional investors to back the bourse, which is now dominated by day-trading individuals, an SEC official said.

The benchmark weighted price index has dropped more than 60 percent from its February 10 high of 12,682.41, closing Tuesday at 4,905.87.

The stock market, formerly a magnet for local investors eager to make easy money from Taiwan's limited investment channels, is no longer as attractive to profit-hunters.

Rising interest rates, growing capital flight, political uncertainty and the Central Bank's credit-tightening measures have weakened investor confidence, floor dealers said.

Total turnover has shrunk some 85 percent from a record 216 billion dollars (7.88 billion U.S.) on March 17, as big speculators have moved their funds to overseas bourses while institutional players remained on the sidelines.

Four local securities investment and trust firms collected a total of 20 billion dollars (730 million U.S.) by issuing closed-end mutual funds on the market, one official said.

Mr. Hau has turned down calls from investors to halve the 0.6 percent stock transaction tax, which was adopted last year in a bid to cool speculation on the bourse.

The finance ministry levied some 80 billion dollars (2.92 billion U.S.) from the market in transaction tax in the first half of this year.

Many of the factors boosting the stock market over the past three years -- appreciation of the Taiwan currency, booming exports, swelling foreign exchange reserves, excessive funds, and continued economic growth -- have now retreated.

Taiwan's exports are now slowing, with May exports down 10.2 percent to 5.64 billion U.S. dollars, the largest monthly drop in 20 months. Meanwhile, the trade surplus in the first five months of 1990 dipped 27.5 percent from a year ago to 3.84 billion U.S. dollars.

Central Bank Governor Samuel Shieh said last month that 7.5 billion U.S. dollars had been sent abroad from January to May, compared to 8.2 billion dollars in the whole of last year.

The high rate of capital exodus has slashed the island's foreign exchange reserves to below 65 billion dollars at the end of June, he said.

Many investors have pulled their money out of the stock market and bought U.S. dollars ahead of an expected depreciation of the local unit, analysts said.

JERUSALEM (JULY 3) - Former Israeli prime minister Menachem Begin underwent surgery on Tuesday after falling at home and breaking his thigh bone, hospital sources said.

The 76-year-old veteran politician is to remain in hospital for two or three weeks, they said, adding that that type of fracture was common in people of Mr. Begin's age and that it did not usually present complications.

Mr. Begin was admitted to hospital several weeks ago after a bout of pneumonia. He has already suffered several heart attacks.

Mr. Begin led the right-wing opposition for 29 years, from the creation of the Israeli state in 1948 to his Likud bloc's electoral victory in 1977 under which he secured the premiership. He retained the post until September 1983.

He has suffered from chronic depression and been a recluse since leaving government.

PRAGUE (JULY 3) - The name of Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel was officially put forward for a two-year mandate as president in parliament on Tuesday, the CTK news agency reported.

President Havel, who became president by acclamation after the 1989 November revolution, has agreed to his candidacy going forward for a vote on Thursday, a spokesman for the president's office told AFP.

His candidacy was proposed by a group of members of parliament from the democratic movements in the Czech Civic Forum and the Slovak Public against Violence.

The Slovak independent National Party officially presented a second candidate, Stefan Kvietik, on Tuesday. Mr. Kvietik represents the National Party on the Slovak National Council, which is the parliament in the Slovak republic, CTK reported.

The new president of Czechoslovakia is due to be elected on Thursday by members of the two chambers of the federal assembly during a special session to be held in Prague castle.

Mr. Havel, a former dissident playwright who was imprisoned by the Communist administration, has broad support among political forces in the country. Aged 53, he was a leading figure in the bloodless revolution in November.

Most observers said that he would almost certainly be re-elected for the next two years.

BUDAPEST (JULY 3) - French press group Hersant wants to take a stake in Hungarian daily Magyar Nemet (The Hungarian Nation), parliament was told here Tuesday.

An MP from the opposition democratic alliance, Miklos Haraszti, accused Prime Minister Jozsef Antall of causing negotiations between a Swedish press group and Magyar Nemet to fail, to help the French bid.

Mr. Antall's aim was to make the former Hungarian communist party newspaper the organ of his centre-right Democratic Forum, Mr. Haraszti said.

Mr. Antall strongly denied the accusations, saying that the government had wanted to ensure that free competition existed between the would-be buyers, including Hersant and a Swedish group, to achieve the best solution for the future of the Hungarian newspaper.

He said the government wanted the newspaper to be independent, and that it had acted on the request of the daily's editors.

An independent commission would evaluate the proposals from the various bidders and a decision would be taken by July 25, he added.

SRINAGAR, INDIA (JULY 3) - The Kashmir administration closed all schools and colleges and reinforced security on the eve of a key Moslem festival Tuesday, after anti-Indian protests in the strife-torn valley.

The moves came as Moslem militants asked Kashmiris to assemble at the sprawling Idgah grounds here Wednesday to mark Eid-ul-Zuha, which coincides with the end of the Haj pilgrimage.

Troops and paramilitary police kept a high profile in sensitive parts of the city and elsewhere in the Kashmir valley, rocked by a violent campaign for secession which has left more than 700 people dead so far this year.

Security patrols were increased to tackle "any eventuality," officials said here in Kashmir's summer capital, the urban hub of the separatist campaign.

All educational institutions in the valley were ordered closed, one day after hundreds of schoolgirls and college students boycotted classes and demonstrated to protest alleged atrocities by security forces.

Some 2,000 protestors chanting "we want freedom" were dispersed by police and paramilitary troops using batons and teargas. The demonstrators, 18 of whom were injured, were mobilised by Dukhtarane Millat (daughters of Islam), a militant-leaning women's organisation.

The Press Trust of India (PTI) news agency said there were "reports of more trouble" in a despatch Tuesday, but gave no details.

It was not clear how long the closure of schools and colleges would last. Kashmir students have already missed one academic year because of the turmoil in the valley which intensified in January.

Moslem militants shot dead two men late Monday, including an unidentified man in Ahrabal town.

The Jammu and Kashmir Liberation Front, which is spearheading the separatist drive, claimed responsibility for the murder of a Moslem resident of Baramullah district, saying he was a police spy.

India accuses neighbouring Pakistan, which has disputed the ownership of Kashmir since the subcontinent's independence in 1947, of fanning the turmoil in the valley by training and arming the militants.

Islamabad denies the charge, but has given its support for the separatist campaign in India's only Moslem-majority state, which it says is a just struggle for self-determination.

The JKLF's youth wing, the Jammu and Kashmir Students' Liberation Front (JKSLF), asked "light vehicles" including cars, vans and jeeps to stay off the valley's roads for a month beginning Wednesday, PTI said.

The outlawed group gave no reasons for the "ban," the agency said.

Violators of the ban would not be spared, according to a press release attributed to the JKSLF, which ordered its activists to "spray bullets at the vehicles whenever and whereever they notice them on the roads."

WINDHOEK (JULY 3) - The Namibian government has adopted a pragmatic economic policy in a bid to attract investment, but faces a mass unemployment problem and a possible recession, business leaders are saying here.

Businessmen, nervous a year ago at the prospect of rule by the avowedly Marxist South West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO), have been reassured since independence last March 21 by the government's flexibility smond Matthews, recently told Agence France-Presse.

Prime Minister Hage Geingob explained that the government's priority was attracting private investment, notably from abroad. "You can only distribute ... wealth if you have created wealth first," he said in an interview.

For Mr. Matthews, SWAPO's main concern is providing jobs. "What they face, and they didn't realize it before, is a tremendous unemployment problem," he said.

Offically, about 30 percent of the population is out of work, but the true figure is believed in business circles to be much higher.
concern CDM, a subsidiary of South Africa's De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd. and one of the 'giants' of the Namibian economy.

That economy, dependent on mining, agriculture and stock-breeding, has grown by only one percent a year in the past decade, and current expansion is almost non-existent.

However, the population, put at some 1.5 million at independence, is growing by about three percent.

"That's a typical African scenario," Mr. Matthews commented. "They need at least a five percent growth rate" to tackle unemployment, he added.

Namibia is doing its best to attract foreign investors, but they want more than enouraging words. The legal aspects of an investment code and a taxation system have not yet been sorted out.

In the short term, the fledgling southwest African state, whose finance minister is to present the first post-independence budget on Friday, is also financially in a precarious position.

The budget deficit is expected to be of the order of 500 million rands (almost 190 million dollars) and national planning commission director Zed

Ngavirue last week admitted that the state could not cover it.

Namibia nevertheless received pledges of aid totalling more than 300 million dollars at a United Nations-organized donors' conference in New York last month.

The money is intended to finance some 100 projects in four key sectors: education, health, housing, and agricultural and rural development. The impact on employment levels will not be immediately apparent.

BELGRADE (JULY 3) - Slovenia declared sovereignty over its own affairs Monday night adopting a declaration that was the culmination of a democratisation process and growing nationalist sentiment.

The northern Yugolsav republic bordering Italy and Austria is the most economically developed of the six Yugoslav republics, and its population of barely two million has become increasingly disenchanted with a central government more and more out of step with Slovenian aspirations.

The weakening of the communist party in Yugoslavia increased the pace of change in the republic which became the first to organise open elections last March. This led to a non-communist coalition, Demos, taking power.

Demos carried the election with the theme of Slovenia on the road to independence if the Yugoslav federation did not transform itself into a looser confederation.

The declaration of sovereignty establishes the primacy of Slovenian laws over those of the Federation and Slovenia will no longer recognise the Federal Constitution when it contradicts Slovenia's consititution.

The declaration was adopted late Monday by parliament in an overwhelming 187-3 vote with two abstentions, but the question of total Slovenian independence remains hanging.

Several deputies argued that the full significance of the declaration was unclear and asked for a parliamentary commission to give a legal interpretation of its consequences to be attached to the sovereignty proclamation.

Many political commentators here said Slovenia was unlikely to stress the independence aspects of the declaration, given the West's known preference for a single Yugoslav nation.

But it seems clear Slovenia envisages nothing less than a constitution which would enable Slovenia to move forward under its own steam and the declaration of sovereignty is the first step towards leaving the Yugoslav federation.

slovenia\ croatia\ serbia\ franjo_tudjman\milan_aksentijevic

Echos of the Slovenia syndrome can be heard throughout Yugoslavia.

Croatia, the largest Yugoslav republic after Serbia, is not expected to be long in following Slovenia's lead in proclaiming sovereignty. Its new president, Franjo Tudjman, a former Titoist general and a Croatian nationalist, rode nationalist sentiment to trample the communists in elections last April.

He is now preparing the text of what is expected to be Croatia's assertion of complete autonomy from the federation.

The Serbian province of Kosovo, where ethnic Albanians are an overwhelming majority, are also trying to break away from Serbian control.

In a demonstration Monday in front of the local parliament in Pristina that has been locked and under guard since June 21, Albanian members of the Kosovo parliament declared the province independent from Serbia.

The Albanian community wants equal status for Kosovo with the six Yugoslav republics, while Serbia has been doing everything possible to reinforce its control over Kosovo to counter Albanian nationalism and threats to the small Serbian population in the province.

Macedonia and the republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina are not far behind Croatia and Slovenia in demands for a confederation of states, a demand that should be bolstered after open elections next November which the communist party is expected to lose.

Only Serbia and its faithful ally Montenegro remain hostile to the idea of a looser confederation, although even the army appears to have been reconciled to the idea.

General Milan Aksentijevic, representing the armed forces in the Slovenian parliament, accepted the Slovenian declaration of sovereignty, while pleading for a new rapport in "a common federal or confederal state."

But Serbia is experiencing its own brand of nationalism which has come to identify with a strong federal system, and the danger exists that the various nationalisms are on a collision course.

ERBA (JULY 3) - West German captain Lothar Matthaeus vowed to go flat out against England in the semi-final against England in Turin Wednesday despite the risk of a booking.

Matthaeus already has one yellow card. A second caution would bring an automatic suspension and would mean him missing the final in Rome on July 8 should West Germany beat England as expected.

The 29-year-old midfielder, who will win his 80th cap in Turin's San Paulo stadium, said: ''I won't put the handbrake on for this game. I've just got to forget about the yellow card.''

Matthaeus said the English were strong in the air, physically fit and ''can also play double passes which caused Cameroon a lot of problems''. The Germans will have to keep the ball on the ground.

''Our first aim was to make it to the semi-finals, but now we have to win our next two games if we want to be champions,'' he said.

BELGRADE (JULY 3) - The Serbian authorities rejected on Tuesday a declaration by ethnic Albanian deputies of Kosovo province conferring the status of a republic on the province and declaring it independent of Serbia.

The Kosovo declaration, signed by 114 ethnic Albanian members of the Kosovo parliament, calls for the predominantly ethnic Albanian province to have the same constitutional status as Yugoslavia's six republics.

The declaration was read out in front of a locked and heavily-guarded Kosovo parliament in the Kosovo capital Pristina on Monday.

The Serbian government said the Kosovo declaration was "unconstitutional," had "no legal force" and warned that it would use all measures at its disposal against the "Albanian separatists."

In Kosovo Polje, near Pristina, some members of the 200,000-strong Serbian minority living in Kosovo province called for the immediate dissolution of the Kososvo parliament.

Militant Serbs called for all ethnic Albanians representing Kosovo in Serbian and federal institutions to be recalled.

They also called for the resignation of Riza Sapundziu, a member of the federal presidential college representing Kosovo who has supported the demands of the ethnic Albanian deputies.

The Kosovo parliament has been shut since June 21 when the session was abruptly ended in the midst of a constitutional debate.

In Belgrade, the socialist alliance of Yugoslavia, called the declaration an "illegitimate act" against the territorial integrity of Serbia and Yugoslavia.

MOSCOW (JULY 3) - Thunderous applause from 4,600 delegates at the Soviet Communist Party's 28th Congress in Moscow greeted Tuesday's speech by Igor Ligachev, the most outspoken of President Mikhail Gorbachev's conservative opponents.

In his report as politburo member responsible for agriculture, Ligachev said: ''Radicalism and improvisation have brought (us) little during five years of perestroika.''

According to Ligachev, certain forces existing in the Soviet Union are fighting against socialism and the communist party.

''These forces are proceeding with energy and self-sonfidence and they enjoy great influence in the media,'' he said, describing himself as ''neither a conservative nor a radical, simply a realist.''

But Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze unambiguously backed Gorbachev. In what observers termed a moving speech, Shevardnadze, also a politburo member, gave full backing to Gorbachev's policy and said he had always supported it.

He underlined that foreign policy took precedence over military policy, and on the German issue, said that the divison of Germany since World War Two was ''artificial and unnatural''.

An analysis by the foreign ministry had shown that the ideological confrontation with the West during the past 20 years had cost the Soviet Union 700 billion roubles (1.17 billion dollars) for arms spending, Shevardnadze said.

Another 200 billion roubles had gone into building a military infrastructure along the Chinese border.

''By wasting one-quarter of our budget on defence, we ruined our country,'' he said. ''We will no longer need a defence because a ruined country and a destitute people do not need an army.''

Shevardnadze said the unification of Germany did not pose a threat to the security of the Soviet Union. At the same time he underlined that unification could ''not take place without our agreement''.

Defence Minister Dmitri Yazov, who suffered a fainting spell after his speech, blamed a widespread negative attitude about military service for draft evasions that has led to the Soviet armed forces being short 400,000 recruits.

At the same time, Politburo Member Lew Saikov, responsible for the defence industry, said the Soviet forces were superior in force to those of the United States. He defended Moscow's disarmament moves by saying they resulted from the historical imbalance between Soviet and American forces.

The party congress is widely expected to decide the party's future in the face of mounting discontent throughout the Soviet Union.

OSLO (JULY 3) - Norwegian oil workers blocked transport to North Sea oil platforms on Tuesday, defying their unions and the government, which on Monday invoked the law to force them to end a strike and return to work.

More than 1,000 oil workers prevented helicopters from landing on oil platforms and refused to resume production.

About 4,000 oil workers went on strike Saturday night after wage negotiations broke down and production halted on Sunday.

On Monday the government invoked a law providing for compulsory wage arbitration to force the strikers back to work, citing "protection of national interests."

But the strikers refused to go back to work, and production of oil was minimal Tuesday, according to industry sources.

Norway, Europe's second largest oil producer after Britain, normally produces some 1.7 million barrels a day.

"We have asked our members to go back to work, but this is now out of our hands," said a spokesman for the oil workers' union, OFS, on Tuesday.
l Labor Organization (ILO) over the use of compulsory wage arbitration, saying it denies the legal right to strike.

But the government said Monday that the strike could harm the national interest, and that therefore the decision to invoke the law to end it did not conflict with ILO rules.

The oil workers had been demanding a 4.25 percent pay rise, but the oil companies offered less, saying the workers were already being paid much more than the national average.

Minister of Local Affairs Johan Jakobsen said Monday that the prospect of a protracted strike, causing large losses of tax revenues, was the main reason for invoking the compulsory arbitration law.

Losses in government revenue from a shutdown are put at 15 to 30 million dollars daily, or approximately 25 percent of government income.

Monday's move was the sixth time the government had invoked the law of compulsory wage arbitration against striking oil workers in the past 10 years.

The last such incident was in 1986 after a strike which lasted three days and was said to have cost 230 million dollars.

LONDON (JULY 3) - The Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) produced 23.12 million barrels of oil a day in June, despite a pledge to reduce output to 22 million bd, specialist newsletter Energy Information Limited said Tuesday.

This was nonetheless slightly below May's 23.36 million bd, Energy Information said, and took average OPEC production in the second quarter of this year to 23.33 million bd.

This was an appreciable fall of 420,000 bd over the average 23.75 million bd for the first quarter.

Production in the first six months of this year stood at 23.54 million bd, or 3.5 million bd more than in the first half of 1989 and well above the level of demand, the newsletter said.

OPEC's agreement in May to cut production to 22 million bd until the end of July is more and more seen to have failed, but the fact that production has fallen to some extent every month since March is seen by some market sources as having been enough to avoid a price slump, it added.

July OPEC production could fall to 22.8 or 22.9 million bd, it said.

NEW DELHI (JULY 3) - A southern Indian state government invoked a federal security law Tuesday to detain some 22 Tamil rebels from Sri Lanka, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said.

The agency quoted officials as saying they were all members of the powerful Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE).

The officials said in Madras, the capital of Tamil Nadu state, that the 22 had been ordered detained under the National Security Act, which provides for indefinite detention.

They were picked up from the Salem, Tiruchirappalli, Madurai and Thanjavur areas in a police crackdown across Tamil Nadu last month, the agency said without specifying the charges against them.

On June 19, suspected militants from the LTTE, the dominant Tamil rebel group fighting Sri Lankan government troops, shot dead 13 men from the rival Eelam People's Revolutionary Liberation Front (EPRLF), including the EPRLF's secretary general, K. Padmanabha, in Madras.

~HL:LUCIANO PAVAROTTI RATES ENGLISH, GERMAN NATIONAL ANTHEMS BEST AT WORLD CUP
MILAN (JULY 3) REUTER - Master tenor Luciano Pavarotti thinks England and West Germany have the best national anthems of those played during the final stages of the World Cup.

Pavarotti has himself scored a major musical hit during the World Cup by reaching the top of the English hit parade with the aria Nessun Dorma from Puccini's opera Turandot, used as the theme for the tournament on British television.

Asked which of the eight quarter-finalists -- England, West Germany, Cameroun, Italy, Argentina, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Ireland-- had the best anthems played before the matches, Pavarotti said:

''For me all the anthems are beautiful. They still move me emotionally because of the patriotic and lyrical elements which I still feel when I see the players singing.''

He added: ''But musically, the English and German anthems have something extra. Perhaps it's because of their noble origins, or the way they are covered in the dust of ages, but certainly they have a fascination that no other anthem among these eight can boast.''

Pavarotti said Italy's anthem ''is not bad'' but suggested it might have been better to substitute it with the Va'Pensiero chorus from Verdi's Nabucco.

Nessun Dorma, which means ''no-one sleeps,'' is very appropriate for a World Cup theme in Italy, where ear-splitting victory parades after every Italian success ensure just that.

LONDON (JULY 3) - The average rate of return on capital before tax among the world's top 1,000 banks fell to 14.15 percent in 1989, from 18.61 percent in 1988, according to the annual Top 1,000 survey conducted by trade magazine The Banker.

The Banker, published monthly here by Financial Times Business Information Ltd., said that the findings confirmed a long-term downward slide in the rate of return on capital among the world's banks, which hovered around 20 percent in the 1970's and 18 percent in the mid-1980's.

More competition in both international and domestic banking, higher debt provisions, the impact of interest rate changes, and lower market values of securities holdings were cited as reasons for the decline.

According to the survey, profits performance was disappointing in absolute terms. Six percent of banks which disclosed reliable profits figures made a loss last year, and a further 33 percent made smaller pre-tax profits than the year before. After allowing for inflation, 44 percent of all banks disclosing their latest figures reported a lower level of profitability in real terms.

Sumitomo of Japan topped the list in terms of capital, followed by fellow Japanese Dai-Ichi Kangyo in second place and Fuji in third, with a total of six Japanese banks in the top ten. Credit Agricole of France was placed fourth, with two British (National Westminster and Barclays) and one West German (Deutsche Bank) in the top ten.

BEIJING (JULY 3) - China's grain production can no longer keep up with population growth, Agriculture Vice Minister Wang Lianzheng was quoted Tuesday as saying.

China has set a goal of producing 500 million tons of grain annually by the year 2000, which some Western experts consider unrealistic.

The world's most populous nation with 1.1 billion people, China registered a record grain harvest of 407.45 million tons in 1989, but output has hovered around 400 million tons since the previous best of 407.3 million tons in 1984, according to official figures.

Mr. Wang, in an Economic Daily article quoted Tuesday by the English-language China Daily, said "the country's grain production can no longer match the population increase."

China hopes to produce 412.5 million tons of grain this year, but annual per capita grain output is now 366 kilograms (805 pounds), 27 kilograms (59 pounds) less than it was in in 1984, the China Daily said.

Industrial development and soil erosion have also left the country with 640,000 hectares (1.58 million acres) less arable land for each year between 1986 and 1989, according to official figures.

"Only if advanced technology is utilized on a much broader scale than it is now can China hope to modernize farming," Mr. Wang was quoted as saying.

He added that China, which has prided itself on being self-sufficient for grain, had "enormous potential."

Mr. Wang called for accelerating agricultural development by reclaiming wasteland, using high-yield grain varieties, improving soil fertility and irrigation methods, and reducing pest damage to plants.

The agriculture ministry has sent thousands of scientists into rural areas this year to try to popularize the latest farming methods, the China Daily said.

ROME (JULY 3) - Here's a piece of advice to West Germany's Juergen Kohler or any other defender deployed to mark England's Gary Lineker: Try stepping on his foot.

The lightning fast Lineker, top goalscorer at the 1986 World Cup in Mexico, has been sorely troubled throughout the present tournament by a badly bruised big toe.

The 29-year-striker has rarely trained, spent most of the time walking about in slippers - and until the quarter-finals had been soft-shoe shuffling in front of goal.

Lineker scored in England's opening 1-1 draw against Ireland, but failed to net again until Sunday when his brace of penalties against Cameroon put England into the semi-finals.

It was a dramatic return for the Tottenham and ex-Barcelona man who was once described by England's Daily Mirror newspaper as ''the baby-faced killer'' for his boyish looks and rapier-sharp finishing.

''I had a few negative thoughts when the first penalty was awarded, but I knew their goalkeeper would move one way or the other for the second, so I decided just to hit it straight,'' he said.

Lineker broke an unwritten football rule by taking penalties after he had himself been brought down in the area - ''a very difficult thing to do'', said manager Bobby Robson afterwards.

Lineker is still troubled by the toe on his right foot but hopes he will no longer need a painkilling injection before he plays. He still hopes to equal or better the six goals he scored in Mexico.

The striker is already the third most successful goalscorer in English international soccer history. His 35 goals in 55 England games puts him behind only Bobby Charlton (49 goals in 106 games) and Jimmy Greaves (44 in 57).

JOHANNESBURG (JULY 3) - South African rhodium producers expressed alarm Tuesday at a sharp rise in the price of the metal used in catalytic converters for cars.

"It is nice to make more money but it is not nice to have instability in one of our main markets," Impala Platinum managing director Michael McMahon told Agence France-Presse.

The influential finance daily Business Day Tuesday reported a sharp hike in the rhodium price from around 5,250 dollars an ounce to close to 6,000 dollars an ounce on the New York Stock Exchange Monday.

South Africa is a major producer of the platinum group metal, which is used by automobile manufacturers to control exhaust fumes.

Mr. McMahon predicted that the rhodium price will not hold at the present high price in the long term.

Business Day quoted a spokesman for Rustenburg Platinum as saying the company was alarmed at the sharp rise, but that the price the company received was not determined by the market price, as most of the sales were on contract to automobile manufacturers.

BUENOS AIRES (JULY 3) - President Carlos Menem, who took office a year ago pledging to battle corruption, introduced legislation proposing up to life imprisonment for officials convicted of bribery, influence peddling or embezzlement, it was announced Tuesday.

The bill, prepared by Senator Eduardo Menem, the president's brother, would also require corruption trials to be held in public.

Mr. Menem, who as a candidate branded corruption a "betrayal of the nation " has been increasingly criticized in recent months, including by his outspoken wife Zulema Yoma, for failing to act decisively against alleged widespread malfeasance.

Under the proposed legislation, officials convicted of bribery, embezzlement or influence peddling would face two to six years in prison.

But officials judged to have caused serious harm to the nation would face sentences ranging from 10 years to life in prison.

PARIS (JULY 3) - State-owned posts and telecommunications concern France Telecom said Tuesday its net operating profit more than doubled last year to 4.6 billion francs (821 million dollars) from 1.8 billion (310 million dollars).

Turnover was up 7.9 percent at 95.1 billion francs (16.3 billion dollars).

Income from telephone use was up 7.1 percent to 64.8 billion francs, or 68 percent of turnover, while mobile telephones saw turnover soar 74 percent and telecopying was up 72 percent at 2.3 billion francs.

The group's debt was down 800 million francs at 118.4 billion.

BRUSSELS (JULY 3) - The European Commission on Tuesday asked the East German Government to consult it before authorising mergers in the country, sources close to the European Economic Community executive said.

Sir Leon Brittan, the Commission vice-president for competition, made the request in a letter to East German Industry Minister Gerhard Pohl a few days ahead of Sunday's implementation of German economic, monetary and social union, the sources said.

Sir Leon particularly regretted not being consulted before West German insurance group Allianz, Europe's largest company in the sector, took a majority stake in the state-owned East German insurance network.

He also expressed concern over the rising number of mergers in East Germany, which will become part of the EEC when political union between the two Germanies takes place, the sources said.

Apart from Allianz, West German airline Lufthansa, auto and aeronautics concern Daimler-Benz and Deutsche Bank have reached or are planning to sign agreements with East German companies.

The Commission watches over the preservation of free competition within the EEC and can oppose mergers which give a company too dominant a position.

But it has no power in East Germany which is not an EEC member, so that Sir Leon was only able to request that it at least be consulted when the East German Government is considering mergers and takeovers.

JOHANNESBURG (JULY 3) - South Africa's population could double to exceed 60 million by the year 2010, of which more than a third would be blacks living in city areas, an independent foundation said here Tuesday.

An intensive demographic study conducted by the privately-funded Urban Foundation and released here Tuesday, found that the white minority government's failed policy of coralling blacks in homelands had totally disregarded demographic trends.

Also known as "grand apartheid", the 14-year-old homeland policy aimed to segregate blacks on an ethnic basis into 10 nominally-independent or self-governing states.

Statistics show that the South African government had spent almost 5.56 billion rands (about 1.2 billion dollars) on funding the 10 homelands in one year alone, 1988-89.

Urban Foundation director of urbanisation Ann Bernstein said at a media conference Tuesday projected figures showed the population could double 25 years from now and that 32 million people would live in the country's eight largest cities -- compared to only 12 million now.

FRANKFURT, WEST GERMANY (JULY 3) - West Germany's third largest store chain, Hertie, said Tuesday that it would be able to wipe out all its past losses this year.

The group made a net consolidated profit last year of 84.1 million Deutsche marks (50 million dollars) but had accumulated losses of 11 million Deutsche marks.

"This year, we will show an at least balanced result," finance director Juergen Holst told a press conference.

Hertie has faced major profitability problems for more than a decade, but a major restructuring undertaken three years ago is now beginning to bear fruit.

Nonetheless, last year's good showing would not have been possible without the income from the sale of two parcels of land, Mr. Holst said.

The company made "enormous" losses in its specialised retail outlets, with electronics and leisure company Schauland and electrical appliances concern Schuermann alone showing losses of 57 million Deutsche marks (34 million dollars).

A refocussing on specialist shops instead of large general stores is one of the key points in Hertie's restructuring programme.

The group's sales totalled 2.92 billion Deutsche marks in the first half of this year, up 8.7 per cent over the same period last year, while the 62 large stores, which are still the pillar of the group's activities, saw sales up 8.8 per cent.

"This year we will not need to sell land to show a positive net result," Mr. Holst said.

In March Hetrie sold most of its Bilka store chain to competitors Woolworth and Kaufhof for 50 million Deutsche marks.

But it kept its five Bilka shops in West Berlin, hoping they would benefit from East German demand in the wake of German monetary union which took effect Sunday.

Hertie also plans to open five fashion stores in East Berlin and has signed a cooperation accord with a major East Berlin store, board chairman Juergen Krueger said.

HELSINKI (JULY 3) - Finland on Tuesday gave the go-ahead to the transit of Soviet Jews through Finland to Israel, Finnish Foreign Minister Pertti Paasio said.

He said the government had decided there was no obstacle to granting flight permission to the Israeli national airline El Al.

Under the agreement, El Al will be able to run charter flights to Finland once a week until October 24.

The government said its decision was justified on humanitatrian and human rights grounds. But it has requested that transit passengers have the opportunity in Finland to reconsider their travel plans.

The foreign minister said the government emphasized that Israel should adhere to its declared policy of not settling Soviet Jews in the occupied territories.

When Mr. Paasio visited the Middle East last week, the Israelis gave assurances that the immigrants would not be settled on the West Bank of the Jordan or in the Gaza strip. But their statement did not cover disputed east Jerusalem.

Mr. Paasio said he thought flights could begin early next week. The Jews will presumably be transported by bus from Leningrad to the Finnish airport at Lappeenranta where El Al will collect them.

BUENOS AIRES (JULY 3) - Three days before the deadline for privatizing Aerolineas Argentinas, Iberia Air Lines of Spain is the only other carrier to have formally declared its interest in buying the Argentine national airline.

But, sources said Tuesday, other foreign airlines were frantically endeavoring to put together packages to finance bids of their own.

Meanwhile, there was confusion about whether the government would stand by its deadline of Friday for firm bids to buy 85 per cent of the Aerolineas.

The minister overseeing the privatization, Roberto Dromi, said Monday the deadline would not be extended; but Tuesday he said he had not ruled out the possibility of reopening bidding, saying that was up to President Carlos Menem.

Political observers said the government, which triumphantly sold off the state-owned telephone company ENTEL last month, appeared to be embarrassed to have found just one would-be purchaser for the airline.

Coincidentally, a Spanish company was successful in the privatization bidding for the Argentine telephone company. ENTEL was taken over in a complicated debt-for-equity swap involving the Spanish national telephone company in partnership with the U.S. firm, Bell Atlantic.

Nevertheless, sources in Buenos Aires said one could not rule out a last-minute surprise in the battle for the airline, adding that there had been a great deal of maneuvring among banks and foreign airlines here over the past 48 hours.

NEW YORK (JULY 3) - South African anti-aparthied leader Nelson Mandela collected at least seven million dollars for his African National Congress (ANC) during his triumphant tour of the United States, according to figures provided by organisers of special events connected with the visit.

With final tallies still incomplete, New York provided the deputy president of the ANC with the largest single amount -- 1.75 million dollars so far.

Los Angeles, with 1.7 million dollars, is currently running second, followed by Detroit with 1.4 million.

In Boston, Mandela events and souvenirs earned some 500,000 dollars for the ANC; in Atlanta, the figure was 400,000 dollars; in Miami, 300,000 dollars; and in Washington, 150,000 dollars.

It was unclear how much of the money would make its way to the ANC. As well as having more money still trickling in, organisers said there were certain expenses that still had to be deducted.

The money was raised through admission tickets to Mandela events, donations and the purchases of souvenirs such as T-shirts bearing a likeness of the 71-year-old ANC leader.

NEW DELHI (JULY 3) - Sikh militants injured three troops in an ambush of an Indian Army vehicle in Punjab while eight died in other violence linked to the Sikh separatist campaign, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said Tuesday.

An unspecified number of Sikhs fighting for Punjab's independence ambushed an army vehicle outside Bhure Kone village in that state's frontier district of Amritsar late Tuesday, PTI said.

Three soldiers were hospitalised with serious injuries suffered in the attack, police quoted by PTI said. It did not give details.

Overnight, militants ambushed a paramilitary Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) vehicle in Faridkot district, killing two troopers and injuring two more, PTI said.

In other violence, Sikh militants shot dead a police constable and three civilians while one separatist died in a factional fight elsewhere in police quoted by the agency said.

Indian border forces shot dead an unidentified man when he allegedly entered Punjab's Khem Karan area from Pakistan illegally late Monday, PTI said.

Some 1,115 people have died this year in violence linked to the bloody militant campaign for an independent Sikh homeland called Khalistan, or Land of the Pure, in Punjab.

RIYADH (JULY 3) - A total of 1,426 Moslem pilgrims were killed Monday in a stampede in a tunnel near the holy city of Mecca, Interior Minister Sheikh Nayef ibn Abd al-Aziz reported Tuesday.

The figures released by Sheikh Nayef provided the first official toll by the Saudi government since a brief statement on Monday spoke of "several dead."

An Arab diplomatic source in the kingdom said earlier Tuesday that no less than 1,400 people and possibly as many as 2,000 were killed when panic-stricken pilgrims tried to escape from the tunnel after the air-conditioning system failed making temperatures unbearable.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) - The United States Tuesday implored rebels encircling the Liberian capital of Monrovia not to harm foreigners caught in the fighting.

Battles between government and rebel forces raged Tuesday on the outskirts of the capital, surrounded by guerrillas trying to oust President Samuel Doe.

"We have reiterated to the rebels the need to avoid any harm to Americans or other foreign nationals," said State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

"Generally, they've expressed that commitment," he added.

One State Department official who asked not to be named said U.S. officials had been in constant contact with the rebel chief, fugitive civil servant Charles Taylor, and one of his aides, but did not specify the avenue of contact.

The same official also said the rebel forces had received assistance from Libya over the past month.

Last month, the State Department said Libya had provided some aid and training to Mr. Taylor's forces since the rebellion began in December.

Nearly 800 U.S. citizens, including 70 members of the U.S. Embassy staff in Monrovia, remain in Liberia. Four U.S. naval vessels with some 2,300 U.S. Marines are anchored in international waters off Liberia awaiting orders to help evacuate the U.S. nationals, Defense Department spokesman Pete Williams said.

Washington has offered to use its forces to help evacuate diplomats from other nations which requested such help. The Soviet Union has already asked that its diplomats be included in any evacuation plans.

Mr. Boucher said "a decision to evacuate has not yet been made."

One State Department official said the U.S. citizens were scattered across the country in their homes and were not gathered at any single location.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) - The United States Tuesday criticized the firing by Albanian police on a group of people seeking refuge in foreign embassies in the Albanian capital.

State Department Spokesman Richard Boucher noted the absence of U.S.-Albanian diplomatic ties, saying his only information on the shooting came from press reports.

"If those reports prove true we would strongly condemn the actions of police in firing on Albanian citizens seeking refuge and we would call upon the Albanian authorities to find a peaceful and just solution to the problem of refugees now in the embassies," he said.

Some 200 Albanians braved police gunfire late Sunday in Tirana as they made their way to several embassies including those of France, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Poland, Turkey and West Germany. At least one person was wounded in the shooting, according to press reports.

The United States broke diplomatic relations with Albania after Albania was invaded and taken over by Italy in 1939, and tried in vain to restore them after a communist regime was established in Tirana in 1945.

Preliminary contacts between Washington and Tirana began earlier this year at U.N. headquarters in New York, after Ramiz Alia, head of Albania's Communist Party, said he was considering restoring normal relations with the United States.

NEW YORK (JULY 3) - The judge asked why. The jurors asked why. And of course, former Philippines first lady Imelda Marcos asked why she was being tried in the United States instead of her homeland.

After the jury acquitted Mrs. Marcos of fraud and perjury charges Monday, juror Thomas O'Rourke said why:

"We are not big brothers to the people overseas," he said.

"It was a totally silly case."

Mrs. Marcos was acquitted of allegedly looting the Philippines Treasury -- with her late husband Ferdinand Marcos -- of 222 million dollars to buy art, jewelry and New York real estate.

Her co-defendant, Saudi financier Adnan Khashoggi, was acquitted of helping the Marcoses hid ownership of their investments.

The jurors mainly had to decide how much Mrs. Marcos knew about her husband's alleged corrupt practices.

"The jury probably said, 'We don't care. It's the Philippines' problem if it's anybody's'" said Vivian Berger, a professor at Columbia University law School.

U.S. District Judge John Keenan questioned why the case was being tried in the United States after the 95th and final witness had been called last month.

He said he wanted "to find out what the frauds were here in America" because Philippines President Corazon Aquino "can enforce her own laws."

He ruled that U.S. courts properly had jurisdiction, citing a precedent set in an earlier case and the fact that the disputed real estate purchases had occurred in New York.

PARIS (JULY 3) - Brigitte Bardot has offerred to pay 22,000 dollars to save baby seals to be killed for their pelts in South Africa.

In an open letter to South African President Frederik de Klerk, the French actress said "25,000 seals are going to be massacred in the next several days."

Ms. Bardot, who has been devoted to animal rights since retiring from the cinema, said "since each seal is worth only five francs (about one dollar)" she was willing to pay the 22,000 dollars to save the seals.

Ms. Bardot, who successfully campaigned against the baby harp seal hunt in Canada 10 years ago, said she hoped "commercial considerations will not prevail over respect for life."

Ms. Bardot, who was solicited by South African animal rights activists to join the anti-seal hunt campaign, said in an interview with Radio-France International she was going to South Africa in person "before the massacre begins" and will ask to meet with Mr. De Klerk.

The South African government awarded a five-year contract to a Taiwanese company to harvest seal pelts, and about 30,500 seals are to be culled this year.

KATHMANDU (JULY 3) - Nearly 25,000 Hindu fundamentalists marched peacefully here Tuesday to demand that Nepal be declared a Hindu kingdom, witnesses said.

Hindu scholars, saints, priests, social workers, a former prime minister and others made a three-kilometer (two-mile) march to City Hall from the golden temple of Lord Shiva outside Kathmandu, witnesses said.

They presented the chairman of a commission working on Nepal's new constitution, Justice B.N. Upadhaya, with a memorandum asking for the country to retain its status as the world's only Hindu kingdom, they said.

The vast majority of Nepal's population is Hindu.

LONDON (JULY 3) - British Airways denied Tuesday its security system was faulty after the father of one of the 270 people killed in the Lockerbie bombing managed to board a plane at Heathrow airport with a false bomb.

Dr. Jim Swire, who is president of the association of families of victims of the air disaster, boarded a Boeing 747 with a false bomb similar to that which exploded in mid-air above Lockerbie, Scotland, on December 21, 1988.

According to a British Airways spokesman, however, Dr. Swire was known by staff at Heathrow and was wearing a badge that said, "Pan Am 103, the truth must be known."

The airline personnel therefore did not suspect Dr. Swire as a possible terrorist armed with a bomb, the British Airways spokesman said.

Dr. Swire, who lost his 23-year-old daughter in the Lockerbie crash, was interrogated by police Tuesday and was cautioned as to his future conduct. No charges were laid against him.

HAVANA (JULY 3) EFE - Cuban President Fidel Castro Monday welcomed to Cuba a group of 255 Soviet children injured in the 1986 Chernobyl nuclear plant disaster who are to receive medical attention on the Caribbean island.

"We are delighted to have you in Cuba and wish you a happy stay here, and we also thank you for having faith in us," Castro said as he met the youngsters when they stepped off the plane at Havana's airport.

"What we are doing for the Chernobyl children is the least we can do," the communist leader said.

"We have the necessary facilities, we are doing it with great pleasure, and we are sure it will further deepen Soviet-Cuban relations," Castro added, saying Cuba's medical services could cope with treating up to 30,000 Chernobyl victims annually.

The new arrivals to Cuba will benefit from a mix of medical treatment and recreational facilities in the capital and the nearby town of Jose Marti.

In March, a first group of 137 Soviet children from the Ukraine region who were affected by the Chernobyl nuclear accident travelled to Cuba for treatment. Thirty-five of them are still receiving medical attention.

Cuban health care in general, and pediatric care in particular, is among the best in the Third World. The infant mortality rate has officially dropped to about 12 per 1,000.

Castro Monday brushed aside claims that the treatment of the Soviet children is inappropriate for a country which is struggling economically.

"There is always some reptilian soul asking these types of questions, but this aid to the Soviet people does not signify for our country any special cost," he said.

Every year, Cuba treats some 500 Soviet soldiers wounded in Afghanistan.

MANILA (JULY 3) EFE - Philippine President Corazon Aquino said Tuesday she would not yet allow the return of Imelda Marcos, the widow of former Philippine dictator Ferdinand Marcos, despite a U.S. court ruling acquitting her of racketeering charges.

"The acquittal does not alter the national interest or the security grounds on which we based our decision not to allow her return at the present time," Aquino told press.

Aquino, who led the 1986 "Popular Revolution" which swept the Marcos' from power and into exile, has consistently refused to allow their return. Ferdinand Marcos died last year.

Aquino said she and her government were disappointed by Monday's court decision in New York, but said she accepted the verdict.

But she added that Marcos would at some stage have to face trial in the Philippines.

Alongside international arms dealer Adnan Kashoggi, Marcos was Monday found not guilty of multi-million dollar fraud.

The verdict, which came on Marcos' 61st birthday, brought an end to three months of courtroom drama.

Marcos, considered a wildly extravagant shopper who allegedly once owned the world's largest shoe collection, faced charges of using money stolen from the Philippine treasury to buy art and real estate in the United States.

Marcos was accused of having conspired with her now deceased husband to channel over dlrs 200 million from the Philippines to buy property, jewels and art in the United States.

In addition, she was charged with defrauding a number of U.S. banks, and faced up to 50 years in prison and a dlrs one million fine.

Kashoggi, facing 10 years, was accused of having bought four Manhattan buildings owned by the Marcos' and backdating documents to before the U.S. government froze the Marcos' assets.

BONN (JULY 3) EFE - A leader of the pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem militia Hezbollah has threatened to step up attacks against Israel and its Western allies in response to Tel Aviv's hardline stance against Palestinians, according to a report to be released this week by a leading West German magazine.

Referring to Tel Aviv's apparent intention to settle Soviet Jewish immigrants in The Occupied Territories, Hezbollah leader Hussein Musavi pledged to escalate attacks on Israel and its major ally the United States to "protect ourselves against the Zionist occupation of Palestinian land".

Musavi also reiterated Hezbollah's threat to fight for the destruction of Israel, according to this week's edition of the West German magazine Stern which goes on sale Thursday.

"The Jewish state should be exterminated and wiped off the face of the earth," he said.

A number of Arab states have sounded war drums against Israel following the formation last month of a hardline Israeli government led by Yitzhak Shamir, who has rejected U.S.-backed proposals for peace talks with Palestinian leaders.

Musavi also justified the kidnappings of Western hostages as a means of +avenging and confronting Israeli and U.S. agression+.

He said two West Germans, Heinreich Struebig and Thomas Kempner, who are being held hostage in Lebanon, would be freed once Bonn fulfilled its promise to release two Arabs currently serving jail sentences in West Germany for terrorist acts.

The Hezbollah leader claimed Bonn had agreed to free brothers Mohammed Ali and Abdel Hodi Hamadi, both Hezbollah sympathizers, as part of a deal struck in 1988 involving the release of two other West German hostages, Alfred Schmidt and Rudolf Cordes.

Musavi said the family of the Hamadi brothers seized Struebig and Kempner 14 months ago in southern Lebanon, where they were working on a West German aid program for Palestinian refugees, in order to step up pressure on Bonn to fulfill its 1988 agreement.

Mohammed Ali Hamadi was jailed for his part in the hijacking of a TWA jet in Beirut in 1985 in which one passenger was killed.

His brother Abdel Hodi was sentenced for the later kidnapping of Cordes and Schmidt in an attempt to force Bonn into releasing Mohammed Ali.

UNITED NATIONS (JULY 3) EFE - The cash-strapped governments of Latin America saw little relief last year from their financial crisis as onerous foreign debt servicing and hyperinflation continued to take their toll on the region's economies, according to a United Nations (UN) report released Tuesday.

Interest rate hikes in 1989 and low commodity prices for exports compounded the debt burden, diverting much-needed funds away from investment programs aimed at boosting growth, the UN's annual study of the world economy said.

The total foreign debt for the region is currently running at dlrs 450 billion while four-figure inflation continues to threaten Brazil, Argentina and Peru.

The debt crisis hit hardest in Argentina, Ecuador and Peru, which defaulted on repayments, while Brazil imposed a freeze on its commitments to private lenders.

Successful debt-rescheduling in Costa Rica and Mexico after arduous negotiations under the U.S.-brokered Brady Plan brought a glimmer of hope in the region's bleak economic scenario, the UN report said.

The availability of development funds continued to remain at the mercy of fluctuating prices for basic commodities, which account for 75 percent of the region's exports, while efforts to diversify export bases met with limited success.

The region's exports increased only two percent in 1989 compared to eight percent in the two previous years, the report said.

An increase in petroleum prices favored Mexico while a drop in coffee prices following the collapse of the International Coffee Organization was offset by an increase in the volume of exports and better rates for other traditional exports such as bananas and sugar.

In response to the crisis, countries such as Colombia, Costa Rica, Chile, Guatemala, Mexico and Venezuela have embarked on a series of economic deregulization programs to open up their markets.

MOSCOW (JULY 3) EFE - Two radical reformist factions in the Soviet Communist Party have agreed to join forces against conservatives who are expected to dominate the current 28th Party Congress, leaders of the two factions said Tuesday.

According to the leader of the radical Marxist Platform, Aleksei Barguzin, the intended pact with fellow reformists in the Democratic Platform is +essential+ to +repel attacks from conservative sectors and stem the party's loss of prestige+.

Democratic Platform leader Vladmir Lisenko said the proposed coalition, which will probably be called the Democratic Unit Bloc, would have more than 500 members within the 4,700-strong Congress.

Lisenko also reckoned that the new grouping could also count on the support of another 1,000 delegates at the Congress.

Barguzin joined Democratic Platform delegates in critizing President Mikhail Gorbachev for his +predilection for compromises+.

In his opening speech to the Congress Monday, Gorbachev lashed out at conservative delegates who were willing to sacrifice the success of his +perestroika+ reforms to safeguard their jobs and privileges but upheld the need for the continuing presence of party cadres in different sections of Soviet society.

Meanwhile, conservative Politburo member Yegor Ligachev rejected claims that he stands firmly in the camp of diehard apparatchiks bent at all costs on preserving Communist Party domination of the Soviet Union.

NEW DELHI (JULY 3) XINHUA -- DURING THE LAST SIX MONTHS INDIAN AIRLINES (IA) AIRCRAFT HAVE SUFFERED AS MANY AS 32 BIRDS HITS, RESULTING IN A LOSS OF 120 MILLION RUPEES (SEVEN MILLION U.S. DOLLARS), LOCAL PRESS REPORTED TODAY.

THE LATEST INCIDENT OF BIRD HIT OCCURRED ON MONDAY MORNING WHEN A BIRD WAS SUCKED INTO THE ENGINE OF A BOEING 737 AIRCRAFT WHILE LANDING AT JODHPUR, RAJASTHAN.

THE AIRCRAFT LANDED SAFELY WITH THE FULL COMPLEMENT OF PASSENGERS ACCORDING TO AN INDIAN AIRLINE SPOKESMAN, BUT PRELIMINARY INVESTIGATIONS HAVE REVEALED THAT THE AIRCRAFT WOULD REQUIRE A COMPLETE ENGINE CHANGE AS THE DAMAGE CAUSED TO IT HAS BEEN EXTENSIVE.

THE GROUNDING OF THIS BOEING 737 HAS RESULTED IN CONSEQUENTIAL DELAYS TO SOME OF THE OTHER BOEING 737 FLIGHTS IN THIS NETWORK.

THE LAST TIME AN INDIAN AIRLINE AIRCRAFT HAD TO BE GROUNDED ON ACCOUNT OF BIRD HIT WAS ON MAY 23 WHEN AN AIRBUS A-300 ON FLIGHT IC 404 (BANGALORE-DELHI) WAS HIT BY A BIRD WHILE LANDING AT DELHI. THE BIRD STRIKE CAUSED SEVERE DAMAGE TO THE AIRCRAFT WHICH IS STILL UNDER REPAIRS AT BOMBAY.

A BOEING 737 ENGINE COSTS 25 MILLION RUPEES (1.47 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) WHEREAS AN AIRBUS ENGINE COSTS 45 MILLION RUPEES (2.46 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS). APART FROM THE HIGH REVENUE LOSS ON ACCOUNT OF DAMAGED ENGINES AND SUBSEQUENT GROUNDING OF AIRCRAFT, BIRD HITS ALSO CONSTITUTE A POTENTIAL DANGER TO THE SAFETY OF AIRCRAFT AND ITS PASSENGERS.

~HL:NORTHWEST AIRLINES REPORTEDLY CONSIDERS BUYING EASTERN AIRLINES
WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - Northwest Airlines is considering the purchase of troubled Eastern Airlines and is slated to meet with Eastern's unions to determine if the carrier's labor problems can be solved, the Washington Post reported Tuesday.

The newspaper, citing sources, reported that representatives of the International Association of Machinists met Monday to discuss the problems of integrating Eastern employees into Northwest as a prelude to a meeting later this week between Northwest Chairman Alfred A. Checchi and John Peterpaul, vice president of the IAM.

The Post quoted Northwest spokesman Doug Miller as saying the Minnesota-based airline is examining all its options for growth and expansion. "We are not in a position to discuss the options we are reviewing, nor should anyone conclude that such an examiantion will lead to a transaction," he said.

The newspaper said Northwest approached Eastern trustee Martin Shugrue about buying some of the Miami-based carrier's airport gates in Atlanta and some of its maintenance failicites but was rebuffed.

Shugrue, who was appointed by the bankruptcy court last April to replace Frank Lorenzo and his management team, "made it very clear that parts of the airline are not for sale. It is the whole airline," the newspaper said. The Post said another source indicated of a sale, "It's going to be the whole system."

Eastern spokesman Bob Hunter said a statement was sent to Eastern employees that said, "It's no scecret that some airlines, including Northwest and Pan Am, have approached us on a preliminary basis concerning the possibility of future business relationships. "We've responded to the requests for meetings to supply certain information."

Hunter characterized the Northwest dealings as "just discussion" and said he knew of no other potential merger or buyout partners, other than Northwest and Pan Am.

Creditors apparently feel Eastern cannot survive on its own and that a sale is the only way they can recoup their money. "I think the creditors' group hopes it can be sold," a source told the newspaper.

Eastern filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in March 1989, just days after the IAM struck in a bitter contract dispute and was joined on the picket line by pilots and flight attendants.

The airline was almost shut down but managed, with the help of attendants and pilots who crossed the picket line and newly trained pilots, to return to the air on an abbreviated schedule. The carrier is still believed to be losing $1 million per day, the newspaper said.

Shugrue took over with a promise to seek labor peace, but talks with the Air Line Pilots Association broke down last week when the union rejected his offer to recall 650 pilots and restore their seniority over three years. Hard-line pilots want a more complete restoration of their seniority over strikebreakers.

The Post said one advantage to purchasing Eastern's physical assets - gates, planes and routes - is that a buyer would not be bound by Eastern's labor agreements and could negotiate a new deal with the unions that would exclude the strikebreakers.

OTTAWA (JULY 3) XINHUA -- CANADA'S PROFIT-HUNGRY MEAT INDUSTRY IS EAGER TO HEAVILY EXPAND ITS SALES OF BEEF TO JAPAN, BECAUSE THE JAPANESE ARE RELAXING IMPORT RESTRICTIONS AND CHANGING DIETARY HABITS.

THE CANADIAN MEAT INDUSTRY MIGHT BE ABLE TO CATCH 300 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS IN ANNUAL SALES TO JAPAN BY THE END OF THE DECADE, ACCORDING TO CANADA'S NATIONAL BUSINESS DAILY, FINANCIAL POST, TODAY.

"THE LIBERALIZATION OF THE JAPANESE MARKET CREATES A TREMENDOUS OPPORTUNITY," SAID ANDREW RAPHAEL, MANAGER OF THE CANADIAN BEEF EXPORT FEDERATION.

JAPANESE BEEF IMPORT QUOTAS WILL RISE 18 PERCENT THIS YEAR TO 394,000 METRIC TONS FROM 334,000 METRIC TONS IN 1989. IN 1991, IMPORT QUOTAS WILL BE LIFTED. BEEF WILL THEN BE SUBJECT TO A 70 PERCENT TARIFF THAT WILL BE GRADUALLY REDUCED.

HOWEVER, THE CANADIAN MEAT INDUSTRY WILL HAVE HARD WORK AHEAD IN HEAVILY EXPANDING BEEF SALES TO JAPAN, FOR CANADA HAS THE SMALLEST MARKET SHARE AMONG THE LIMITED NUMBER OF COUNTRIES PERMITTED TO SHIP BEEF TO JAPAN UNDER THE COUNTRY'S RIGID HEALTH STANDARDS.

IN 1989, SALES OF CANADIAN BEEF TOTALED LITTLE MORE THAN 40 MILLION CANADIAN DOLLARS (34 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS), THE PAPER SAID.

RAPHAEL ALSO SAID CHANGING EATING HABITS IN JAPAN MEANS AN INCREASING MARKET FOR BEEF. ALTHOUGH EATING MEAT FROM FOUR-LEGGED ANIMALS WAS ILLEGAL IN STRICTLY BUDDHIST JAPAN UNTIL 1872, SINCE WORLD WAR II THERE HAS BEEN A STRONG TREND AWAY FROM FISH TO MORE BEEF -- A REFLECTION OF INCREASING INCOME AND A LEANING TOWARD GLOBAL PREFERENCES.

LIMA (JULY 3) XINHUA - PERU'S FOREIGN MINISTER AND PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL OF MINISTERS, GUILLERMO LARCO COX, TUESDAY SAID THE PRESIDENT-ELECT ALBERTO FUJIMORI'S TRIP TO THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN IS CORRECT AND ADEQUATE AND THE NEW GOVERNMENT FEELS IT NECESSARY TO FORGE NEW CONTACTS WITH INTERNATIONAL BANKS.

IN VIEW OF A RECENT FREE TRADE ANNOUNCEMENT MADE BY U.S. PRESIDENT GEORGE BUSH, PERUVIANS HAVE GREAT EXPECTATIONS ABOUT CONTINUING EFFORTS OF THE COUNTRY'S MAIN FOREIGN DEBT NEGOTIATOR, ABEL SALINAS, LARCO COX SAID.

BUSH RECENTLY ANNOUNCED THAT HIS ADMINISTRATION PLANS TO GIVE LATIN AMERICA SPECIAL CONSIDERATION REGARDING ITS FOREIGN DEBT, A MOVE WHICH PERU HAS CHAMPIONED SINCE 1985, LARCO COX ADDED.

LARCO COX SAID HE WAS IN FAVOR OF U.S. AID TOWARDS FIGHTING DRUG TRAFFICKING, BUT ON CONDITION THAT AID IS GIVEN IN ACCORDANCE WITH GUIDELINES SET DOWN BY PERU AT THE DRUG SUMMIT IN CARTAGENA, COLOMBIA.

LARCO COX SAID THAT HIS MINISTRY'S CHANGE OVER TO THE NEW ADMINISTRATION WAS IN FULL SWING, BUT WAS TAKING PLACE WITHIN THE FRAMEWORK OF A CAREFUL AND DISCREET AGREEMENT.

TOKYO (JULY 3) KYODO - IF PERU PAYS OFF ITS INTERNATIONAL DEBTS, JAPAN WOULD BE WILLING TO GIVE IT SIGNIFICANT ECONOMIC AID, PERUVIAN PRESIDENT-ELECT ALBERTO FUJIMORI WAS TOLD TUESDAY BY JAPAN'S TRADE MINISTER.

FOR NOW, HOWEVER, PERU WILL HAVE TO SETTLE FOR GRANTS AND TECHNOLOGICAL AID, SAID INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY MINISTER KABUN MUTO, MITI OFFICIALS SAID.

"IF PERU MEETS THE INTERNATIONAL OBLIGATIONS CONCERNING ITS ARREARS IN DEBT PAYMENTS TO SUCH ORGANIZATIONS AS THE INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND (IMF) AND THE WORLD BANK, JAPAN WILL BE READY TO MAKE DRASTIC COMMITMENTS TO OTHER CATEGORIES OF ASSISTANCE,'' MUTO TOLD FUJIMORI.

FUJIMORI SAID HE HOPED FOR AID FROM JAPAN WHEN THE ENVIRONMENT IS RIPE, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

PERU OWES 17.5 BILLION DOLLARS TO FOREIGN CREDITORS, INCLUDING THE IMF AND THE WORLD BANK.

JAPAN SUSPENDED YEN LOANS TO PERU IN 1983 IN A CONCERTED ACTION WITH THE IMF, OTHER LENDING ORGANIZATIONS, AND PRIVATE CREDITOR BANKS, AFTER OUTGOING PRESIDENT ALAN GARCIA LIMITED DEBT PAYMENTS TO LESS THAN 10 PERCENT OF PERU'S ANNUAL EXPORTS.

DURING THEIR 30-MINUTE MEETING, MUTO ALSO TOLD FUJIMORI THE MINISTRY PLANS

TO SEND A FACT-FINDING MISSION TO PERU TO STUDY THE COUNTRY'S ECONOMIC HEALTH. THE MISSION WILL BE HEADED BY THE DIRECTOR OF THE MINISTRY'S OCEANIA-LATIN AMERICA OFFICE.

A PRIVATE-SECTOR MISSION IS TO VISIT THE COUNTRY IN AUGUST, MUTO SAID.

MANILA (JULY 3) KYODO - INFLATION IN THE PHILIPPINES SLOWED TO 12.2 PERCENT IN JUNE FROM MAY'S 13.1 PERCENT LEVEL, THE NATIONAL STATISTICS OFFICE (NSO) REPORTED TUESDAY.

STILL, THE AGENCY SAID THE 12 PERCENT LEVEL WAS HIGHER THAN THE 9.7 PERCENT MARK RECORDED DURING THE SAME MONTH LAST YEAR.

THE NSO SAID THAT IN MANILA, THE PRICE OF CONSUMER GOODS DIPPED SLIGHTLY TO 14 PERCENT COMPARED TO MAY'S 14.1 PERCENT LEVEL, WHILE OUTSIDE THE CAPITAL CITY, INFLATION WAS DOWN TO 11.8 PRCENT FROM MAY'S 12.9 PERCENT.

FINANCE SECRETARY JESUS ESTANISLAO SAID THE INFLATION RATE EASED LAST MONTH BECAUSE OF RELAXED MONETARY AND FISCAL POLICIES, WHICH LED TO LESS EXPENSIVE MONEY IN THE MONEY MARKETS.

THE NSO DATA SHOWED THAT PRICE INCREASES IN FUEL, ELECTRICITY, AND WATER REACHED THE 1.5 PERCENT MARK DESPITE FREQUENT POWER OUTAGES AND WATER SERVICE INTERRUPTIONS.

TOKYO (JULY 3) KYODO - MITSUBISHI BANK PLANS TO FORM A WHOLLY OWNED BROKERAGE SUBSIDIARY IN NEW YORK BY THE END OF THIS YEAR IN A BID TO SECURE A FOOTHOLD IN THE U.S. SECURITIES BUSINESS, FINANCIAL SOURCES SAID TUESDAY.

MITSUBISHI EXPCTS THE SUBSIDIARY TO GIVE IT KNOW-HOW ON HOW TO RUN A BROKERAGE IN JAPAN. SUCH BUSINESS IS CURRENTLY OFF-LIMITS TO JAPANESE BANKS, BUT THIS WILL CHANGE UNDER SWEEPING FINANCIAL REFORMS, THE SOURCES SAID.

THE SUBSIDIARY WILL UNDERWRITE PRIVATELY PLACED BONDS ISSUED BY JAPANESE COMPANIES OPERATING IN THE UNITED STATES AND HANDLE SECURITIZED ASSETS SUCH AS THOSE SECURITIZED FROM CLAIMS ON BANK LOANS, THE SOURCES SAID.

THEY SAID IT ALSO WILL PERFORM CURRENCY SWAP DEALS AND BUSINESS IN U.S. GOVERNMENT SECURITIES THAT IS NOW BEING HANDLED BY MITSUBISHI'S EXISTING AMERICAN SUBSIDIARIES.

MITSUBISHI HAD BEEN STUDYING WAYS TO EXPAND INTO THE U.S. BROKERAGE FIELD, INCLUDING ACQUIRING A U.S. PRIMARY DEALER IN TREASURY BONDS, BUT IT HAS CONCLUDED THAT OBTAINING PRIMARY DEALER STATUS IS NO LONGER PROFITABLE.

AT PRESENT, THERE ARE 43 PRIMARY DEALERS IN U.S. TREASURY SECURITIES, BUT ONLY FOUR TO FIVE ARE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN RUNNING IN THE BLACK DUE TO CUTTHROAT COMPETITION AMONG THEM.

BROKERAGE HOUSES WITH PRIMARY DEALERSHIPS HAVE DIRECT ACCESS TO INFORMATION ABOUT U.S. TREASURY AUCTIONS, BUT ARE REQUIRED TO UNDERWRITE A CERTAIN AMOUNT OF SUCH SECURITIES.

AMONG OTHER MAJOR JAPANESE COMMERCIAL BANKS, DAI-ICHI KANGYO BANK AND MITSUI TAIYO KOBE BANK HAVE STEPPED IN THE U.S. BROKERAGE BUSINESS THROUGH SUBSIDIARIES TO DATE AND SEVERAL OTHERS HAVE OBTAINED PRIMARY DEALERSHIP THROUGH ACQUISITIONS OF U.S. PRIMARY DEALERS.

BANGKOK (JULY 3) KYODO - CAMBODIAN AIRLINES WILL UNDERTAKE A MAJOR EXPANSION THIS YEAR AND PLANS MORE INTERNATIONAL FLIGHTS TO LINK PHNOM PENH WITH THE OUTSIDE WORLD, PHNOM PENH RADIO REPORTED TUESDAY.

THE AIRLINE CURRENTLY OPERATES THREE REGULAR DOMESTIC FLIGHTS ON ROUTES LINKING PHNOM PENH TO SIEMRAP, STUNG TRENG, AND KOH KONG. IT HAS SINCE THE BEGINNING OF THIS YEAR HAD THREE ROUTES ABROAD, TO THE LAOTIAN CAPITAL OF VIENTIANE AND TO VIETNAM'S HANOI AND HO CHI MINH CITY.

THE STATE-RUN AIRLINE HAS ALSO INCREASED ITS AIRFARES BY AN AVERAGE OF ABOUT SIX TIMES FROM THE PREVIOUS GOVERNMENT SUBSIDIZED PRICES, ACCORDING TO THE REPORT.

ITS INCOMES FOR THE FIRST FIVE MONTHS OF THIS YEAR REACHED 93 MILLION RIEL OR, AT A RATE OF 257 RIEL TO THE DOLLAR, ABOUT 952,000 DOLLARS. ITS INITIAL INCOME TARGET FOR THE WHOLE YEAR OF 1990 WAS PUT AT 1 MILLION DOLLARS, ACCORDING TO THE REPORT.

CAMBODIA AIRLINES IS NOW SELF-RELIANT IN AIRPLANE MAINTENANCE AND REPAIR. IT USED TO SEND ITS PLANES TO VIETNAM FOR MAINTENANCE AND SERVICING, THE REPORT SAID.

THE IMMEDIATE PLAN FOR THE AIRLINE IS TO INCREASE THE NUMBER OF FLIGHTS TO HO CHI MINH CITY AND, OVER A LONGER TERM, TO OPEN REGULAR FLIGHTS TO BANGKOK, SINGAPORE, HONG KONG, AND PARIS, THE REPORT SAID.

TOKYO (JULY 3) KYODO - DESPITE WIDELY REPORTED U.S. FEARS THAT JAPAN IS BUYING UP AMERICA, MANY U.S. BUSINESS, POLITICAL AND ACADEMIC LEADERS ARE RECEPTIVE TO JAPANESE INVESTMENT IN U.S. COMPANIES AND PROPERTIES, A PRIVATE JAPANESE ECONOMIC INSTITUTION SAID TUESDAY.

BUT THEY SAID THE CLOSED NATURE OF JAPAN'S MARKETS IS CHIEFLY TO BLAME FOR BILATERAL TRADE FRICTION, THE JAPAN ECONOMIC FOUNDATION SAID IN A REPORT.

OF 546 AMERICAN LEADERS SURVEYED IN THE REPORT, 53.9 PERCENT SAID THEY FAVOR JAPAN'S PURCHASE OF AMERICAN PROPERTIES, WHILE 29.1 PERCENT SAID THEY ARE OPPOSED.

MORE THAN 50 PERCENT OF THE RESPONDENTS ALSO SAID THEY HAVE POSITIVE FEELING TOWARD ACQUISITION OF AMERICAN ENTERPRISES BY JAPANESE COMPANIES, WHILE 28.5 PERCENT REPLIED THEY ARE UNCOMFORTABLE ABOUT IT.

ASKED ABOUT BILATERAL TRADE FRICTION, NEARLY 50 PERCENT CRITICIZED THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT FOR ITS EXCLUSIVE MARKET AND TRADE REGULATIONS.

ABOUT 20 PERCENT SAID THE U.S. IS ALSO TO BLAME FOR ITS UNCOMPETITIVENESS AND INABILITY TO REDUCE ITS BUDGET DEFICIT.

AROUND 90 PERCENT OF THE AMERICAN LEADERS SAID THEY KNOW WHAT THE STRUCTURAL IMPEDIMENTS INITIATIVE (SII) IS AND 47.2 PERCENT OF THEM SAID THEY BELIEVE THE BILATERAL TRADE TALKS ARE MEANINGFUL IN REDUCING JAPAN'S TRADE SURPLUS WITH THE UNITED STATE.

BUT 64.3 PERCENT OF THOSE SURVEYED SAID THEY WOULD PREFER THE RESOLUTION OF TRADE DISPUTES THROUGH INTERNATIONAL FORUMS, SUCH AS THE GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TARIFFS AND TRADE (GATT), RATHER THAN THROUGH BILATERAL NEGOTIATIONS.

UNDERSCORING IMPROVING SENTIMENT TOWARD THE SOVIET UNION, 75.5 PERCENT OF THE RESPONDENTS SAID THEY FEEL FRIENDLY TOWARD THE SOVIETS, THE REPORT SAID.

BUT 49.1 PERCENT REPLIED THEY DO NOT THINK THE SOVIET UNION IS A RELIABLE PARTNER, REFLECTING PERSISTENT SKEPTICISM, IT SAID.

TOKYO (JULY 3) KYODO - THE FEDERATION OF ECONOMIC ORGANIZATIONS (KEIDANREN) ON TUESDAY CALLED FOR A CHARTER ON JAPAN'S OFFICIAL DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE (ODA) NOW THAT JAPAN HAS BECOME THE TOP DONER OF FOREIGN AID IN 1989 FOR THE FIRST TIME.

THE CHARTER MUST INCLUDE THE BASIC GOALS AND FUNDAMENTAL DOCTRINE OF ODA, IT SAID WHILE RELEASING A BLUEPRINT FOR THE PROPOSED CHARTER.

ACCORDING TO THE KEIDANREN BLUEPRINT, JAPAN SHOULD FULFILL ITS INTERNATIONAL PLEDGE OF SETTING ASIDE 0.7 PERCENT OF ITS GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT (GNP), A COUNTRY'S TOTAL OUTPUT OF GOODS AND SERVICES, FOR FOREIGN AID BY THE YEAR 2000, AS A MEANS OF EXPANDING ODA.

IN 1988, APPROXIMATELY 0.32 PERCENT OF JAPAN'S GNP WAS DEVOTED TO ODA. THE KEIDANREN PROPOSAL ALSO SAID JAPAN SHOULD RAISE TO 0.33 OF GNP FROM ITS CURRENT 0.24 PERCENT THE AMOUNT IT CONTRIBUTES TO THE DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE COMMITTEE (DAC), A SUBORGANIZATION OF THE PARIS-BASED ORGANIZATION FOR ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION AND DEVELOPMENT (OECD).

JAPAN SHOULD COME UP WITH WAYS OF PROVIDING AID THAT WOULD HELP DEVELOPING NATIONS ACHIEVE A GREATER DEGREE OF SELF-SUFFICIENCY, IT SAID.

JAPAN SHOULD ALSO TAKE INTO CONSIDERATION THE EFFECT ITS AID WAS HAVING ON THE ENVIRONMENT OF THIRD WORLD COUNTRIES AND THINK OF WAYS OF CREATING MORE JUST SOCIETIES BY ENSURING THAT INCOME IS DISTRIBUTED PROPERLY, THE PROPOSAL ADDED.

TOKYO (JULY 3) KYODO - MAJOR OIL-PRODUCING COUNTRIES, ESPECIALLY THOSE IN THE MIDDLE EAST, PLAN TO BEEF UP THEIR CAPACITY TO PRODUCE AND EXPORT OIL BECAUSE THEY BELIEVE THE WORLD'S DEMAND FOR IT WILL GROW, A JAPANESE INDUSTRIAL ASSOCIATION SAID TUESDAY.

THE PETROLEUM ASSOCIATION OF JAPAN SAID MIDDLE EAST NATIONS WANT TO BOOST THEIR STRENGTH IN THE GLOBAL OIL MARKET, WHICH IT SAID IS NOW GLUTTED BUT IS EXPECTED TO BECOME TIGHT IN THE LONG RUN.

SAUDI ARABIA, THE BIGGEST OIL PRODUCER IN THE MIDDLE EAST, PLANS TO INVEST 16 BILLION DOLLARS TO EXPAND OIL-PRODUCING FACILITIES IN SAFANIYA, UTHMANIA, AND TO UPGRADE PIPELINES. THE COUNTRY HOPES TO INCREASE ITS PER-DAY OIL PRODUCTION BY 7-7.5 MILLION BARRELS, ACCORDING TO THE ASSOCIATION.

IRAQ ALSO WILL EXPAND PRODUCTION, TO 6-6.5 MILLION BARRELS PER DAY (BPD) FROM THE CURRENT 4.5 MILLION, WHILE IRAN PLANS TO BE ABLE TO TURN OUT 5 MILLION BPD OF OIL IN FIVE YEARS, 1.7 MILLION BPD MORE THAN THE CURRENT LEVEL.

ABU DHABI, OMAN, AND LIBYA PLAN SIMILAR INCREASES IN PRODUCTION. ACCORDING TO AN ESTIMATE BY A BRITISH ENERGY RESEARCH INSTITUTE, THE EXPANDED

PRODUCTION WILL COST A TOTAL OF BETWEEN 37 AND 60 BILLION DOLLARS.

THE INSTITUTE ALSO ESTIMATED THAT TOTAL PRODUCTION CAPACITY BY THE ORGANIZATION OF PETROLEUM EXPORTING COUNTRIES (OPEC) WILL INCREASE AS A RESULT TO 32.6-36.7 MILLION BPD BY 1995 FROM 26.5-27.4 MILLION BPD AT PRESENT.

FROM THE BULLS:

"I think the market is headed higher. I think the market's moving to break through 3000," says MARSHALL ACUFF of SMITH BARNEY. He says the correction of the last couple weeks was "all we need. From here on, I think there's going to be a serious attack on the 3000 level." Acuff thinks interest rates will go down marginally after the employment report, further boosting stocks. (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/2)

I am strongly bullish short-term and long-term," says ROBERT ROBBINS of ROBINSON-HUMPHREY CO. He thinks the market will hit 3000 by the end of the summer, and 3200 by the end of next spring. "On the downside, I don't see anything lower than 2800. I believe we are in a super bull market." Robbins says we have been in a consolidation phase since October, but "now the market is resuming its advance." ("Investor's Daily", 7/3)

"The bull market is still in force," says ANTHONY LUDOVICI, senior investment analyst at TUCKER ANTHONY. "We never really rolled over into a bearish trend." Ludovici says the market will waver until concerns over the economy, tax increases and the deficit are satisfied. "In my opinion, we will back and fill between 2800 and 3000 until we get some evidence that the economy is not in a recession." (Reuters, 7/2)

FROM THE BEARS:

"I just don't think stocks can keep going up year after year," says BARTON BRIGGS, chairman of MORGAN STANLEY ASSET MANAGEMENT. "We think that stocks are 15% overvalued compared with bonds right now." Despite this bearish view of the market, Briggs does see the market heading higher, possibly to 3100 or 3200, before it tumbles to as low as 2400. Currently Briggs is not fighting the tape, but says he will dump stocks as soon as he sniffs a reversal. ("Fortune", 7/16)

STOCK MARKET:

"Usually investors buy stocks only when the market is moving up strongly, but this year they started buying when the market was flat," says MICHAEL SHERMAN, chief investment strategist for SHEARSON LEHMAN, who remains very bullish on this market. The reason for this interest in stocks is that the investors' "other choices -- junk bonds, insurance products backed by junk real estate and gold -- are seen as poor investments." Sherman believes that this tremendous inflow into equity and the resulting rise in stock prices will prompt many institutional investors to take a more positive view of the market. As for the course of the Dow, Sherman has two scenarios both bullish. Scenario No. 1: The economy keeps growing, and inflation stays in check. In that case, he thinks, the Dow could climb to 3200 by the end of the year. Scenario No. 2: The real estate sector continues to worsen. Then, he thinks, the Dow could go even higher because the Federal Reserve would be forced to lower interest rates to ease the pain. ("Fortune", 7/16)

The Dow-30 outperformed the broad market yesterday pushing the Dow to just under the 2900 mark. "This is the first day of the new quarter, and institutions tend to buy the glamour stocks, the Dow stocks," explains RICKY HARRINGTON of MARION BASS SECURITIES in Charlotte, N.C. "And more institutions are trying to index their portfolios to the Dow and the S&P 500. They're going to buy those kinds of stocks." But Harrington adds the disparity between the performance of the Dow and the broad market indicates to him the advance probably will not last. "I would suspect we're going to have a week of very low volume with not much happening till after July 4." (UPI, 7/2)

Traders say today's stock rise could be connected to seasonal factors, since the market usually gains prior to a holiday. OPPENHEIMER's MICHAEL METZ believes the market will turn in a robust performance this week. "I think there will be new highs by a strong margin later in the month."

If the dollar continues weakening and commodities prices keep climbing, the stock market could feel the pinch soon, says KENNETH SPENCE, director of the technical analysis group at SALOMON BROTHERS. "There may be consequences for stocks and bonds after we return from the holiday." (WSJ 7/3)

"Over the next six months to a year, the [German stock] market will be flat and will not outperform other world markets" despite the recent rise in the DAX index, says MICHAEL HANEMANN of COMMERZ BANK CAPITAL MARKETS. ("USA Today", 7/3)

STOCK TIPS:

SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON recommends stocks that it believes will dominate their respective markets. The firm's most recent group includes: ACUSON, ADOBE, CABLE & WIRE, CONTEL CORP., INTERPUBLIC GROUP, JOHNSON & JOHNSON, NEWELL CO., NORD RESOURCES, SCHLUMBERGER and UNUM CORP. (CNBC "World Business", 7/3)

ALAN BOND, portfolio manager at W.R. LAZARD & CO. says the current market is much like that which we saw in January. At that time, he liked large cap stocks and consumer non-durables. Now he says, "We're utilizing the same type of stocks for the second half. The technology stocks are going to lead us." Bond tries to find large cap stocks that have high-growth potential, such as COMPAQ and DISNEY. "We think those companies are poised to generate superior performance." (CNBC "World Business", 7/3)

After restructuring and improving its balance sheet, KANEB is emerging as a business services company. MARSHALL ACUFF, portfolio strategist at SMITH BARNEY, likes the company's focus on metering underground storage tanks. Over the next year AVON should eliminate virtually all its debt, raise the dividend and reduce shares outstanding. "I think the stock could be meaningfully higher from current levels," says Acuff. In the technology sector, the capital spending cycle in the semiconductor industry will be rising over the next couple of years. Acuff says this will benefit APPLIED MATERIALS, the leading company in supplying equipment to the industry. (CNN "Business Day", 7/3)

"Any stockholder would be happy to take this price," says ROBERT INCE of GERARD KLAUER MATTISON & CO. about the $44.50 buyout bid of GENERAL INSTRUMENT offered by FORSTMANN LITTLE & CO. RICHARD L. HANLEY of RICHARD L. HANLEY ASSOCIATES agrees, saying, "There are good deals and bad deals. This should make everyone happy." Speculation that the buyout offer would be increased bumped the stock up 8 7/8 to 45 1/8. ("Investor's Daily", 7/3)

"If you look at the Dow 30," says ROBERT STOVALL of STOVALL/TWENTY- FIRST ADVISERS, "the best performers have been BOEING, PROCTOR & GAMBLE, PHILIP MORRIS and COCA-COLA. If you really want to be gutsy, I guess you would take profits on those ... and then think about putting money into some of the poorer performers." He mentions GOODYEAR, NAVISTAR and CATERPILLAR as possibilities. (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/2)

At "Street Smart Investing," editor ELIZABETH REED is impressed by RUPERT MURDOCH's position in PEARSON, a British publisher of books and newspapers. She also recommends CONTEL, saying the telephone company is worth 53-64, double its current value. BILL MATTHEWS, editor of "The Cheap Investor," likes ZYMOS, an electronics firm which has turned around from a large loss last year. He has buy on SAFETY-KLEEN, which he calls "the growth environmental company of the 1990's." ARROW is experiencing brisk European growth; Matthews says buy the stock if it falls to 4 1/2 or 4 5/8. (CNBC "World Business", 7/3)

MICHAEL SHERMAN, chief investment strategist for SHEARSON LEHMAN, recommends sticking with technology stocks like IBM, COMPAQ COMPUTER, MICROSOFT, MOTOROLA and INTEL, which are booming from strong overseas business. He also favors a few retail stocks as well, such as EDISON BROTHERS STORES, TIFFANY, LIZ CLAIBORNE and NIKE. If the Fed were to lower short-term interest rates over the next month or so, Sherman says he would quickly dive into financial service stocks like GENERAL RE, UNUM and ST. PAUL COS., three insurers that would be likely to benefit from the lower rates. ("Fortune", 7/16)

"The market has been favoring growth stocks," says MARTIN SKALA of STANDARD & POOR'S. "Visibility of earnings are there and also the larger cap growth stocks are the ones that have done quite well over the last year as opposed to the cyclicals." (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/2)

#90184m0002 07/03/1990 ~Market Consensus Surveys

FALLS CHURCH, VA (JULY 3) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"This dollar is the 'unidollar,' the unification dollar," says LILIANA NEALON of UNION BANK OF SWITZERLAND in New York describing the continuing slide of the dollar. "There was a lot of pent-up demand for deutsche marks from corporations and institutional investors who had held off buying until the monetary unification actually took place to make sure it went without a hitch." (WSJ, 7/3)

"Everybody is in a wait-and-see situation," over German monetary union, says KATHLEEN STEPHANSEN of DONALDSON, LUFKIN & JENRETTE. "What we'll have to see now is what will happen to unemployment and certainly the [interest] rates in East Germany, what will happen to the pattern of consumers in East Germany." Stephansen believes that inflationary pressures have been overstated, while fears of unemployment have been understated. (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/2)

"I tend to measure the real value of deutsche mark against its main trading partners, and its main trading partners," such as the French franc and Italian lira, have been much stronger than the new all- German currency, according to BASSEM SNAIJE of BANCA DELLA SVIZZERA ITALIANA. "There is no doubt that the deal that the East Germans got for their ostmarks is very good. There is also no doubt about the will of the Bundesbank to keep its tight grip on monetary expansion." Snaije points out that in an election year, especially with West German CHANCELLOR HELMUT KOHL trying to become the first leader of a reunited Germany, the central bank may be influenced by politics to keep the economy strong. He recommends the Swiss franc and the yen as the best investments. (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/2)

TIMOTHY BURTON of HARRIS TRUST & CO. says traders were buying marks and sterling at the expense of the dollar yesterday. German monetary union and higher interest rates in Great Britain were widely seen as the cause of that buying. ("Investor's Daily", 7/3)

"The market as a whole is expecting a decrease in U.S. interest rates," says YOICHI SAKAGUCHI, chief trader at SANWA BANK LTD. in New York. "If U.S. interest rates actually decrease, then the market will sell dollars. But if it doesn't occur, we'll see a lot of dollar buying interest at the low 150-yen level for trust banks and insurance companies. It all depends on U.S. interest rates." (WSJ, 7/3)

"I don't think they [the Fed] are going to act immediately," says ROBERT CHANDROSS of LLOYDS BANK. "I think what they'll do is leave the door open to easy monetary policy within the next four to six weeks." (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/2)

The Fed doesn't have a mandate to cause a recession in order to cure inflation, says ROSEANNE CAHN, economist with FIRST BOSTON. "The inflation problem is not that bad -- it's not accelerating." Cahn looks for a continuing erosion in the economy to cause the Fed to begin easing after the August Treasury refunding. "We expect them to continue easing through the fall and finish up the year with the fed funds rate at 7 1/2 percent." (CNBC "World Business", 7/3)

"There's hope in the current meetings of the Federal Open Market Committee that the Fed will make some modest movement toward easing monetary policy " says DAVID BOSTIAN JR., chief investment strategist for JESUP, JOSEPHTHAL & COMPANY. He cautions, however, that "the market's been hoping for this for well over a month, so should the Fed ease policy, it could be anticlimactic." (NYT, 7/3)

With local taxes rising to counter cuts in federal funding, tax-free municipal bonds are becoming increasingly popular with shelter- seeking investors. "Single-state municipal funds continue to be one of the better areas of mutual funds in terms of sales," says MICHAEL LIPPER, chief executive of LIPPER ANALYTICAL SERVICES INC. "There are more and more of these funds being registered." MICHAEL APPELBAUM of SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON thinks "this trend will continue. With anticipation of taxes going up and interest rates going down, investor demand should become even greater." ("Investor's Daily", 7/3)

"Economists are frequently incorrect ... even though they try hard," reveals ROBERT STOVALL of STOVALL/TWENTY-FIRST ADVISERS. "The consensus is that the prime rate ... will drop between now and year end by half a point, and maybe by a full point between now and the end of the first quarter next year. If that's correct it means you'll make money in the long-term bond market." (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/2)

"I thought bonds would trade off a bit more on the [Purchasing Managers Index] report" which showed a slight upturn in economic growth, says MICHAEL SHERMAN, investment strategist at SHEARSON LEHMAN. Anyone expecting the Fed to ease interest rates soon would have to have second thoughts after that report, he says. (WSJ, 7/3)

THE ECONOMY:

KATHLEEN STEPHANSEN of DONALDSON, LUFKIN & JENRETTE thinks that, "for this FOMC, monetary policy will remain on hold. The economy is decelerating, money supply growth is decelerating to maybe an alarming rate." She thinks that continuing problems with inflation will prevent an immediate Fed easing, but says it would be more likely after the August meeting. (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/2)

"I don't think we ever really had a recession," says ROBERT CHANDROSS of LLOYDS BANK. "What we had was just a real long flat spot and we're just barely climbing out of it." One mark of that slow climb was the purchasing index, which was up 0.9 to 51.1 for June. (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/2)

"The employment report will be boosted by a five-week factor in June," says ROBERT BRUSCA, chief economist at NIKKO SECURITIES. "But, given the weakness in employment growth so far this year, that still shouldn't boost job gains much." Brusca says with the economy weak and progress on the budget being made, bonds are an attractive investment. ("Investor's Daily", 7/3)

"The consumer is the swing factor," says DOUGLAS SCHINDEWOLF, associate economist at SMITH BARNEY, HARRIS UPHAM & CO. in his assessment of the economy's vitality. "In part, the direction of that sector is the direction of the overall economy. And that has started to tip down with no signs that it will be going up." (Reuters, 7/2)

Construction spending dropped 0.4% in May due in part to high interest rates and weak housing demand. "Private spending has been weak and probably will remain weak for the next few months," says DAVID BERSON, chief economist for the FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION. Government spending will also slow "given the large budget deficits at all levels." DAVID SEIDERS, chief economist for the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF HOME BUILDERS, adds, "The second quarter certainly is shaping up to be a negative." (NYT, 7/3)

A report by THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PURCHASING MANAGEMENT shows the economy continuing to expand in June for the third straight month. "Even though the numbers have improved, the level for June is still not all that high," says MAURY HARRIS, chief economist at PAINEWEBBER INC. "The numbers indicate that the industrial sector is stabilizing. The figures are in line with other indicators; industrial production picked up in May and durable goods orders began to pick up in May." (NYT, 7/3)

After reviewing the purchasing management index, NORMAN ROBERTSON, chief economist at MELLON BANK in Pittsburgh, says, "I think all the evidence would now point to a slow, sluggish rate of improvement in the manufacturing sector." (WSJ, 7/3)

IN WASHINGTON:

"We are the leaders of the futures industry in the world and we want to keep it here in Chicago," says SEN. ALAN DIXON (D. - Ill.), as he claims he has majority support for two Senate bills that would maintain the current separation of stock and stock related futures regulation. (CNBC "Business View", 7/2)

PRESIDENT BUSH's ban on most offshore drilling will have some serious economic implications, says CHARLES EBINGER, an energy expert with the CENTER FOR STRATEGIC AND INTERNATIONAL STUDIES. The U.S. is so dependent on foreign oil, according to Ebinger, that "even a modest price increase represents a tremendous drain on our balance of payments in trade." PHILADELPHIA (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - USAir and the city of Philadelphia have announced the proposed development of a new 41-gate terminal complex at Philadelphia International Airport.

The new $250 million Terminal F is scheduled for completion in the third quarter of 1993.

Preliminary plans call for 22 jet gates, some capable of handling wide-bodied aircraft, and 19 gates for USAir's USAir Express regional airline affiliates.

Philadelphia Mayor W. Wilson Goode applauded USAir's commitment and dedication to the city of Philadelphia. Goode noted that infusions of capital, such as that proposed by USAir, can only enhance the economic viability of the city. Besides the obvious expansion of terminal facilities at the airport, the program will have the additional benefit of adding hundreds of construction and service-related jobs to the local economy as well as enhanced domestic and potential international air service, Mayor Goode added.

"USAir's intent is to work with the city of Philadelphia to build a first class air terminal to serve its citizens," said John R. Long III, USAir senior vice president-customer operations. "Terminal F will be the largest terminal by far to be constructed at Philadelphia International Airport and will have the capability of serving more than 10 million passengers annually.

"Perhaps most important to our customers will be the consolidation of USAir gates into one facility and elimination of the current need to bus passengers between terminals and between remote USAir Express aircraft parking positions and the terminal."

DEARBORN, MI (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Ford Motor Company's National Negotiating Committee, which begins discussions on a new collective agreement with the United Auto Workers (UAW) July 19, was announced today by J. Craig Hausman, Ford vice president - Employee Relations.

The contract covering 100,000 UAW-represented employees will expire at 11:59 p.m., Friday, Sept. 14. Negotiations for a new national agreement will be conducted at Ford's World Headquarters in Dearborn.

In the 49-year history of the Ford-UAW relationship, 20 national labor agreements have been negotiated -- 17 of them without a nationwide strike. The current agreement is historic in that it was achieved after the first contract deadline extension for an auto company that had been picked as a strike target.

Hausman announced that Jack Hall, executive director - Labor Relations and Employee Development, Employee Relations Staff, will serve as chairman of Ford's National Negotiating Committee.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - BankAtlantic (NASDAQ-NMS: ASAL) today announced cost reduction measures of approximately 10 percent of non-interest expenses that include staff cuts and the offering for sale of its six banking offices in Dade County. BankAtlantic Chairman Alan B. Levan also said BankAtlantic's earnings results for the quarter ended June 30 will be substantially improved compared to the first quarter of 1990 when a loss of $985,000 was reported.

The staff reductions are effective immediately, and number approximately 46 employees who work primarily in back office and support positions. Employees affected by today's announcement will receive separation payments and outplacement assistance. Following the reductions BankAtlantic will have approximately 800 employees on its payroll.

It is expected that the employees presently working in the Dade County branches will be offered jobs when their branches are acquired by a new owner. However, anyone who fails to receive an offer of employment from the new owners will be offered a position with BankAtlantic.

"The decision to sell our six branch banking offices in Dade County is in the preliminary stage, and we have no buyer for any branches as yet. We anticipate a period of three to nine months to identify potential buyers and secure purchase commitments. In addition, the sale of branch offices will require the receipt of regulatory approvals," said Levan.

"From the outset of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act (FIRREA), BankAtlantic has successfully maintained its full compliance with all capital requirements. Also, the cost-reduction measures announced today will substantially strengthen our earnings outlook," said BankAtlantic President Mark Wright.

"Our Dade County branch network has only six branches, which are too few to profitably penetrate the Dade market. Therefore, we are shifting our emphasis to the regions where our largest franchise lies -- Broward and Palm Beach Counties with their 42 offices," stated Wright.

"We are confident a stronger, more profitable BankAtlantic will result from the decisions announced today," said Levan. "The back office staff reductions will not affect our commitment to deliver superior customer service, which has become a hallmark of BankAtlantic. Independent surveys rank BankAtlantic among the top providers of superior customer service in South Florida, and we expect to maintain that reputation in the future."

BankAtlantic, A Federal Savings Bank has assets of $1.9 billion, and is a public company whose shares are traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the ticker symbol ASAL.

RICHMOND, VA. (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Crestar Financial Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: CRFC) announced today that its second quarter 1990 results will reflect an additional provision to its loan loss reserve of $25 million. As a result of the additional provision, Crestar said, profits in the second quarter will be lower than the $27.1 million or $.85 per share earned in the first quarter of 1990. In the second quarter of 1989, Crestar's net income was $25.4 million or $.81 per share.

Crestar Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Richard G. Tilghman termed the additional provision a "prudent management decision in light of current weakness in the regional economy in general and, in particular, in regional real estate markets."

Mr. Tilghman noted that Crestar's decision to strengthen the loan loss reserve followed the recent completion of a regularly scheduled internal review of the Corporation's loan portfolio which included "a particularly hard look" at real estate loans.

"We remain confident in the longer-term prospects and fundamental strength of our local economy. At the same time, it is only realistic to respond to the impact of the declining real estate activity we see today," Mr. Tilghman said. He said that Crestar anticipates nonperforming assets will increase to approximately $120 million in the second quarter, up from $97.2 million on March 31, 1990, and that net charge-offs are expected to approximate $15 million in the second quarter, compared with $8.4 million in the first quarter. The increases in both nonperforming loans and charge-offs, he said, are primarily attributable to real estate loans.

Looking ahead, Mr. Tilghman said that while he anticipates real estate-related nonperforming assets and charge-offs will continue to increase during 1990, "we do not expect that the level of either category will be disproportionate for a bank of our size in our markets."

CHERRY HILL, NJ (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Science Dynamics Corp. (NASDAQ: SIDY), manufacturer of distributed processing equipment for the telephone industry, announced today New York Telephone Co. deployed Science Dynamics TOPS(R) Interface Adapters (TIA) and Audio Response Units (ARU) within their Horizon Call Completion Operator Center, located in Huntington, N.Y.

The TIA interfaces existing Traffic Operator Positions (TOPS) to allow operator access to multiple databases. This conversion enables existing call completion operators to perform multi-purpose services; i.e., Directory Assistance (DA), call completion, answering services, etc.

The TIA/ARU deployment allows New York Telephone to study revenues from new services versus operator costs for:

a) Performing DA and normal call completion operations from the existing TOPS position.

b) Introducing a new service that has the potential to create new revenue by offering DA call completion; i.e., where people call 411 for a particular phone number, the DA operator will now be able to connect the caller to the requested number so the caller does not have to hang up, remember the number, and make the call to the number that was given.

c) Introducing other new, innovative services, such as answering services for corporate customers which will generate additional revenue while utilizing existing equipment and personnel.

Additional information may be obtained from James M. Campanozzi, vice president-Marketing, Science Dynamics Corp., 1919 Springdale Road, Cherry Hill, N.J., 08003.

OLYMPIA, WASH. (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Proposed recommendations for preventing oil spills in coastal waters of the United States and western Canada were unveiled today by the States/British Columbia Oil Spill Task Force, the Washington State Department of Ecology announced.

The recommendations, which range from measures to reduce petroleum consumption to requiring double hulls for oil tankers, are included in a draft report issued by the task force for public review. A final report is expected to be issued in September.

The task force was created by Washington Gov. Booth Gardner and British Columbia Premier William Vander Zalm in January 1989 following the Nestucca oil spill. Alaska, Oregon and California became members after the Exxon Valdez spill.

"During the past year the task force prepared more than 20 reports and studies which identified significant problems with transporting oil and petroleum products on marine waters," said Chris Gregoire, Department of Ecology director and task force co-chair. "Weaknesses in vessel design, inadequate personnel training, insufficient vessel traffic management and limited cleanup technology clearly show that prevention is the only effective way to address the problem."

Gregoire said because many of the oil spill issues are common to all jurisdictions represented by the task force, a list of joint recommendations was developed.

The joint task force recommendations which apply to the entire west coast of the United States and Canada include:

-- requiring double hulls for all new tankers and phasing out existing single hull tankers within seven years;

-- requiring tug escorts for all single engine tankers in specified waterways;

-- upgrading vessel traffic systems; -- developing guidelines for tow cables and retrieving run-away barges; -- establishing regional speed limits for tankers in inland waters; -- establishing more stringent mariner qualifications, and alcohol and drug testing;

-- raising proof of financial responsibility requirements to ensure spillers can finance cleanup and damage costs;

-- requiring all facilities including tankers which handle petroleum products to develop spill prevention plans;

-- increasing civil and criminal penalties for non-compliance with oil spill regulations;

-- removing the limit of liability provisions in Admiralty Law to guarantee the right of states to exercise liability standards;

-- increasing the U.S. Coast Guard's ability to conduct surveillance patrols and vessel inspections; and

-- requiring tankers to carry oil spill response equipment. The report also includes individual recommendations for each state and British Columbia. The Washington state recommendations include imposing a barrel tax on crude oil imports to fund state spill prevention measures and evaluating any proposals for oil pipelines that would reduce tanker traffic in Puget Sound.

Gregoire said comments on the draft report will be discussed at the next task force meeting in July. Following the meeting, an action plan for carrying out the final recommendations will be prepared.

"It is apparent from action already occurring that this report won't just sit on a shelf and gather dust," Gregoire said. "We have already initiated work on some of the recommendations and a comprehensive oil spill prevention legislative proposal is currently being developed for the 1991 session."

Gregoire added that while she is disappointed that federal oil spill legislation has been stalled, she will continue to work with the Washington Congressional Delegaton and the Coast Guard to help bring about the necessary changes needed at the federal level.

Copies of the draft report and recommendations can be obtained by contacting Correne Beaudoin at 206-438-7620. Written comments must be submitted to Jon Neel, Department of Ecology, Mail Stop PV-11, Olympia, WA 98504, by July 18.

VINELAND, NJ (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Security Investments Group, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: SSLN), the holding company for Security Savings Bank, SLA, announced today that due to anticipated additions to its provisions for loan losses and valuation allowances for certain real estate assets the company currently expects to report an operating loss in the quarter ending June 30, 1990.

The company said it anticipates providing approximately $3.6 million for reserves, and writedowns of other real estate in its second quarter 1990.

The announcement was made by Ronald A. Seagraves, president and CEO, who emphasized, "This decision by management does not affect the bank's ability to continue in compliance with tangible and core capital requirements of FIRREA. Nor does it conflict with our risk-based capital plan approved by the Office of Thrift Supervision in April of 1990.

"These provisions are related to areas of concern which we have been monitoring closely," he continued. "The majority of this addition to reserves is the result of the devaluation of two assets in our portfolio. The first, a loan on a residential condominium project in Atlantic City, and second, commercial real estate development projects which, despite having close to a 70 percent occupancy level, require a valuation adjustment to more closely reflect their current market values," Seagraves explained.

Security Investments Group, Inc., common stock is traded over the counter on the NASDAQ National Market System, using the symbol SSLN. Security Savings Bank, SLA, its subsidiary, is a state-chartered financial institution with assets in excess of $1.5 billion on March 31, 1990. The bank, headquartered in Vineland, operates 34 branches throughout southern New Jersey and provides businesses and consumers with a wide variety of financial products and services.

SPOKANE, WA (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Inland Gold and Silver Corp. (NASDAQ: INGS) today announced that James F. Etter, founder and currently vice president of the company, has been appointed chief executive officer, effective July 1. Etter replaces Michael L. Clark, who was recently appointed executive vice president and chief operating officer of Pegasus Gold Corp. on June 8.

"We're very gratified for Mr. Clark's considerable assistance in setting up the professional mining and corporate staff that will guide the company's structured plan for continued growth into the 1990s," said Etter.

Clark, who will step down on July 1, stated that his new position with Pegasus does not leave him sufficient time to effectively function as president and chief executive officer of Inland and could have conceivably resulted in a conflict of interest at some future point in time.

"Although my tenure was brief, I was pleased and gratified to have the opportunity to head up the company, particularly during this important time of transitional growth," said Clark. "Inland's present staff is now capable of performing all phases required of a full-scale mining operator on present and future mining ventures. Along with this and the strong financial position and limited debt of the company, Inland is well-suited for continued growth."

Clark will remain on the board of directors of Inland and also function as a liaison between Inland and Pegasus, which owns 20 percent of the company and is also a partner in a joint venture with Inland and N.A. Degerstrom Inc.

ATLANTA (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Delta Air Lines (NYSE: DAL) today reported preliminary traffic results for June 1990.

Revenue passenger miles (RPMs) totaled 5.426 billion during June, a decrease of 1.8 percent from the same month a year ago. Available seat miles (ASMs) rose 6.5 percent to 8.292 billion for the month. Load factor for June 1990 was 65.4 percent.

The company also noted that based on preliminary data its yield for the June 1990 quarter has declined slightly from the same period a year ago when a yield of 14.0 cents per mile was achieved.

Delta's Senior Vice President - Marketing Whit Hawkins said, "Our 1990/1989 traffic comparisons continue to reflect the impact of a strike last year against a major competitor which has now resumed operations." He also noted that Delta's yield has been negatively impacted by the numerous deeply discounted fares which have swept the airline industry in recent months.

PHILADELPHIA (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Bloom & Company, Inc. today announced that Arnold Staloff has been named president and chief executive officer and that the firm has been named Bloom Staloff Corporation.

James Bloom, 46, founder and president of the largest specialist firms on the Philadelphia-based Bloom & Company becomes chairman of the renamed firm. Staloff will hold a substantial equity interest in the new firm.

Bloom & Company, founded in 1985, is one the Philadelphia Stock Exchange (PHLX), making markets in some 35 leading stocks, including AMR Corporation, Chevron, Citicorp, Motorola, Phillips Petroleum and USX Corporation.

The firm also is an equities options market maker and serves as the head specialist on the PHLX foreign currency options trading floor for Salomon Brothers Inc.

Bloom Staloff Corporation expects to expand the scope of its operations nationally and internationally, greatly broadening its trading operations and entering new business areas, including consulting to major financial institutions and the development of new trading and risk management products. "Arnie Staloff has a proven track record as a financial market innovator and he will add a great deal of stature to the firm," said Bloom.

Staloff, 45, served as president and chief executive officer of New York's Commodity Exchange, Inc. from August 1989 until his resignation in April of this year. Prior to that, Staloff was head of marketing and new product development at PHLX and president of its Philadelphia Board of Trade subsidiary.

"Bloom Staloff gives me an opportunity to take an entrepreneurial turn in my career," said Staloff. "At the same time, I am delighted to be reentering the Philadelphia Stock Exchange community and I hope that I can again be a part of its growth."

Staloff began his career in 1968 at the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. He first went to the PHLX in 1971, leaving as senior vice president in 1978 to go to the Securities Industry Automation Corporation. He returned to PHLX in 1980 as president of an exchange subsidiary, the Financial Automation Corporation of Philadelphia, and became president of the Philadelphia Board of Trade in 1985.

During his 16 years with the PHLX, Staloff played a key role in the introduction of foreign currency options and the development of Cash Index Participations (CIPs). He also helped develop the exchange's computerized trading system and equity options program.

CONCORD, NH (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Healthsource, Inc. (NASDAQ: HLTH) announced today that it has signed definitive management and investment agreements with the parent company of Patients' Choice, Inc., a 26,000 member individual practice association ("IPA") model health maintenance organization ("HMO") located in Syracuse, N.Y. The agreements are subject to regulatory approval and follow a letter of intent signed between the two companies in May of this year.

According to the final agreement, Healthsource will provide management services to Patients' Choice for an initial term of five years. Healthsource will have the right to make an equity investment of $600,000 for 15 percent of the parent company plus options to acquire an additonal 10 percent for varying amounts. The agreement provides for a fee equal to Healthsources' actual cost of management in addition to a payment of 1 percent of premium or approximately $300,000 per year. Included in the agreement is an incentive compensation arrangement of up to 15 percent of the net income of the HMO.

Healthsource has begun providing management services under an interim consultative agreement, pending approval from New York State regulatory authorities.

Since May of this year, Healthsource has provided Patients' Choice with computer and management information services. This contract will provide up to $600,000 in annual revenues for Healthsource based on current Plan membership.

"We are pleased to have successfully completed negotiations with Patients' Choice," said Healthsource President and Chief Executive Officer, Norman C. Payson, M.D. He added, "Our involvement in Patients' Choice is in keeping with our strategy for expansion and investment in physician-owned IPA HMOs. We look forward to the opportunity to work closely with Syracuse physicians in their HMO."

Healthsource currently manages HMOs in similar markets in New Hampshire, Maine, and South Carolina.

BELLEVUE, WA (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Quality Food Centers Inc. (NASDAQ: QFCI) today announced that it has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire two stores in King County, Wash. The stores are currently owned by Food Center Inc. and operate under the name of Wellers' Shop Rite. The acquisition is subject to certain conditions, including obtaining necessary permits and licenses and is expected to be completed in July.

One of the stores is a 21,000 square foot store in North Bend, Wash. The company is also acquiring the 5.7 acre shopping center in which the store is located. The second store, located in Carnation, Wash., is currently 14,000 square feet and will be leased.

Dan Kourkoumelis, QFC's president and chief operating officer said, "We are extremely pleased about this acquisition. We look forward to the opportunity for QFC to serve both of these fine communities. The Weller family has been in business since 1950 and we are committed to building upon the excellent reputation for customer service the Wellers have earned over the years. We are also pleased that the Weller family will continue to be involved in operating the stores," Kourkoumelis added.

QFC is the largest independent supermarket chain in Seattle/King County. QFC has served this growing area for 35 years and today has 25 stores. In operating its stores, QFC's first priority is satisfying customers' needs by emphasizing superior service, high-quality perishables and convenient store locations.

today announced that after an extensive evaluation of financing and strategic alternatives, it has determined that a sale of the company at this time would not be in the best interest of shareholders, and it will no longer be pursuing that alternative.

The company stated that the determination was reached in conjunction with the investment banking firm of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Inc., which has acted as its financial advisor. Price Stern Sloan said it will consider the sale of certain assets to reduce debt and other opportunities that have been presented.

L. Lawrence Sloan, chairman and chief executive officer, said that in spite of a sluggish retail sales environment, the company is continuing to make good progress controlling and reducing costs and improving gross profit margins. He noted that the balance sheet remains strong, with cash flow above budget and bank borrowings below projected levels. Although results are expected to be improved over 1989, the company will not report profit for the first six months, which traditionally is a loss period.

Yesterday, the company announced it has entered into a licensing agreement with the Walt Disney Company to produce a Questron electronic wand using a Mickey Mouse head. Questron is an established interactive electronic learning system.

Price Stern Sloan publishes and distributes children's books and related audio and video cassettes, cookbooks, humor and self-help books, calendars puzzles and poster art, as well as the Questron electronic wand and books.

FARMINGTON HILLS, MI (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Exxon Chemical Polymers today announced construction of a plant to produce its Taffen(tm) Structural Thermoplastic Composite (STC) materials at Lynchburg, Va. The plant is designed for expansion in line with projected sales growth. The first 15 million pounds/year increment is scheduled for start-up in the first quarter of 1991.

Project equipment has been ordered and is being fabricated. Construction will begin immediately following receipt of necessary environmental permits.

"The new Taffen STC plant is part of Exxon Chemical's worldwide commitment to bring new polyolefin-based products to the automotive industry," said Frank Brzenk, Polymers Automotive and Transportation Industry Sector manager. "Adding a domestic source to the existing French facility will meet the worldwide demand for these products and demonstrate the wide acceptance by the automotive market of the Taffen 100 series and the recently introduced Taffen 200 series products."

Taffen STCs are glass-fiber reinforced polypropylene composites that offer high stiffness-to-weight ratio and are used in a variety of structural application areas. Typical automotive applications include load floors, seat components, bumper beams, instrument panel retainers and battery trays.

Production from the Lynchburg plant will be used to supply ongoing and pending production by custom molders and automotive OEMs. The new Taffen STC plant will utilize the latest technology developed in Exxon Chemical's Belgian pilot plant.

Taffen STC and a portfolio of polyolefin-based plastic and elastomer products are offered to the automotive industry through the company's Automotive and Transportation Industry Sector in Farmington Hills.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Royal Insurance will withdraw from the Massachusetts personal automobile insurance market, effective January 1, 1991, under an agreement reached with the Massachusetts Insurance Commissioner and the commonwealth Automobile Reinsurers (CAR), the residual market association.

Under the agreement, the member companies of Royal will settle their obligations to the commonwealth over a four-year period, beginning January 1, 1991. The Charlotte-based insurer, which currently has only a 1.8 percent share of Massachusetts' personal auto market, will continue to actively seek homeowners and commercial lines business in the state.

Royal said the decision to withdraw was made after a self examination lasting several years, during which the company lost an average of $10 million per year in the personal auto market due to residual market assessments. The decision was made only after Royal concluded that the decisive action needed to improve current market conditions is unlikely to occur in the near future.

The member companies of Royal Insuarnce covered under the agreement are: American & Foreign Insurance Company, Globe Indemnity Company, Newark Insurance Company, Royal Indemnity Company, Royal Insurance Company of America and Safeguard Insurance Company.

DEARBORN, MI (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - United Technologies Automotive (UTA) has begun making wire harnesses for vehicles at a new plant in the Philippines -- the company's first production facility in Southeast Asia.

The 90,000-square-foot plant is located in an export processing zone in the city of Lapu-Lapu on Cebu Island, about 500 miles south of Manila. About 190 employees currently work at the plant. Employment is expected to reach 300 by the end of 1990 and 500 by mid-1991, when a second shift is planned.

The Cebu facility is the 43rd UTA plant involved in the assembly of wire harnesses, which carry power and signals for a vehicle's electrical functions. Initially, the plant will supply harnesses to North American auto manufacturers, but eventually it could serve the growing Asian market said Norman R. Bodine, president of UTA's Automotive Products Division.

UTA chose the Philippines, according to Bodine, because products can be processed easily for export, and the Philippine people are well- educated with an excellent work ethic. "Also, this plant gives us an important low-cost manufacturing base in the Pacific Basin region," Bodine said. "It supports our goal of expanding to meet the needs of an increasingly global market while remaining cost-competitive."

Key department managers at the plant, all from the Philippines, received extensive training in North America.

The plant is capable of producing 80,000 wire harnesses the first year, reaching an optimum capacity of 475,000 wire harnesses by the fifth year. Initially, it is making eight types of wire harnesses for 1991 Chrysler models. The completed harnesses are shipped to North America by ocean freight.

The plant has new high-technology equipment that automatically measures, cuts and strips wire circuits and applies interconnecting devices, or terminals, before they are assembled into harnesses.

UTA, based in Dearborn, is one of the largest independent producers of automotive wire harnesses in North America and Europe. It supplies electrical, electronic, electromechanical, interior trim and hydraulic systems and components to the worldwide auto industry.

UTA is a unit of United Technologies Corp. (NYSE: UTX), based in Hartford, Conn., which provides a broad range of high-technology products and support services to the aerospace, building systems and automotive industries.

CHICAGO (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Johnson Products Co. Inc. (AMEX: JPC) today reported higher revenues and operating income for the third quarter ended May 31, 1990.

Third quarter 1990 net sales were $9,652,000, up 26 percent from $7,680,000 for the corresponding quarter last year. Net income for the third quarter 1990 was $759,000 or 19 cents per share, including a gain of $130,000 net of related expenses, from a partial recovery of a note previously reported written off during fiscal 1988. Net income was $121,000 or 3 cents per share for fiscal 1989 third quarter.

Net sales for the first nine months 1990 were $23,964,000, up 15 percent from $20,894,000 for the corresponding nine months last year. Net income was $1,387,000 or 35 cents per share for the nine months of fiscal 1990, including a gain of $369,000 from a previously reported sale of common stock of Johnson Products Nigeria and the utilization of a tax loss carryforward credit of $510,000. Net income for the nine months of fiscal 1989 was $1,901,000 or 48 cents per share. Last year's net income included the previously reported $2,200,000 gain on the sale of real estate and the utilization of tax loss carryforward credits. The company reported income from operations of $1,456,000 for the first nine months of 1990 versus $249,000 from operations for the same period last year.

Eric G. Johnson, president and chief executive officer, said, "We are very pleased with our operating results. Sales generated from the M&M brands acquired in February 1990, contributed to the 26 percent sales increase in the third quarter. The increase in net income reflects our overall increase in sales volume coupled with continued cost containment measures."

GREENVILLE, SC (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - First Union National Bank of South Carolina plans to introduce a special certificate of deposit program designed to support our environment.

Beginning July 9, First Union will donate a tree to be planted in one of South Carolina's state parks for every $10,000 invested in a Nine-Month Evergreen CD. Customers will receive a certificate verifying that a tree will be planted in their honor, or in honor of their children or grandchildren, or anyone they choose to designate. Customers will also receive a book entitled, "Simple Things You Can Do To Save The Earth."

"Everyone has an increasing awareness of our stewardship responsibility to our environment. In South Carolina, we are particularly concerned with reforestation," said First Union National Bank of South Carolina Chairman and CEO Sid Tate. "We feel this is a chance to care for our state's environment while encouraging economic investment in our state."

The trees donated by First Union will be planted by the South Carolina Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism. "Forests are not a stable environment and they need to be managed," said Joe F. Watson, chief naturalist for the S.C. Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism.

"Each year, replacement of trees lost due to age, insects, fires or storms is part of our management program. One of our top priorities is to maintain good quality and diversification. In particular, our coastal parks require more live oaks than in past years," Watson said.

"We congratulate First Union and its customers for their vision and for this act of conscience and caring," said Charles Harrison, assistant state park director of the S.C. Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism. "All of South Carolina will benefit from First Union's help in the restoration of the natural beauty and resources of our state."

The Nine-Month Evergreen CD will be available beginning July 9. It will offer an initial premium interest rate of 8.00%, 8.10% and 8.15% respectively for tier amounts of $10,000, $50,000 and $100,000. The minimum deposit amount is $10,000 and is applicable to personal accounts only.

First Union National Bank of South Carolina is headquartered in Greenville and operates 56 banking offices in more than 32 communities across the state.

NASHUA, N.H. (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - NFS Financial Corp. (NASDAQ: NFSF) announced today an addition to its loan loss reserve of $1.7 million for the second quarter in response to continued weakness in the New Hampshire real estate market.

James H. Adams, president and CEO, said "We have not seen a recovery in real estate in the 1990 selling season. Nonperforming loans have grown which, when combined with such factors as current employment cutbacks, causes us to believe that the poor market conditions may continue for some time. Accordingly, we decided to make a substantial addition to reserves this quarter."

Adams said a review of dividend policy may also become appropriate. NFS expects to announce actual results in approximately two weeks.

RALEIGH, NC (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Microwave Laboratories, Inc. (MLI) (NASDAQ: MWAV) announced today that its T-1062 traveling wave tube has completed all governmental required life and environmental qualification testing. The successful completion of qualification is still dependent, however, upon the approval by the U.S. government of the first article test report. The government has up to 90 days to approve the first article test report at which time the company would be awarded qualified vendor status for the T-1062 tube and would be entitled to begin production and shipment of the tubes at that time. The company currently has a contract for approximately $4.4 million to manufacture the T-1062 traveling wave tubes for sale to the Navy for its AN/ALQ-99 program. Although no assurances can be given, management believes the government will award them qualified vendor status for the T-1062 tube.

The company also announced that qualification testing on a T-1073 traveling wave tube began on June 18, 1990. The qualification tests include a 2000 hour life test and various environmental tests. The earliest life test could be completed on the T-1073 tube is October, 1990. An additional T-1073 tube is currently being subjected to the required environmental tests. To date, the T-1073 tube has passed the environmental tests which have been conducted. The company has contracts totalling approximately $9.3 million to manufacture the T-1073 traveling wave tube.

TORONTO (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Interquest Resources Corporation (Toronto: IQT) today announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, Diochem Corporation has entered into a licensing agreement with Techform Engineering Limited of Zurich, Switzerland, to effect commercial implementation of Diochem's patented Dioxin Inhibition Technology throughout Switzerland and Austria.

Diochem Corporation owns world rights to the Dioxin Inhibition Technology discovered at and patented by the University of Waterloo. The technology inhibits the formation of dioxins and furans created during the combustion process.

Recent full scale municipal waste incinerator plant tests conducted in the United States confirm the technology significantly reduces the formation of all chlorinated organic compounds as well as dioxins and furans and materially (78-80 percent) reduces hydrochloric and sulphur dioxide gases -- two major contributors to acid rain.

Techform has commenced discussions regarding installations of the technology with municipal waste incinerators in both Zurich and Vienna.

KANSAS CITY, MO (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Kansas City Southern Industries Inc. (NYSE: KSU) and DST Systems Inc. (NASDAQ: DSTS) announced today that KCSI's pending tender offer for any and all shares of common stock of DST has been extended by one week and is now scheduled to expire on Friday, July 13, 1990. The $15.85 per share price being offered has not been changed.

According to KCSI management, the offer is being extended in order to give DST stockholders adequate time to review additional information to be filed with the SEC and mailed to DST stockholders this week.

Under the pending cash tender offer, a subsidiary of KCSI has offered to purchase any and all of the approximately 2.5 million (12.9 percent) shares of DST common stock not already owned by KCSI for $15.85 per share. Following the expiration date on July 13, 1990, KCSI expects to acquire any remaining DST shares in a second step merger. The tender offer and merger are governed by a merger agreement approved by both the KCSI and DST boards of directors. DST's board of directors has recommended that DST stockholders tender their shares to KCSI.

FARMINGTON HILLS, MI (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Exxon Chemical Polymers announces construction of a plant to produce its Taffen (TM) Structural Thermoplastic Composite (STC) materials at Lynchburg, Va. The plant is designed for expansion in line with projected sales growth. The first 15 million lbs/year increment is scheduled for start-up in the first quarter of 1991.

Project equipment has been ordered and is being fabricated. Construction will begin immediately following receipt of necessary environmental permits.

"The new Taffen STC plant is part of Exxon Chemical's worldwide commitment to bring new polyolefin-based products to the automotive industry," says Frank Brzenk, polymers automotive and transportation industry sector manager. "Adding a domestic source to the existing French facility will meet the worldwide demand for these products and demonstrate the wide acceptance by the automotive market of the Taffen 100 series and the recently introduced Taffen 200 series products."

Taffen STCs are glass-fiber reinforced polypropylene composites that offer high stiffness-to-weight ratio and are used in a variety of structural application areas. Typical automotive applications include load floors, seat components, bumper beams, instrument panel retainers and battery trays.

Production from the Lynchburg plant will be used to supply ongoing and pending production by custom molders and automotive OEMs. The new Taffen STC plant will utilize the latest technology developed in Exxon Chemical's Belgian pilot plant.

Taffen STC and a portfolio of polyolefin-based plastic and elastomer products are offered to the automotive industry through the company's automotive and transportation industry sector located in Farmington Hills.

HOUSTON (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Republic Waste Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: RWIN) clarified today terms of the aquisition of Alliance Holding Corp. and its wholly-owned subsidiary Century Surety Co. The acquisition was announced on July 2, 1990.

Completion of the acquisition is still pending Insurance Department approval in the state of Ohio. Republic President James D. Lee said the Ohio Insurance Department will soon consider the transaction, and Lee foresees approval within 60 days.

Republic Waste Industries Inc., is a solid waste management company specializing in the collection, processing and disposal of solid waste. The company's common stock is traded over-the-counter under the NASDAQ symbol RWIN. The following is the July 2, 1990, news release announcing the acquisition of Alliance Holding Corp:

REPUBLIC COMPLETES ACQUISITION OF ALLIANCE HOLDING CORP.

Republic Waste Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: RWIN) announced it has completed the acquisition of Alliance Holding Corp. Alliance, through its wholly-owned subsidiary Century Surety Co., provides bonding and general liability insurance. Alliance and Century are located in Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio.

Century Surety is authorized to write insurance in 20 states. A substantial portion of its business is directed toward the environmental services industry. In the transaction, Republic acquired assets valued at approximately $19.4 million and capital and surplus of $5.3 million. Century Surety reported $13.7 million in revenue in 1989.

The company has been in business since 1978. In his earlier announcement of the pending transaction, Republic President James D. Lee said a company that provides bonding to the environmental services industry is consistent with Republic's strategic plan of providing comprehensive solid waste management services.

BADEN, PA (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Anthony "Tony" Rainaldi, director of United Steelworkers (USW) District 20, called Halstead Industries' plant closing of its Zelienople plant "a case of abandoning its productive work force in favor of its Sunbelt, non-union plant."

More than 430 USW members of Local 7032 lost their jobs when the company announced the closing at 2 p.m. yesterday without warning. The plant manufactures copper tubing.

"Halstead never cared much about its employees," said Rainaldi. "This is the latest proof. In 1983, we gave the company huge concessions which we never recovered. We were due for negotiations this year.

"Their method of negotiating was to threaten a shutdown and to lay off a hundred or more workers during the negotiations period. Halstead was never a good company to deal with at any time. This latest move is nothing more than thumbing its nose at workers, families and the community. It's an example of corporate irresponsibility and greed."

The district director said the USW is developing a plan of action in response to the shutdown announcement that includes meetings with state and local public office holders to explore all options.

NORTHBROOK, ILL (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Pittway Corp. (AMEX: PRY) announced today that in connection with last year's merger of Pittway and Standard Shares, Inc. it expects to increase the quarterly dividend on its Class A stock by 10 cents to 27.5 cents for each of the next 10 quarters. The dividend on common stock is expected to remain at 15 cents per quarter. The next regularly scheduled dividends, to be declared in September 1990, are payable on or about Oct. 1, 1990.

Under a corporate charter amendment resulting from the merger, the Class A dividend is required to be 2.5 cents per quarter more than any dividend declared on the common stock. The difference is required to be 12.5 cents for 10 quarters if the average price of Class A stock was less than 90 percent of the common stock price for a specified period after the merger. The increase is now required because the Class A price was only 77 percent of the Common during the specified period.

NORWOOD, MASS (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Microcom, Inc. (NASDAQ: MNPI) announced today that they will adjust their previously announced revenues and earnings for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended March 31, 1990. The reduction in revenues of approximately $3.5 million, or 22 cents per share, is principally due to the overstocking of key North American distributors that occurred in the fourth quarter. Although the company had announced its earnings for fiscal 1990, it has not issued its financial statements to the Securities and Exchange Commission or mailed them to stockholders. Accordingly, the company is required to reflect these adjustments in their fiscal 1990 financial statements.

Additionally, Microcom announced that revenues for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 will be approximately $10.5 million and the company will report a loss per share in the range of 43 cents to 48 cents. "First quarter revenues for all products in North America were substantially below analysts' earlier estimates principally due to tightened credit policies with distributors and resellers. In addition, sales reserves were increased and purchases of the LAN bridge and Protocol Modem(tm) products were delayed. International revenues for all products were in line with analysts' estimates," said James M. Dow, president and CEO of Microcom.

SEATTLE (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Royal Air Maroc, flag carrier for the North African nation of Morocco, took delivery today of its first Boeing 737-400, Boeing Commercial Airplane Group said. It will be the first airline in Africa and the Middle East to operate the advanced-technology 737-400.

Royal Air Maroc also was the first airline in the region to introduce the 727-200 and the 757-200.

The airline has ordered 10 new-generation 737s and holds options on an additional 10. It has selected two 737-400s and two 737-500s for its first four deliveries. The second 737-400 will be delivered later this month and the 737-500s early next year. Type selection of the remaining aircraft, to be delivered by the end of the decade, will be decided at a later date.

As configured for Royal Air Maroc, the 737-400 delivered today will seat 20 passengers in first class and 120 in coach class.

The airline's new twinjet is powered by CFM 56-3C1 engines built by CFM International, a joint venture of General Electric of the United States and SNECMA of France. These quiet but powerful engines allow the 737-400 to be a good community neighbor at even the most noise-sensitive airports. The aircraft is certified for a maximum takeoff weight of 150,000 lbs. (68,040 kg).

By selecting the family of new-generation 737s, Royal Air Maroc achieves significant cost savings because of the common pilot type rating for all 737 models and because of commonality in maintenance and spare parts for the 737-400 and -500. In addition, the airline benefits from the flexibility in being able to schedule any size 737 -- and still use the same flight crew. Further savings (over introduction of a different type of airplane) come from integrating the new-generation 737s into its existing fleet of 737s.

To date, more than 60 customers worldwide have ordered 1,673 of the new-generation Boeing 737s. Total orders for the entire 737 program amount to 2,817, making it the most popular commercial airplane in history.

(JULY 3) UPI - The American gold miner held for ransom for 61 days in the Amazon jungle by captors he identified as Colombian rebels arrived home Monday night in Peoria, Illinois. 27-year-old Scott Heimdal and his mother stepped off the plane to the applause of friends and supporters and the glare of television cameras. Peoria Mayor Jim Maloof says a city-wide celebration is planned for Saturday.

NO word yet from Saudi authorities on the exact number of people killed Monday when thousands of Moslems on a pilgrimage to Mecca crammed into a tunnel leading to the holy city. But officials in Malaysia say eight Malaysians are among the dead. The Singapore Broadcasting Corporation and Singapore newspapers quote witnesses saying an apparent power failure interrupted the tunnel's ventilation system and those inside panicked at the loss of oxygen in the sweltering heat.

Colombia's number-two government official and his wife reportedly were injured Monday night in an apparent accidental shooting. Broadcast reports from Bogota say the shooting occurred at a military airport when a bodyguard's automatic weapon apparently fell to ground and discharged. The couple was treated at a Bogota hospital. Radio stations say the wounds were NOT serious.

Philippine President Aquino says she's disapppointed with the acquittal of Imelda Marcos on charges of looting Millions of dollars from the country's treasury during her husband's rule. Aquino says the former first lady still will NOT be allowed to return to the Philippines... although she says at ''the appropriate time'' Marcos ''will have to stand before our courts.''

But a senior legal adviser to Aquino says any effort to bring the wife of the late dictator Ferdinand Marcos to trial in Manila could now be

''problematic.'' He says because Marcos was cleared of charges in New York bringing her to trial again could be ''double jeopardy.''

(JULY 3) UPI - A small plane carrying six people... including a group of professional rodeo cowboys... crashed Monday on the southern slope of Mount Rainer in Washington state. Search planes have found the wreckage, but there was NO immediate word on possible survivors. Officials say the plane was en route from Aurora, Oregon, to the Canadian town of Ponoca in Alberta when it went down.

A rash of small plane crashes in Alaska during the weekend killed two people and sent seven more to hospitals. A sixth crash... that of a tourist plane... occurred June 25th, but it took until Saturday to locate the wreckage in the rugged mountains south of Seward. Climbers are attempting to recover the bodies of the five people killed.

(JULY 3) UPI - State and federal emergency offices will open their doors Tuesday to hundreds of families who lost everything in a stubborn five-day-old wildfire that caused an estimated 500-Million dollars damage in Santa Barbara, California. Firefighters finally stopped the spread of flames Monday. They expect to have the last of several hot spots out by Tuesday morning... when the emergency offices are scheduled to open.

The downpours that have soaked southwestern Japan for the past six days are beginning to subside... allowing police to start search and rescue operations. Authorities say 22 people are dead and five more missing after seasonal downpours dumped up to 22 inches of rain since last Thursday. A total of 147 homes have been damaged or destroyed. Another 30-thousand are flooded.

General Dynamics and the U-S government are being sued by 12 relatives of an Iranian couple among the 290 people killed when the U-S Navy shot down an Iranian airliner over the Persian Gulf two years ago. The wrongful death suit... filed Monday in federal court in Los Angeles... seeks at least 100-Million dollars. The suit alleges General Dynamics is liable because it made the defective radar equipment used on the Navy ship that shot the plane down. The captain said his radar mistook the plane for a jet fighter.

A standoff continues into the morning in McKinney, Texas. Authorities say a distraught highway patrol officer armed with at least four weapons is holding fellow officers at bay at his home. Neighbors say the trooper tried to kill himself Monday afternoon, but his wife talked him out of it. The man then took his wife hostage, but later released her.

(JULY 3) UPI - Howard Farmer was trying to get his feet wet and Atlanta obliged by pouring on the homers.

The Braves slammed four home runs in five innings off the Montreal rookie, making his first major league start, en route to a 6-3 victory over the Expos.

Farmer allowed six runs and eight hits in 4 1-3 innings, tying a club record by yielding the four homers.

Jim Presley led the barrage, belting two homers, while Jeff Treadway and Andres Thomas each smacked one.

The Braves jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Oddibe McDowell led off with a double before Treadway followed with his eighth home run of the season.

''I've learned a lot about what playing in the big leagues is all about and about pitchers regarding what to do in certain situations,'' said Treadway.

His education enabled him to know what Farmer would throw.

''A young pitcher in his debut ends up throwing a lot of fastballs, especially early in the game just to get his feet wet,'' said Treadway. ''We were just fortunate to hit some balls hard off him.''

Presley, whose first homer of the game, and ninth of the season in the third gave the Braves a 4-0 lead, attributed the power surge to warm air and fat pitches.

''It seems like the ball was carrying a little bit here tonight. It was warm in here tonight.''

It was warm inside Olympic Stadium only because the retractable roof malfunctioned. Stadium officials had planned to open the roof for the first outdoor game of the season.

It didn't hurt that Farmer was throwing fastballs straight down the middle of the plate, either. ''In the first couple of innings he was falling behind a little bit,'' said Presley. ''After that he seemed to settle down.''

John Smoltz, benefited from the Atlanta power surge and improved to 6-6. He allowed three runs and five hits over 7 1-3 innings, walking four and striking out three. Joe Boever finished up for his seventh save.

Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers hopes Farmer can learn from the pasting.

''In the big leagues when you throw the ball straight, you're going to get whacked,'' said Rodgers. ''Hopefully he'll learn from this. He got a pretty good shellacking. I said before the game that if he was going to be on, he had to throw groundballs. He didn't and he got roughed up pretty good. A lot of young men try to go out there the first time out and overthrow.''

Elsewhere in the National League: Philadelphia dumped Houston 5-1, San Francisco nipped St. Louis 3-2, Los Angeles clipped Chicago 3-1, and Pittsburgh edged San Diego 4-3 in 14 innings.

In the AL, it was: Boston 3, Texas 2; Oakland 3, Toronto 2; California 2, Cleveland 1; Chicago 5, Detroit 4; and Kansas City 11, New York 5.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Phillies 5, Astros 1

At Philadelphia, Bruce Ruffin and Darrel Akerfelds combined on a five-hitter to hand Houston its 15th loss in its last 16 road games. Ruffin, 6-7, gave up one run and four hits and Akerfelds earned his first career save. Houston starter Jim Deshaies, 4-6, took the loss.

Giants 3, Cardinals 2

At San Francisco, Don Robinson scattered seven hits over 8 2-3 innings and Greg Litton drove in two runs. Robinson, 4-1, carried a shutout into the ninth before giving up two runs and three hits. Jeff Brantley earned his 11th save. Joe Magrane, 4-11, took the loss.

Dodgers 3, Cubs 1

At Los Angeles, Tim Belcher tossed a five-hitter to snap Chicago's five-game winning streak. Belcher, 6-6, held the Cubs hitless until the fifth in pitching his third complete game of the year. Jeff Pico, 4-1, suffered the loss.

Pirates 4, Padres 3, 14 innings

At San Diego, Jay Bell singled home Jose Lind with one out in the 14th inning to send San Diego to their sixth straight defeat. Lind doubled off Calvin Schiraldi, 2-1, and scored one out later, when Bell singled sharply to center.Bob Patterson, 5-3, who entered the game to start the 12th, worked three innings of hitless relief for the victory.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (JULY 3) UPI - NASA engineers are considering yet another fueling test for the shuttle Atlantis to help pinpoint the location of an elusive hydrogen leak blamed for grounding the nation's manned space program, officials said.

Engineers said Monday Atlantis's leak does not appear at all similar to the one that grounded Columbia last month other than the fact they both involve giant 17-inch-wide ''disconnect'' fittings where the shuttle's fuel lines enter the belly of the orbiter from the external tank.

Another fueling test, possibly as early as this weekend, might show the leakage detected during a test last week showed up only because of the location of a critical sensor and a lack of wind to dilute the concentration.

In California, meanwhile, engineers were gearing up to pump supercold liquid hydrogen through disconnect hardware removed from Columbia in a test Thursday to duplicate the much larger leak that forced NASA to cancel the ship's May 30 liftoff.

Regardless of what ultimately may be required to fix the grounded shuttles engineers said it will be virtually impossible for NASA to launch both Columbia and Atlantis as planned before Discovery's high-priority Oct. 5 flight to carry the Ulysses solar probe into orbit.

''We're right on the edge where two flights no longer fit before Ulysses and we'll be addressing that in the next few days,'' said William Lenoir, NASA's associate administrator for space flight.

Columbia was grounded when sensors detected a massive leak during fueling the night before the ship's planned launch in May.

A subsequent test showed hydrogen leakage in the engine room as well as in the cavity between the two halves of the 17-inch disconnect fitting, which allows the shuttle's propellant lines to separate before the tank is jettisoned in space.

Hydrogen concentrations higher than the allowable limit of 40,000 parts per million - 4 percent - were detected in the engine compartment and up to 58 percent in the disconnect cavity.

In sharp contrast, no hydrogen leaked into Atlantis's engine room last week during its fueling test and the concentration in the disconnect cavity was around 8 percent.

Lenoir said five teams have been assembled to look into the design of the 17-inch disconnect fitting, its history, ground processing, assembly techniques and so on to find evidence of anything that could explain the leakage.

''After as many flights as we've had ... all of a sudden two in a row seems more than coincidental,'' he said. ''That seems to weigh against a generic problem that's been there lurking all along. It would seem there's something different that we've either done in manufacturing this hardware or in the way we're using it.''

A space shuttle is assembled for launch by bolting the spaceplane to giant fittings on the side of the external fuel tank where the tank's propellant lines enter the belly of the orbiter.

The attachment fittings on the tanks used by Columbia and Atlantis are out of line by a record amount and engineers are looking into the possibility that the resulting misalignment might have something to do with the leakage.

''There's always some small degree of misalignment,'' Lenoir said. ''The last two attempts, while within the ability, we believe, of the shuttle system to accommodate, they are the largest offset of all the flights to date.''

A last stand is apparently being made in Liberia. Rebels staged a two-pronged attack on Monrovia yesterday, cutting off all major land routes leading out of the capital. The assault apparently caused President Samuel Doe to retreat for a last stand inside his heavily fortified residence.

Imelda Marcos is NOT out of the woods yet. The Philippine goverment says it will pursue civil charges against the former first lady to recover Millions of dollars allegedly looted by Marcos and her husband. A Philippine government spokesman says civil cases are being pursued in New York, Manila and Los Angeles.

Marcos was acquitted in New York yesterday of conspiring to hide Millions of dollars plundered from the Philippines during the rule of her late husband, Ferdinand. The ruling came as Marcos celebrated her 61st birthday. The jury cleared Marcos of all charges during a fifth day of deliberations.

Firefighters expect to have the last of several hots spots extinguished by this morning following a five-day wildfire in southern California near Santa Barbara. The fire, which was set by an arsonist, consumed 487 buildings, including 430 homes and 15 businesses... and caused an estimated 500-Million dollars in damage.

Washington state aviation officials say a small plane carrying six people crashed yesterday on the south slope of Mount Rainer. Authorities say the plane was found intact five hours after disappearing from air traffic radar, but NONE of the six people aboard the craft survived the crash.

(JULY 3) UPI - Saudi Arabian radio says thousands of Moslems on a pilgrimage to Mecca crammed into a tunnel yesterday, suffocating and crushing an unknown number of people. A Saudi government source is quoted as saying the interior minister will give additional details today. One Western diplomat says several hundred people are thought to have been killed, but that estimate could NOT be confirmed.

Saudi Arabia's King Fahd expressed deep regret at the tragedy, which he says might have been avoided if regulations and instructions had been followed by the pilgrims. Witnesses quoted in Singapore say people in the 500-yard tunnel panicked after an apparent power failure interrupted the ventilation system.

One Hungarian lawmaker says Soviet troops who are withdrawing from the country are leaving behind live explosives and chemicals in a national park in eastern Hungary. The Free Democrat Party Parliament member says ''future catastrophe may occur as a result'' of the dangerous materials reportedly left behind by the Soviets.

The judge in the trial of a Brooklyn man accused in the Bensonhurst racial killing says he'll declare a mistrial if jurors fail to reach a verdict today. The jury foreman told the judge in a note that each juror understands each element of the charges, but- quote- ''we doN'T agree on what we understand.''

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - The woman who lured Mayor Marion Barry into an FBI drug sting acknowledged that Barry declined to smoke crack cocaine seven times on the night of his arrest and said the mayor ''was suspicious of something.''

Former model and government witness Rasheeda Moore testified under cross-examination Monday in U.S. District Court that Barry reluctantly smoked crack before his arrest, but denied contentions Barry was a novice drug user.

Defense attorney R. Kenneth Mundy questioned Moore for a second day about the 83-minute FBI videotape of the Jan. 18 sting operation at the downtown Vista International Hotel, trying to prove Barry was enticed to use drugs.

Barry, 54, faces 14 drug and perjury counts stemming from the arrest and subsequent indictments. He could face 26 years in prison and $1.85 million in fines if convicted on all counts.

At one point on the FBI videotape, Barry is heard telling Moore, his former lover, ''I don't smoke no more, honey.''

Moore asked him, ''You don't want to smoke?''

Barry responded, ''No.''

Mundy went through a transcript of the videotape with Moore, pointing out time after time he said Barry rejected drugs. Mundy repeatedly got Moore to acknowledge Barry had, in his words, answered ''no'' when asked to use drugs.

''He said 'no' seven times,'' said Mundy.

''That's correct,'' responded Moore.

The prosecution witness said Barry appeared uncomfortable in the hotel room and was lying when he said he did not know how to use a crack pipe.

The videotape, shown in court last week, shows Barry picking up a crack pipe and asking how it worked, adding ''I never done it before.'' But when he received no directions, he lit up anyway and inhaled the drug. He was arrested moments later by FBI agents.

''I couldn't understand why he was asking me to show him how to use the pipe,'' Moore said.

The witness said Barry ''felt intuitively something was going on. ... He felt something and he was suspicious of something.''

Mundy said $20 Barry gave Moore the night of the sting was to buy crack for herself, not the mayor.

When Moore returned to the main section of the hotel room after giving the money to an undercover FBI agent, Barry asked her, ''What did you get?'' according to the tape transcript.

''Wasn't Barry asking what you got for yourself,'' Mundy asked.

''That's correct,'' Moore responded.

At one point on the tape Moore offers Barry a lighter to light the crack, and he tells her, ''You do it. ... If you don't do it, I'm not going to do it.''

Moore never smoked crack on the tape.

Mundy has contended Barry went to the hotel room seeking sex, not drugs, and was entrapped. On Friday, Moore testified she overstepped boundaries given her by the FBI in inviting Barry to the hotel room and discussing drug use.

Moore testified last week she and Barry used cocaine more than 100 times over a three-year period, and said they were lovers from 1986 to 1988.

During Monday afternoon's court session, Mundy took jurors through the entire videotape for a second time, trying to emphasize points he made during cross-examination. The tape was first shown to the jury last Thursday.

''I think we've damaged her credibility,'' Mundy said outside court, calling Moore's testimony ''a lie.''

Walter Fauntroy, Washington's non-voting delegate to Congress, a longtime Barry ally, was in court Monday on one of four passes provided to the defense team.

He said later he was backing the American Civil Liberties Union in its appeal of Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson's decision to bar two controversial black religious leaders - Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan and Imani Temple founder George Stallings - from court as possible ''disruptive'' and ''intimidating'' influences.

The mayor made a surprise appearance at a downtown rally during the trial's lunch break Monday, telling about 300 supporters that race is playing a role in his trial, which began June 4.

Romine, making an unusual start in rightfield, opened the ninth inning with his first homer of the year Monday, giving the Boston Red Sox a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers. r the Texas Rangers.

Romine's shot landed into the screen above the left field wall at Fenway Park and made a winner of Mike Boddicker, 11-3.

''I could have put (Randy) Kutcher out there but I figured it was Romine's turn to play a game,'' Boston Manager Joe Morgan said.

With Romine in the outfield, designated hitter Dwight Evans was rested and regular right fielder Tom Brunansky served as the DH.

''You just want to contribute and feel like part of the team,'' Romine said.

Romine's unique contribution helped cap Boston's 9-2 homestand which vaulted the Red Sox into first place.

''I was just looking to get on base,'' said Romine, whose homer was just his third in 246 games with Boston since 1985.

One of Romine's two previous homers was a ninth-inning game-winner July 16 1988, in Morgan's third game as Red Sox manager.

''I'm trying to make it a habit,'' Romine said with a smile.

Kenny Rogers, who allowed the home run, took the loss and fell to 2-4.

Meanwhile, Boddicker notched his 10th straight win, a career high. Boddicker, who last lost April 25, scattered 10 hits in pitching his second complete game of the year.

''I'm not worried about winning streaks,'' said Boddicker, who walked three and struck out nine.

Nolan Ryan, failed in his bid for the 297th win of his career, giving way to Rogers after throwing 144 pitches in his eight innings. Ryan allowed seven hits and struck out seven to raise his season total to 104 and his career total to 5,180.

He became the only pitcher to strike out more than 100 in 22 seasons.

Ryan, who hasn't won in four starts at Boston since May 6, 1977, fell to 2-8 lifetime at Fenway.

''I have nothing against this park,'' Ryan said. ''Boston has always had a good offensive team. It's tough to beat them here.''

Elsewhere in the AL, Oakland clipped Toronto 3-2, California shaded Cleveland 2-1, Chicago nipped Detroit 5-4 and Kansas City routed New York

In the National League it was: Atlanta 6, Montreal 3; Philadelphia 5, Houston 1; San Francisco 3, St. Louis 2; Los Angeles 3, Chicago 1; Pittsburgh 4, San Diego 3 in 14 innings.

-- AROUND THE AL --

Athletics 3, Blue Jays 2

At Toronoto, Mike Moore scattered four hits over seven innings and Rickey Henderson cracked his 14th homer of the season to lead Oakland. Moore, 6-7 had lost four of his last five decisions and recorded only his second win since May 23rd. Dennis Eckersley notched his 25th save. Jimmy Key fell to 4-4.

Angels 2, Indians 1

At Cleveland, Candy Maldonado's two-base error with two outs in the ninth inning allowed the winning run to score and lift California. Chuck Finley tossed a four-hitter and improved to 11-4. Jesse Orosco, took the loss and fell to 3-4. Bryan Harvey got the final two outs for his 11th save.

White Sox 5, Tigers 4

At Chicago, Carlton Fisk singled home pinch runner Craig Grebeck from second base with one out in the ninth inning to lift Chicago. Mike Henneman, 4-5, took the loss and Fisk's hit made a winner of Bobby Thigpen 4-2. Chicago won for the 10th time in its last 11 games and remained percentage points ahead of Oakland atop the AL West.

Royals 11, Yankees 5

At Kansas City, George Brett collected four hits, Gerald Perry homered and the Kansas City Royals scored six runs in the second inning aided by three bases-loaded walks. Kevin Appier evened his record to 3-3. Jimmy Jones, 1-2, allowed only four hits in 1 2-3 innings to take the loss.

SEATTLE (JULY 3) UPI - Bill Gates, chairman and founder of Microsoft Corp., is the largest shareholder of a new Seattle biotechnology company. Icos Corp. officials said Monday the new company has received $33 million from private investors, which would put Icos market capitalization among the top 25 biotech firms in the country.

Icos has hired 23 doctoral researchers to seek new treatments for rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, asthma and other inflammatory diseases. The company is focusing on a "new generation of pharmaceutical products for some of the most instractable human diseases," said Dr. Robert Nowinski, who with Drs. George Rathmann and Christopher Henney form the Icos management team.

They founded three successful biotech companies in the 1980s - California-based Amgen Inc., and Seattle-based Genetic Systems and Immunex Corp. Icos plans to develop biological and pharmaceutical products that will arrest disease in the early stages, Nowinski said.

Gates, a billionaire, holds ten percent of Icos' equity. Gates also holds the rights to purchase ten percent of Icos equity financing at market prices during the next ten years.

"People have a lot of faith in them," said Gary Schweikardt, chairman of the Washington State Biotechnology Association. The capital raised by Icos "gives us a temendous kick start," Nowinski said.

Rathmann will be Icos' chairman. Company directors also will include Gates; Walter Wriston, former chairman of Citibank; Frank Cary, former chairman of IBM; James Ferguson, former chairman of General Foods; Alexander Trowbridge, former U.S. Secretary of Commerce, and Robert Pangia director of corporate finance for PaineWebber Inc.

Icos plans to open a subleased 30,000 square-foot laboratory in Bothell, northeast of Seattle, by late summer. Nowinski said the company plans to build its own headquarters and lab within two years. The company has hired 40 employees thus far, and plans to start operations with 65, he said.

(JULY 3) UPI - Hundreds are feared dead in a tragic accident in Saudi Arabia... rebels are reported closing in on Liberia's president... and Imelda Marcos is acquitted. Those and other stories, next, from U-P-I.

Reports from Saudi Arabia are vague... but officials say Moslem pilgrims perhaps numbering into the hundreds were killed during a pilgrimage to the holy city of Mecca.

Riyadh radio says an undetermined number of pilgrims suffocated and were crushed to death yesterday when thousands jammed into a tunnel leading to the Saudi Arabian city.

Riyadh radio says details are expected later when Interior Minister Prince Nayef ibn Abdul Aziz makes a speech on Saudi television. The report says Nayef will give the number of casualties and explain the details of the incident.

Witnesses quoted by the Singapore Broadcasting Corporation and Singapore newspapers say the disaster began when an apparent power failure interrupted the tunnel's ventilation system. People who were crammed into the tunnel panicked at the loss of oxygen in the sweltering heat.

The radio report, which was monitored in Cairo... quoted a Saudi Interior Ministry source as saying ''thousands of pilgrims'' were in the tunnel.

One Gulf-based Western diplomat says the death toll stood at several hundred pilgrims... but that estimate could NOT be confirmed.

SEATTLE (JULY 3) UPI - A Soviet pilot brought to the United States for a bone marrow transplant to treat leukemia caused by repeated exposure to the exploded Chernobyl reactor has died, a hospital spokeswoman said Tuesday.

Anatoly Grishchenko, 53, died late Monday of pulmonary failure after surprising doctors for more than two weeks with his will to live on a respirator, said Susan Edmonds, spokeswoman for the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center.

She earlier had said Grishchenko was not expected to survive more than two or three days after being placed on the respirator June 14 due to lung failure.

His lungs failed following June 12 surgery to remove fungal lesions from his lungs, a problem not connected with the leukemia that first brought him to the United States for treatment in April.

Grishchenko, the first Chernobyl victim to be treated in the United States received a handwritten ''get-well'' message from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev that was delivered by a member of the Soviet Council of Ministers during Gorbachev's recent U.S. visit.

In the Soviet Union, there were reports late last week that people all over the country were given day-by-day updates on Grishchenko's condition.

Grishchenko's wife, Galina, had remained at her husband's side throughout his treatment at the cancer center, Edmonds said.

The veteran pilot was exposed repeatedly to radiation from the Chernobyl reactor during helicopter flights to dump sand and concrete to seal the reactor's fractured core. When the reactor exploded in April 1986, clouds of radiation were spewed over the Ukraine and west to Europe and Scandinavia.

American pilot Cap Parlier, director of testing and evaluation at LH helicopter at McDonnell Douglas Corp. in Mesa, Ariz., heard about Grishchenko's heroic efforts and subsequent illness and arranged for his treatment in the United States.

Grishchenkno was admitted to the cancer center on April 27 for a bone marrow transplant to treat what was diagnosed as two separate leukemias - acute myelocytic and mutiple myeloma.

He was recovering from the transplant when doctors decided to operate on his lungs to remove the fungal lesions.

(JULY 3) UPI - Reports from Liberia indicate President Samuel Doe's days might be numbered as leader of the African nation.

Reports say rebels attacked the capital of Monrovia in a two-pronged offensive, cutting off all major land routes from the capital.

The latest offensive apparently sent Doe into retreat for a last stand in his heavily fortified residence. Only an estimated one-thousand government troops remain in the city, and many indicate they would surrender.

A Western diplomat predicted rebel leader Charles Taylor is close to victory in the rebellion he began six months ago.

In desperation, Doe repeated his offer on government-run radio to form a national unity government, which would include the rebel National Patriotic Front and all political parties. Taylor already has rejected the proposal.

Most of Doe's Cabinet and senior administration officials already have fled the country. Taylor has said he personally wants to kill Doe, who has been charged with many civil rights abuses.

In Washington, the State Department says the United States would help Doe leave Liberia if he asked for assistance. 70 U-S officials and fewer than 800 U-S citizens remain in Liberia.

Southern California is picking up the pieces following a five-day wildfire that caused an estimated 500-Million dollars in damage.

Firefighters stopped the spread of the flames yesterday, with about half of the nearly 900 firefighters pulled off the fireline last night.

The last of several hot spots are expected to be out by this morning... as state and federal emergency offices open to help people devastated by the fire.

Officials say the Santa Barbara fire, the worst wildfire to hit California in three decades, consumed 487 buildings, including 430 homes and businesses.

Hundreds of families lost everything... with six shelters still housing many of those who lost their homes.

A 120-thousand-dollar reward is offered for information leading to the arrest of the arsonist, who may also face murder charges because one woman died when flames engulfed her home.

(JULY 3) UPI - Imelda Marcos has been cleared of charges of looting Millions of dollars from her homeland, but Philippine officials plan other attempts to recover the money.

In New York, a Philippine government spokeswoman says the former first lady still faces a series of civil actions and possible criminal charges. The spokeswoman says President Aquino will try to recover 700-Million dollars the Marcos family allegedly looted from the country.

Marcos was acquitted yesterday of conspiring to hide Millions plundered from her homeland during the rule of her late husband, Ferdinand.

Her co-defendant, Saudi Arabian arms dealer Adan Khashoggi , was also cleared of charges he helped hide the money.

The jury issued the verdict during a fifth day of deliberations. The defense argued during the trial that Marcos knew NOthing about her husband's dealings, despite being a- quote- ''world-class shopper.''

Khashoggi's defense was even more simple- that he didN'T do it.

The Coast Guard says it will convene a board of investigation today in Norfolk, Virginia, to determine why two cargo ships collided in Chesapeake Bay... leading to a 30-thousand-gallon oil spill.

150 Coast Guard, Navy and private cleanup personnel participated yesterday in cleanup efforts, which resume today. Officials say most environmental damage was confined to the Elizabeth River.

The Coast Guard estimates that 12 miles of waterways are affected by the spill, which was caused by the Sunday night collision. Officials say the cleanup of local waterways is proving difficult and would take several days.

Officials are trying to determine the environmental impact of the spill. About 50 mallard ducks are reported oiled in the Elizabeth River area.

Another environmental official says she's concerned about spawning blue crab in the area... but she noted that most marine life appear to be safe.

(JULY 3) UPI - Nicaragua's President Violeta Chamorro is contending with yet another labor strike after less than four months in office.

The Sandinista-led labor force called the second massive walkout since Chamorro became president, this time targeting agriculture.

The National Workers Union estimates about 40-thousand workers were on strike yesterday. The Labor Ministry refused to give an estimate, but the pro-government newspaper owned by Chamorro ridiculed the strike as-quote- ''without force.''

The union says it will expand the walkout if the government fails to respond to its demands, which include talks on Chamorro's economic policies.

The union demands salary and benefit increases for a number of sectors... as well as a halt in efforts at privatizing state-run industries.

The strike has NOT been as disruptive as a five-day walkout in May that paralyzed everything from telephones to transportation in Managua.

BOSTON (JULY 3) UPI - A prosecutor in the trial of Christian Science couple charged with failing to seek medical help for their dying son said a guilty verdict will tell the world "when a child is that ill, you must call a doctor."

''This boy was sacrificed for his own parents' pursuit of spiritual purity '' Special Assistant District Attorney John Kiernan told a Suffolk County Superior Court jury Monday during closing arguments in the trial.

But a defense lawyer painted David and Ginger Twitchell as ''loving parents'' who are guilty of no more than a tragic mistake for not realizing that the child's ''flu-like symptoms'' would lead to his death in 1986.

''And you can't convict them of that,'' argued attorney Rikki Klieman.

David Twitchell, now 35, and his wife, 34, were charged with manslaughter after their 2 1/2-year-old son, Robyn, died of a bowel obstruction on April 8, 1986, five days after becoming ill at the family's Boston home.

The case has pitted the couple's First Amendment right to freedom of religion against the state's right to protect young children from neglect or abuse.

According to testimony during the three-month trial, the Twitchells chose to have their son treated by a Christian Science faith healer and a church nurse practitioner rather than take him to a hospital, even after he began vomiting and running a high fever.

''A verdict of guilty will be a bellweather. It will announce a standard to the world that when a child is that ill, you must call a doctor,'' Kiernan told the jury before Judge Sandra Hamlin turned the case over to the 14-member panel.

The jury deliberated for about two hours before being sequestered for the night. Deliberations were to resume Tuesday.

Hamlin told the jurors they must decide whether the Twitchells displayed ''wanton and reckless'' conduct in not seeking medical help for their son. She cautioned the jurors against allowing any prejudice they might feel toward the couple or their religion to influence the verdict.

The defense contends the parents are protected by a 1971 Massachusetts law that prohibits prosecution of people such as Christian Scientists who eschew modern medicine and use ''spiritual means alone'' to treat their ill children.

''You cannot convict David and Ginger Twitchell for a mistake, a tragedy, for a loss of what is so important to them, when there were no signs to them or anyone else that (the disease) was life-threatening,'' Klieman told the jury.

But Kiernan accused the Twitchells of playing God with their son's life.

''The name of his god was mother and father, and his mother and father abandoned him,'' Kiernan said.

He charged the Twitchells' commitment to their religion was questionable since David Twitchell acknowledged on the witness stand that he had sought treatment from a dentist.

''This is a couple who supplied themselves with medical care, but can't take it for their baby,'' Kiernan said. ''They continued to deny him the care that he needed.''

Klieman said prosecutors had distorted the couple's actions, noted they had consulted officials at the Boston headquarters of the worldwide Church of Christ, Scientist, and were told they had a legal right to treat Robyn with prayer.

Pointing to the testimony of one doctor who said the conditions that led to Robyn's death occur in only one in 125,000 children, Klieman argued that the nature of the affliction led the couple to believe their healing had succeeded.

''These people didn't think about martyring their child. They didn't think about sacrificing their child. They didn't think about someday meeting him in heaven,'' the defense lawyer said. ''They loved their child. They have suffered the greatest loss imaginable.''

Because such an obstruction typically perforates the bowel and temporarily relieves its own pain after several days, ''To them it looks like their healing is working,'' she said.

David Twitchell, who now lives in Brentwood, N.Y., with his wife and three other sons, testified during the trial that he would now take any of his other children to a doctor if one appeared to be suffering from a life-threatening illness. Ginger Twitchell did not testify.

BOSTON (JULY 3) UPI - The Boston Celtics have filed a lawsuit charging the Italian basketball team Il Messaggero had wrongfully interfered in guard Brian Shaw's contract with the NBA club.

The suit, filed Monday in U.S. District Court, seeks to stop the Italian team from enticing Shaw to violate his contract with the Celtics.

The suit, which does not seek specific monetary damages, is the latest salvo in a drawn-out battle over Shaw.

The Celtics' No. 1 draft pick in 1988, Shaw left Boston for Rome after his rookie season. Last winter he agreed to return to Boston, but then reneged on the $6.2 million, five-year pact with the Celtics.

The Celtics' suit seeks to prevent Il Messaggero from interfering with Shaw's contract with Boston.

''It appears to us that they have publicly stated that they are encouraging Mr. Shaw to violate the court order and also make it financially viable for him to play there and not perform in the NBA,'' said Celtics attorney Neil Jacobs.

''When you're desperate people, you resort to desperate measures,'' said Il Messaggero attorney John J. McGovern. ''It's ridiculous and silly. I can't understand it at all.''

U.S. District Court Judge A. David Mazzone has upheld an NBA abritrator's ruling that Shaw's contract with the Celtics is valid, and has ordered Shaw to sever his ties with the Italian team. Shaw, however, is seeking a stay of that order.

Il Messaggero claims Shaw's deal with the Italian team is still in effect, and the Italian basketball federation has ruled that contract is valid. Il Messaggero had earlier filed suit against the Celtics, but pulled back last week, saying it would refile and seek a change of venue.

Shaw has said he did not consult an attorney before signing with the Celtics and thus did not realize he would become a free agent in the NBA in 1991 if he played a second season in Italy.

(JULY 3) UPI - Thunderstorms pounded parts of the South overnight, leaving thousands without power after 100-mph winds whipped central Mississippi, while an umbrella of high pressure kept temperatures unseasonably hot in the Southern Plains.

Heavy storms also struck parts of North Dakota Tuesday, dumping torrential rains and pea-size hail. Police reported funnel clouds over the northwestern town of Parshall, and gusty winds whipped towns along the Minnesota border.

Showers and thunderstorms rumbled through much of Louisiana and areas of eastern Arkansas Tuesday. A shield of high pressure kept temperatures above normal across much of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and New Mexico.

Heat and below-average rainfall has all but crippled some farmers in parched south Texas, officials said.

''Crops have for the most part dried up and fallen over'' in some areas of south Texas, weather service hydrologist John Patton said Monday.

Overnight thunderstorms skipped across Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. Heavy downpours with golfball-size hail and wind gusts to 70 mph were reported in Alabama, downing power lines and trees and smashing some windows.

Thunderstorms hit central Mississippi late Monday, knocking out power to much of Jackson and injuring at least three people in Philadelphia. Wind gusts were clocked at 100 mph in Philadelphia, emergency management officials said.

The storm interrupted power to at least 42,000 homes and businesses, said Howard Wooten, a Mississippi Power and Light Company spokesman.

Authorities reported hail in central and southern Florida late Monday, with winds up to 50 mph in the Miami-Fort Lauderdale area.

Early morning temperatures in the South ranged from 78 in Atlanta, to 75 in Charleston, S.C., 74 in Jacksonville, Fla., and 71 in Knoxville, Tenn.

In the West, temperatures in Las Vegas cooled to 87 early Tuesday, heading back toward a high of 105 to 110 degrees with desert winds gusting to 30 mph.

A moderate heat wave continued in southern California, where highs ranged from 86 in Los Angeles to 96 in San Bernardino and 117 in Death Valley.

In the Pacific Northwest, a storm front that limited highs to the 50s and 60s began pushing out of Washington state, leaving behind fair skies and warmer temperatures for the Fourth of July holiday.

Clear skies prevailed over Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and New Jersey early Tuesday. Temperatures were in the 50s through most of the region.

Temperatures were unseasonably cool in New England. Boston and Windsor Locks, Conn., were the warmest spots at 61 degrees. A few clouds hung over the Boston area, but skies over northern New England were clear.

BEIJING (JULY 3) UPI - A former top aide to deposed Communist Party leader Zhao Ziyang has been freed from prison after a telephone wiretap cleared him of direct collusion with the leaders of last year's democracy movement Chinese sources said Tuesday.

The sources, party members and academics with links to security agencies, said the move reflected a gradual easing of the tough official stance taken against Zhao and liberal intellectuals who supported him before the crackdown on last spring's unrest.

But they indicated that while it appeared Zhao and some other associates would be treated leniently, amnesty was unlikely for several Zhao-linked intellectuals prominent during the student-led protests who remain imprisoned.

Zhao, 71, remains a virtual prisoner in a courtyard home in a lane in downtown Beijing. He was ousted as party chief in late June 1989 for allegedly supporting the democracy movement.

The aide, Bao Tong, 57, was a senior party official, Zhao's political secretary and the head of the party Central Committee's research institute on political reform before he was arrested just before the army suppressed the protests June 3-4, 1989.

The sources said he had been freed in May from Qincheng Prison, a maximum-security facility in Beijing's northern suburbs where hundreds of other detainees remain, and was being held under house arrest at a party-owned guest house in the city.

''The charges against Bao Tong have been greatly reduced,'' one source said, explaining that a key piece of evidence was ironically an audio tape of a May 1989 telephone conversation from Bao's office that had been wiretapped by China's secret police.

Bao had been accused of leaking ''state secrets'' to protest leaders, who were occupying central Tiananmen Square, by calling them to give the routes by which Chinese troops were to enter Beijing on the night of May 19 to put down the protests.

Chinese citizens swiftly used public buses, dump trucks and other vehicles that night to block the city's main thoroughfares. Martial law was declared the next morning and the troops did not move into the city until June 3.

''The tape showed it was not Bao Tong's voice,'' the source said, adding he was uncertain who made the call and its contents.

Hard-line leaders also alleged that Bao had authored some of the statements Zhao made that appeared to support the demands of the demonstrators. Beijing Mayor Chen Xitong, in a lengthy report last year, cited Bao and others as ''black hands'' behind the unrest.

The sources said they did not expect any criminal prosecution of Zhao, who has lost all official posts but has not been expelled from the party. After more than a year, there has still been no public determination by the government of Zhao's fate.

They also said Zhao, once a protege and heir-apparent of senior leader Deng Xiaoping, is believed to have been in contact with the 85-year-old senior leader on the economy and on the fate of some of Zhao's children, who were implicated in corrupt business deals.

The sources said this partly reflected the leadership's troubles with the economy, which spun out of control under Zhao's policies of swift free-market reform and breakneck growth, but has stalled after nearly two years of austerity imposed to regain control.

The leadership appears also to have retreated from efforts to purge fully the liberal intellectuals and economists in several think tanks that became prominent while Zhao was in power, to avoid losing the country's main economic brain trust.

One key organization, the Research Institute for Reform of the Economic Structure, has not been disbanded as promised, although its researchers say they now have little work. Its former director, Chen Yizi, once a close aide to Zhao, fled overseas after the crackdown.

Another such organization focusing on rural reforms, whose director was ousted, has been disbanded in name but in fact shifted to operation under another government arm.

ADDIS ABABA, ETHIOPIA (JULY 3) UPI - Foreign ministers from 50 African countries gathered Tuesday for a week-long meeting to discuss Africa's crushing external debt, regional conflicts and the fear that needed foreign aid will go to Eastern Europe.

Their final recommendations were to be presented to the Organization of African Unity heads of state summit meeting opening in the Ethiopian capital next Monday.

During the ministerial session, different committees were to discuss Africa's Economic Recovery Program - declared a failure at last year's OAU summit - as well as moves toward creating an African Economic Community and strategies toward ending apartheid in South Africa.

An OAU contact group was to meet on Africa's almost $300 billion external debt, while special ad hoc committees were to try to resolve conflicts involving Senegal and Mauritania, and Chad and Libya.

Also an issue was the ever-growing numbers of refugees uprooted by civil wars in Africa.

Sources close to the OAU in Addis Ababa have said the changing political scene in Eastern Europe and its impact on aid to Africa would likely figure prominently in both the ministerial and summit meetings.

African leaders have expressed fear that traditional donor countries and international lending institutions would favor Eastern Europe at the expense of Third World countries.

The Council of Ministers' 12-point agenda also included discussion on how to streamline information and communication facilities to improve development projects aimed at breaking the cycle of poverty, disease and ignorance in Africa's poorest nations.

The ministers were also expected to tackle the $42.8 million owed the OAU by member states. Founded in 1963, the OAU is an intergovernmental organization of independent African countries that provides a forum for discussion on the political and economic problems aflicting the continent.

TEHRAN, IRAN (JULY 3) UPI - Iran canceled celebrations for a major Islamic festival set for Tuesday because of last month's earthquake, but planned to mark the aniversary of the accidental downing of an Iranian airliner by a U.S. Navy cruiser.

A Cabinet announcement said official celebrations for Eidul Qorban, or Feast of the Sacrifice, would not be held this year as a mark of respect for the 50,000 victims of the June 21 earthquake.

Iran also had another reason to call off the celebrations - the festival coincides with the anniversary of the July 3, 1988 downing of an Iran Air passenger plane over the Persian Gulf by the USS Vincennes during Iran's war with Iraq.

The Cabinet of President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani made the decision Monday because of the June 21 quake that devastated a wide area northwest of Tehran. It measured it 7.7 on the Richter scale, killed at least 50,000 people, injured three times as many and left 500,000 homeless.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency, meanwhile, said two more aftershocks, measuring 4.8 and 4.6 on the Richter scale, rocked the area between the Caspian Sea and Zanjan, some 175 miles northwest of Tehran.

Aftershocks, expected to continue for two months, have made relief work in the area difficult and dangerous. But at least 880 medical and other foreign relief or rescue workers went into the quake-stricken area after the disaster, IRNA said.

Rafsanjani sent messages of thanks Monday to heads of state and governments around the world for their sympathy and assistance for the quake victims.

Conspiciously absent from the list were the United States and Britain, both of which also sent assistance for the quake victims but do not have diplomatic relations with Iran.

An Iranian official last week had suggested the United States was not being as generous with aid as other countries, leaving some Western diplomats to speculate that Iran was seeking more assistance in return for improved relations.

But at a press conference Sunday, Interior Minister Abdollah Noori said relief aid for the quake victims should not be linked to improving relations with the West.

Diplomats, however, said the political overtones to relief aid from the United States and Britain had not been lost on the Iranian government.

Tehran, meanwhile, quietly prepared to mark the anniversary of the downing of the Iran Air jumbo jet.

A total of 290 people were killed when the Vincennes fired surface-to-air missiles at the aircraft after it took off from Bandar Abbas for Dubai, in the United Arab Emirates.

A U.S. Navy investigation later said the plane was shot down by mistake because of confusion caused by new electronic instruments on board the vessel. Families of the victims gathered in Tehran Monday to mourn the dead, and complained that the United States had not yet paid compensation for the passengers killed in the incident.

In 1988, the U.S. government offered to pay compensation directly to the families of the victims, but not through the Iranian government.

Mohammed Reza Keyvani, speaking for one family, said they wanted to travel to another country to inquire about the subject at a U.S. Embassy but were unable to get visas. The United States has not had a diplomatic mission in Iran since Iranian students seized American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in 1979.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (JULY 3) UPI - President Bush played golf Monday with Vice President Dan Quayle, who promised at the start of the match that the president would win.

Quayle, an accomplished golfer, laid out the complicated ground rules for reporters, which included a seven-stroke handicap for Bush and his usual choice of two tries at the first tee.

It was the first time the two had played golf together. Bush, spending a long Fourth of July vacation in Maine before heading to the NATO summit in London on Wednesday, played golf four times in the past four days.

When reporters noted that Quayle seemed to be the one in charge, Bush laughed: ''You're right. You're absolutely right.''

And when asked who was going to win the 18-hole competition, Quayle said firmly: ''The president. There is no doubt in my mind.''

Bush declined to explain why it had taken him 18 months in office to play golf with his running mate.

Quayle, who came to Maine for strategy sessions on the forthcoming NATO and economic summits, explained it later for reporters. ''It took me 18 months to get out on the golf course because I know I'm going to get beat and I hate to lose,'' Quayle said, adding, ''Today I'm destined to lose.''

And true to his word, at the end of the golf game, Quayle declared, ''The president won.''

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - Northwest Airlines is considering the purchase of troubled Eastern Air Lines and is to meet with Eastern's unions to determine if the carrier's labor problems can be solved, it was reported Tuesday.

The Washington Post, citing sources, reported that representatives of the International Association of Machinists met Monday to discuss the problems of integrating Eastern employees into Northwest as a prelude to a meeting later this week between Northwest Chairman Alfred A. Checchi and John Peterpaul, vice president of the IAM.

The Post quoted Northwest spokesman Doug Miller as saying the Minnesota-based airline is examining all its options for growth and expansion. ''We are not in a position to discuss the options we are reviewing, nor should anyone conclude that such an examiantion will lead to a transaction,'' he said.

The newspaper said Northwest approached Eastern trustee Martin Shugrue about buying some of the Miami-based carrier's airport gates in Atlanta and some of its maintenance failicites but was rebuffed.

Shugrue, who was appointed by the bankruptcy court last April to replace Frank Lorenzo and his management team, ''made it very clear that parts of the airline are not for sale. It is the whole airline,'' the newspaper said.

The Post said another source said of a sale, ''It's going to be the whole system.''

Creditors apparently feel Eastern cannot survive on its own and that a sale is the only way they can recoup their money. ''I think the creditors' group hopes it can be sold,'' a source said.

Eastern filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in March 1989, just days after the IAM struck in a bitter contract dispute and was joined on the picket line by pilots and flight attendants.

The airline was almost shut down but managed, with the help of attendants and pilots who crossed the picket line and newly trained pilots, to return to the air on an abbreviated schedule. The carrier is still believed to be losing $1 million per day, the newspaper said.

Shugrue took over with a promise to seek labor peace, but talks with the Air Line Pilots Assn. broke down last week when the union rejected his offer to recall 650 pilots and restore their seniority over three years. Hard-line pilots want a more complete restoration of their seniority over strikebreakers.

The Post said one advantage to purchasing Eastern's physical assets - gates, planes and routes - is that a buyer would not be bound by Eastern's labor agreements and could negotiate a new deal with the unions that would exclude the strikebreakers.

MARIETTA, GA (JULY 3) UPI - An AIDS patient appealed his attempted murder conviction for biting a police officer, contending the verdict should be overturned because there is no evidence the disease can be caused from a bite.

An attorney for AIDS patient Greg Scroggins told a three-judge panel of the Georgia Court of Appeals Monday that there are no cases documented where AIDS was transmitted through a bite.

''There is no evidence that Greg Scroggins knew that the HIV virus could be transmitted by biting or through saliva,'' said the attorney, Bruce Harvey.

Cobb County prosecutors argued that Scroggins believed he could infect the officer, and said the issue of how AIDS is transmitted was irrelevant to the case.

''The issue in this case is what was the intent of Greg Scroggins,'' said Assistant District Attorney Nancy Jordan. ''We believe we showed it was his intent to inflict bodily harm.''

Scroggins was convicted of aggravated assault with intent to murder and sentenced to 10 years in prison in October 1989 for biting Cobb County police officer David Crook on the arm. He is scheduled to be paroled in January 1993.

Scroggins bit Crook while the officer was trying to arrest him on disorderly conduct charges.

''When officer Crook later asked him if he had AIDS, Scroggins just laughed,'' Jordan told the judges. ''Even if you put the AIDS issue aside, the (federal courts) have ruled that the teeth and the mouth can be a deadly weapon.''

An Emory University AIDS expert also testified it is theoretically possible for the AIDS-causing HIV virus to be transmitted through saliva, even though no such cases have been documented.

The case is being watched closely by authorities in New Jersey and New York, where similar cases are pending.

(JULY 3) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange scored a modest gain Tuesday in thin trading as investors waited for a clearer outlook on world issues.

The Nikkei Stock Average, which gained 219.99 yen Monday, rose 254.37 yen to close at 32,414.60.

The Tokyo Stock Price Index rose a small 0.78 points to close 2,349.48, after gaining 5.34 Monday.

Volume was about 450 million, up from 369.36 million shares Monday.

Analysts said many investors were still awaiting the impact of the German monetary unification and the outcome of the Soviet Communist Party Congress meeting before playing a strong role again on the market.

''Japan's market is very sensitive to world issues right now,'' said Betty Wu, a broker with SBCI Securities in Tokyo.

For Japanese companies hoping for a share of Eastern Europe's business, the political and economic situation remained a big question mark, she said.

On the domestic front, stocks of construction companies, including Nippon Hodo, a major road paver in Japan, remained bullish after last week's announcement of planned increases in public works spending in Japan.

But with short-term interest rates remaining comparatively high, most investors continued to stay clear of the market.

''Right now, there are no fresh market incentives to cause the emergence of new power players,'' Wu said.

Elsewhere in Asia, share prices surged in active trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange, as bargain hunting pushed the market to its highest level since the October 1987 stock market crash.

The Hang Seng Index gained 37.08 to close at 3,356.55, the highest level in 20 months, brokers said. The rise followed an increase of 41.23 points Monday.

Volume was a strong 2.16 billion units, up from Monday's turnover of 1.99 billion shares.

The two-day rally of more than 78 points broke the previous post-October 1987 high of 3,309.64, in May 1989.

The market opened the day sharply higher. Bargain hunters pushed the index up more than 32 points in the first 15 minutes of trading. As bargain hunting gathered momentum, prices drifted higher and the morning session closed up 43.30, broker said.

''It has been another sparkling day,'' said David Harman, an analyst at Morgan Grenfell. ''The blue chips were very active and there was good movement in the second-line quality stocks.

''However, the market has moved too quickly without sufficient volume to sustain the momentum. The market is in need of consolidation and correction.''

The gains were trimmed during the afternoon session, as profit-taking cut the increases, brokers said. Utilities gained 28.06 points, Financials increased 36.90, Industrials added 39.41.

Properties rose 49.95 points.

Markets were closed in Singapore for the Hari Raya Haji national holiday. Trading will resume Wednesday.

In Sydney, share prices gained on the Sydney Sharemarket, boosted by active trading in the last hour.

The All Ordinaries Index gained 16.2 points to close at 1,512.8.

Volume was a moderate 85.3 million shares.

Stocks gained despite a strong Australian dollar and winners outnumbered losers 173-123.

Overseas investors led the action, with News Corp., which Monday said it bought publisher Harper & Collins and reduced its debt, gained 45 cents to $11.90.

Among the blue-chip stocks, Coles Myer was up 6 cents to $7.66, Brambles gained 10 cents to $13.90, Adsteam rose 6 cents to $5.16 and Elders IXL was up 2 cent to $1.73.

Banks gained amid concern about high interest rates.

Westpac rose 2 cents to $4.72, NAB was up 4 cents to $6.44, while ANZ was unchanged at $4.92.

Gold issues remained sluggish, with GMK up 1 cent to 75 cents, Placer Pacific up 2 cents to $2.60, and Homestake unchanged at $1.05.

NEW YORK (JULY 3) UPI - A jubilant Imelda Marcos celebrated "the best birthday present I ever had,'' her acquittal on charges she looted millions of dollars from the Philippine treasury to buy New York skyscrapers and artworks.

But the former first lady of the Philippines faces more legal troubles in her homeland, where officials plan to pursue civil charges to recover the millions officials allege was stolen by Marcos and her late husband, Ferdinand.

The U.S. District courtroom in New York erupted in cheers Monday when the verdict was announced. Marcos, who was celebrating her 61st birthday, appeared stunned as she stood before the judge with tears streaming from her eyes.

''This is the best birthday present I ever had. I thank the almighty God for the vindication and I am in great awe and respect for the jury system that symbolizes the soul of the American people,'' Marcos said.

Her co-defendant, Saudi Arabian arms dealer Adnan Khashoggi, was also acquitted of charges he helped hide the booty. Khashoggi, a Moslem, said the first thing he planned to do was fly to Mecca and ''pay respects to my God.''

Marcos, a devout Catholic, left immediately for St. Patrick's Cathedral in midtown Manhattan, where she crawled on her knees the entire length of the long center aisle, and then prostrated herself in front of the altar.

A disappointed U.S. Attorney Roger Hayes said, ''The jury has rendered its verdict. Our system of justice has spoken.''

Marcos's flamboyant attorney Gerry Spence, said, ''This just proves that a single juror has more power than the United States government itself.

''I feel a great relief for a very brave and beautiful woman,'' said Spence, who had been relentless in portrayal his client as ''a small, fragile widow'' who knew little about big money matters.

Reached at home, the jury's forewoman, Catherine Balton, said, ''I don't want to talk about it. I am sick and tired of the case. There's no evidence. It was a poorly prepared case ... there was nothing to convince any of them that there was a case.''

In its fifth day of deliberations, the jury cleared Mrs. Marcos of all charges of racketeering, conspiring to racketeer, fraud and obstruction of justice by plotting with her late husband, the ousted Philippine President to divert more than $200 million stolen from their homeland's treasury into real estate and art investments in New York.

Khashoggi, 53, a former arms merchant once considered the world's richest man, was cleared of charges of obstruction of justice and fraud by helping the Marcoses conceal the purchase of four Manhattan skyscrapers.

Carmen Pedrosa, a New York spokeswoman for the Philippines government, said Marcos still faces a series of civil actions and possible criminal charges in her homeland. ''There are civil cases here, civil cases in Manila and civil cases in Los Angeles,'' she said.

Additionally, Pedrosa said, criminal charges could be brought against Marcos in the Philippines, but only after the former first lady is no longer is considered a ''national security risk.''

Marcos told reporters she wants to return to the Philippines because of a "commitment and responsibility" to bury her husband next to his mother's grave.

Ferdinand Marcos died last September. His body remains in Hawaii awaiting permission to be returned to the Philippines, something President Corazon Aquino adamantly refuses.

Aquino forces toppled Ferdinand Marcos's 21-year-old regime in February 1986.

In Manila Monday, Aquino again said she would not allow Marcos to return to the Philippines.

The verdict came after two long weekend deliberating sessions during which the jurors repeatedly asked for re-reading of testimony, and U.S. District Judge John Keenan urged them to exercise their memories more.

Marcos had faced up to 50 years in prison if convicted on all charges. Khashoggi faced up to 20 years.

During the trial, the government called 95 witnesses and presented thousands of documents in an attempt to show that the Marcoses accumulated a fortune from embezzlement, theft, and diversion of Philippine government funds and the receipt of bribes, kickbacks and gratuities in the form of cash and corporate stock.

Spence insisted that his client was an unquestioning wife, admittedly a ''world-class shopper,'' who knew nothing about her husband's dealings.

The government's claim was to the contrary, saying not only did Mrs. Marcos know about her husband's dealings, she was ''the driving force'' in the scheme to skim the millions of dollars from the Philippine treasury.

BACOLOD, PHILIPPINES (JULY 3) UPI - The wife of a kidnapped Peace Corps volunteer tearfully appealed Tuesday to communist guerrillas to release her husband and denied claims he went voluntarily with the insurgents.

''You said after you talked to him, you will return my husband,'' Merle Swnson, the Philippine wife of Timothy Swanson, 26, of Cheyenne, Wyo., said in an emotional news conference broadcast on radio.

''Please return him. It's been a long time.''

Swanson said she agreed to appear at a news conference to correct ''misconceptions'' surrounding the abduction of her husband, referring to suggestions he consented to go with the insurgents.

''Tim had no choice. They were armed. He could not do anything,'' she said.

Swanson was abducted by three guerrillas June 13 in the mountainous municipality of Silay on Negros island, 300 miles south of Manila.

In Manila, Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos said Tuesday he was investigating if there was a ''hidden agenda'' in the unilateral U.S. withdrawal of the Peace Corps mission and the reported kidnapping Swanson.

But Ramos, in an interview with DZXL radio, played down fears the United States may be moving against President Corazon Aquino.

Ramos repeated his earlier criticism that the U.S. Embassy did not inform Philippine officials beforehand of Washington's decision June 27 to suspend the 29-year-old Peace Corps program and recall its 261 volunteers.

He also said the announcement Sunday of the reported kidnapping of Swanson after the withdrawal of the volunteers was ''mystifying.''

U.S. officials said they discovered the kidnapping Saturday while enforcing the recall order for the volunteers.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Stanley Schrager said the embassy was getting ''excellent cooperation with Ramos's people.''

However, Congressman Bonifacio Gillego, a former intelligence officer, dismissed Ramos's statements as a ''posturing of a man with presidential ambitions who is trying to shed off his image as an American boy.''

Military officials reported no progress in the kidnapping of Swanson and a Japanese, rural technician Fumio Mizuno, who was abducted May 29 by guerrillas also in Negros.

At least 10 Americans have been killed in incidents blamed on the guerrillas over the past three years. The rebels have threatened to kill more Americans unless U.S. troops are withdrawn from the Philippines.

Schrager said nearly all volunteers had left the Philippines, but said one of them, Joseph Sage, 71, who has been in the country for nine years and is married to a Philippine woman, decided to quit and stay in the northern mountain province of Benguet.

Police, meanwhile, reported gunmen fired on a U.S.-run library in the southern port city of Davao shortly before midnight Monday, shattering windows but causing no injuries. No one claimed responsibility, although the communist New Peoples Army said it was behind similar attacks on the building in December and January.

CINCINNATI (JULY 3) UPI - Former Cincinnati Reds Manager Pete Rose will be sentenced July 19 in federal court for filing false income tax returns for the years 1985 and 1987.

Rose, who was banned from baseball nearly a year ago for gambling, faces up to six years in prison and a $500,000 fine after admitting he failed to report income from baseball card shows, memorabilia sales and gambling.

U.S. District Judge S. Arthur Spiegel set the sentencing date after probation officer John Cole sent him a comprehensive report and sentencing recommendation. Cole's recommendation was not made public.

Rose ended months of speculation when he admitted before Spiegel on April 20 that he failed to report $354,968 in earnings, underpaying his taxes by some $162,000.

By that time, however, Rose had settled accounts with the Internal Revenue Service by paying $366,043 in back taxes, interest and penalties.

''Pete's doing okay,'' said Barbara Pinzka, a spokeswoman for Rose. ''It's definitely on his mind, but I wouldn't say he's distraught.''

Rose is residing at his winter home in Plant City, Fla., commuting to Cincinnati for his local radio show and to receive psychiatric treatment for gambling addiction.

''He's led a pretty quiet life since the plea agreement,'' said Pinzka.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - American factory orders increased 2.1 percent in May on a surge in the strike-threatened automotive industry, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday. Facing the threat of a fall walkout, the nation's automakers are preparing to churn out vast reserves of cars, trucks and vans.

May orders for transportation equipment leaped by $3.3 billion or 10.1 percent to $35.5 billion after falling by 13.2 percent in April, the Commerce Department said. "Motor vehicles and parts accounted for most of the gain, although defense aircraft and parts were also up," the report said.

The $5 billion gain in factory orders in May, to $241 billion, follows a 2.1 percent decline in April and a four percent advance in March, according to the monthly report compiled by department's Census Bureau. The overall 2.1 increase in U.S. factory orders was in line with the forecasts of private economists.

"Automakers are expected to accumulate stocks over the summer to make ready for a possible September strike by the United Auto Workers," according to analysts at Fuji Securities in Chicago. They said

"preparatory efforts" by Detroit are expected to be even more pronounced in data on June and July orders.

Not counting transportation equipment, orders were ahead 0.8 percent in May, a government spokesman said. Not counting defense hardware, orders were up 1.5 percent, the spokesman said.

In addition to the substantial increase in orders in the transportation sector, factory orders were also up for non-electrical equipment and primary metals in May.

But the government said that new orders for non-durable goods were generally flat for the month. Shipments of manufactured goods advanced two percent in May by $4.6 billion to $238.9 billion, while unfilled orders edged up by 0.4 percent or $2.1 billion to $520.3 billion, the Commerce Department said.

Factory inventories, meanwhile, held steady at $372.4 billion "and have been relatively unchanged since last July," the department said. All of the figures in the report are adjusted for seasonal factors, such as the weather.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (JULY 3) UPI - Both German governments want all-German elections to be held Dec. 2 but still need to reach formal agreement on the issue, officials said Tuesday.

On Monday night, parties in the East German conservative-led government coalition backed the suggestion, which had been made earlier by the Bonn government.

Senior government sources in Bonn said although no formal decision was expected at this stage, there is little doubt that the two German governments will eventually sign an agreement to hold elections and full unification in December.

West German Chancellor Kohl had earlier suggested that all-German elections should be held by the end of this year, possibly Dec. 2, the date originally set for West German general polls.

Volker Ruehe, the secretary-general of West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democratic Union, said Tuesday the East German authorities had made ''the right decision'' which reflected the interests of his party.

He said he hoped the new all-German parliament would be formed before Christmas.

Both German governments favor a unification concept which entails East Germany joining West Germany's Federal Republic.

But officials negotiating the process will still need to decide whether the two states will merge before or after all-German elections are held.

The two German states have already taken major steps toward full unification, including the lifting of virtually all controls along the inner-German border Sunday.

On Tuesday Kohl met with his cabinet ministers to discuss the question of the military strength of a united Germany.

The issue has figured prominently in six-power negotiations over the external aspect of German unification, which involve the two Germanys and the four World War II victors, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

The Soviet Union has rejected - with varying degrees of emphasis - proposals that a united Germany should be a member of NATO.

On Friday, East and West German government officials will start negotiations in East Berlin on a second state treaty, which will lead to full political unification of the two states divided since Germany lost World War II.

The first treaty, forging economic and monetary union, became effective Sunday, when the strong Deutsche mark replaced the almost worthless Ost mark in East Germany.

A spokesman for the Bundesbank said Tuesday the central bank had placed a total of 8.5 billion marks or $5.15 billion at the disposal of East financial institutions.

Officials said almost 4 billion marks, $2.4 billion, had already been cashed by East Germans since Sunday.

NORFOLK, VA (JULY 3) UPI - Investigators convened Tuesday to determine why two cargo ships collided in the Chesapeake Bay, leading to a 30,000-gallon oil spill while crews on the Elizabeth River and nearby beaches renewed their clean-up campaign.

An official with the state Health Department said an advisory was being prepared to warn the public of potential hazards related to crabs, fin fish and swimming in affected southeastern Virginia waters.

Cloyde Wiley, director of the department's shellfish sanitation program, said one of the main purposes of the advisory will be to make sure people know of problems related to oil-tainted food.

''We're looking at it from a public health standpoint,'' Wiley said. ''It will be an advisory. We're not really closing anything.''

Wiley pointed out that taking shellfish from much of the Elizabeth River has been prohibited for years.

Cleanup efforts, which Monday involved 150 Coast Guard, Navy and private cleanup personnel, resumed at daybreak Tuesday. Several Navy skimmers were slowly going over the Elizabeth River, gathering up oil, said Chief Todd Nelson, a Coast Guard spokesman.

Nelson said a Navy flyover indicated the bay had escaped major environmental damage and that most of the oil was in the Elizabeth River, north of its eastern branch off Norfolk.

''Right now, that's the most important thing, to pick up the free-floating oil,'' he said.

Nelson said it could be a week before all of the oil is gathered and cleaned up off of the river's banks, area boats and piers. While cleanup crews cleaned some of Norfolk's northern beaches, officials said impact on the bay was minimal.

The Coast Guard estimated that 12 miles of waterways were affected by the spill, caused by the collision Sunday night.

The board of investigation will seek to determine why the collision between the 635-foot Columbus America and 800-foot Neptune Jade occurred.

A Virginia state pilot who was aboard the Columbus America told a Norfolk newspaper the crew was surprised by the appearance of the Neptune Jade during a severe storm.

Capt. Richard Counselman was helping the Columbus America's German captain navigate through Hampton Roads harbor. He told The Virginian-Pilot the ship changed course to avoid several smaller vessels in front of it.

After passing the boats, Counselman said he told the captain to return the ship to the right.

''I took action ... to get back where I should be,'' Counselman, 65, told the newspaper.

But as the ship returned to the right, he said the 800-foot Neptune Jade suddenly appeared from behind a wall of rain. Both ships veered to the left but collided.

The Coast Guard has said the Columbus America, which was heading out to sea, appeared to be in the inbound lane of the channel. Counselman said he had returned to the outbound channel at the time of the collision.

The collision occurred about 3 miles north of Norfolk and 2 miles east of the Hampton Roads Bay Bridge Tunnel. Personnel from both ships were tested for drugs and alcohol as part of the investigation.

As the cleanup continues, officials are finding evidence of its impact on wildlife. At least 50 mallard ducks were reported oiled in the Elizabeth River area and the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries was coordinating wildlife rescue.

Ann Hayward Walker, scientific support coordinator for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, said she was concerned about spawning blue crab in the area, but noted most marine life appeared to be safe.

The only health threat appeared to be if oil washed over shellfish, or if fish were caught and carried through the oil, she said.

Virginia Beach, the state's prime resort area, will not be affected, Coast Guard officials said.

TRENTON, NJ (JULY 3) UPI - The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled unanimously Tuesday that the men-only membership policies at two Princeton University eating clubs are a violation of state anti-discrimination laws.

The ruling against the clubs came in a lawsuit brought by Sally Frank, a former student who alleged she was denied admission to the clubs because she is a woman.

Frank was a 19-year-old undergraduate at Princeton when she filed suit in 1979 against the men-only membership policies of the Ivy, Cottage and Tiger eating clubs.

The suit contended that the membership policies violated the state's anti-discrimination laws, which prohibit discrimination based on sex, among other factors. Attorneys for the clubs have argued that the law applies only to public accomodations and that the clubs are private institutions with no official connection to the Ivy League university.

After Frank graduated and went on to become a professor at New York Law School, the Cottage Club agreed to admit women. Of the school's 13 eating clubs, which are Princeton's rough equivalent to fraternities, only the Tiger Inn and Ivy Club continue to shun women.

Pressured by the lawsuit, members of both clubs voted earlier this year to admit women but the vote must pass two years in a row before the new policy would go into effect.

Tiger and Ivy several years ago won a favorable ruling from an administrative law judge who recommended they sever ties to the university pay Frank damages and continue to set their own admission policies.

The New Jersey Division on Civil Rights overruled the judge in 1987 and ordered the Ivy and Tiger clubs to allow women to apply for membership in those clubs.

The clubs appealed the decision to an appellate court, which ruled in their favor because of technicalities in the way the case was handled before the Division on Civil Rights. Frank has appealed that decision to the state Supreme Court.

During arguments before the high court Jan. 30, Frank argued that the clubs have an integral relationship with the University and that women must not be excluded from an important part of college life.

Russell Beatie, an attorney for the Tiger Club, said the clubs are purely social organizations, similar to single-sex fraternities or sororities.

Frank said the clubs were not purely social organizations and cited their function in ''networking'' between undergraduates and older alumni in the business community.

MOUNT RAINIER NATIONAL PARK, WA (JULY 3) UPI - Mountaineering crews worked Tuesday to bring down five people, four of them believed to be professional cowboys, killed in the crash of a light plane on Mount Rainier.

The five were killed Monday when the single-engine Cessna 210 powered into the south slope of the 14,410-foot mountain at an altitude of 12,700 feet. Authorities, who first said there might have been six people aboard the plane, reported there were no survivors.

The Washington State Aeronautics Division reported that search planes picked up a strong signal from an emergency locator beacon and found the wreckage about five hours after the plane disappeared from air traffic radar about 1 p.m.

More than a dozen rescuers airlifted to the summit by an Army Chinook helicopter from Fort Lewis spent the night on the glacier near the wreckage. At least three bodies were found on the glacier before nightfall authorities said.

The pilot was identified as Bob Card of Pendleton, owner of Aerowest Aviation Inc., a charter service that had been flying recently for PRCA Pro Rodeo Cowboys.

One of the passengers was identified as Mike Currin, 25, of Heppner, Ore., one of four Currin brothers active on the pro rodeo circuit and the 1984 national intercollegiate steer-wrestling champion.

Another was identified as Dave Smith, 31, of College Place, Wash., who speciality was calf-roping. Smith and his brother were in business together providing calves for rodeos around the Northwest.

The names of the other two cowboys - both believed from Texas - were not immediately available.

Rick Kirschner, a ranger at Mount Rainier National Park, said the plane's nose was embedded in the side of the mountain.

''I'm confused as to why they couldn't see the mountain,'' said Kirschner, adding the skies were clear above 11,000 feet. ''It's right there in front of them, unless the clouds suddenly lowered down.''

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (JULY 3) UPI - This week's NATO summit caps a lengthy re-thinking of the Western alliance and was not ''hectically'' called to reassure the Soviets on a united Germany's NATO membership, a senior alliance official said Tuesday.

''This is not something that we're doing in a hurried, panicked way,'' the official said of a major ''reorientation'' of the 41-year-old Western alliance's goals.

''We have been thinking about them for some time,'' he said. ''That doesn't mean this is not a time when we have to do some major thinking.''

The 16 NATO leaders, who meet on Thursday and Friday in London, likely will issue a non-aggression declaration toward the Soviet Union.

''But the declaration is not being written in order to give something to the Soviet Union. It is being written because it's the right thing to do '' said the senior official at NATO, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

''This summit is not being held to hectically meet a Soviet need,'' added the official. ''This isn't a summit that is coming together to get the Soviet Union to swallow German unification.''

The NATO allies insist on a united Germany within the Western alliance, a position the Soviet Union has resisted with varying resolve.

The ''two-plus-four'' talks on German unification, involving the two Germanys plus the Big Four World War II allies, resume on July 17 in Paris.

NATO seeks to recast the alliance into a more political organization to reflect the past year's easing of East-West tensions. The London summit caps a series of spring meetings involving the alliance's defense ministers and foreign ministers.

JERUSALEM (JULY 3) UPI - Israel's ambassador to Egypt resigned Tuesday, saying he was ''not the right person'' to represent Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's rightist government.

But Shimon Shamir denied in an interview with Israel Radio that the stalled Middle East peace process played a part in his decision.

''It has nothing to do with the peace process,'' Shamir said shortly after Foreign Minister David Levy accepted the resignation. ''I resigned because my personal beliefs are not in harmony with the program of the present government. The present government has a certain platform which I feel I am not the right person to represent.''

On June 11, Israel's Parliament approved the formation of a Likud-led government made up of far-right and religious parties, headed by Yitzhak Shamir, who is not related to the ambassador.

The new government pledged to pursue the peace process under its May 1989 peace initiative, calling for elections in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip to select representatives to negotiations on limited Palestinian automony.
ssor stationed in Egypt since 1988, was seen as a political moderate who tried to soften messages to Cairo and bridge the political gaps between the two capitals.

The respected Hebrew daily Ha'Aretz reported Tuesday that the Foreign Ministry and the Prime Minister's office differed over the tone of a recent letter on the peace process from the prime minister to Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and that this could have led to the resignation.

The ambassador worked closely with other top Foreign Ministry officials to soften the letter or stop it altogether, the newspaper said.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Yossi Amihud denied there was any conflict over the letter or that it led to the resignation.

''Absolutely not. This had nothing to do with it,'' Amihud said. ''The man just comes from another political environment and he didn't want to continue.''

Shamir will stay in his post until a replacement is found, the spokesman said.

The resignation came as Prime Minister Shamir is trying to improve relations with Egypt. On Monday, Shamir said the Egyptian leader should work closely with Israel to advance the peace process.

''Only such a leader as Mubarak, popular among all his people and president of the Middle East, will be able to work jointly with the state of Israel to advance peace,'' Shamir said Monday.

MONT ST. MICHEL, FRANCE (JULY 3) UPI - Belgian rider Johan Museeuw caputed the fourth stage of the 77th Tour de France in a sprint finish Tuesday, covering the 126 miles (203 kilometers) in five hours, 23 minutes 33 seconds.

Canadian Steve Bauer kept the yellow leader's jersey with the best overall time.

Museeuw edged Italian Guido Bontempi and East German Olaf Ludwig at the finish line at Mont St. Michel on Brittany's north coast.

The stage, which began in Nantes, was marked by a mass pileup of riders in a curve some seven miles (11 kilometers) from the finish. Laurent Fignon of France, part of the group, suffered his second fall in as many days and lost some 30 seconds on his chief rivals.

Unofficially, Bauer increased his lead over Frans Maassen of Holland, the second place rider overall, to 12 seconds.

(JULY 3) UPI - Firefighters Tuesday declared full control over a $500 million blaze that was set by an arsonist and blackened 4,900 acres near Santa Barbara, Calif.

Elsewhere, however, major fires were still burning Tuesday in San Diego County, southern Arizona and western Colorado.

Weary firefighters stopped the spread of flames north of Santa Barbara on Monday and declared the fire out at 6 a.m. Tuesday, U.S. Forest Service spokesman Maeton Freel said.

North-northwest winds of 15 to 20 mph aided firefighters Monday night, he said.

''That helped blow the embers back into the fire area so it wasn't causing any additional flareups on the perimeter,'' he said.

Most of the 700 firefighters still on the lines were to be demobilized Tuesday evening, he said.

''They will be retaining a little over 100 firefighters on the lines for the next few days to mop up whatever hot spots remain and to make sure that everthing is out,'' Freel said.

The demobilized firefighters were to rest before being returned to the pool of crews that can be dispatched to other fires burning in the West, he said.

''Most of the crews are tired and anxious to get a good night's rest in a regular bed before they go on to the next fire,'' Freel said.

Fire officials were worried that the Fourth of July holiday would be another potentially explosive situation with California's brush and forests parched from a prolonged drought.

The Santa Barbara fire - the worst to hit California in 30 years - consumed 487 buildings, including 430 homes and 15 businesses. Officials said the latest estimate put losses at a $500 million.

Investigators found an incendiary device in the brush and $120,000 in rewards was offered for information leading to the arrest of the arsonist, who could also be charged with murder because a woman was killed trying to flee a fireball that engulfed her home.

The fire was set June 27 during a heat wave that fueled a dozen other fires in California, Arizona, Texas and Colorado. Seven other people, all firefighters, died, including six members of a convict crew in Arizona.

Arson also was suspected in most of the California fires, including blazes that destroyed 60 homes in the Los Angeles suburb of Glendale, 14 homes in the Carbon Canyon area of Orange County and hundreds of acres of brush in eastern Los Angeles County and San Bernardino County.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency and the California Office of Emergency Services planned to open two disaster aid application offices Tuesday for those who suffered uninsured losses in the Santa Barbara and Los Angeles-area fires.

Environmental rehabilitation teams were surveying both scenes to determine where tree reseeding, channel clearing or sediment basins would be needed to prepare for mudslides feared when winter rains begin.

The Red Cross said 342 families had registered to receive basic necessities such as housing, food, clothing, diapers and medical supplies. The Red Cross also provided vouchers that victims can use at local merchants. Six shelters were still housing many of the hundreds of people who lost their homes.

In Arizona, the Dude fire in the Tonto National Forest near Payson was contained Sunday night after burning 28,400 acres of tall pines and claiming the lives of six firefighters.

Firefighters said they would not have the blaze out until at least July 10, mostly because thunderstorms and winds are expected to fan the remaining flames.

Firefighters were pulled off the Tonto blaze and sent to a lightning fire that started Saturday on the Fort Apache Indian Reservation near Whiteriver in eastern Arizona. It grew rapidly to 2,000 acres and was still burning.

In western Colorado, firefighters contained the 4,100-acre Horsefly Creek fire near Norwood and expected to have it controlled Monday night.

In Pine Springs, Texas, firefighters were mopping up hot spots Monday in the high country of Guadalupe Mountains National Park where 6,014 acres were charred in the biggest wildfire in the park's history.

The fire started June 25 with a lightning strike on Guadalupe Peak, at nearly 8,800 feet above sea level, the highest point in Texas.

(JULY 3) UPI - About half the Soviet Communist Party Politburo will NOT seek re-election. Soviet foreign minister Shevardnadze , who will NOT run again for a Politburo job, says he believes Politburo membership is NO longer needed for a minister also serving on the Presidential Council and other government bodies. Soviet leader Gorbachev says the Communist Party must learn to compete in a multi-party system.

Firefighters near Santa Barbara, California, are in control of a deliberately set blaze that charred 49-hundred acres, the state's worst fire in 30 years. Officials say 487 buildings were destroyed at an estimated cost of 500-Million dollars. The U-S Forest Service says weary firefighters stopped the spread of the Santa Barbara fire overnight and declared the blaze out this morning.

In London today, South African nationalist leader Nelson Mandela issued a call for continued sanctions against South Africa until it purges what he termed the ''poison of racism.'' DETROIT (JULY 3) UPI - Chrysler Corp. confirmed Tuesday it has issued about 1,800 key executives one-time stock awards, partly to stem a rate of resignations that is three times its normal level.

Company spokesman Lee Sechler said the stock awards were issued following board approval last week after the No. 3 carmaker determined its compensation for senior management was non-competitive.

But the awards were placed in trust, and will not be granted to executives until January 1991, at whatever price the stock is at that time - meaning Chrysler is once again dangling the carrot for top managers to shore up the automaker.

"A certain number of shares have been allocated to those executives, and what it is worth depends on what the price is in January," he said. "Whether it goes up or down is up to them."

Chrysler, which has ample cash reserves but is in the midst of a new product drought on its car side, has seen its U.S. car sales skid 18 percent so far this year, while its light truck and minivan sales are off 8.5 percent.

Chrysler declined to disclose the number of shares awarded. The company's common stock closed at $15.50 Monday, down 25 cents. The awards are troubling to the United Auto Workers union because Chrysler has promised it would pay no cash bonuses to executives in years when earnings were not sufficient to generate profit-sharing payments for its hourly workers, a situation that exists in the latest year.

The awards may also taint labor negotiations between the UAW and Chrysler that start July 20 to replace a three-year pact that expires Sept. 14. "This is a one-time stock award, not an option or a cash bonus," Sechler said. "What it amounts to is that a large part of an executive's pay is from a cash bonus, and without them people have been moving on for higher pay."

Chrysler's Incentive Compensation Committee determined that during the first quarter of 1990, resignations were three times the average for that period during the past five years, Sechler said.

In late May, Chrysler Vice Chairman Gerald Greenwald quit the carmaker to take a post with United Air Lines. Greenwald, 54, was considered the heir apparent to Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca. Greenwald is the third top company executive to depart Chrysler in recent weeks.

DALLAS (JULY 3) UPI - Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr. says he will move quickly to boost his stake in Koito Manufacturing Co. to 33 percent from 26 percent, despite another defeat of his attempt to gain seats on the board of the Japanese auto parts maker.

Pickens, who lost his bid to secure four board seats at Koito's annual stockholders meeting in Tokyo last week, said Monday he plans to buy more Koito stock that could cost him an additional $160 million at about $20 a share. His current investment in Koito through his Boone Co. unit already has made him Koito's largest shareholder.

Pickens and Koito have been battling for over a year. Pickens has used the Koito case to tell the world that Japan does not give the same access to foreign investors as the United States does to outsiders.

Koito has maintained Pickens is a corporate raider who wants to recoup his investment in the company through greenmail, an inflated price a company pays to repurchase stock in order to thwart a hostile takeover.

"They just can't stand to have me in over there," Pickens told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "They are just not going to allow any American to be involved in corporate Japan - it's that simple. We're going to try and change that."

Throughout the annual meeting, Koito stockholders heckled Pickens and his entourage. Finally Pickens stormed out of the meeting. "When I walked in the door the first thing I heard was 'Yankee go home'," Pickens said.

By increasing his stake in Koito to 33 percent, Pickens said he would, under Japanese law, be allowed to take part in the decisions made by Koito management.

Pickens has maintained that Toyota Motor Co., which is Koito's second largest shareholder, has played a major role behind the scene in keeping him and his representatives off Koito's board. He blames Japan's keiretsu system, a form of cartel which links the car makers and their suppliers to each other financially.

Pickens said Toyota doesn't want an American to find out how it has been able to gain major cost advantages over the U.S. car makers. Koito also rejected Pickens's proposal for an increase in annual dividend, shareholder approval of directors' pay and a ban on price fixing. Pickens said he will be back at next year's annual meeting to press his demands.

"Our strategy is that we'll keep asking for the same things we've asked for before. I've been out in front on issues before and they were tougher than this one," he said. "We are fools to open our markets to the Japanese when they don't allow us to participate in theirs," he added.

MOSCOW (JULY 3) UPI - Nearly half the Soviet Communist Party Politburo, including Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, will not seek re-election, officials at the current party Congress said Tuesday, demonstrating the diminishing importance of the once-supreme ruling body.

Shevardnadze announced Tuesday he would not run again for the party post, saying he no longer thought Politburo membership was necessary for a minister also serving on the Presidential Council and other government bodies.

Another of President Mikhail Gorbachev's closest advisers, Alexander Yakovlev, also said he would not try to retain his Politburo post.

Gorbachev announced that another two full members of the Politburo - Nikolai Slyunkov and Vitaly Vorotnikov - would not seek re-election to the 12-member body. Politburo member Lev Zaikov has announced he would step down.

Gorbachev, speaking to reporters in the rain outside the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses during a break in the 28th Party Congress, repeated his assertion that the Communist Party will have to learn to compete in a multi-party system.

''There will be other parties and we must collaborate. We must share our experiments and our work,'' Gorbachev said. ''We must not turn back. We must learn our lessons from the past. We can no longer live the way we lived before.''

Earlier Tuesday, Politburo hard-liner Yegor Ligachev lamented Gorbachev's market reforms and criticized Shevardnadze's Foreign Ministry for letting Eastern European nations break free from Communist rule.

''This does not strengthen but weakens our position,'' Ligachev told reporters during a break on the second day of the Congress.

Shevardnadze, one of Gorbachev's closest advisers, opened the session by telling the 4,657 delegates that times have changed.

''I consider that it is not necessary for a minister to sit in (both) the Politburo and in the Presidential Council and in the Defense Council and in various other organs,'' he said.

Yakovlev, intellectual godfather of perestroika and Gorbachev's other closest adviser, hinted in his speech to the Congress Monday he would step down from his party posts and confirmed Tuesday that he would not run for re-election to the Politburo.

There are currently 12 full members of the Politburo, which until Gorbachev's change in March to a presidential system was the country's most important body and an inner sanctum of power rarely pierced by publicity.

In a speech to the Congress, Ligachev delivered the first conservative rebuttal to Yakovlev's claim that reform processes were moving ahead under their own steam and the party risked being left behind.

''Only with a vanguard party can we move forward on the path of socialist renewal,'' Ligachev said. ''Without the Communist Party, perestroika would be a hopeless task.''

Ligachev repeated his criticism of any change to private property in the Soviet state - a key element in the economic reforms.

''Public property unites, while private property divides,'' he said.

Shevardnadze, who has warned against a witch hunt in the Soviet Foreign Ministry over accusations of who lost Eastern Europe, said the leadership had a ''pretty good idea'' over what would happen as a result of liberalization in Eastern bloc.

''(But) we felt that unless serious changes happened there could be a tragedy,'' he said.

He said the Soviet Union did nothing to accelerate the momentous events, which eventually dispensed with Communist rule in four Eastern European states.

Shevardnadze said the Soviet Union could gain from German unification because the new state would have a smaller army than West Germany.

''It is not in our best interests to drag out the foreign aspects of German unification,'' he said.

Shevardnadze, who was on the Politburo when Gorbachev was elevated to leadership in 1985, now is a member of the increasingly influential 16-member Presidential Council.

A surprise choice for foreign minister five years ago, Shevardnadze shaped a new Soviet foreign policy that used compromise, reason, and at times major concessions to Western demands to attain breakthrough arms control agreements.

LONDON (JULY 3) UPI - South African nationalist leader Nelson Mandela, explaining he was making a statement of principle and not policy, tried Tuesday to defuse an uproar ignited by his suggestion that London negotiate with the Irish Republican Army.

The deputy president of the African National Congress also began his two-day stay in Britain with a call for South Africa to suffer sanctions until it purges the ''poison of racism,'' a stance staunchly opposed by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who he meets Wednesday.

His first appointments were with legislators and leading black activists before talks with Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd that dealt with their differing positions on sanctions and Mandela's comments on the IRA made at a news conference Monday in Dublin.

Mandela's suggestion of negotiating with the IRA was firmly rejected by Thatcher, and other politicians united to say the black South African leader was misguided in comparing the Irish extremists with other armed groups.

Mandela, in a damage control exercise outside the Foreign Office with Hurd said he did not think his comment for an end to ''mutual slaughter'' had been a mistake that was overshadowing his visit.

''I expressly refuse to express any opinion on the actual conflict between Britain and the IRA, and I confine myself purely to that statement of a general principle which is applicable in every case where a conflict results in the death of people,'' he said.

Mandela earlier told a group of legislators he was ''prepared to defend for the rest of my days'' the principle that all conflicts should be settled peacefully.

Hurd and Mandela were anxious to show the IRA controversy had not distracted them from discussing South Africa during their 90-minute-long meeting.

Hurd said Mandela did most of the talking, and that they ''touched on points about where our views do not coincide.''

Mandela said there were differences, but he was not concerned because through talks ''the gap in your respective approaches will be narrowed and even closed together.''

It was the first official meeting in two years between Britain and the ANC which Thatcher once described as a ''terrorist organization.''

Mandela set the agenda for his upcoming meeting with Thatcher by reiterating his firm belief that South Africa should remain internationally isolated, primarily through economic sanctions, because of its institutionalized form of racial separation known as apartheid.

Thatcher alone has removed restrictions against Pretoria as a reward for racial reforms introduced in February by South African President Frederik de Klerk which included releasing Mandela and legalizing the ANC.

''We do not doubt the integrity of Mr. de Klerk and his colleagues,'' Mandela said at a meeting of about 200 black community leaders. ''Nevertheless, while apartheid is in place, sanctions should be maintained ... until there is profound and irreversible change in our country.

''As we enter the last decade of our century, the poison of racism continues to pollute the atmosphere of our planet,'' he told the enthusiastic crowd.

''Victory is in sight,'' the 72-year-old leader said. ''After more than 80 years of struggle, we are at a point where it is possible to enter negotiations (to try to create) a united, democratic, non-racial, non-sexist country.''

Mandela traveled to Britain via Ireland after a whirlwind eight-city tour of the United States, where he repeatedly stated the need for sanctions to remain against Pretoria.

NICOSIA (JULY 3) UPI - Iraq, claiming losses of billions of dollars from falling oil prices, has stepped up pressure to cut output of the 13-nation OPEC cartel, the authoritative Middle East Economic Survey indicated.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries pumps more than a third of the world's crude oil and tries to support world prices by limiting its output. Cheating on assigned individual quotas by members such as Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates, however, has undercut these efforts.

The MEES newsletter in its current edition Monday said Baghdad was trying to pressure both Kuwait and the UAE with a hard-hitting public and private campaign.

The campaign is evidently designed to pressure the UAE and Kuwait into cutting production to quota levels in order to help strengthen sagging crude oil prices, which are now languishing between $4 and $5 per barrel below the target minimum of $18 per barrel, MEES said.

Urgent messages to this effect from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein were delivered to the heads of state of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the UAE and Qatar last week by Saadoun Hamadi, Iraq's deputy prime minister in charge of economic affairs, the newsletter indicated.

Hamadi described the loss of revenue from the current oil-price deterioration as "intolerable for Iraq", and publicly castigated the UAE and Kuwait for bringing about this situation through overproduction.

"We are sticking to our production quota of 3.14 million barrels per day but others do not," Hamadi is quoted as saying by MEES. "Iraq stands to lose $1 billion a year in oil revenues for each decline in price of $1 per barrel ..." "Iraq cannot tolerate this situation," he said. "Our financial and economic situation motivates us to speak loudly."

Hamadi also made it clear that his country would not be satisfied with merely restoring the $18 a barrel target price average for seven OPEC crudes, but wanted a minimum price of $25 a barrel. He said this price would be acceptable to oil buyers and could be achieved by OPEC through the solidarity in production restraint.

MEES also said Iraqi Oil Minister Essam abdul Rahim Chalabi has outlined what looks like an Iraqi blueprint for resolving the production-price problem at the upcoming meeting of all OPEC oil ministers in Geneva on

In essence, MEES said, he appeared to be suggesting that, provided there are credible guarantees of observance, UAE's daily quota should be raised from the current 1.09 million to 1.5 million barrels in line with that of Kuwait, thereby increasing the overall cartel ceiling to 22.59 million barrels per day.

OPEC offered this at its November 1989 meeting but the proposal was rejected by the UAE. This new ceiling should be held without increase until the $18 a-barrel target price level is restored, the newsletter said.

TAMPA, FLA (JULY 3) UPI - Police began a statewide search Tuesday for a convicted killer who escaped from a minimum security facility a day before he was scheduled to return to state prison.

Willie H. Hickman, 43, convicted of killing two people in Sarasota, was scheduled to be sent back to a state prison following Gov. Bob Martinez' crackdown on inmate work release.

''From what I understand he was scheduled to return to (Raiford State Prison) in Starke (Tuesday morning),'' said police spokesman Wiley Howell. ''I guess he didn't want to go back to the big house.''

Hickman walked out of the Tampa Community Correctional Center at about 8 p.m. Monday, said state prison spokesman Bob Macmaster.

Officials at the correctional center declined comment.

Tampa police issued a statewide advisory to law enforcement agencies about Hickman Tuesday morning. Macmaster said Hickman, who is considered dangerous, has family in Tampa and West Palm Beach.

Tampa police visited the homes of his relatives Monday night but did not find him.

The governor's crackdown on the state's work release program came after killer Donald D. Dillbeck escaped a minimum-security work detail and stabbed a Tallahassee woman to death June 24.

Hickman had told an aunt he was hesitant to go back to state prison after having been at the correctional center for three years, authorities said.

The inmate drove a van at the facility, Macmaster said. ''He had trusted status. He walked out of the center. He met the criteria for placement there. We are surprised he did this.''

Macmaster said Hickman was serving two life terms for second-degree murder convictions in 1966 and 1973. Hickman also was convicted in 1973 of carrying a concealed weapon and was sentenced to 10 years in prison, concurrent with his second murder conviction.

Macmaster would not speculate whether Hickman's scheduled return to prison led to his decision to escape.

''For 17 years he's had a good record,'' Macmaster said. ''He's only had one DR, (disciplinary report) in 10 years. And that was for carrying too much money.''

EAST BERLIN (JULY 3) UPI - The German Social Union, a small party in the East German government coalition, faced a crisis Tuesday with claims it was linked to right-wing extremists, but the nation's leader said it would not cause a government shake-up.

The crisis erupted over the weekend when five senior party members resigned over the election of Hans-Joachim Walther as party chairman.

Walther is said to have close ties to the West German ultra right-wing Republican Party, which was founded by Franz Schoenhuber, a former member of Hilter's elite Waffen-SS troops.

Schoenhuber has since resigned as party chairman, claiming the party was moving too far to the right.

The five members of the German Social Union who resigned from the party included Interior Minister Peter-Michael Diestel and party co-founder Hans-Wilhelm Ebeling.

''The DSU has obvious close links with the Republican Party,'' said Ebeling, who is minister for Development Aid in the conservative-led East German government of Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere.

Walther denied the DSU had contacts with the Republicans.

''The fact that we have just elected West German Finance Minister Theo Waigel as our honoraray chairman shows that the accusation of right-wing extremism is a lie,'' Walther said.

Waigel, a member of the Bavarian Christian Social Union, has been a key West German supporter of the DSU since its creation last January.

Walther called on Diestel and Ebeling to resign their cabinet jobs but de Maiziere said he will not change his cabinet because of DSU's problems.

''The whole thing is a DSU problem,'' de Maiziere said. ''We will not put the whole coalition into question over this issue. Our country has far more important issues to attend to.''

Observers in East Berlin predicted a wave of resignations by rank-and-file members of the DSU in the coming weeks.

LONDON (JULY 3) UPI - Stock prices closed lower slightly on the London

International stock exchange Tuesday, after profit warnings in the retail sector erased early gains.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-share index closed down 0.3 points to 2,371.7 points in a session lacking clear directions. The narrower top 30 industrial average closed down 1.9 points to 1,894.7 points.

Volume amounted to about 447.3 million shares, up from 310.7 million shares Monday.

Share prices scored modest gains in early trading on renewed hopes that Britain would soon announce its full-fledged entry into the European Exchange Rate Mechanism. But continued concerns about inflation and high British interest rates erased the gains in later trading.

A profit warning by food company Budgen early in the day resulted in losses in virtually all retailing sectors. Budgen fell 28 cents to $1.05. Also down were clothing retailer Burton, which lost 19 cents to $1.86, and Next, which lost nine cents to 75 cents.

Sears lost seven cents to $1.61 after issuing their own profit warning later in the day.

The Body Shop took a battering, losing 80 cents to $6.55 as a recent rights issue produced disappointing results. Ratners lost 51 cents to $4.11 after adverse comment on its plans to takeover U.S. retailer Kay Jewelers Inc.

General Electric lost two cents to $3.43 despite annual profits being up nearly ten percent at 872 million pounds, or $1.5 billion. Analysts said the figure was at the lower end of expectations.

There was some good news. A Citibank review boosted Rechem up 35 cents to $9.97, and Shanks and McEwan jumped 26 cents to $27.56 in sympathy. Option buying boosted British Telecom shares up 11 cents to $5.40.

GREENWICH, CT (JULY 3) UPI - United Parcel Service has acquired Seabourne European Express Parcels for an undisclosed amount in an effort to develop a Pan-European ground delivery network, executives said Tuesday.

Seabourne European Express is a division of, a transportation company with headquarters in Antwerp, Belgium, and its main hub in Mechelen, Belgium. The company also has extensive operations in the United Kingdom.

''One of our goals has been to build a European ground delivery service to complement our existing international air network,'' said Larry Long, UPS vice president in Europe.

''The purchase of Seabourne is a critical move toward achieving that goal '' said Long.

The aquisition will allow UPS to merge its existing European air operation with a developing cross-border ground service.

Seabourne's 28-year presence in the United Kingdom also was expected to strengthen UPS' position in the British marketplace, officials said.

Seabourne operates depots and offices throughout the United Kingdom, France, The Netherlands, Spain and Sweden.

The company, with annual revenues of more than $26 million, also provides service in Germany, Ireland, Norway, Finland, Denmark and Italy.

''Seabourne will provide UPS with added capabilities including EEC transport permits and highly developed linehaul operation, which will accelerate the development of a UPS Pan-European ground service,'' said Jan Schipper, general manager for Seabourne in Europe.

Seabourne's employees will remain in their current positions.

UPS serves the entire United States and more than 180 countries and territories.

The company delivered 8.2 billion packages and documents in 1989 and claims to be the world's largest package delivery company, with revenues of $12 billion.

NEW YORK (JULY 3) UPI - A jury Tuesday acquitted a white man of a murder charge in the killing of a black teenager in Brooklyn's Bensonhurst neighborhood but failed to reach a verdict on another murder charge.

However, the jury convicted John Vento, 21, of first-degree unlawful imprisonment and four counts of menacing.

The panel found Vento innocent on another count of unlawful imprisonment in the first degree, four counts of discrimination and criminal possession of a weapon.

Vento stood with a tough smirk on his face as the jury told the state Supreme Court Thaddeus Owens it was deadlocked on the first murder charge.

The judge declared a mistrial on the intentional murder and riot charges and said Vento would have to be tried again.

As he spoke, Vento's mother, Maria, sat with tears running down her cheeks.

Vento had been charged with recruiting the mob of white youths that killed Yusuf Hawkins, 16, in predominantly white Bensonhurst neighborhood last Aug. 23.

The jury of seven men and five women had reported it was deadlocked for the past few days but Owens kept them deliberating, finally saying he would declare a mistrial Tuesday if no verdicts were reached.

Owens ordered the jury into the courtroom about noon Monday and asked them ''Is your position the same as last night?''

''Yes,'' said jury foreman Terik Dash.

Owens sent the panel out of the room for five minutes and told attorneys for both sides, ''I'll have to take a partial verdict.''

Vento faced a maximum sentence of 30 and a third years to life imprisonment if convicted on the major charges.

WIMBLEDON, ENGLAND (JULY 3) UPI - Monica Seles' 36-match winning streak ended Tuesday when Zina Garrison survived an early case of nerves and a late match point to defeat the 16-year-old French Open champion 3-6, 6-3, 9-7 and advance to Wimbledon's semifinals.

Seles, the third seed, had won her six previous tournaments and had not lost a match since March.

''It was tough for the first 10 minutes, but things will look better tomorrow,'' she said.

The Yugoslavian rallied from a 4-1 deficit in the third set. She held match point when Garrison was serving at 6-7, 30-40, but the American got back to deuce with a brilliant running forehand down the line.

''On match point, it took guts to hit a ball like that,'' Seles said.

Garrison repeated the shot twice more to even the match at 7-7, then broke Seles at 15 and held serve at love. An unforced error by Seles on a long backhand ended the 2-hour, 23-minute match.

''I could have won and I could have lost,'' Seles said. ''It was just a couple of points.''

Four times in the past year, Garrison lost matches she felt were in her grasp. She thought of those moments while playing Seles.

''I just kept telling myself I was overdue,'' she said.

Garrison, the No. 5 seed, next plays defending champion Steffi Graf. The top seed, who has yet to lose a set, ousted No. 13 Jana Novotna 7-5, 6-2. Graf said she was disappointed by Seles's elimination because she wanted a rematch with the woman who beat her in the French Open final.

Also reaching the semifinals was No. 2 Martina Navratilova, who routed No. 7 Katerina Maleeva 6-1, 6-1. The 33-year-old former champion won her 97th singles match at The All England Club, breaking the mark set last year by Chris Evert.

In the men's draw, Brad Pearce of the United States, ranked No. 120, triumphed in a fourth-round pairing of unseeded players, downing Australia's Mark Woodforde 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Garrison, who has failed to reach the finals in 33 previous Grand Slam events, lost the first three games in just nine minutes, spraying her groundstrokes and winning only one point. But Garrison, one of the fastest players on the tour, steadied her shots while retrieving Seles' deep placements.

''I just told myself to keep hitting, keep hitting, and keep to my game plan of just hitting the ball back and coming to net when I had the chance '' the 26-year-old from Houston said.

Seles was playing in only her second grass-court tournament. Garrison, playing in her eighth Wimbledon, previously advanced to the semifinals in 1985.

''I always felt I was a good grass-court player,'' Garrison said. ''I'm more relaxed now.''

Seles defeated Garrison in their only previous meeting, winning in straight sets at the 1989 French Open, but Wimbledon's grass proved better suited to the Texan's serve-and-volley style.

NEW YORK (JULY 3) UPI - Cash-strapped millionaire Donald Trump faces another big pay-up Thursday when an early real estate tax billing on his Manhattan properties is due, officials said Tuesday.

Trump spokesman Dan Klores said he had heard about the early billing but would have no comment ''at this time.'' He refused to comment on a report that Trump might owe the city as much as $15 million.

A spokesman at the City Collector's office confirmed that special tax bills were mailed Monday to 400 of the city's biggest property owners, including Trump, ordering them to pay their annual property tax by Thursday midnight, 10 days prior to the normal tax due date.

By billing big property owners early, the city hopes to collect more than $1 billion to meet the municipal payroll.

Trump's chief Manhattan holdings are Trump Tower, Hotel Plaza, Trump Palace, Trump Plaza, and the undeveloped West Side railroad yards where he hopes to build Television City, where he planned the world's tallest building.

The City Collector's office declined to estimate what the tax bill on Trump's Trump properties might be, but property owners who get special tax billings usually owe $5 million or more, the spokesman said.

TOKYO (JULY 3) UPI - Alberto Fujimori, president-elect of Peru, has not won any concrete economic commitments from the land of his parents, but remained confident Tuesday about gaining Japan's backing for his effort to rebuild Peru's shattered economy.

''(Japan's) reaction was neither hot nor cold,'' Fujimori said at the Japan National Press Club Tuesday, after meeting with lawmakers, businessmen and government ministers on the third day of his five-day visit to Japan. ''It was understandable, considering Peru's delayed repayment of debt.''

Peru, which was once the largest Latin American recipient of Japanese aid, has been limited to grants since 1984. At that time, Peru's outgoing president,Alan Garcia, put a cap on interest payments for his nation's massive foreign debt, now estimated at close to $20 billion.

Japan and other nations have since refused to make new loans to Peru.

Meanwhile, Peru's economy has crumbled, with inflation topping 2,700 percent and per capita income falling drastically.

Fujimori, the son of Japanese immigrants to Peru, has promised a new beginning.

He brought his message of fiscal responsibility Tuesday to Japan's business leaders, who gathered for a luncheon in his honor at Keidanren, the nation's leading business association. Among those present was Sony Corp. Chairman Akio Morita.

Fujimori told them his nation would no longer be hostile to international finance organizations, such as the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank. He said his primary task was to build a cooperative relationship with them, and called Japan's support indispensable in achieving that goal.

The businessmen were evidently impressed, in part because of Fujimori's Japanese ancestry.

''We have a psychological basis to understand each other,'' said a representative of the group after the lunch, who spoke on condition of anonymity. ''Japan's support for Peru will gradually grow.''

Like the government, the business community did not make any firm commitments, but promised to send a fact-finding mission to Peru this month.

After the lunch, Fujimori attended a reception given by some 100 lawmakers led by Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu, who wished him well and pledged their cooperation.

In a private meeting Monday with Kaifu, he was promised a government mission to Peru but no new aid.

Encounters with government ministers were similarly non-commital.

After meeting Fujimori Tuesday, International Trade and Industry Minister Kabun Muto said if Peru fulfills its international responsibilities, Japan will offer more positive support for rebuilding its economy.

But a senior adviser to Fujimori, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the talks were going better than had been expected.

''We're making real progress in advance,'' he said, referring to Japan's position that it cannot take action until Fujimori is inaugurated July 28.

Speaking at his news conference, Fujimori suggested that even if Japan could not grant new aid right away, it could help in other ways, such as encouraging tourism and cultural exchange.

Fujimori, who met with IMF and World Bank officials in New York before coming to Japan, expressed confidence that good relations with those bodies would soon be restored, and that full-fledged Japanese aid would follow.

''The end is in sight. We can soon re-establish our financial relationship with Japan,'' he said.

SPRINGFIELD, IL (JULY 3) UPI - Companies that manufactured the suspected cancer-causing drug DES cannot be forced to pay damages to "DES daughters" who do not know what company manufactured the DES their mothers took, the Illinois Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

Justices ruled in the case of a Chicago woman who contracted cervical cancer and sued Indianapolis-based Eli Lilly and Co. and several other makers of the controversial drug diethlystilbestrol, a synthetic female horomone.

Studies show daughters of pregnant women who often took the drug to prevent miscarriage from the 1940s to the 1960s had a higher incidence of cervical cancer.

The federal Food and Drug Adminstration banned the drug in 1971 and hundreds of lawsuits were filed against hundreds of drug companies by women known as "DES Daughters." In this case, Sandra Smith, born in 1953, did not know exactly which company manufactured the drugs her mother took.

With their decision, justices struck down the "market share" concept of liability, which would hold companies liable on the basis of the amount of product they produced.

Eli Lilly said up to 81 companies manufactured the drug during Smith's mother's pregnancy. Eli Lilly asked the high court to overturn a lower court's ruling that it was responsible for what other companies marketed.

"We conclude market share liability is not a sound theory, is too great a deviation from our existing ... principles and should not be applied in cases brought by plaintiffs who were exposed to DES while (in the uterus) " said Justice Howard Ryan, writing for the court.

The court found flaws with the principle, including a lack of reliable information to establish the companies' share of the market when the mother bought the drug. Using market share liability would allow juries to assign damage based on unreliable information, therefore judgments would be arbitrary and vary widely, Ryan said.

"Acceptance of market share liability and the concomitant burden placed on the courts and the parties will imprudently bog down the judiciary in an almost futile endeavor," Ryan said. "This would also create a tremendous cost - both monetarily and in terms of the workload - on the court system and litigants in an attempt to establish percentages based on unreliable or insufficient data."

California, Wisconsin, New York, and Washington have adopted some form of "market share" liability in DES cases where identifying the drug manufacturer is not possible because of the amount of time lapsed between the mother's pregnancy and the daughter's development of cancer. Records of drug companies, physicians, and hospitals are often destroyed before the "DES Daughters" can pursue lawsuits.

Justice William Clark and Justice Horace Calvo dissented with the majority ruling and said some form of market share liability should be adopted like that used in Washington. Clark said the manufacturers' share of the national DES market could be accurately determined.

"(The current system) prevents not only this plaintiff from recovering damages for her injuries under our current ... system, it is also likely to prevent numerous other so-called 'DES Daughters' from recovering damages for their injuries," Clark wrote. "That is, unless this court acts to remedy the gap in our common law which allows such injustices to occur."

Smith's original suit, filed in 1980, named 138 drug companies. The number of defendants was later reduced to eight, including Eli Lilly, Abbott Laboratories, Premo Pharmaceutical Laboratories Inc., S.E. Massengill Co., Harvey Laboratories Inc., Carroll Dunham Smith Pharmacal Co., Boyle and Co.; and William H. Rorer Inc.

PANMUNJOM, NORTH KOREA (JULY 3) UPI - South and North Korea, meeting for the first time in more than five months, made progress Tuesday toward a two-Korea prime ministers meeting to discuss how to end confrontation and promote exchanges.

Five officials from each side met at the truce village of Panmunjom, 35 miles north of Seoul, in the seventh "preparatory session for South-North high-level talks."

The talks could pave the way for the prime ministers of the two Koreas - Kang Young-hoon for the South and Yon Hyong-muk for the North - to get together in Seoul next month in the first such meeting between the two Koreas divided since August 1945.

The talks, one of four channels of dialogue between the two Koreas, started in February 1989. After six rounds of meetings the contact broke down in late January when North Korea cut off all talks to protest Team Spirit 1990 exercises, routine annual training maneuvers involving U.S. and South Korean forces.

Before the January suspension of dialogue, the two sides had agreed on most procedures for a South-North prime ministers meeting but deadlocked on the issue of prioritiesfor the agenda.

The stalemate was resolved earlier when Song Han-ho, the chief Seoul delegate, said, "We accept your agenda proposal to list the removal of South-North political and military confrontation before realization of multi-faceted cooperation and exchange."

The two sides will hold a subcommittee meeting Friday at Panmunjom to draft a formal agreement to be signed by the two chief delegates on June 26. The agreemment will call for a prime ministers meeting in Seoul one month after the conclusion of preliminary talks. A second session would be held in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang with later meetings alternating between the two capitals.

Each side will have a seven-member delegation to the main talks headed by its prime minister and including cabinet ministers and vice ministers as well as up to two military officers ranking among chiefs of staff of military services.

Paek Nam-jun, Song's North Korean counterpart, said in a speech at the meeting that one of the first issues to be discussed at the prime ministers meeting should be the question of entry into the United Nations.

He said he opposed simultaneous South and North Korean membership in the United Nations as well as South Korea's unilateral entry on grounds that such moves could freeze Korean division.

Paek also said the meeting between South Korean President Roh Tae-woo and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in San Francisco on June 4 was not helpful to Korean unification. "It goes against self-reliant solution of our national question," he said.

At a news conference following the meeting Paek said the U.N. membership issue was not a precondition for the prime ministers meeting. Paek was firm, however, in his demand that the Team Spirit military exercises be stopped. "I make it clear that our dialogue will face another unfortunate situation if the exercise continues," he said.

Seoul officials expected dialogue with the North to reopen soon on three other fronts - talks for a full South-North Korea parliamentary conference economic cooperation and reunions of separated family members.

TRENTON, NJ (JULY 3) UPI - Men-only membership policies at two Princeton University eating clubs violate state anti-discrimination laws, the state Supreme Court said Tuesday as it struck down a century-old tradition.

In a 7-0 ruling, the state's highest court ordered the Ivy Club and Tiger Inn clubs to admit women, rejecting their arguments that they are private institutions exempt from discrimination laws.

''There is no question that the clubs discriminated against women,'' Justice Marie Garibaldi, the only woman on the court, wrote in a 46-page opinion. ''It is undisputed that the clubs had a general policy that excluded females from consideration as members.

''The clubs must obey this state's substantive legal proscriptions against discrimination and discontinue their practice of excluding women purely on the basis of gender,'' Garibaldi wrote.

The ruling came in a lawsuit brought by Sally Frank, who was a 19-year-old undergraduate at Princeton when she filed suit against the Ivy, Tiger and Cottage clubs in 1979. The Cottage Club has since admitted women.

The suit contended the membership policies violated the state's anti-discrimination laws, which prohibit discrimination based on sex, among other factors.

Attorneys for the clubs argued that the law applies only to public accommodations and that the clubs are private institutions with no official connection to the Ivy League university.

Frank countered, however, that the clubs, Princeton's rough equivalent to fraternities, play an important function in ''networking'' between undergraduates and older alumni in the business community.

The court agreed with Frank, saying ''the clubs cannot sever their ties to the university or remove themselves from the jurisdication of the'' state Division on Civil Rights.

''I'm glad the court recognized that this practice was discriminatory and should not be permitted to continue,'' Frank, now a professor at New York Law School, said in reaction to the ruling.

''I'm also happy that students at Princeton University will no longer be taught that discrimination against women is an acceptable form of behavior '' she said.

The state chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union also praised the decision.

''It's a wonderful victory,'' ACLU state Legal Director Deborah Ellis said. ''We think the decision is especially important because it is part of the general trend of courts realizing that for women and minorities to be fully integrated into American life, that these kinds of barriers have to be broken down.''

Attorneys for the eating clubs did not return telephone calls and club officials, students now on summer vacation, could not be reached.

Of the school's 13 eating clubs, established after the school banned fraternities in 1856, only the Tiger Inn and Ivy Club continue to refuse membership to women.

Pressued by the lawsuit, members of both clubs voted earlier this year to admit women, but the vote must pass two years in a row before the new policy would go into effect.

Tiger and Ivy four years ago won a favorable ruling from an administrative law judge who recommended that they sever ties to the university, pay Frank damages and continue to set their own admission policies.

The Division on Civil Rights overruled the judge in 1987, however, and ordered the clubs to allow women to apply for membership.

The clubs appealed to an appellate court, which ruled in their favor because of technicalities in the way the case was handled before the Division on Civil Rights. The state Supreme Court ruling overturned the appellate court's ruling, reinstating the division's 1987 order.

(JULY 3) UPI - The Soviet Communist Party Politburo is NO longer the once-supreme ruling body it was in the past. Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze leads a group made up of nearly half the Politburo's members who says they will NOT seek re-election. Today's announcements at the current party Congress demonstrates the Politburo's diminishing importance.

The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled today that men-only eating clubs at Princeton University are a violation of state anti-discrimination laws. The unanimous ruling came in a lawsuit by a former student who alleged she was denied admission to the Ivy and Tiger Inn clubs because she is a woman.

MONROVIA, LIBERIA (JULY 3) UPI - President Samuel Doe has agreed in principle to resign under pressure from close associates and advancing rebels battling his troops in Monrovia's suburbs, political sources said Tuesday.

Doe was last seen staying near the U.S. Embassy, the sources said.

U.S. State Department spokesman Richard Boucher repeated an offer to help Doe leave the country if he asked, but said he had not yet requested such help. Boucher also declined to say whether Doe could come to the United States.

As heavily-armed fighters of guerrilla leader Charles Taylor gradually advanced into the city of 500,000 people, residents and officials reported rebels have started hunting down members of Doe's minority Krahn tribe, and warned that widespread ethnic bloodshed seemed inevitable.

Shopkeepers said unruly troops, many drunken or drugged, looted several shops under cover of a dusk to dawn curfew, announced earlier in the day. They terrorized the city Tuesday, shooting from commandeered cars and extorting money from passers-by.

Paris-based diplomatic sources said the rebels battling troops loyal to Doe broke through to the port on one side of the capital of Monrovia and the main radio station on the other side. The sources said the rebel breakthrough to the two key installations a few miles from the city center of the West African capital took place Tuesday morning after a night of heavy fighting.

In Washington, the Defense Department said a four-ship U.S. amphibious task force of 2,100 Marines remained in international waters off the coast of Liberia Tuesday and that they were prepared to evacuate Americans, other foreign nationals or Doe, if requested by the State Department.

But the State Department's Boucher said no decision has been made to evacuate Americans in Liberia. He said 795 U.S. citizens are in Liberia, including 70 employees of the U.S. Embassy.

Boucher said the U.S. Embassy workers are safe and are ''pretty much staying at the embassy.''

The U.S. Embassy is being protected by the ''usual security,'' including Marines, Boucher said, declining to give further details.

GENEVA (JULY 3) UPI - Iran and Iraq agreed Tuesday to renew the search for a permament peace settlement to the Persian Gulf war under the auspices of the secretary-general of the United Nations.

Talking directly to each other for the first time since the August 1988 cease-fire in their eight-year conflict, foreign ministers Ali Akbar Velayati of Iran and Tariq Aziz of Iraq reaffirmed the support of their governments in U.N. mediation.

U.N. chief Javier Perez de Cuellar said there was "an improved atmosphere" at the meeting - the first since the last indirect session in April 1989, when Valayati and Aziz refused to address each other directly.

Both sides reaffirmed their support of the role of the secretary-general in mediating a permament peace agreement, Perez de Cuellar told reporters after the 40-minute encounter.

He said he would be meeting with Iranian and Iraqi officials - but not the foreign ministers who go home Wednesday - during the rest of the week to discuss his visiting the two countries for talks with their leaders.

A communique after the Tuesday meeting did not mention any agreement by the two sides to actually resume negotiations, only accord on Perez de Cuellar contiunuing his mediation efforts.

There also was no mention of a summit, as proposed by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, although U.N. officials said that would certainly be a topic for discussion when Perez de Cuellar makes the projected trip to the area.

Valayati and Aziz were in the same room in 1988 and 1989 for the discussions but spoke only through Perez de Cuellar and other U.N. officials - never directly to each other.

This time they shook hands on entering a conference room at U.N. European headquarters in the Palais des Nations and addressed each other directly, U.N. officials said.

"They are really committed to finding a solution as soon as possible," Perez de Cuellar told reporters afterwards. "It is a breakthrough in the sense that it is the first direct meeting since the cease-fire," he said. A full summit between the leaders of Iran and Iraq is something which will take place "sooner or later," Perez de Cuellar said.

Iran and Iraq agreed to a U.N.-sponsored cease-fire and peace negotiations in August 1988 after eight years of fighting. There was an immediate deadlock over border delineation, however, and talks were suspended in April 1989 after only three rounds. There was also a stalemate over ways to repatriate the estimated 100,000 prisoners taken in the war which killed as many as one million people.

Perez de Cuellar said he took "great personal satisfaction" in securing agreement by Velayati and Aziz to the direct meeting. "It is still too soon to talk about it," Valayati said about a possible Iran-Iraq summit.

With his country making the proposal, foreign minister Aziz of Iraq was more optimistic about the chances. "It is agreed in principle," he said. "But there are still details to be worked out."

At the previous deadlocked peace talks, Iran demanded as a first step Iraqi withdrawal from 2,000 square kilometers of Iranian territory occupied during the war.

Iraq for its part, however, said the first issue was clearing wreckage from the strategic Shatt al-Arab waterway to the Persian Gulf as it is Iraq's only access to the Gulf. Iraq claims sovereignty over the Shatt al-Arab, while Iran argues a previous accord placed the frontier down the middle of the waterway.

LOS ANGELES (JULY 3) UPI - The defense attorney for Raymond Buckey, the sole defendant remaining in the notorious McMartin Pre-School molestation case, dared jurors Tuesday to find the evidence to convict him.

''Look for that proof beyond a reasonable doubt,'' defense lawyer Danny Davis said on the second day of his closing argument in Buckey's retrial. ''Look for the evidence of Ray Buckey's specific intent'' to sexually arouse either himself or his alleged victims.

Davis believes jurors will not be able to find proof beyond a reasonable doubt and therefore will acquit Buckey of charges he molested three girls at the now-closed nursery school.

The lawyer also asked jurors to clear Buckey's name, portraying him as the innocent victim of a misguided prosecution.

''Are we going to wait 20 years and look back and say, 'What we did to Ray Buckey was wrong?''' Davis said.

In other remarks, Davis continued to argue that the alleged victims were programmed by over-zealous social workers into falsely leveling the molestation charges against Buckey.

''The kids coming into court didn't know what they were talking about,'' Davis told the jury.

He said the children were ''contaminated'' long ago by the social workers at the Children's Institute International in Los Angeles, their parents and authorities, all of whom believed Buckey was a child molester.

Davis was expected to concluded his closing argument later Tuesday. Deputy District Attorney Joseph Martinez will then give the prosecution's rebuttal argument Tuesday afternoon.

The jury, which will have the rest of the week off because of the July 4th holiday, is scheduled to return to court Monday for instructions and the start of its deliberations.

Buckey, 32, is being retried on eight molestation counts stemming from the alleged sexual abuse of three girls at the now-defunct Virginia McMartin Pre-School in Manhattan Beach from 1978 until 1983.

At the end of the first trial in January, Buckey and his mother, Peggy McMartin Buckey, 63, were acquitted of 52 other molestation counts. Buckey is being retried on charges on which the jury deadlocked.

The first trial, which involved 11 children, lasted nearly three years and cost more than $13 million, the longest and costliest criminal trial in U.S. history.

The second trial began April 10.

If convicted, Buckey could be sentenced to up to 22 years in state prison. The nearly five years he spent in County Jail awaiting his first trial would be subtracted from that total.

When first filed in 1984, the case was the largest sex abuse case in U.S. history. However, five co-defendants and scores of charges were dismissed prior to the first trial for insufficient evidence.

PROVIDENCE, RI (JULY 3) UPI - Citing concerns about a Rhode Island state tax revenue crunch at the end of 1990, Moody's Investors Service effectively lowered its rating Tuesday on the state's short-term borrowing.

The prominent Wall Street credit rating agency issued a MIG 2 rating on $150 million in six-month tax anticipation notes the state was to issue Tuesday, the second day of the new fiscal year. That's one notch lower than the MIG 1 rating the state got the last time it went out for such short-term borrowing.

Although a lower credit rating normally means higher borrowing costs, George Leung, a spokesman for Moody's, said his company's evaluation is only one component in determining the interest rate at which the state will finally sell its notes.

Leung said the state's decision to seek only six-month, instead of one-year, borrowings contributed to the structural problems that raised Moody's concern. However, the shorter maturity should also help bring the interest rate down, he said.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, which oversees national banks, proposed Tuesday increasing its assessments on the institutions by eight percent and raising other fees.

The agency said the increases, which would take place Jan. 31, 1991, are needed to meet its rising operating costs. The increased fees would apply to processing "certain securities-related filings" by national banks as well as institutions that deal in municipal and government securities, the agency said.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - The Inter-American Development Bank will participate in President Bush's initiative for a "new economic partnership" with Latin America in the areas of trade, investment and debt, IDB President Enrique Iglesias said Tuesday.

Last week, Bush prescribed a hemispheric free-trade zone, incentives for internal reforms and innovative debt relief to spur the economies of Latin America.

Iglesias told reporters that Bush's initiative is important both for Latin America and the United States, which is struggling to reduce its trade deficit. If Latin America had been able to grow in the 1980s as in previous decades, he noted, U.S. exports to the region would have been $125 billion higher.

Bush proposed that the Inter-American Development Bank adopt lending practices that encourage market reforms needed to attract foreign investment and debt-for-equity and debt-for-nature swaps to give debt-burdened nations "economic breathing room to enact bold reforms."

Iglesias said that the IDB, which traditionally has lent to Latin American nations for economic development projects, will participate in Bush's initiative in three key areas - trade, debt and investments.

Although the IDB does not lend directly for trade, it will bolster Latin American trade by providing loans for investments that will facilitate imports and exports, such as infrastructure investments, he said.

Iglesias said the bank would participate in Latin American debt reduction operations jointly with the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank once IDB country members approve changes in the institution's statutes.

The IDB will also seek creative mechanisms for Latin American countries to use resources from debt reduction operations for environmental programs.

In the area of investments, Iglesias said the bank will support in Latin America a "climate favorable to investments and privatization" of state companies, and will create lending mechanisms to support sectorial programs in support of investments.

Last week, Bush said the United States is prepared to provide $100 million toward creation of a fund to furnish up to $300 million a year in grants to encourage market reforms. The president said he would seek "matching contributions from Europe and Japan."

Iglesias said the fund will be supplemented by resources from the private sector and the IDB expects to have guideliness for its operations within 90 days. Several Latin American countries have expressed interest in participating in the fund's programs, he added.

NEW YORK (JULY 3) UPI - A youth charged with beating a jogger and leaving her for dead in Central Park admitted he had been part of a gang of youths that stalked through the park on the night of the attack, a police officer testified Tuesday.

Officer Robert Powers said Antron McCray told him at the Central Park police precinct he had been with the group of youths, whose presence in the park on April 19, 1989, had sparked a strong police presence.

But Powers said in state Supreme Court in Manhattan that McCray told him he never attacked anyone that night.

McCray, 16, is one of three youths on trial for the attack on the female jogger, who was raped and beaten by a gang of teenagers and then left lying near death in the mud in an isolated area of Central Park.

The brutality of the attack and the ages of the youths charged with assaulting the woman, a 29-year-old investment banker, shocked a city accustomed to violent crime.

The other two defendants on trial before Justice Thomas Galligan are Raymond Santana, 15, and Yusef Salaam, 16. All three are charged with 13 criminal counts, including attempted murder, rape and sodomy.

If convicted, each faces a maximum sentence of five to 10 years imprisonment. All three were juveniles at the time of the attack.

Powers's statements, in response to questions from prosecutor Elizabeth Lederer, came as the jury awaited afternoon testimony from three people who discovered the jogger's body.

Powers said McCray and his mother showed up at the Central Park precinct shortly after midnight on April 20, apparently because McCray wanted to visit another youth, Clarence Thomas.

Thomas had been taken into custody late the night before, about the same time Santana was arrested. Thomas has never been charged in the case.

At the time, police were unaware of the attack on the jogger. Her unconscious body was not discovered until about 1:30 a.m.

Powers said he had a short conversation with McCray at the precinct.

''I asked him if he was with the guys in the park and he said, 'yes, but I ran away when you guys started chasing us,''' the officer said. ''And then I looked him in the eye and asked him if he had hit anyone, and he looked away and he said, 'no.'''

McCray then left the precinct. He was later taken into police custody at his parents' apartment about 4 a.m. after police discovered the jogger's body and closely questioned those youths already at the precinct.

Under cross-examination from McCray's attorney, Michael Joseph, Powers said he had never noted in any police records that his conversation with McCray had occurred.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney has rejected the findings of a new study on the V-22 Osprey that says the revolutionary tilt-rotor aircraft could be more cost-effective than some helicopters, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

''The secretary has reviewed the draft report and has concluded that the decision that he made last year remains valid, which is that the V-22 is an excellent aircraft but it is simply too expensive to buy,'' Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

''His view is the Marine Corps medium-airlift requirement can be met by alternatives that cost less,'' Williams said.

The study by the Institute for Defense Analysis, a Pentagon-sponsored think tank, was sent last Friday to leaders of the Senate and House Armed Services committees and the two Appropriations' defense subcomittees.

The report and Cheney's renewed opposition to the V-22 program is certain to spark a new round of fighting in Congress to save the Osprey, a program that Cheney tried to kill last year but which Congress kept partially alive.

The V-22, which takes off and lands like a helicopter but flies like a plane, is being developed by Bell Helicopter Textron of Texas, and Boeing Helicopters of Ridley Park, Pa.

The Pentagon had planned to buy 602 Ospreys at a cost of $27 billion. It has invested $2.5 billion in the program and has six aircraft built or under construction.

Cheney decided in his fiscal 1990 budget proposal last year that the Osprey was too expensive and that helicopters could do the same job for less money. He canceled the program but Congress overruled him and approved $255 million for development costs, postponing a final decision on its fate until this year.

Cheney targeted the program for cancellation again in the fiscal 1991 defense budget he sent to Congress earlier this year.

The new IDA study said Osprey's ''speed, range and survivability advantages'' on military missions could make it ''more effective - sometime significantly more and other times only slightly more'' than alternative helicopters.

The report said a 523-helicopter alternative fleet could be built and operate 20 years for $24 billion, while the same amount would pay for only 356 Ospreys.

But, it added, the Osprey's advantages ''could enable even the 356-aircraft fleet to be more effective ... than all of the proposed helicopter alternatives.''

The V-22 would also be of comparable cost to some advanced helicopters if the originally planned production rate of the Osprey was slowed, it added.

Williams, however, disputed the assumptions used by the institute in its study and said from fiscal 1991-97 its ''scaled-down program would cost $3.7 billion more'' than the Navy secretary expects to spend on Marine helicopters.

He also said the V-22s would have less lift capability than helicopters and would cost more over the short term.

''Maybe maintenance costs are cheaper if you buy a Rolls-Royce than if you buy a used car over the life cycle. But the point is, you have to come up with the bucks up front to buy a Rolls-Royce - and that's not the position we're in right now,'' Williams said.

Congress may have other thoughts. Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., obtained a copy of the study last week and said in a statement afterward: ''Once this report is in hand, with these conclusions, it is no longer possible for Cheney to say credibly that the V-22 is more expensive than alternatives.''

HOUSTON (JULY 3) UPI - The private company responsible for the first commercial space launch outside the U.S. government has lost its main financial backer and laid off its employees, company officials said Tuesday.

Managers of Space Services Inc. are keeping the firm running as they try to find new financing, said company president and former astronaut Deke Slayton. "We've run out of immediate cash, so we had no choice but to furlough the majority of our people," said Slayton, one of the seven original Mercury astronauts.

"We've got a lot of opportunities I think we'll be able to convert into something. We don't have a lot of time is the problem. We have a (launch contract) proposal into NASA which we think is a winner. We have to convince them if they pick us that we can get to the end of the road with them."

SSI's financial backing came primarily from Development Ventures Inc., a unit of Houston Industries Inc. But the company decided recently to withdraw funding, Slayton said.

"Unfortunately, DVI-HII has encountered difficulties which preclude their continued support of SSI," said a memo Slayton sent his employees. "Since other investors have not come forward at this time, the company is obligated to furlough its employees and put all activities in a dormant mode." The nine-year-old company has 23 employees in Houston and three in Washington, said spokesman Walt Pennino. Officials of DVI could not be reached for immediate comment.

Slayton said it was imperative new financing be found quickly. "Should an able and willing investor arrive on the scene in the near future, we could pick up without a great loss of momentum," said Slayton's memo. "However, we are in a very perishable marketplace with many decisions and commitments being made now. If we are not in a position to participate shortly, other arrangements will be made and we will be watching from the sidelines.

"I believe our Conestoga and Starfire launch vehicles are the best product in their size range in the world, and someone will be wise enough to carry them forward."

In 1982, SSI accomplished the first commercial launch of a private suborbital rocket from Matagorda Island, Texas. The company last year became the first to launch under the Commercial Space Act with a government contract.

Under the $1 million contract, SSI during the last year used three Starfire rockets to carry into suborbit experiments for the University of Alabama-Huntsville. "We've been on the cutting edge of this business since day one. That's why we're a little frustrated, as you can imagine," Slayton said.

A jury today found a man charged in a New York racial slaying innocent of one murder charge, but jurors split over another murder charge.

The jury convicted 21-year-old John Vento of first-degree UNlawful imprisonment and four counts of menacing.

But the panel found Vento innocent on another count of unlawful imprisonment in the first degree, four counts of discrimination and criminal possession of a weapon.

Vento stood with a smirk on his face as the jury told a state Supreme Court justice it was deadlocked on the first murder charge. Judge Thaddeus Owens declared a mistrial on the intentional murder and riot charges... and said Vento would have to be tried again.

As he spoke, Vento's mother sat with tears running down her cheeks.

Vento had been charged with recruiting the mob of white youths that killed 16-year-old Yusuf Hawkins in the predominantly white Bensonhurst neighborhood last August.

Some of the jurors said they did NOT regard the slaying as racially motivated... but said Vento was ''there to help his friends out.''

A crowd outside court facoring convictions reacted to the verdict by shouting... ''NO justice, NO peace!''

CHICAGO (JULY 3) UPI - Corn and soybean futures rallied Tuesday on forecasts for hot, dry weather in the central part of the nation, but were down from the highs at the final bell.

Soybeans were higher across the board on the Chicago Board of Trade while grain futures were mixed.

Gains in soybeans were tempered by profit-taking following the sharp rally on Monday. Some of the liquidation was positioning ahead of the break for Independence Day. The market will be closed Wednesday.

Trading in corn was choppy. Near-term export business provided a little support, but prices were narrowly mixed at the close.

Taiwan bought a small amount of corn overnight and Mexico and South Korea were in the market for 250,000 tons.

Wheat futures also were mixed as harvest activity kept pressure on the market.

Country movement generally was light.

At the close, corn was off 2 to up 1, soybeans unchanged to up 5, wheat down 3 to up 5 and oats up 3/4 to off 1/2.

PANAMA CITY, Panama - Panama's Attorney General Rogelio Cruz said Tuesday he found 2,777 accusations filed against former military ruler Manuel Antonio Noriega when he took office in January, most of them for alleged human rights abuses.

Cruz told reporters that many more charges against the ousted ruler have been filed since January, bringing the total to 17,053.

Noriega was ousted during the U.S. invasion of Panama Dec. 20 and is currently facing trial in Florida on narcotics trafficking charges.

''Right now, off heart, I can't say how many (different) charges there are there are many,'' Cruz said. ''I think he is charged with 16 crimes, of varying characteristics, violation of human rights, illegal enrichment.''

Cruz said half of the charges are in Panama City and Colon, the rest from other parts of the country.

The judiciary has been accused of taking too long to deal with charges against Noriega and his former associates - members of the now defunct Panamanian Defense Forces and their civilian colleagues.

Cruz said the courts are short staffed and that he has asked for more courtrooms to deal with pending cases.

Cruz said the judiciary is in dire need of more funds. He has requested a change in the Constitution to boost the judiciary's coffers from the current 2 percent of the national budget to 4 percent.

''But regardless of whether or not they change the constitution, it is important to take into account the fact that what we need are more resources,'' Cruz said.

(JULY 3) UPI - The star witness in Marion Barry's cocaine and perjury trial today testified that the Washington, D-C, mayor mixed business with pleasure... promising her a city contract while they were lovers.

Rasheeda Moore says Barry assured her of receiving a government contract for a program she ran for city youth in 1986. But she says he threatened to terminate the contract after she broke off their sexual relationship two years later.

Moore says she and Barry quit being lovers in the summer of 1988 and her program was NOT renewed after that year.

Her testimony today follows published rports that a new grand jury is probing the city's contracting process... and whether Barry ever traded contracts for drugs or sex.

Moore is the woman who lured Barry into a January 18th F-B-I drug sting. Moore has been out of work for the first half of this year... with the government taking care of her. But she denies co-operating with agents so she could receive money.

Nelson Mandela's controversial suggestion of talks between London and the Irish Republican Army was one of the subjects discussed during his meeting today with British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd.

Mandela offered an explanation of his statement earlier today... saying it was one of principle... NOT policy.

He said he did NOT think his call for an end to what he termed ''mutual slaughter'' was a mistake... and he would continue to express opinions in favor of peaceful settlements.

The African National Congress deputy president also reiterated cries to continue pressuring the South African government with economic sanctions.

British Prime Minister Thatcher firmly rejected the idea of negotiating with the I-R-A. Thatcher has also eased sanctions against South Africa.

Mandela had to cancel an afternoon speech at a meeting of the Anti-Apartheid Movement because of exhaustion. His wife, Winnie, stood in for him... urging the crowd to press on with its campaign against Pretoria.

MOSCOW (JULY 3) UPI - Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze promised Tuesday the Soviet Union will not drag out the unification of Germany, proclaiming, ''We will live in a new Europe.''

Shevardnadze defended his five-year foreign policy before more than 4,500 delegates at the 28th Communist Party Congress, warning against any Soviet version of a Joe McCarthy-like witch hunt about who ''lost'' Eastern Europe.

Rather, he said the Soviet Union foresaw developments in the repressed Eastern bloc and allowed liberalization to proceed to prevent ''a tragedy.''

Shevardnadze, 62, went directly to the most burning question of foreign policy: how to contain the military potential of a united Germany.

He said a united Germany would have a vastly smaller army than the current West Germany, which is a key link in the NATO bloc.

''What is better for us: to have against us a 500,000-man Bundeswehr (West German army), or the army of a united Germany which would be half of that?'' he asked rhetorically.

Instead of an adversary, he said a united Gemany would be a partner for the Soviet Union.

''I am sure that the U.S.S.R. will cooperate with the united Germany on a broad scale, and it will be mutually beneficial to both (countries) in politics, the economy and in other fields,'' he said.

''I will say openly and honestly, with full responsibility: it is not our intent to delay further the solution of the foreign aspects of German unity within the framework of the general settlement.''

The foreign aspects of German unity of which Shevaradnadze spoke refers to whether it should be in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

His statement was a direct message to Washington of the sincerity of the Soviet Union's search to find a solution over NATO membership for the reunited state in the heart of Europe.

The Soviets have opposed such NATO inclusion, but have suggested Germany can be a member of NATO and associated with the Warsaw Pact. The idea has been rejected by Washington.

''We will live in a new Europe, in a new military-political environment where a repetition of 1939 (the outbreak of war) will not be possible,'' Shevardnaze declared.

Shevardnadze said that as a Soviet citizen - his brother died on the first day of World War II - he understood the losses the country took at the hands of the Adolf Hitler's German army.

Those loss of 8 million soldiers and more than 12 million other citizens during the war led the Kremlin under Josef Stalin in 1949 to keep Germany divided by creating a puppet East German state, the German Democratic Republic.

And Shevardnadze stressed ''the settlement of the German question is going on with our direct participation and no decision can be taken without the agreement by the U.S.S.R.''

He also promised that any agremment by the four World War II victors and the two Germanys on a reunified Germany will have to be approved by the Supreme Soviet.

Shevardnadze, who in 1985 took over from Andrei Gromyko's three decades at the helm of foreign affairs, explained that almost all states now trust the Kremlin.

He touched on the new openings - to China, the new relationship with the United States, the withdrawal from Afghanistan, and Eastern Europe.

He said the leadership had a ''pretty good idea'' of what liberalization would mean to the Communist-led Eastern bloc countries.

''We felt that unless serious changes happened, there could be a tragedy.''

Shevardnadze has repeatedly harped on Eastern Europe in recent interviews and has used the image of a witch hunt over who lost Eastern Europe, including reference to Sen. Joseph McCarthy, who persecuted State Department officials after China became a Communist state in 1949 under Mao Tse-tung.

(JULY 3) UPI - President Bush today wrapped up two days of talks with top advisors in Kennebunkport, Maine, in preparation for upcoming summits in London and Houston.

Bush says NATO members support his plan for restructuring the Western military alliance... but he refuses to discuss specifics.

He says he'll introduce a shift in nuclear defense policy when he meets with U-S allies at the NATO summit Thursday and Friday in London. That proposal reportedly calls for making NATO's nuclear weapons a ''last resort'' system.

The Houston summit beginning next week will focus on economics.

The president says he expects NO surprises at the allied talks that kick off a review of NATO's conventional and nuclear strategy in light of the dramatic changes in Eastern Europe.

Bush says he believes he's in good shape heading into the talks and predicts they'll go well.

BOSTON (JULY 3) UPI - Relatively few older American women are regularly screened for breast cancer, which may help explain why the death rate for the disease has not declined over the past 30 years, a government study said Tuesday.

The report said surveys involving more than 7,000 women ages 50 to 74 found only between 25 percent and 41 percent had undergone a mammogram screening in the year before they were queried.

The number who had been examined by a doctor for signs of breast cancer was higher, ranging from 46 percent to 76 percent, but still below the 80 percent goal set by the National Cancer Insitute for women ages 50 to 70, said Dr. Russell Harris of the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill.

Breast cancer is the most common form of cancer among women and the second leading cause of cancer deaths among women, striking one out of 10 in the United States. This year, it is estimated that 150,000 American women will be diagnosed with the disease and 44,000 will die from it.

Mammography is an X-ray of breast tissue that often can detect the presence of a cancerous lump at a very early stage, before it can be felt. The American Cancer Society recommends that women ages 40 to 49 have a mammogram once every one or two years, especially if they have a family history of breast cancer, and women over 50 receive one annually.

Harris, who headed a committee that wrote the report for the cancer institute's breast cancer screening consortium, said surveys show ''there is still a large gap between current breast cancer screening practice and the needs of women. The gap is particularly large for less educated and poor women.''

To increase breast cancer screening, ''physicians and those making health policy need a better understanding of which women are not screened for breast cancer'' and why they are not, said the study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The new study compared the results of surveys the cancer institute consortium conducted in six geographic areas with nationwide data the National Center for Health Statistics collected in 1987. It focused on non-Hispanic white women aged 50 to 74 who did not have breast cancer.

Those surveyed were women in suburban Los Angeles, eastern Massachusetts, eastern North Carolina, Long Island, N.Y., Philadelphia and the state of Washington, plus 697 women from the national study. In addition to their breast cancer screening experiences, they were asked about their sources of health care and their income and education levels.

Researchers found women in Washington had the highest mammography screening rate at 41 percent, while the lowest was 25 percent among those in the nationwide survey. Next lowest was Long Island at 26 percent.

Women in North Carolina had the highest rate of regular breast examinations by a doctor at 76 percent, while those in Long Island had the lowest rate at 46 percent.

Although women with more than a high school education and an income above $15,000 a year were somewhat more likely than others to receive mammograms and breast examinations, the study said the screening rates were ''low for all socio-demographic groups.'' It said no subgroup in any area met the NCI goal of a 80 percent screening rate.

The study said the reason the women most often gave for not having had a mammogram was that they forgot about it or they did not think breast cancer was a problem for them. The second most common answer was that their doctors had not recommended a mammogram. Few women cited cost or fear of radiation as a reason for not getting one, the report said.

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA (JULY 3) UPI - Columbia's second-highest government official and his wife were recovering Tuesday from wounds suffered when the firearm of a bodyguard accidentally fired.

Minister of Government Horacio Serpa and his wife, Rosa, were wounded Monday night when a guard dropped a gun while closing the door of Serpa's armored car. The gun discharged and a bullet struck Serpa in the right leg and his wife in the left arm.

''The bodyguard's gun went off and wounded me and my wife,'' Serpa told a Bogota radio station.

Officials at the Caja Nacional de Prevision hospital said both were in good condition Tuesday. The bullet broke Serpa's right leg and then struck his wife, slightly wounding her, the hospital said.

Serpa holds the No. 2 post behind President Virgilio Barco. He replaces Barco as president when Barco travels outside of Colombia.

The incident took place at a Bogota military airport after Serpa had returned from accompanying Barco on a trip to northern Colombia.

Serpa said he would return to work ''immediately. I am thinking of leaving the hospital very soon to attend to work at the office.''

Meanwhile, three police officers were slain Monday in Medellin, the violent cocaine capital 160 miles northwest of Bogota.

More than 160 officers have been killed this year in the city where the Medellin cartel of cocaine traffickers offers a reward for each officer killed.

The murders took place as the police and army undertook a series of raids in Medellin. Police said nine young hitmen, one 16 years old, were arrested.

Those detained were accused of murdering police officers, planting a car bomb and other crimes, the National Police said.

Officials also defended the army Tuesday from charges it had engaged in indiscriminate bombing that killed peasant farmers during attacks on guerrilla encampments.

The army bombed encampments over the weekend and Monday of the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia in the northern state of Cesar. But members of congress and other local leaders claimed the army engaged in indiscriminate bombing that killed five rural workers and forced residents to flee to safety.

Serpa, from his hospital bed, said he had received information on the bombings and that the accusations ''lack credibility.''

ROCHESTER, NY (JULY 3) UPI - Eastman Kodak Co. Tuesday said it would offer a new, recyclable 35mm single-use camera with a built-in flash beginning October.

The camera, known as the Kodak Fun Saver 35 camera, is designed for both indoor and outdoor use and would cost less than $16, Kodak indicated.

The company said the camera comes pre-loaded with a 24-exposure roll of Kodacolor Gold 400 print film.

Indoors and in dimly lit areas, users must press and hold the the flash activation switch on the front of the camera. The electronic flash, powered by a Kodak alkaline battery, has a range of four to 10 feet and recharges in about six seconds, the company said.

When the 24 frames are exposed, users may return the entire camera to a photofinisher who removes and processes the film and sends the camera back to Kodak for recycling.

Kodak said the camera's components - including the plastic frame, flash unit, lens, and battery - are all recyclable. Kodak pays labs five cents for each camera returned and reimburses for shipping.

''This is an ideal first camera for youngsters or a spare camera for adults. It also should be very popular at family gatherings and parties,'' said Peter Palermo, Kodak vice-president and general manager of its consumer imaging division.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - US Sprint and MCI Communications Corp. Tuesday asked the Federal Communications Commission to continue regulating American Telephone and Telegraph Co., which they charged with dominating the telecommunications market.

For its part, AT&T told the FCC that because the long-distance market is ''vigorously competitive,'' it is time for the same rules to apply to all long-distance companies.

New York-based AT&T said in a release that the current federal restrictions on its business only serve to stifle competition and deprive customers of the lower prices and service benefits of a free market.

AT&T had enjoyed a monopoly of the telecommunications business until its breakup in 1984, but the company said its market share has now fallen to 65 percent.

The telecommunications giant is subject to anti-monopoly FCC regulations. The FCC proposed in March to deregulate some segments of AT&T's business and asked for comments from the other telecommunications companies, which were presented Tuesday.

Dan Kelly, director of regulatory affairs for MCI, with headquarters in Washington, said MCI made a filing with the FCC asking the commission for some ''constructive changes'' to make the market more competitive.

According to Kelly, MCI wants the FCC to solve problems in three areas - equal access, 800 business, and operator and calling card markets - giving MCI and other telecommunications companies a ''fair shot'' at AT&T's customers.

MCI also asked the FCC to enforce some basic minimum regulatory requirements such as general availability of tariffs, resale and unbundling of products.

''If the changes are made, AT&T can be further deregulated,'' Kelly said, noting that MCI wants a more competitive market.

US Sprint also stressed the need for continued FCC tariff review to enforce resale requirements, ensure equal interconnections and geographical averaging of rates and non-discriminatory practices.

US Sprint, a unit of United Telecommunications Inc. headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., charged ''the commission confuses the scratching and clawing for customers by US Sprint, MCI and others with a market in which no competitor has market power.''

''By any measure, AT&T's market share is more than double the industry-wide level considered by the Department of Justice to indicate a 'highly concentrated' market,'' US Sprint said.

US Sprint challenged the FCC's analysis that the ''sufficient excess capacity'' of installed fiber-optic cable in the United States has created a more competitive long-distance market.

Just to bring the US Sprint fiber-optic network up to ''full capacity'' or to a completely operational state would require $9 billion, more than the value of the present network, and several years to accomplish, US Sprint's filing said.

For these reasons, ''the commission's belief that AT&T lacks market power is totally unsupported and cannot be squared with the reality of the marketplace,'' US Sprint said.

US Sprint agreed, however, with the FCC's ''tentative conclusion'' favoring continued regulation of 800, international, operator service and services geared toward residential and small business subscribers where AT&T retains significant advantages.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (JULY 3) UPI - At least 150 Albanians, including one ''badly wounded'' by police gunfire, were taking refuge Tuesday in foreign embassies in Albania's capital of Tirana after clashes with security forces, diplomatic and official sources said.

One diplomatic source in Belgrade said at least 200 Albanians took refuge in various foreign missions and that ''many people'' were arrested during street battles between police and security forces Monday night.

The Albanian news agency ATA reported altercations occurred with injuries ''on both sides'' following anti-government demonstrations staged by

''hooligans'' and criminals.

ATA said a group of ''vagabonds, former prisoners ... as well as some deceived adolescents'' tried to force their way into an unnamed embassy in the capital and that police had made arrests. Up to 400 people gathered to support the ''hooligans,'' blocking traffic and smashing windows, and some were injured as police took steps to disperse demonstrators, ATA said.

ATA said the incident ''disturbed the public order'' and ''revolted the entire working poeple.'' It said the demonstrators intended to ''impair good relations'' with friendly states and to ''distort the image of Albania in the world.''

Diplomatic sources said 150 to 200 Albanians were taking refuge in at least 10 foreign embassies Tuesday. Some Albanians who sought refuge in the Chinese Embassy were reportedly turned over to Albanian officials.

A diplomat, speaking on condition of no further identification, said he had no reports of violence Tuesday and was unable to say what provoked disturbances that apparently began over the weekend in the capital of the isolationist Marxist state bordering Greece and Yugoslavia.

The area around the embassies was virtually under siege by security forces the German news agency DPA reported. It said at least 50 Albanian security officials surrounded the West German Embassy and another 100 stood outside the nearby Turkish Embassy.

In Bonn, West Germany, Foreign Ministry spokesman Hanns Schumacher said police Monday night shot at four people who were climbing over a wall leading to the West German Embassy compound and one of them was treated for a leg injury at the embassy.

Schumacher said the Albanians in refuge included 84 at the West German Embassy and 60 to 80 at the French, Greek and Italian missions. The diplomatic source requesting anonymity said some Albanians had also taken refuge in the embassies of Algeria, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Schumacher said the West German Ministry in Bonn called in Albanian Ambassador Shpetim Caushi to protest ''in the sharpest manner.''

''The situation is grave,'' he said. ''It affects German-Albanian relations.''

The West German government has demanded that the refugees be given free passage out of the country.

''No one will be sent out of the embassy against his free will,'' he said.

In April and May, several Albanian nationals were allowed to travel to Greece after seeking political asylum at the Greek Embassy in Tirana. But on at least two occasions, security forces were accused of illegally entering the embassy grounds and forcibly removing Albanians seeking refuge there.

Observers expect Western protests could embarrass hard-line Albanian authorities, the last bastion of orthodox communists in Europe. Communist leader Ramiz Alia has vowed Albania will never abandon communism, although in May his government introduced reforms including the right to travel abroad.

Schumacher said after refugees had climbed over the wall at the West German Embassy Monday, a group later crashed a truck into the main gate to gain access to the embassy. Other reports indicate the gate of the Italian Embassy compound was opened in the same manner.

BASKING RIDGE, N.J. (JULY 3) UPI - American Telephone & Telegraph Co. announced Tuesday it will buy selected assets from financially troubled Western Union Corp. for approximately $180 million.

The acquisition is subject to regulatory approval and to Western Union, based in Upper Saddle River, N.J., successfully restructuring its debt.

Under the pact, AT&T will acquire Western Union's ''EasyLink'' electronic mail service as well as its Telex and packet-switched services. AT&T said it will take on 1,160 Western Union employees under a transfer agreement as well as the customer base using the acquired services.

AT&T said the acquisition, expected to be completed Sept. 30, is the latest in a series of moves taken over the past year to enhance its position in global messaging.

STRASBOURG, FRANCE (JULY 3) UPI - Some 150 parliamentarians belonging to ecologist parties from Eastern and Western Europe began a three-day meeting Tuesday to try to forge a common policy on environmental issues facing the continent, organizers said.

The largest of the delegations meeting at a room at the European Parliament building at Strasbourg consisted of 21 members from the Soviet Union and the Baltic states. The best known among the Soviet team is Nicolaivitch Sherbak, a member of the Supreme Soviet who has written a book about the Chernobyl nuclear disaster.

Observers said there was confusion on the first day of the session over its agenda and aims. It is the first such ''Green Parliament'' meeting to group ecologist parliamentarians from across the whole continent.

Parliamentarians came from every European country except Albania. Western European delegates seemed most concerned at promoting a federalist approach to environmental issues and opposing bureaucratic centralization by government and European Parliament agencies.

The Soviet and Eastern European delegates seemed more concerned with specific threats to the environment, using frequently in discussion slogans such ''our rivers are sewers'' or ''our children are breathing poisoned air all the time.''

#90184u2367 07/03/1990 ~United Press International
KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (JULY 3) UPI - President Bush concluded formal summit preparations Tuesday, reporting that NATO members support his approach to revamping the alliance and that he would discuss with them a shift in nuclear defense policy.

At the conclusion of a second day of review sessions with top aides in advance of the NATO summit in London Thursday and Friday, and the Houston Economic summit next week, Bush told reporters he would be raising a proposal that NATO's nuclear weapons become an arms system of ''last resort.''

''I think we are in good shape for that meeting, for those meetings. ... It will go well,'' he added.

Bush's national security adviser Brent Scowcroft confirmed later that Bush had sent a letter to his allies outlining a variety of proposals to reshape NATO, and that all of the alliance's current policies would come under review in light of the vastly changed circumstances in Europe.

''NATO strategy has to reflect the change in the alliance,'' Scowcroft said. ''One has to look at the issues of forward defense (deployment of NATO troops near the front lines), flexible response (a quick Western nuclear strike in the event of a Soviet invasion) - all the kinds of strategies that NATO pursues now to see how they might be modified to fit these new circumstances.''

Tuesday's session on his Walker's Point summer compound focused on the July 9-11 gathering of the major industrialized democracies in Houston and Bush said that much of it centered on the need to conclude trade talks by the end of the year.

''It means we've got to get moving on the question of agriculture,'' Bush said of the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade talks aimed at opening foreign markets to U.S. products and eliminiating foreign subsidies of agricultural products.

Bush reiterated that he expected ''no surprises'' at the allied conferences and again predicted the NATO allies meeting for a third time in a year would support the U.S. approach to the future role for the 16-nation alliance. The summit is to kick off a review of the alliance's conventional and nuclear strategy in light of the collapse of the communist bloc and new military and political realities in Europe.

''I think that the general approach that we're proposing seems to be getting wide acceptance,'' Bush said after disclosing he had just spoken by telephone to the prime ministers of Belgium and Denmark.

But he again refused to discuss specifics of the U.S. plan, saying he would confer first with his colleagues.

In response to a question of what he had heard back from the allies on the idea to shift NATO nuclear policy, however, Bush said, ''I'm ready to discuss that with them.''

The change would declare atomic weapons are only a last resort, not part of a doctrine of ''flexible response'' that has controlled U.S. military policy toward a conflict in Europe.

Scowcroft said the White House had heard from ''five or six'' allies on the president's plan, and that ''the reaction we have so far received, which is open and informal, is one of considerable receptivity to his proposals.''

At the close of the morning session, Bush turned his full attention back to recreation, trundling the aides and others on board his speedboat Fidelity before he planned to watch fireworks in the evening to mark the Fourth of July holiday. Because the president is leaving for London Wednesday evening, the town moved the annual celebration up by a day.

On Monday, Bush acknowledged that some questions remain on charting a new course for NATO, but added, ''I'm encouraged because I think we have a good position here. What I expect is ... a document that is unanimously agreed to that will set the course for the future.''

The U.S. proposals were capped by the shift in longstanding defense doctrine to make nuclear arms ''weapons of last resort'' in Western Europe plans to withdraw nuclear-tipped artillery and shift troops from the front lines, and to consider giving East European and Soviet officials diplomatic accreditation to NATO.

The ideas, outlined in the personal letter to the allies for consideration at the summit, was crafted to reassure Moscow about NATO's intentions as East and West Germany move toward reunification, a point made by both Bush and Scowcroft.

''We want to be sure that everybody understands that NATO is the stabilizing factor that we think it should be and will be,'' Bush said.

Scowcroft added that the United States would be ''trying several'' ways to make that clear to Moscow ''in terms of alterations in the strategy or others kinds of declarations'' but that nothing has been presented to the Soviets so far.

''The Soviets will be looking at the summit very carefully,'' he said.

With the Warsaw Pact collapsing and Soviet forces withdrawing from Eastern Europe, Bush has maintained the need to keep a major nuclear deterrent in Europe but acknowledged the rapidly changing political equation by canceling a successor for the Lance missile and building new artillery shells.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - Farmers spent $124.1 billion for all the goods and labor needed to produce crops and livestock last year, an increase of 4.9 percent from the preceding year, the government said Tuesday.

Average spending was $57,478 per farm, an increase of $2,522 from 1988's average of $54,956.

The Agriculture Department has forecast agricultural expenditures of $119 billion to $121 billion this year, based on the assumption that lower feed costs would offset larger expenses that accompany a modest expansion in crop acreage.

Spending during 1989 was slightly larger than department economists had projected last fall.

''Expenditures were higher (than 1988) for all major categories except farm and land improvements, which decreased 6.3 percent, and fuel, which declined slightly,'' the department said in a preliminary summary on farm production expenditures.

Large farms, defined as those with sales of more than $100,000, accounted for 70 percent of the spending.

The largest single area for expenditures was farm services, which includes rent, insurance, utilities and crop services. Farmers spent $26.7 billion on farm services, an increase of 7.8 percent, or $2.1 billion, from 1988.

The two other largest categories for spending were expenditures for buying livestock - $14 billion, up 3 percent - and feed, which cost $18 billion, an increase of 1.7 percent.

The largest percentage increase was for agricultural chemicals and sprays, up 15 percent for a 1989 total of $4.55 billion. Farm machinery costs were up 10.6 percent for a total of $12.87 billion and labor costs were up 9.8 percent for a total of $11.3 billion.

Expenditures were the highest in the Corn Belt at $25 billion, followed by the Pacific states with $17.6 billion, the Northern Plains with $15.9 billion and the Lake States with $13.6 billion.

The Agriculture Department defines the Corn Belt as Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri and Ohio; the Pacific states as California, Oregon and Washington state; the Northern Plains as Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota; and the Lake States as Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - The U.S. Export-Import Bank Tuesday said it has authorized three guarantees that will enable American companies to export $67 million in goods and services to Venezuela, Chile and Brazil.

Harza Engineering Co. of Chicago will supply engineering services and construction equipment totaling $26.7 million for the Hueque-Barrancas water project in Venezuela.

Financing includes an Eximbank-guaranteed $22.7 million loan from Northern Trust Co. of Chicago and a $4 million cash payment from the Venezuelan Ministry for Environment and Natural Resources.

Eximbank will guarantee a credit facility to support the export of U.S. capital goods and services totaling $23.5 million to Corporacion Nacional del Cobre de Chile.

Codelco, a government-owned copper producer, will use the credit facility to acquire new waste removal equipment and replace obsolete equipment at its four mines.

Financing will consist of an Eximbank-guaranteed, $20 million loan from Bank of America of San Francisco and a $3.5 million cash payment from Codelco.

An Eximbank political risk guarantee will enable Rockwell Graphics Systems Inc., of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to export $16.8 million in printing equipment to the Brazilian newspaper O Globo.

Eximbank said it will provide a political risk guarantee for Citicorp Export Credit Corp. of New York's $14.3 million loan. O Globo Empresa Jornalistica Brasileira Ltda. will make a $2.5 million cash payment.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - Setting aside claims of equipment design flaws and airline training inadequacy, a federal agency Tuesday found that pilot error was the sole cause of the 1989 crash of a USAir jetliner in New York.

The National Transportation Safety Board approved a report stating that the Sept. 20, 1989, USAir Flight 5050 accident that resulted in the death of two passengers was preventable. The ''probable cause'' report blamed the accident on Capt. Michael Martin's indecision on whether or not to abort takoff and his failure to discover that a rudder on the airplane was improperly positioned.

The Airline Pilots Association, however, accused the NTSB of seeking a scapegoat in the accident while ignoring other responsible parties and said it would file a petition with the board challenging the report.

USAir Flight 505, bound to Charlotte, N.C., ran off a rain-slicked runway at LaGuardia Airport in Flushing, N.Y., and into the East River during an aborted takeoff in light rain and fog. The fuselage of the Boeing 737-400 was ripped into three pieces, with its nose wedged atop a trestle jutting out of the river.

The FAA has suspended Martin's license as a captain. Martin is currently employed as a first officer for USAir.

(JULY 3) UPI - The new united Germany will have a fighting force of NO more than 400-thousand soldiers. That's more than a quarter-Million less than the number of troops currently serving in the East and West German armies. Senior government sources say today's decision may help ease Soviet concerns on German unification. They say the proposal is likely to be presented at this week's NATO summit in London.

At a news conference in St. Louis today, a tearful Missouri woman told how she had to leave the state to have an abortion. Her comments came on the first anniversary of new Supreme Court ruling that limits on abortion. Maralee Dinsdale learned that her fetus would NOT be able to live more than a few days after birth. Because the Supreme Court last year upheld a Missouri law banning abortions in state-funded hospitals... Dinsdale says she had to go to a strange doctor in Kansas.

Louisiana Governor Buddy Roemer today said he has received a telegram from Nobel laureate Mother Teresa urging him to sign a bill outlawing all abortions unless a woman's life is threatened by pregnancy. The telegram said ''every child is from God...'' and said Mother Teresa would take UNwanted children. Roemer called the telegram ''powerful...'' but said he still means to veto the bill because it does NOT contain exceptions for rape and incest.

A Coast Guard investigative hearing today in Norfolk, Virginia, revealed that a sudden squall reduced visibility to near zero resulting in Sunday's collision of two cargo ships. The captain of one ship says he tried to avoid the crash, but it was too late. The accident caused a 30-thousand-gallon oil spill in the Chesapeake Bay.

A government study released today offers an explanation for why the death rate among older women with breast cancer has NOT declined over the past 30 years. The study says relatively few older American women are regularly screened for breast cancer. It says the number is only about half of the 80-percent goal set by the National Cancer Institute.

NEW YORK (JULY 3) UPI - The dollar mostly pursued its downward path Tuesday in New York trading, as investors vouched their confidence in German mark stability and British pound adhesion to the European monetary grid.

Currency traders said the dollar plunged against the deutsche mark in morning trading, when Europe and New York were both open for business, but fought its way back after the close of the European session.

Trading became thin as investors squared positions for the July 4 holiday and looked to crucial U.S. jobs data at week's end. Higher unemployment could lead the Federal Reserve to lower U.S. interest rates.

"The dollar is sort of moving up toward the close, but it hasn't been a very good performance overall on the day," said Michael Guarino, chief dealer for the Algemene Bank Nederland.

"The dollar seems to be coming under a little pressure all around," Guarino said, seeing further dollar slippage ahead.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 1.6495 West German marks, off slightly from 1.65 Monday but up from its session low of 1.6450 and at 151.00 Japanese yen, ahead from 150.75.

Corporate trader Alexis Egan of Banque Indosuez said players sold dollars for deutsche marks, indicating confidence in German union.

"A lot of people think monetary union, at least until we see some cold, hard figures, can only benefit Germany," she said. Even if there are setbacks, she added, mark-holders could benefit as German interest-rates rise.

Britain's pound rose as a West German bank official hinted the unit soon will enter the European Monetary System's exchange-rate mechanism.

Other dollar rates: 1.3930 Swiss francs, down from 1.3950; 5.5375 French francs, off from 5.54; and 1,210.50 Italian lire, down from 1,211.60. The British pound ticked up to $1.7760 from $1.7740.

In Europe, the dollar closed mixed against the key currencies in dull trading with the focus on the pound sterling, analysts said.

They said dealers held back on the dollar ahead of the July 4 holiday in the States, and Friday's U.S. unemployment figures. Speculation that U.S. interest rates will decline further unsettled the dollar.

In London, the pound gained again, finishing at $1.7780 against $1.7630 after Karl Otto Poehl, the Bundesbank's president, hinted in a London speech that Britain soon will fully join the European Monetary System.

In Frankfurt, the dollar closed lower at 1.6550 deutsche marks compared with 1.6560 the previous session.

Analyst Jeremy Hawkins of the Bank of America said the initial euphoria over German monetary union has subsided. "People were standing back today " he said. "They want to see what happens in the long term."

The U.S. currency also was lower in Zurich at 1.3960 Swiss francs compared to 1.4027 at the end of trading Monday.

The U.S. unit moved higher in Paris, to 5.5585 francs against 5.5570, but was lower in Milan at 1,216.50 lire against 1,217. It also fell in Brussels to 33.98 Belgian francs against 34.03 the day before.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar halted its slide to finish at 151.68 yen, 0.28 yen higher than the previous close of 151.40 yen.

The rise was due in part to dealers stocking up ahead of the July 4 holiday in the U.S. "Most of today's buying was just short cover," said dealer Yasuhisa Morikuni of the Bank of America.

In Zurich, gold rose to $362 an ounce, compared with $357.50. It also rose in London, to $361.50 an ounce against $357.50.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $361.50 an ounce, up from $358.40 Monday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold at $362.10 an ounce, up from $358.80 the day before.

Silver closed unchanged in Zurich at $4.95 an ounce, but was higher in London at $4.97 an ounce compared with $4.95 Monday.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.94 an ounce, off from $4.96. Comex silver settled at $4.919 an ounce, down from $4.935.

DETROIT (JULY 3) UPI - The Stroh Brewery Co. said Tuesday it completed sale of its Memphis, Tenn., brewery to Coors Brewing Co. of Golden, Colo.

The purchase price was not disclosed.

Under the deal, Stroh will continue to operate the facility through August with Coors assuming responsibility Sept. 1.

Coors said it planned to begin packaging Coors products at the Memphis plant next spring.

''It's a quality operation and it will enable us to strategically expand our operations and keep up with growing consumer demand for Coors products '' Coors Brewing President Peter Coors said in Golden.

The Memphis plant will become Coors' first brewery outside Colorado.

''This transfer will permit us to efficiently consolidate our production into our remaining five breweries,'' said Peter W. Stroh, chairman and chief executive officer of The Stroh Brewery Co. ''We are delighted that the operation and the long-term employment opportunities at the Memphis facility will continue. We feel this will create a most beneficial outcome for our employees both in Memphis and nationally.''

Coors Brewing is a business unit of Adolph Coors Co. Coors currently has three other operations in Tennessee: Graphic Packaging Corp., a Coors subsidiary, owns a packaging plant in Lawrenceburg; and Coors Ceramics Co. has operations in Chattanooga and Oak Ridge.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - The Air Force awarded three contracts totaling more than $1.1 billion Tuesday covering the operation and maintenance of its research center at Arnold Air Force Base, Tenn.

The largest of the three was for $540 million, awarded to SSI Services Inc., Tullahoma, Tenn., for mission support services at the base's development center, the world's largest complex of wind tunnels, jet and rocket engine test cells, space simulation chambers and ballistic ranges.

A contract for $300 million was awarded to Sverdrup Technology Inc., of St. Louis, for the operation and maintenance of propulsion test facilities at the center.

The third, for $276.5 million, went to Calspan Corp., Buffalo, N.Y., for the operation and maintenance of the center's aerospace dynamics test facilities.

Work on the largest contract is expected to be completed in September while the other two contracts are for a five-year period, ending in 1995.

LOS ANGELES (JULY 3) UPI - The former president of a defense contracting company was sentenced Tuesday to three years in prison for orchestrating a scheme to defraud the military by falsifying test results on bolts used to hold together aircraft engines.

U.S. District Judge A. Wallace Tashima, in sentencing Norman McHaffie, 56, of Slymar, also fined him $750,000 and imposed an additional fine of the same amount on McHaffie's now-defunct company, McHaffie Inc.

Tashima said the fraud ''weakened the national defense.''

The judge said the success of the nation's military ''depends in the end on the defense contracting and sub-contracting industry. All in all, it's a very egregious case and motivated primarily by greed.''

The case stemmed from the ''longest-operating fraud by a defense contractor ever uncovered,'' Assistant U.S. Attorney Stephen Mansfield said.

McHaffie had admitted wrongdoing and pleaded guilty in April to conspiring to defraud the United States. He also pleaded guilty to two counts of making false statements in regards to falsified tests.

A former quality control supervisor at the firm, James Hicks, 45, of Sepulveda, also had pleaded guilty and was sentenced Tuesday to 1 1/2 years in prison for his role in the fraud.

Last month, Tashima sentenced William Whitham, 37, of Lancaster, a McHaffie production manager, to 20 weekends in jail for his admitted participation in falsifying test results.

The $18.2-million fraud scheme, which began in 1979, resulted in the sale of roughly nine million bolts - some of which were defective - that failed tests, or on which test results were falsified, to the Air Force, Navy and Department of Defense, prosecutors said.

McHaffie bolts were manufactured for use in the Air Force's B-1B Bomber, the F-16 ''Fighting Falcon'' fighter jet, and the Navy and Marine Corps' F-18 ''Hornet'' jet.

The components were also used in the Navy F-14 fighter, and the A-7 Corsair II, used by the Navy and Air Force. Seventy-five percent of the firm's contracts were with the military, but the bolts were also used in commercial airliners, Mansfield said.

Although thousands of McHaffie bolts were installed in the war planes, none were known to have led to engine trouble.

The case was part of a larger effort by the Justice Department to crack down on companies that peddle substandard or poorly tested aircraft components.

''Hopefully this (sentence) will send a message out to the defense contracting community that this type of fraud will not be tolerated,'' Mansfield said out of court.

McHaffie saved $2.7 million by not testing the bolts, Mansfield said.

Shortly after the fraud was uncovered in April 1989, McHaffie, Hicks and Whitham destroyed ''a massive'' amount of documents related to their illegal activities.

''This is not a case where a man with an otherwise exemplary life had a momentary lapse and made an error in judgement on one occassion,'' a prosecution memo said.

''Rather, McHaffie built a profitable business on fraud, deceit and trickery. In the process, over 10 years, he became a multimillionaire,'' prosecutors said.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - An avowed ''safe food coalition'' asked the National Academy of Sciences Tuesday to withhold action on its review of a meat inspection program until the government agrees to share details with the public.

The Government Accountability Project, a public interest group, said it was filing suit under the Freedom of Information Act to force the Agriculture Department to release its documents defending the so-called streamlined inspection system.

Agriculture Department officials hired the academy to evaulate the plan after it ran into a storm of opposition last year. The academy's report was expected to be released this summer. The coalition said it wanted to see the documents the department has given to the academy.

''Public health policy should not be made on the basis of secret reports '' the coalition of 10 groups said in a letter to Robert Kahr, the leader of the panel of experts selected to review the plan. ''All consumers have a right to know the government's basis for vouching that food is safe.''

The coalition said it had tried, without success, since February to obtain access to Agriculture Department documents regarding performance of the streamlined system in tests in packing plants. It accused the department of ''stalling and deception.'' The department has said it would be a breach of confidentiality to release the material.

Under the streamlined system, the government would merge two of its inspection stations at large packing plants into one station and would make the plant responsible for removal of dressing defects, such as hair,

The Food Safety and Inspection Service says the plan would eliminate unneeded inspections and allow federal inspectors to look for ''disease conditions with public health significance.'' Consumer groups contend the system means less time for inspectors to spot defects and an over-reliance on the industry to assure food safety.

The letter was signed by the Government Accountability Project, Consumers Union, the National Consumers League, Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, the Center for Science in the Public Interest, the Consumer Federation of America, Public Citizen's Congress Watch, the American Federation of Government Employees, the AFL-CIO Food and Allied Service Trades and the United Food and Commercial Workers Union. Carol Tucker Foreman, a former assistant agriculture secretary, also signed the letter.

TEHRAN, IRAN (JULY 3) UPI - Relatives tossed flowers into the Strait of Hormuz Tuesday, marking the second anniversary of the shooting down of an Iranian airliner by a U.S. warship over the Persian Gulf, Tehran radio said.

In a report from Bandar Abbas, in the Strait of Hormuz, the radio said ceremonies were held on board several vessels which sailed to a point 5 miles south of Hengam Island in the Gulf where the plane was shot down.

All 290 people aboard the Iran Air A-300 Airbus were killed July 3, 1988 when the USS Vincennes - patrolling the strait at the height of the eight-year Iran-Iraq war - fired missiles at the passenger plane, mistaking it for a military aircraft.

Tehran radio said families of the victims and officials threw 290 bouquets of flowers into the Gulf waters, one for each of the victims, of whom 250 were Iranians.

In 1988, a U.S. naval inquiry said the shooting down was accidental, and that the ship's crew mistook the passenger plane for a military aircraft shortly after it took off from Bandar Abbas en route to Dubai in the United Arab Emirates.

The inquiry found the confusion was caused by new electronic instruments on board the cruiser. The Airbus disintegrated in midair after an explosion when one of the missiles struck it. Some of the bodies were never found.

In the ceremonies in the Gulf Tuesday the Iranian national anthem was played, followed by chants of ''Death to America,'' the radio said.

In 1988 the United States said it would pay compensation to the families of the victims, ranging from $100,000 to $250,000, but that the money would not be paid through the government in Tehran.

Members of some families who assembled in Tehran for memorial ceremonies Monday said they had received no damages so far, nor were they able to get visas to travel to countries outside Iran to make enquiries from U.S. embassies.

The United States has not had an embassy in Tehran since the 1979-81 hostage crisis, when radicals seized the U.S. Embassy and took the staff hostage.

In May last year Iran filed a lawsuit against the United States in the International Court at the Hague.

Tuesday, 12 relatives of an Iranian couple killed in the incident file a suit in a U.S. district court in Los Angeles against General Dynamics Inc. and the federal government seeking at least $100 million in damages.

The wrongful death suit sought compensation for pain, suffering, lost earnings, punitive damages and the loss of Ali Mohammad Malek Sabet and his wife, Maryam Salmaki.

The suit alleges that St. Louis-based General Dynamics is liable because it designed, manufactured and distributed defective radar equipment used on the Navy ship that shot the plane down and that the government was negligent in shooting the aircraft down.

(JULY 3) UPI - A combination of a continuing wildcat strike by Norwegian oil workers and the early departure of U.S. oil traders for the Fourth of July holiday helped keep crude oil prices firm Tuesday.

News of an explosion at the Crown Central Petroleum Corp. refinery along the Houston Ship Channel apparently hit the market too late to have any effect.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for August delivery ended the day on the New York Mercantile Exchange up 8 cents to $16.80 a barrel. Trading volume was a very light 50,215 contracts.

''The volume was so light because not many of the players were there, having left early for the July 4th holiday,'' said Bill Hinton of Stotler & Co. in New York.

''It was a lackluster day, really boring,'' Hinton said.

The continuing wildcat strike of Norwegian oil workers ''was the reason for the market's firmness early on,'' the analyst said. ''The market waited for news and none came.''

Many traders also felt the strike would be settled by Thursday when the Merc reopens after the one-day holiday, Hinton said.

Chaos reigned, however, in Norway's North Sea oil and natural gas fields as wildcat strikes by oil workers blocked most of production for the third day.

Many members of the oil workers' OFS collective union protested against a government decision Monday to use emergency legislation to settle a bitter pay dispute and defied an order by union leaders to end the strike, called midnight Saturday.

The 4,000-member union dominates three of Norway's four main oil-producing fields in the North Sea - Ekofisk, Gullfaks and Statfjord. Workers at the fourth major field, Oseberg, primarily belong to another union.

In Pasadena, Texas, an eyewitness said the fire at the Crown Central refinery was massive. ''I saw this big flame come up, burning about three or four stories tall,'' said Al Stevens. No injuries were reported.

''News of the refinery fire at Crown Central came after the Merc closed (at 3:10 p.m. EDT) and had no affect on the market,'' Hinton said.

Unleaded gasoline for August delivery fell 0.59 cent on the day to 56.09 cents a gallon in trading on the Merc.

On the cash markets, prompt delivery unleaded dropped 0.8 cent to 57.25 cents a gallon on the U.S. Gulf Coast and fell 0.60 cent to 62.6 cents a gallon on the New York Harbor.

On the European spot market, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent added 12 cents to $16.22 a barrel.

United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - gained 20 cents to $13.67 a barrel.

On the Merc, heating oil finished the day at 48.46 cents a gallon, down 0.10 cent.

The authoritative Middle East Economic Survey also reported that Iraq has stepped up pressure to cut output of the 13-nation OPEC cartel because it is suffering losses of billions of dollars from falling oil prices.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries pumps more than a third of the world's crude oil and tries to support world prices by limiting its output.

Cheating on assigned individual quotas by members such as Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates, however, has undercut these efforts.

The MEES newsletter in this week's edition said Baghdad was trying to pressure both Kuwait and the UAE with a hard-hitting public and private campaign.

MOSCOW (JULY 3) UPI - Mikhail Gorbachev's two closest allies said Tuesday they will give up their seats on the Politburo to concentrate on government duties, hastening the transfer of power away from the Communist Party.

Eduard Shevardnadze, the 62-year-old foreign minister whose ''new thinking'' has reshaped international relations, told the 28th Communist Party Congress that times have changed inside the Soviet Union as well.

''I consider that it is unnecessary for a minister to sit in (both) the Politburo and in the Presidential Council and in the Defense Council and in various other organs,'' he said.

Alexander Yakovlev, 66, widely viewed as the architect of Gorbachev's ''perestroika'' reform drive, confirmed that he too will leave the Politburo, the center of world communism for more than seven decades.

The two senior officials' disclosures dramatized the growing weight of Gorbachev's new presidential system and the crumbling authority of the Communist bosses who have ruled the country unchallenged since shortly after the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution.

The official government newspaper Izvestia published a poll showing that only 28 percent of those surveyed believe the current party Congress can help solve their country's economic crisis and other problems.

Gorbachev, speaking to reporters in the rain outside the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses during a break in the session, repeated his assertion that the Communist Party must learn to compete in a multi-party system.

''There will be other parties, and we must collaborate,'' Gorbachev said. ''We must share our experiments and our work. Some people try to find answers in the past, but there are no answers there - only lessons. It is impossible to live anymore the way we lived before.''

Gorbachev faced the first test of his popularity among the 4,683 delegates to the Congress when the assembled Communist activists from around the Soviet Union voted on his proposed chairmanship of the rules committee, which will make many of the key decisions shaping the party's future.

The tally of 3,166 for Gorbachev and 1,046 against, with 120 abstentions, indicated he still commands wide support but faces a sizeable opposition to his five-year tenure as general secretary.

There are now 12 full members of the Politburo, long the country's ruling body and an inner sanctum of power rarely pierced by publicity.

Lev Zaikov, another reformist on the Politburo, announced last week that he would resign from the party core, whose less frequent meetings have been increasingly downplayed by the Soviet media since the creation of an executive presidency and Presidential Council in March.

Gorbachev told the party conclave Tuesday that Politburo members Nikolai Slyunkov and Vitaly Vorotnikov also had asked to be relieved of their posts.

Gorbachev said Slyunkov, a 61-year-old Byelorussian, had been hospitalized with a serious illness and that Vorotnikov, 64, former premier of the giant Russian republic, was approaching retirement age.

As the delegates met inside the cavernous Kremlin hall, several thousand people gathered in Gorky Park for a rally organized by radical Communists who predicted a mass exodus from the party after the current conclave.

Alternate Politburo member Georgy Razumovsky told the Congress that 136,000 Communists left the party in 1989 and that the figure would be ''much higher'' this year.

The conservatives, who still dominate the present gathering of party activists, flexed their muscles in a symbolically charged vote at the Congress.

Delegates, showing their clear opposition to radical change, voted overwhelmingly to change the name of an economic policy committee and deleted a reference to ''transition to a market economy.''

Hard-liner Yegor Ligachev told the conclave: ''Public property unites, while private property divides.''

Nikolai Kruchin, the party's chief accountant, noted in a speech to the Congress that many Soviets are calling for the Communist Party to give up its vast amounts of property, buildings, institutes and other holdings.

''All these attempts have one goal: to weaken the Soviet Communist Party, deprive it of its material foundation and make it unable to participate in political battles,'' Krunchin said to wild applause.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (JULY 3) UPI - The government devalued Nicaragua's currency another 7 percent Tuesday on the second day of a strike by Sandinista workers to demand higher wages and protest government economic policy.

The Central Bank, which on Monday ordered all paper transactions to be carried out in the new ''gold cordoba'' currency, devalued the old cordoba from 340,000 to 365,000 to $1.

Black market rates climbed to 430,000 cordobas to buy and as much as 500,000 to sell.

Lucio Jimenez, leader of the Sandinista-run National Workers Union, accused the 2-month-old government of President Violeta Chamorro of ''bringing the country to economic failure with constant devaluations that force up the prices of basic products and make thousands of workers redundant.''

The union estimated about 40,000 workers jointed the nationwide strike Monday, short of the union's aim of 50,000.

Labor Minister Francisco Rosales, who declared the strike illegal, said the workers' efforts were ''a complete failure. We are negotiating seriously.''

Jimenez threatened to escalate the strike if Chamorro did not respond by Tuesday to a list of 14 demands the union is seeking. He said he might call for more of the nearly 400,000 workers that the union represents nationwide to walk off the job later in the week.

Among the union's demands are salary and benefit increases for a number of sectors, a halt to privatization, increased workers rights and a minimum salary, set in U.S. dollars, of $200 a month.

The old minimum wage has become obsolete because of the rapid devaluation of the cordoba, the Nicaraguan currency.

In the capital, the strike was not as disruptive as the five-day walkout by government employees in mid-May that paralyzed everything from telephones to transportation, but hit agricultural production, particularly cotton and rice.

The devaluations of the cordoba have caused prices of basic foods and fuel to rise, and on Monday the government ordered all gasoline sales to be conducted in the new gold cordobas, which are on a par with the U.S. dollar. The gold cordoba bills will not be in circulation until the end of July.

On Tuesday gasoline cost 1.85 gold cordobas, or 675,250 old cordobas, a gallon.

Transactions in gold cordobas has caused confusion, with shop owners and market vendors having to use pocket calculators to work out the bills.

The Central Bank said in the next few days, 5-million and 10-million cordoba bills will be issued to save people carrying around so much paper.

LOS ANGELES (JULY 3) UPI - Unocal Corp. said Tuesday that a unit of its Union Exploration Partners had completed its previously announced $336 million deal to buy more than 20,000 acres in east Texas and Louisiana from Prarie Holding Co.

The deal, first announced May 2, includes a cash payment of $252 million to Prarie Holding, a unit of Placer Dome Inc., and the assumption of about $84 million in liabilities and debt obligations.

Net daily production from the productive acreage is 36 million cubic feet of natural gas, 4,100 barrels of hydrocarbon liquids and 106 long tons of sulfur. Prarie also has interests in three gas-processing plants in the region.

Unocal said the exploratory acreage is in the Smackover, Miocene, Yegua and Haynesville trends.

Union Exploration Partners is a master limited partnership. Unocal and its Union Oil Co. of California subsidiary own 95 percent of the partnership units.

NEW YORK (JULY 3) UPI - The nation's crude oil inventories rose last week even though the pace of refinery production picked up significantly, the American Petroleum Institute reported Tuesday.

For the week ended June 29, the API weekly survey found crude oil inventories rose to 384.3 million barrels from 383.9 million barrels in the prior week but remained way above year-ago levels of 333.9 million barrels.

The API also reported that crude oil imports rose to 6.6 million barrels a day from 6.5 million barrels a day in the previous week and remained substantially higher than year ago imports of 5.6 million barrels a day.

The statistics indicate the glut of crude oil continues. They also provide some hope of a decline in retail gasoline prices, which have stayed high despite the glut and falling crude prices.

For the first time this year, U.S. refineries operated above 90 percent of capacity last week - at 90.7 percent compared with 87.6 percent a week earlier and 91.2 percent a year ago.

Gasoline production moved up to 7.3 million barrels daily from 7.1 million barrels a day in the previous week but less than year-ago output of 7.7 million barrels daily when refineries were surging to compensate for losses following the Alaska oil spill.

Gasoline supplies, however, slipped to 215.3 million barrels from 216.2 million barrels in the prior week and stayed below year-ago levels of 219.9 million barrels.

Stocks of unleaded gasoline, which accounts for 90 percent of the domestic market, stayed even at 165.1 million barrels, the same level as a week earlier but remained significantly higher than year-ago levels of 156.4 million barrels.

Gasoline imports declined substantially to 428,000 barrels daily from 513,000 barrels daily in the previous week and were well above year-ago imports of 375,000 barrels daily.

Imports of all refined products dropped to 2.1 million barrels daily from 3.0 million barrels daily in the preceding week and were less than year-ago imports of 2.2 million barrels daily.

Inventories of distillate - used for home-heating oil and diesel fuel - rose to 110.1 million barrels from 109.8 million barrels a week earlier and remained above year-ago levels of 100.6 million barrels.

Distillate production remained level at 3.0 million barrels daily, the same rate as in the preceding week, but was higher than year-ago output of 2.9 million barrels daily.

Distillate imports fell to 174,000 barrels a day from 371,000 barrels a day in the previous week but were higher than year-ago imports of 160,000 barrels a day.

WASHINGTON (JULY 3) UPI - More than 900 dolphins were killed during the summer-fall season of 1989 by 4 percent of the Japanese driftnet vessels fishing for squid in the North Pacific, according to data collected by official observers.

Extrapolating those figures to cover the total number of driftnet operations estimated for the entire Japanese fishing fleet in the North Pacific, the death toll for dolphins would grow to nearly 20,000 a year.

The dolphin ''bycatch'' data, covering just 4 percent of the Japanese driftnet fleet, were provided Tuesday to the staff of Rep. Jolene Unsoeld, D-Wash., and other members of Congress by the National Marine Fisheries Service.

The fisheries service, a branch of the Commerce Department, has withheld the information, but it was released publicly by Unsoeld's office.

The data was collected by U.S., Canadian and Japanese observers placed aboard Japanese fishing vessels June-October 1989 under a driftnet monitoring agreement between the United States and Japan.

The observers recorded 1,402 driftnet operations, or ''sets,'' during that period, which yielded more than 3 million squid and a bycatch of 914 dolphins. Unsoeld spokesman Peter Coogan said all of the dolphins are presumed to have died.

Also snared by the driftnets were about 200 northern fur seals, at least a quarter of which died, plus nearly two dozen marine turtles, thousands of sea birds, and 1.5 million fish.

According to a 1987 marine fisheries report, about 30,000 driftnet operations are carried out by the entire Japanese fleet of 470 vessels each year. Based on this estimate, the rate of dolphin kills recorded last year would bring the death toll to 19,577 annually.

The number of driftnet sets by Taiwan and South Korea are unknown, but based on a combined total unofficially estimated at 30,000, the overall dolphin death toll from driftnets in the North Pacific would double to around 39,000.

The driftnet observer program is to be expanded this year to cover 10 percent of the Japanese driftnet fleet. Similar programs have been established under separate agreements with Taiwan and South Korea.

The data on dolphin kills comes as momentum builds in Congress to curb the use of driftnets - curtains of monofilament mesh draped over miles of open sea that indiscriminately kill dolphins, whales, and other marine creatures along with the fish and squid they are designed to catch.

American fishermen have largely given up the practice, but the technique has remained popular among Asian fleets, which use the driftnets ostensibly to fish for squid. U.S. officials have accused these vessels of targetting their catch for salmon and trout spawned in American rivers.

Congress is considering a variety of bills that would impose a U.S. ban on driftnet fishing, direct the secretary of state to negotiate an international ban and prohibit the sale of tuna caught in driftnets.

Unsoeld accused the fisheries service of sitting on the driftnet bycatch data for six months under a deal struck between the State Department and Japan.

''If the high kill rates in this report had been out in the open six months ago, we might have passed a driftnet ban by today,'' Unsoeld said in a statement.

Fisheries serivce spokesman Roddy Moscoso declined to comment on the figures, saying they would be officially disclosed by the agency on Thursday.

(JULY 3) UPI - More than 14-hundred pilgrims die in Mecca stampede... mistrial in Bensonhurst murder trial... Rebels advance into Liberian capital... and West Germany moves to ease Soviet fears of reunification. U-P-I has it, next:

The worst fears of reports from Mecca have been confirmed. Saudi Arabia today said 14-hundred-26 religious pilgrims were crushed to death when thousands of Moslems jammed into a pedestrian tunnel yesterday.

Doctors speaking anonymously said many of the dead were Egyptians and Pakistanis making the Haj... the name of the pilgrimage to the holy city of Mecca.

Sources said yesterday's tragedy in the air-conditioned Moassim tunnel began when several pilgrims tumbled off an overhead bridge. Traffic within the tunnel came to a standstill, but thousands continued to push inside. Most of the victims were crushed to death or suffocated.

Pilgrims must pass through the tunnel on their way to Mount Arafat outside Mecca. There the prophet and founder of Islam, Mohammed, was born and is said to have delivered his last sermon 14 centuries ago. The tunnel runs under the highway to Mecca known as the Mecca High Road.

Sources said the tunnel could hold about one-thousand people but that the crowd quickly swelled to five times that.

A New York judge today declared a mistrial and ordered a Brooklyn man retried for murder and riot.

The judge issued his ruling after the jury acquitted 21-year-old John Vento of one murder charge in the mob-killing of a black teen-ager last summer... and failed to reach a verdict on a second murder charge.

In its split verdict, the jury convicted Vento on two counts of first-degree unlawful imprisonment and four counts of menacing.

The judge set August 14th as a sentencing date on the guilty charges, and a tentative date of Septmber 14th for a new trial.

Vento is the third of eight young white men to be tried in the slaying of 16-year-old Yusef Hawkins last August. The killing triggered months of bitter racial demonstrations, marches and vigils in New York City.

Hawkins was shot to death when he and three other youths went into Brooklyn's mostly white Bensonhurst neighborhood to look at a used car. The assault apparently resulted from a case of mistaken identity.

Moscow and Washington are widely expected to agree at Vienna negotiations to limit their troops to 195-thousand each.

MIAMI (JULY 3) UPI - A federal bankruptcy judge approved a $4 million settlement Tuesday for 102 people who claimed they were defrauded by General Development Corp., a lawyer for the plaintiffs said.

The settlement was the first to be approved by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Jay Cristol since General Development filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in April, attorney Doug Lyons said.

The settlement, reached prior to the bankruptcy, had been put on hold because of that filing. No other settlements are awaiting approval, he said.

General Development, one of the state's oldest developers, pleaded guilty in March to a federal conspiracy charge for inflating the value of the homes it sold in its nine Florida communities.

Lyons said the 102 people who will benefit from the settlement were victims of that fraud. The company denied any wrongdoing as part of the settlement.

Each victim will collect an average $23,000, Lyons said. The actual amount will depend on the individual mortgage. Of the home buyers represented by Lyons, only six chose not to accept the settlement, he said.

In May, Lyons and several other attorneys filed suit against three financial institutions that bought mortgages from a General Development subsidiary, on behalf of 2,678 home buyers.

The suits allege that the companies knew those mortgages were based on questionable appraisals.

The lawsuit names as defendants Chase Federal Savings and Loan of Miami, Home Insurance Co. of New York and Citizens and Southern Trust Co. of Atlanta.

In June, the lawyers filed an additional suit against Carteret Savings Bank on behalf of 1,288 home buyers.

(JULY 3) UPI - Thunderstorms pounded parts of the South overnight, leaving thousands without power after 100-mph winds whipped central Mississippi, while an umbrella of high pressure kept temperatures unseasonably hot in the Plains.

Heavy storms also struck parts of North Dakota Tuesday, dumping torrential rains and pea-size hail. Police reported funnel clouds over the northwestern town of Parshall, and gusty winds whipped towns along the Minnesota border.

''We just had real strong winds, lot of wind damage. We had hail about the size of golf balls, windows broken out, couple of windshields taken out. Just moderate damage,'' said Burlington Police Chief Luis Coca. ''About 2 miles out of town here, a roof of one of the garages was blown off.''

In the town of Sawyer, Mayor Dennis Redding said, ''The one house was completely destroyed. The roof is gone and one wall is pushed completely out. Another house had wind suck one wall completely out. The debris is scattered across two or three blocks. Trees are down.''

Officials in eastern North Dakota said hail caused about $1 million in crop damage to parts of northern Cass County. Extension officials said some farmers reported 100 percent loss to soybeans and heavy damage to barley.

Showers and thunderstorms rumbled through much of Louisiana and areas of eastern Arkansas Tuesday.

A funnel cloud was sighted over southwest Louisiana Tuesday afternoon, but authorities said it did not touch down.

A dome of high pressure pushed temperatures above 100 degrees in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota, and Minnesota.

The mercury reached 105 degrees in North Platte, Neb., 104 in Wichita, Kan., and 103 in Mitchell. S.D.

Heat and below-average rainfall has all but crippled some farmers in parched south Texas, officials said.

''Crops have for the most part dried up and fallen over'' in some areas of south Texas, weather service hydrologist John Patton said.

The harvesting of grain sorghum and corn is expected to begin within a month and the National Weather Service says no relief is expected from the drought.''The situation is grim,'' meterologist Hugh Peace said. ''There just isn't much hope.''

Although South Texas enjoyed high rainfall in March, April and May, but June was hot and dry. ''We had good moisture in the spring, and things looked good,'' Bexar County Extension Service agent Norman Vestal said. ''But right now the rain has just stopped. Even if we had good rain right now, it would be too late.''

Overnight thunderstorms skipped across Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. Heavy downpours with golfball-size hail and wind gusts to 70 mph were reported in Alabama, downing power lines and trees and smashing some windows.

Thunderstorms hit central Mississippi late Monday, knocking out power to much of Jackson and injuring at least three people in Philadelphia. Wind gusts were clocked at 100 mph in Philadelphia, emergency management officials said.

The storm interrupted power to at least 42,000 homes and businesses, said Howard Wooten, a Mississippi Power and Light Company spokesman.

Authorities reported hail in central and southern Florida late Monday, with winds up to 50 mph in the Miami-Fort Lauderdale area.

In the Pacific Northwest, a storm front that limited highs to the 50s and 60s began pushing out of Washington state, leaving behind fair skies and warmer temperatures for the Fourth of July holiday.

(JULY 3) UPI - Israeli commanders say they may free Shiite prisoners as demanded by groups believed to be holding Western hostages in Lebanon. Two Israeli generals made the announcement today after a tour of Israel's self-declared ''security zone'' in southern Lebanon. Observers say Israel may release the Shiites in a bid to win back three of its soldiers missing in Lebanon. Israel believes the three are held by pro-Iranian Shiite militias.

Sources in Poland say Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki is considering a possible shakeup in his coalition government. The Solidarity-led government has been under widespread attack in recent weeks for its economic policies. Mazowiecki has been attempting to move Poland toward a market economy, but the result has been rampant inflation and unemployment. Sources indicate a new government could be presented to Parliament as early as Friday.

The Energy Department says it lacks the technological ability to decontaminate polluted nuclear weapons plants. STUTTGART (JULY 4) - Edzard Reuter, the chairman of Daimler-Benz, West Germany's largest industrial consortium, told a stockholders meeting Wednesday that results from 1989 were "acceptable but not satisfying."

Results would not be "satisfying" until 1992 when Daimler-Benz completes a restructuring program, Mr. Reuter said.

In 1989, Diamler-Benz consolidated turnover was 76.4 billion Deutsche marks (45.7 billion dollars). The consortium's 1990 turnover is projected at 85 billion Dutsche marks (50.81 billion dollars).

Under a new accounting system, net profits of Daimler-Benz rose in 1989 to 6.8 billion Deutsche marks (4.07 billion dollars). Under the old accounting system profits would have remained at 1988's 1.7 billion Deutsche marks (about one billion dollars) figure.

The shareholders meeting must give approval to a proposed dividend of 12 Deutsche marks (7.12 dollars) for shares with a nominal value of 50 Deutsche marks (29.94 dollars).

Deutsche Bank is the largest shareholder in Daimler-Benz AG with 28.1 percent. A total of 25.3 percent is held by Mercedes Automobile Holding AG, 14 percent by Kuwait and another 32 percent by 300,000 small shareholders.

LONDON (JULY 4) - Heavy rain meant that top-seed Ivan Lendl went to work late on Wednesday -- and his temper was hardly helped when he was kept waiting on the centre-court by the world's 120th ranked player.

Lendl, 30, and bidding for the only major title he has never won, needed nearly three hours to complete a 6-4, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4 victory to reach the semi-finals, where he faces 1988 champion Stefan Edberg for a place in Sunday's final.

The third-seeded Edberg defeated another Swede, Christian Bergstrom, in straight-sets 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

Pearce, a 24-year-old from Utah who stands 5ft 9in, made an understandably nervous start against the world number-one -- and he must have felt particularly sickened when Lendl produced two superb top-spin lobs in the very first game.

Finding plenty of spaces through which he could punch his powerful groundstrokes and also looking effective at the net, Lendl broke Pearce again in the seventh game for a 5-2 lead.

Despite dropping his own serve in the next game, he was back on target in the tenth to take the 35-minute first set.

But then Lendl went off the boil.

Pearce surged 3-0 clear at the start of the second set but failed to hold on to his advantage and Lendl worked his way to a two sets lead by winning five games in a row.

When Pearce's chance came again in the third set he took it firmly, forcing an increasingly frustrated Lendl into a fourth set.

It was an excellent performance from the little giant-killer, whose 29,500 pounds prizemoney at these championships is more than he earned the whole of last season.

ABIDJAN (JULY 4) - Fighting near the Liberian capital continued for the third day Wednesday as embattled President Samuel Doe met the U.S. ambassador who has offered to help him escape from rebels moving in on Monrovia, diplomatic sources said.

U.S. Ambassador Peter De Vos drove under a heavy U.S. marine guard through streets of closed-up shops for about an hour of talks with Mr. Doe, the sources said.

No details were available on what was discussed.

But in Brussels, U.S. Secretary of State James Baker reiterated an American offer to try to give the Liberian president safe passage out of the battle-torn West African state.

In Liberia, the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) rebels seeking to oust President Doe had encircled Monrovia by Wednesday but had not entered the city center, the Protestant mission radio ELWA reported.

In a news broadcast monitored in Abidjan, the radio said residents heard sporadic gunfire in the Monrovia suburbs Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the radio reported that Mr. Doe has made proposals to Liberian legislators including intervention by the United Nations and the Organization of African Unity (OAU) "to set up the machinery and the modality" for early elections in January 1991.

"The civilian population faces fear of war threats from Doe's troops and forces of the Patriotic Front," the radio said.

The radio reported that troops on Tuesday "were roaming the streets" while 6,000 mainly Gio and Mano tribesmen accused of being rebels had taken refuge at churches and embassies "for fear of government troop reprisals against them."

It also reported that Defense Minister Boima Barclay has imposed an unlimited curfew in the capital, warning "all citizens and personnel of diplomatic missions near Monrovia (to) keep off the streets."

The radio said the residents now faced "a dawn-to-dusk curfew, a week without water and six days without power among other difficulties."

Buses and taxis were not running due to a lack of fuel, forcing those residents "daring to travel" in Monrovia to walk.

Radio ELWA also reported that Red Cross officials had asked the NPFL rebels led by fugitive former civil servant Charles Taylor to "exercise restraint and ensure the safety of civilians."

MONTREUX, SWITZERLAND (JULY 5) - An international environment conference which wound up here Wednesday urged Spain, West Germany and South Africa to do more to protect endangered wetlands.

Greece, the United States and Iceland were also on the list of countries targeted by the 400 experts at the week-long Ramsar Convention Conference on wetlands.

Meanwhile new protection zones in France, Switzerland and the Caribbean brought the total number of sites protected by the convention to 500.

High on a list of sites needing urgent attention was Spain's Donana Park. Experts said water extraction for farming and tourism there threatened to devastate the unique nature reserve.

The United States' Everglades were also at risk because of the heavy use of agricultural fertilizers.

West Germany was congratulated for abandoning a port construction project on the Wadden Sea. But fears were raised over the future protection of the Leybucht bay.

The conference, attended by 92 countries, said it was "seriously concerned" about sites in South Africa, Santa Lucia and the beaches and coral reefs of Tonga, threatened by mineral exploitation.

Pretoria was called on to "ban all heavy mineral exploitation compromising the ecological characteristics of the site."

Greek authorities were asked to define more precisely their 11 protected zones and to take "appropriate measures to ensure conservation" of the sites.

The conference also drew attention to the extraction of diatomite threatening Iceland's Myvath-Laxa wetland.

Jordan was urged to restrict water extraction for the capital Amman from the Azraq oasis.

The construction of dams in Afghanistan could affect Iran's Lake Hamoun, the conference said.

Vietnam was asked to place the Melaleuca forests on the Mekong delta under protection.

TOKYO (JULY 4) - The Japanese government is expected to announce Friday a 1.5 percent cut in subsidized prices it will pay rice growers this fiscal year, official sources said Wednesday.

The government buys rice from growers at producer prices and sells it to consumers for less.

Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Minister Tomio Yamamoto proposed Wednesday that the producer price paid for rice harvested this fiscal year be cut by 1.5 percent to 16,500 yen (110 dollars) per 60 kilograms, officials said.

Mr. Yamamoto made the proposal at a meeting of the Rice Price Council, an official advisory panel which is scheduled to submit a report to the government Thursday.

The report will be made on the basis of Mr. Yamamoto's proposal which is expected to be accepted by the government Friday, official sources said.

The reduction in producer prices would be the first in two years.

Amid increasing foreign criticism of Japan's heavily protected rice industry, producer prices were cut in 1987 and 1988 but held stable last year because of strong opposition from the ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP).

The objection to cuts stemmed from fears of losing farmers' votes in an election a year ago for the upper house of parliament.

Traditionally the LDP enjoys support from farmers in elections.

The United States and other countries have increased pressure on Japan to open up its rice market.

LONDON (JULY 4) - State-owned railways network British Rail said Wednesday it made an operating loss last year for the first time in five years.

It showed a deficit of 26 million pounds (44.8 million dollars) against a profit of 107 million (184.5 million dollars) the previous year.

British Rail attributed the poor result to a series of one-day strikes last summer which cost an estimated 83 million pounds (143 million dollars) along with losses on suburban lines in the southeast, hit by a sharp slowdown in economic activity in the region.

Taking into account government subsidies and property sales, British Rail showed a profit of 269.8 million pounds (465.1 million dollars) in the year to March, against 304 million (524 million dollars) the previous year.

The company, which has recently changed chairman and is facing enormous difficulties in meeting financial targets fixed by the government, has put back until later this year the publication of its plans for the future, originally due out this month.

British Rail warned in its annual report however that "reductions in forecast economic growth are likely to reduce receipts significantly in each of the next three years or so."

SEOUL (JULY 4) - South Korea's top business conglomerates saw their net capital assets mushroom in the past year, with the Hyundai Business Group retaining its leading position, according to official statistics.

The figures, released to the National Assembly by the Economic Planning Board, showed that the assets of the 42 largest business conglomerates had increased 34.7 percent to 20.3 trillion won (28.3 billion dollars) last year.

Government officials said however that from next year the assets growth would level off at between 20 and 30 percent a year.

The rapid increases in the year ending in April were largely due to a rise in value of real estate holdings, which the government says the conglomerates must now disinvest.

The statistics also showed that the ratio of total assets of the 42 conglomerates against the Gross National Product (GNP) increased from 11.9 per cent in 1988 to 14.4 percent in 1989.

The figures showed that the conglomerates had not let up in their efforts to expand into more fields despite government calls for them to specialize.

Hyundai was again by far the largest South Korean concern, followed by Lucky GoldStar, Daewoo and Samsung.

Hyundai and Lucky GoldStar saw their assets grow to more than two trillion won (over three billion dollars) for the first time.

The conglomerates are involved in industries as diverse as automaking, electronics, department stores and the travel industry.

The assets of three of the top four conglomerates grew above 50 percent. Lucky GoldStar was the exception, with its assets growing a comparatively meager 31 percent.

In net capital assets, Hyundai grew by 68.5 percent to almost three trillion won (just over two billion dollars), Daewoo by 57.1 percent to almost two trillion won and Samsung by 52.9 percent to near two trillion won.

The report said the rapid growth was largely due to the growth in value of the conglomerates' vast real estate holdings.

The government, in an attempt to check rampant real estate speculation and a subsequent plunge in stock prices, decreed in May that they must divest themselves of most of their unproductive land.

LONDON (JULY 4) - Production problems at a major South African producer have sent rhodium prices soaring to record levels in London, with some dealers predicting it could go as high as 10,000 dollars an ounce.

The metal, an essential ingredient with platinum and palladium in catalytic converters to reduce car exhaust pollution, was quoted at a record 6,800 to 7,300 dollars an ounce in London on Wednesday.

Rhodium hovered around 1,250 to 1,400 dollars an ounce last year, but began to rise in December when South African producer Rustenburg said it was having production problems at a new refinery in Bophuthatswana.

The shortage was aggravated by irregular Soviet sales, and the price rise sharpened in early June, shooting up from 2,000 dollars at the beginning of the month to double that by the end.

The trend has continued, with rhodium prices up a massive 37 per cent in the first few days of July.

South African rhodium producers expressed alarm on Tuesday at the sharp price increase, because of the instability it brought onto the market.

The Business Day newspaper quoted a spokesman for Rustenburg Platinum as saying the company was alarmed at the sharp rise, but that the price the company received was not determined by the market price, as most of the sales were on contract to automobile manufacturers.

Richard Chetwode, an analyst with James Capel, said that the metal "could go up to 10,000 dollars or drift down," while Robert Davies of Shearson Lehman Hutton said that speculative buying could push the price up to the 10,000 dollar level although the fundamental trend did not justify such a price.

Analysts believe that Rustenburg's problems are now resolved, although there has been no official announcement.

If this is the case, prices should begin to fall, said Philip Taylor of S.G. Warburg. "But the market is tight and prices will not collapse," he said.

TOKYO (JULY 4) - The Japan External Trade Organization (JETRO), a semi-governmental trade promotion body, said Wednesday that Japanese companies should produce more in the United States to help cut Japan's huge trade surplus.

Japan's trade surplus with the United States will be reduced by some 20 billion dollars in 1995 if Japanese manufacturing firms invest five to seven billion dollars every year in that country till 1995, the JETRO said in a report.

Such direct investment would lead to a cut in Japan's exports to the United States and a rise in imports from that country, the report said.

Japan chalked up a trade surplus of 49 billion dollars with the United States in 1989.

MEDELLIN, COLOMBIA (JULY 4) - Bomb explosions overnight Tuesday destroyed four neighborhood police posts in this northwestern industrial city, home to a major cocaine-trafficking cartel, police said Wednednesday.

No injuries were reported in the blasts. The police booths had been unoccupied since the weekend, when patrolmen were withdrawn from the posts in the face of a new wave of bombings and shootings against security forces, the Medellin police department said.

The department also said a policeman was shot and killed Tuesday in nearby Bello as he was returning to his home.

The murder brought to 166 the number of police killed in the Medellin metropolitan area this year. Alleged drug lord Pablo Escobar has offered his hitmen a bounty of thousands of dollars for every policeman they kill, authorities say.

Security forces here have been searching for Mr. Escobar, the alleged leader of the Medellin cocaine cartel, since last August, when President Virgilio Barco unleashed a crackdown on the nation's powerful drug lords.

The drug traffickers have responded with their own offensive of indescriminate car bombings and assassinations of police and politicians.

Mr. Escobar has been blamed for much of that violence, and the government has placed a 400,000-dollar bounty on his head. His reputed cohort, Jose Gonzalo Rodriguez Gacha, was shot dead along with his teenage son and 15 bodyguards in a December 15 shootout with security forces.

Also Wednesday, Medellin police announced another person had died Wednesday from the June 28 car bomb explosion ouside a Medellin police station that killed 19 others. Authorities blamed the bombing on drug traffickers.

In Bogota, police said assassins shot and killed two policemen there just after dawn.

Bogota police also announced police and army units would launch a search operation near Puerto Triunfo, some 300 kilometers (185 miles) northwest of here, where police Tuesday discovered a cache of 800 kilograms (1,750 pounds) of dynamite.

The explosives were hidden in containers used for transporting milk and were stashed near a toll booth at an entrance to the Bogota-Medellin highway.

The explosives were deactivated by police, who said the dynamite belonged to hitmen in the pay of drug traffickers.

ATHENS (JULY 4) - Nearly two million Greek workers went on strike on Wednesday, paralysing industry, transportation, banks, telecommunications and health services, to protest against the economic policies of the conservative Mitsotakis government.

Most of the private sector and some public sector services ground to a halt as strikers called on the government of Prime Minister Constantin Mitsotakis to scrap legislation on working hours, productivity and part-time work.

More stoppages were threatened for next week, unless the government gave in to union demands.

Organisers said 10,000 people took part in a march to parliament through the streets of Athens, chanting "Hands off the eight-hour day" and "This project must be withdrawn."

The powerful GSEE union confederation said 70 percent of its 1.7 million members stayed away from work. The strike was also supported by the 130,000 member GSEVE confederation of self-employed workers.

GSEE leader Lambros Canelopoulos said in a statement that the government was relegating Greek workers to the bottom of the European Economic Community.

"The bill may be voted by parliament, but we will not allow it to be applied," he said.

Wednesday's was the third 24-hour strike in six weeks, similar actions on May 22 and June 6 costing an estimated 187 million dollars.

Two million workers participated in the May action as transport strikes forced the government to suspend anti-pollution regulations banning some cars from the city centre. In June, tens of thousands went on strike, and old-age pensioners took to the streets.

The prime minister said after a Council of Ministers meeting that the majority of Greek people accepted government policy and supported economic reform.

Before leaving for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization summit in London, Mr. Mitsotakis said the strike had not had much support.

The opposition Socialist Party (PASOK) supported the strike action, as did other left-wing groups, which labelled the bill "anti-worker."

MARSEILLES (JULY 4) - French Prime Minister Michel Rocard has cancelled a trip to Provence on Friday due to fears it would be disrupted by protests from a pro-communist trades union over the future of the La Ciotat shipyard.

The socialist mayor of Salon-de-Provence, Andre Vallet, said in a statement he had been "forced to cancel this visit for obvious security reasons."

He also said he was "outraged" by the Confederation Generale de Travail (CGT) threat of protest action during the visit, "threats whose sole aim is to disrupt a local popular festival."

The union had called for a protest demonstration during Mr. Rocard's visit to force him to "break his silence" on the future of the La Ciotat shipyard near Marseilles.

The regional council favours plans to reopen the site as a shipyard put forward by U.S.-Swiss concern Lexmar, while the local authorities and national government favour a rival plan for a yachting marina and leisure site.

BRUSSELS (JULY 4) - U.S. Secretary of State James Baker proposed here Wednesday that Eastern European countries be allowed to become affiliate members of the Organisation of Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD).

This would be a way to inspire a greater feeling of belonging to the international community for the emerging democracies in Eastern Europe, Mr. Baker told a meeting of 24 countries coordinating their aid to reforming Eastern Europe.

The participation of the new affiliated members in OECD activities would be worked out depending on their needs and their interests, he added.

Such affiliation should be offered to all countries undertaking economic and political reforms who were already members of the OECD centre for European economies in transition, Mr. Baker said.

LONDON (JULY 4) - Troubled British advertising and consultancy group Saatchi and Saatchi said Wednesday it was selling Gartner Group for 70 million dollars, 20 million dollars less than it paid for the computer consultancy in 1988.

The buyer is GGI Holding, a subsidiary of U.S. investment concern Information Partners.

The sale of Gartner, a month after Saatchi sold Hay Group in a management buyout, means that the British group has managed to shed its two major consultancy concerns a year after putting them on the market.

The sales will bring in slightly more than 80 million pounds (137 million dollars), in line with figures forecast earlier this year.

Saatchi and Saatchi's consultancy division was valued by analysts a year ago at between 250 million and 300 million pounds (430 and 517 million dollars).

Saatchi and Saatchi shares were up a penny at 85 pence in mid-session trading in London on Wednesday.

Gartner made a taxable profit of 1.8 million dollars in the year to the end of September, but showed a pre-tax loss of 1.8 million dollars in the first six months of the current financial year.

MIAMI (JULY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - Burger King Corporation announced today the opening of its first restaurant in East Germany. Burger King Express, a full service restaurant on wheels, opens in Dresden, one of the largest cities in East Germany, at the main railway station.

Burger King, in cooperation with Mitropa, a government organization with a 75 year history of providing food service in trains, railway stations and on highways throughout Germany, plans to open additional Burger King (R) restaurants in railway stations and on East German highways.

"At a time when the world is uniting, we are excited to be bringing East Germany a taste of the West," said Fredy Dellis, president, International, Burger King Corporation. "We are happy to continue our expansion in Germany and to share our flame-broiled taste globally."

In addition to the Whopper (R), the burger that's known around the world, the Burger King Express will offer the Whopper (R) with cheese, Hamburger DeLuxe, Cheeseburger DeLuxe, Hamburger, Cheeseburger, French Fries, and Coca-Cola. For the early morning customer, Hot Apple Turnovers and coffee will also be offered.

Burger King Germany opened its first restaurant in Western Berlin in 1976 and operates a total of 73 restaurants.

Burger King Corporation was acquired by Grand Metropolitan in January 1989. One of the United Kingdom's largest international companies, Grand Metropolitan is a world leader in the food, drinks, and retailing businesses. U.S. subsidiaries also include The Pillsbury Company, Alpo Pet Foods, Carillon Importers, Heublein, Inc., The Paddington Corporation, and Pearle, Inc. Burger King Corporation and its franchisees operate more than 6,000 restaurants in 36 countries worldwide. In Fiscal Year 1989, the company had systemwide sales in excess of $5.7 billion.

LOS ANGELES (JULY 3) UPI - Ray Berwick, a pioneer bird trainer for the motion picture industry whose credits include the Alfred Hitchock thriller ''The Birds,'' died of a heart attack. He was 75.

Berwick, who lived in the Westlake community of Los Angeles, died Monday of heart attack at Westlake Medical Center.

The native of Fort Worth, Texas, began working with birds and other animals in circuses and on vaudeville stages. He broke into the movies in 1962 with ''Birdman of Alcatraz,'' a biography of a convict who became a world authority on birds that starred Burt Lancaster and Karl Malden.

Berwick also worked with thousands of birds for Alfred Hitchock's 1963 classic ''The Birds'' about a California coastal town attacked by flocks of savage birds, and trained actor Robert Blake's cockatoo Fred for the ''Baretta'' television series.

He produced the first live animal show at Universal Studios and worked on shows for the San Diego Wild Animal Park.

Relatives said Berwick was considered a pioneer bird trainer. He led other trainers in using positive reinforcement to get animals to perform.

He is survived by his wife, Suzanne; a son, Brad, and a daughter, Tammy.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

WASHINGTON (JULY 4) UPI - Mysterious Pluto may be an early target of the Hubble Space Telescope as NASA forges ahead to determine how flaws in the $1.5 billion observatory's crucial mirrors will limit its scientific achievements.

Hubble project scientist Ed Weiler said the space agency plans to move the first tests of the telescope's scientific powers ahead to August or September to explore how well it performs encumbered by mirror difficulties that blur its view of visible light. The scientific tests will be interspersed with already scheduled tests of the telescope's hardware.

''We want to characterize each of the scientific instruments in most of their modes to see if we are being overly optimistic or pessimistic in the terms of the science we can do,'' said Weiler, explaining why the scientific work was being pushed forward.

Among the early goals may be to try to get the first pictures of the surface of Pluto, the solar system's smallest and usually most distant planet.

''If Pluto is available (in the telescope's viewing range), we probably will go up and take pictures of Pluto in the next three or four months,'' Weiler told a telephone news conference Tuesday. ''It's worth a try to see what we can do on it.''

Ellie Lange, a spokeswoman for the Space Telescope Science Institute in Baltimore, said Pluto and its satellite, Charon, appear reasonable targets for Hubble. Pictures taken by the telescope's Wide Field/Planetary Camera or WFPC would likely show ''some planetary features,'' although they would not be ''terribly clear,'' she said.

''Of course because astronomers currently do not have any pictures of Pluto, anything we see would be better than what we have,'' Lange said.

Pictures that Hubble takes of Pluto and other cosmic objects probably would have to be reconstructed by ''fancy'' computer processing on the ground, Weiler said.

''We may not be as bad off as we thought,'' Weiler said. ''In some cases ... we probably could process an image to get back to our original one-tenth of an arc second resolution,'' or clarity.

That means despite the gloomy early assessment that Hubble could produce no pictures for two or three years, the telescope may soon be able to crank out a few of the ''pretty pictures'' the American public was told to expect, Weiler said.

Weiler announced the formation of a team of computer experts from NASA, the University of Rochester, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory and elsewhere to see if clear images can be reconstructed from the blurry pictures taken by the telescope in its current state.

''We're going to let the experts play with the images and see what they can do. People who know field say there is a lot of hope,'' Weiler said. But he conceded that generating pictures by such a route probably would take more observation time and be more expensive due to computer costs.

Image reconstruction likely would succeed best on cosmic objects that are fairly bright and not close to other objects, Weiler said.

Although last week's discovery of the crippling mirror flaws generated initial reactions of despair and frustration, Weiler said scientists on the project are generally optimistic that they can wring some pictures out of Hubble even before a shuttle repair mission is sent up in 1992 or 1993.

''The Wide Field/Planetary Camera is still about 10 percent to 20 percent usable. Reports of the early death of WFPC were greatly exaggerated,'' Weiler said. ''Scientists are fairly optimistic and feel roughly 50 percent of the science originally proposed for the first one or two years can be done.''

Even when it appeared WFPC's picture-taking ability would be completely knocked out during the first few years of Hubble's 15-year life, NASA had emphasized that the big observatory would still produce ''world-class science'' by tracking non-visible energy like ultraviolet light.

''I must admit some of the negative media we have received has spurred some of us on. A lot of us feel like Harry S. Truman: The votes haven't been counted, but we're all being called losers,'' Weiler said.

Hubble's problem, called spherical aberration, apparently occurred some 10 years ago during construction of its two light-focusing mirrors by what is now Hughes Danbury Optical Systems Inc. of Danbury, Conn.

Engineers say spherical aberration is relatively easy to fix and that new cameras now under development can be modified to correct for the flaw before they are installed by a space shuttle in several years.

In the meantime, Weiler said NASA has managed to work out most of the other technical glitches that plagued Hubble in its early days after its April 25 launch, and is confident it can iron out a vibration still troubling the telescope when it goes from light to dark by early August.

Also Tuesday, NASA officially announced formation of an independent panel to investigate the Hubble's problems. No deadline was given for the committee's final report.

The committee's chairman is Lew Allen, director of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif. Other members are Charles Spoelhof, retired vice president of Eastman Kodak Co., Pittsford, N.Y.; George Rodney, NASA's associate administrator for safety in Washington; John Mangus, head of the optics branch, NASA Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.; Bob Shannon, astronomy professor, University of Arizona-Tucson; and Roger Angel, also astronomy professor, University of Arizona-Tuscon.

A 33-hundred-acre blaze on an Indian reservation in Arizona is the only major wildfire still burning out of control... one week after the first of a dozen fires fueled by a heat wave, lightning and arsonists erupted in several Western states. Early Tuesday, officials finally declared out an arson-caused blaze in the canyons above Santa Barbara, California. That fire destroyed hundreds of homes and caused half-a-BILLION dollars in damage.

The Pentagon says a four-ship U-S amphibious task force remains in international waters off the Liberian coast... ready to evacuate Americans other foreign nationals or embattled President Samuel Doe. But the State Department says NO decision has been made to evacuate Americans in Liberia where rebel forces are closing in on the capital city of Monrovia. Doe also has NOT requested help to leave the west African nation.

Colombian military officials say soldiers Tuesday deactivated a massive car bomb presumably set by cocaine traffickers. The car- packed with more than a ton of dynamite- was parked along the major highway linking Bogota and Medellin. At least 16 car bombs have exploded in Colombia since April... killing 90 people and wounding hundreds more in attacks blamed on the Medellin cocaine cartel.

(JULY 4) UPI - A federal appeals court in Washington, D-C, has cleared the way for the National Institutes of Health to perform fatal brain experiments on the three so-called ''Silver Spring Monkeys.'' The fate of the monkeys has been the center of a controversy since 1981... when the badly injured animals were seized from an N-I-H-funded laboratory in Silver Spring, Maryland. Animal rights groups want the animals sent to a primate sanctuary. The N-I-H says the monkeys' injuries are so severe they should be killed.

Federal and state officials in Alaska are searching for 500 pounds of dynamite accidentally dropped by a helicopter into Bradley Lake near a new dam, 28 miles northeast of Homer. Construction company officials were a little surprised and a lot relieved when the explosives did NOT blow up upon impact with the water's surface. They say the waterlogged dynamite poses only a ''remote possibility'' of still retaining its explosive qualities.

(JULY 4) UPI - It was just like old times for the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night - a ninth-inning rally and Kirk Gibson delivering the game-winning blow.

So maybe it wasn't Game 1 of the 1988 World Series, but when you're struggling to reach .500 and the division-leading Cincinnati Reds' taillights are fading away, you're looking for a spark.

And that's exactly what Gibson provided, grounding a single through a drawn-in infield to cap a four-run ninth inning that sent the Dodgers to a 7-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs and gave them something to build on for the second half of the season.

''We're looking for something at this point,'' said Gibson, who has struggled with a variety of injuries all season. ''I haven't had a lot of luck, but that was a lucky at-bat.''

With the Dodgers trailing 6-3, Mike Scioscia opened with a walk off starter Mike Bielecki, and Juan Samuel followed with his sixth homer of the season. Paul Assenmacher, 2-2, entered and walked Alfredo Griffin, then yielded a single to pinch-hitter Mike Sharperson.

After Lenny Harris sacrificed, Gibson, who was almost called out on a check swing third strike, singled through the hole into right, making a winner of Mike Hartley, 1-1, who worked two innings.

''This comeback has to help us,'' said Samuel, who has also struggled, hitting just .219. ''I hope it can get us going. I don't think Cincinnati is too far away.''

Los Angeles stands 10 1-2 games behind the Reds.

The Cubs are looking to recapture a little former magic themselves. But the defending NL East champs, buried in fifth place and 12 games under .500, are finding it tough.

''We've had a lot of tough losses this year,'' Assenmacher said. ''It's hard to put your finger on any particular one that's the toughest, but this was definitely one of them.''

-- AROUND THE NL --

Elsewhere in the National League: Cincinnati edged Montreal 2-0, New York bombed Houston 12-0, Philadelphia ripped Atlanta 5-1, San Francisco blanked St. Louis 4-0 and Pittsburgh downed San Diego 5-3.

Reds 2, Expos 0

At Montreal, Tom Browning and Randy Myers combined on a three-hitter and Glenn Braggs hit a home run to lift Cincinnati. Browning, 8-5, walked two and struck out four over 8 1-3 innings. Myers escaped a bases-loaded jam to earn his 16th save. Zane Smith, 4-6, took the loss.

Phillies 5, Braves 1

At Philadelphia, Dickie Thon singled in two runs and Jeff Parrett won his first career start to pace the Phillies. Parrett, 3-6, gave up one unearned run and four hits, striking out five over five innings. Dennis Cook pitched one-hit ball over four innings for his first career save. Atlanta starter Marty Clary dropped to 1-4.

Mets 12, Astros 0

At New York, Frank Viola became the National League's first 12-game winner and Darryl Strawberry slammed two of New York's four home runs to lead the Mets. Viola, 12-3, struck out five and walked three en route to his fifth complete game. Houston starter Mark Portugal, 2-8, lasted only four innings.

Giants 4, Cardinals 0

At San Francisco, Trevor Wilson tossed a five-hitter and Robby Thompson drove in three runs to power the Giants. Wilson, 5-0, walked two and struck out three. Bob Tewksbury, 3-1, took the loss, allowing three runs - one earned - and seven hits in six innings.

Pirates 5, Padres 3

At San Diego, R.J. Reynolds singled home the go-ahead run with one out in ninth inning to send Pittsburgh to its fourth straight win and the Padres to their seventh straight loss. Bill Landrum, 3-1, worked two innings for the victory. Craig Lefferts dropped to 5-4.

BACOLOD, PHILIPPINES (JULY 4) UPI - Police investigators questioned the wife of kidnapped Peace Corps volunteer Timothy Swanson Wednesday in a bid to identify the armed guerrillas who seized him three weeks ago, military officials said.

The officials said police brought with them an artist from the National Bureau of Investigation in Manila to try to sketch a portrait of the three men who abducted Swanson from his Patag village home in Negros island June 13.

Tuesday, Swanson's Philippine wife, Merle, appealed in a radio broadcast to the communist New People's Army guerrillas to release her husband, a 26-year-old agro-forestry expert from Cheyenne, Wyo., who arrived in the Philippines two years ago.

Swanson was the second foreigner in the past five weeks to be kidnapped in Negros, 300 miles south of Manila.

Fumio Mizuno, 36, a training director of a Tokyo-based private organization helping rural farmers in Negros, was abducted by guerrillas May 29. He remains under rebel custody.

Merle Swanson, 31, a school teacher, said the guerrillas armed with rifles told her they were ''borrowing'' her husband for a discussion in the forest. He has not been seen since.

The wife said she later received a letter from Swanson asking her not to tell anyone about the kidnapping.

She said she went to authorities after she learned of Washington's decision June 27 to suspend the 29-year-old Peace Corps program in the Philippines and recall the 261 volunteers following information the guerrillas threatened to kill or kidnap them.

U.S. officials said they learned of Swanson's kidnapping while trying to contact the volunteers about the withdrawal.

The 19,000-member NPA has been waging a 21-year insurgency against the Manila government.

At least 10 Americans have been killed in the Philippines in the past three years in incidents blamed on the guerrillas, who have vowed to attack more U.S. nationals unless Washington withdraws its forces from the country.

(JULY 4) UPI- Kevin Tapani is making a name for himself at the expense of some of the American League's elite pitchers.

Tapani squared off with Roger Clemens and the Boston Red Sox and came away the victor Tuesday night, pitching 7 1-3 strong innings to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 7-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

In his last four starts, the right-hander has drawn starts against Bret Saberhagen (twice), Nolan Ryan and Roger Clemens, three of the AL's premier pitchers. He beat Saberhagen on June 17 and 22. And after losing to Ryan last Wednesday, outdueled Clemens.

''I don't really see myself as up against other pitchers, just teams,'' said Tapani, 9-5. ''Maybe when the season's over it will be kind of neat to look back and see who I beat, but right now I'm still just trying to get established.''

The Twins, who've beaten the Red Sox six of seven times this year, also defeated Clemens for the first time in the Metrodome. Clemens entered the game looking for his seventh win in seven career starts there.

''If I can take an opposing pitcher into the eighth, I always think we've got a shot,'' Clemens said. ''I thought we were going to get some runs tonight, that we were going to come on late in the game, so I knew we had a chance.''

Tapani limited the Red Sox' chances, allowing one run and seven hits. He walked only one and struck out four en route to the victory.

''(Tapani) had a good fast ball, all his pitches were working for him,'' said Twins Manager Tom Kelly. ''He did a super job. It's too early to really judge what kind of a year he's having, he's only been up a half a year. But he's given us a good, solid effort every time out.''

''Their kid is a really good pitcher,'' said Red Sox Manager Joe Morgan. ''He looked like he ran out of gas there for an inning, but he really baffled us for the rest of the game.

''You look at his record and you see that he has more hits than innings pitched, so you think he's going to be a slinger, but he really was getting both sides of the plate tonight.''

Elsewhere in the AL, Oakland blanked Milwaukee 5-0, Detroit outlasted Chicago 13-7, Cleveland ripped Seattle 9-4, Toronto topped California 5-2, Texas dusted Baltimore 7-2, and Kansas City trashed New York 6-1.

ATHLETICS 5, BREWERS O

At Milwaukee, Curt Young and three relievers combined on a seven-hitter and Willie Randolph drove in two runs to help Oakland regain first place in the AL West and hand the Brewers their fifth straight loss. Young, 4-2, making his first start since June 18, allowed six hits in 5 1-3 innings. The left-hander struck out one and walked one to improve his career record against Milwaukee to 5-0. Bill Krueger took the loss and dropped to 4-4.

Tigers 13, White Sox 7

At Chicago, Cecil Fielder hit his major league-leading 27th home run and added an RBI single while Lou Whitaker matched a career-high with five RBI leading Detroit. Edwin Nunez, 3-0, worked 1 1-3 innings of relief for the win. Jerry Don Gleaton picked up his second save. Eric King, 8-2, gave up eight hits and seven runs over 3 2-3 innings, ending a personal four-game winning streak.

Indians 9, Mariners 4

At Cleveland, Mitch Webster drove in three runs and Chris James added two RBI to help the Indians snap the Mariners' five-game winning streak. Al Nipper, 2-1, was the winner. Matt Young, 2-9, lost his third straight.

Blue Jays 5, Angels 2

At Toronto, Junior Felix and Tony Fernandez hit back-to-back triples in a three-run fifth inning to lead Toronto. Todd Stottlemyre, 9-7, matched a career-high with eight strikeouts for the win and Tom Henke got his 14th save. Burt Blyleven, 7-5, was the loser.

Rangers 7, Orioles 2

At Arlington, Jack Daugherty doubled twice and scored two runs to back up a complete game from Bobby Witt. Witt, 5-8, allowed six hits and struck out seven. John Mitchell dropped to 0-2.

Royals 6, Yankees 1

At Kansas City, Bo Jackson went 3-for-4 with a home run and Steve Farr combined with three relievers on a four-hitter. Farr, 6-3, yielded one run and four hits over 5 1-3 innings. Jeff Montgomery registered the final five outs for his eighth save. Tim Leary's seventh straight loss dropped him to 3-11.

(JULY 4) UPI - Much of the nation sizzled Wednesday on a firecracker-hot Fourth of July as temperatures pushed into the triple digits across the Southwest, and officials in drought-parched California worried about the threat of new forest fires.

Although some large thunderstorms whipped Arizona and New Mexico, most of the West enjoyed clear and hot weather on Independence Day, with temperatures reaching toward the 100s across the desert Southwest and Southern Plains.

However, sunshine and warmth in California were not necessarily good news as officials warned the record dry weather and holiday fireworks were a potentially explosive mix in the region stricken by a four-year drought.

Karen Carroll of the State Department of Forestry said this year is the driest in many years, and ''things that wouldn't have started a fire five years ago will start one today.''

An arson-ignited blaze that destroyed hundreds of homes and killed a woman in the canyons above Santa Barbara, Calif., was finally declared out Tuesday, and cooler weather aided firefighters battling wildfires from Alaska to Texas.

Thunderstorms, some containing heavy rain, moved through parts of east Texas and southwestern Arkansas toward Louisiana early Wednesday. A funnel cloud toppled trees near the east Texas town of Woodville late Tuesday.

A band of thunderstorms swept from South Dakota into Minnesota early Wednesday, but a high-pressure system kept weather clear across much of the Midwest as temperatures reached into the 90s.

High pressure also kept much of the South hot and dry. Isolated thundershowers dampened parts of Mississippi, Alabama, Florida and Georgia.

Early morning temperatures across the South ranged from 81 in Miami to 77 in Atlanta, 76 in Charleston, S.C., and 74 in Knoxville, Tenn.

Warm air streamed toward New England from the upper Midwest. Temperatures built into the upper 60s and early 70s by 2 a.m. Wednesday - a good 20 degrees above temperatures recorded 24 hours earlier.

Cloudy skies prevailed over the six-state region as Boston rose to a muggy 74 degrees. In northern New England, Burlington, Vt., warmed to 71 and Portland, Maine, stood at 74.

Fair skies were reported over Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and southern New Jersey early Wednesday, with lows in the 70s in most areas. Lows in the 60s were reported in portions of western Maryland and West Virginia.

MOSCOW (JULY 4) UPI - Radicals and conservatives squared off Wednesday in a fierce debate over the fate of the Communist Party, with a state farm chairman warning that peasants are ''nauseated by excessive pluralism.''

In another development, Deputy Premier Leonid Abalkin told reporters during a break in the 28th Party Congress that communists risk being relegated to the sidelines as an opposition party if they do not accept the end of monopoly rule.

And Moscow party chief Yuri Prokofiev told the conclave's 4,683 delegates Wednesday that Soviet communists face three stark choices: a return to authoritarian methods, rapid democratization or a split among rival factions.

But the conservatives who dominate the Congress resumed their offensive against Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's ''perestroika'' reform drive as the pivotal gathering began its third day of work.

Anatoli Porochikov, a state farm director from Penza in the Volga River basin said ''a front of so-called perestroika forces'' is trying to destroy the Communist Party.

''The peasantry is already nauseated by excessive pluralism and so-called democracy,'' he said to deafening applause.

Porochikov, decrying the proliferation of political rallies under Gorbachev's ''glasnost'' policy, said farmers in the provinces are angry because they must feed themselves plus ''17 other people walking around with posters and blaming everything on the party.''

In surprise moves Tuesday, Gorbachev's two closest allies said they will give up their seats on the Politburo, indicating the body's diminishing ability to rule over the country and hastening the transfer of power away from the Communist Party.

Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Presidential Council adviser Alexander Yakovlev, who is widely viewed as the architect of Gorbachev's ''perestroika'' drive, said they would leave the Politburo - the center of world communism for more than seven decades.

The disclosures by the two senior officials dramatized the growing weight of Gorbachev's new presidential system and the crumbling authority of the communist bosses who have ruled the country unchallenged since shortly after the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution.

The official government newspaper Izvestia published a poll showing only 28 percent of those surveyed believe the current party congress, which resumed debate Wednesday, can help solve their country's economic crisis and other problems.

Gorbachev, speaking to reporters in the rain outside the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses during a break in Tuesday's session, repeated his assertion that the Communist Party must learn to compete in a multi-party system.

''There will be other parties, and we must collaborate,'' Gorbachev said. ''We must share our experiments and our work. Some people try to find answers in the past, but there are no answers there - only lessons. It is impossible to live anymore the way we lived before.''

Gorbachev faced the first test of his popularity among the 4,683 delegates to the congress when the assembled communist activists from around the Soviet Union voted on his proposed chairmanship of the rules committee, which will make many of the key decisions shaping the party's future.

The tally of 3,166 for Gorbachev and 1,046 against, with 120 abstentions, indicated he still commands wide support but faces sizable opposition to his five-year tenure as general secretary.

There are now 12 full members of the Politburo, long the country's ruling body and an inner sanctum of power rarely pierced by publicity.

Lev Zaikov, another reformist on the Politburo, announced last week he would resign from the party core, whose less frequent meetings have been increasingly downplayed by the Soviet media since the creation of an executive presidency and Presidential Council in March.

Gorbachev told the party conclave Tuesday that Politburo members Nikolai Slyunkov and Vitaly Vorotnikov also had asked to be relieved of their posts.

Gorbachev said Slyunkov, a 61-year-old Byelorussian, had been hospitalized with a serious illness and that Vorotnikov, 64, former premier of the giant Russian republic, was approaching retirement age.

As the delegates met Tuesday in the cavernous Kremlin hall, several thousand people gathered in Gorky Park for a rally organized by radical communists who predicted a mass exodus from the party after the current conclave.

Alternate Politburo member Georgy Razumovsky told the congress that 136,000 communists left the party in 1989 and the figure would be ''much higher'' this year.

The conservatives, who still dominate the present gathering of party activists, flexed their muscles in a symbolically charged vote at the congress.

Delegates, showing their clear opposition to radical change, voted overwhelmingly to change the name of an economic policy committee and deleted a reference to ''transition to a market economy.''

Nikolai Kruchin, the party's chief accountant, noted in a speech to the congress that many Soviets are calling for the Communist Party to give up its vast amounts of property, buildings, institutes and other holdings.

''All these attempts have one goal: to weaken the Soviet Communist Party, deprive it of its material foundation and make it unable to participate in political battles,'' Krunchin said to wild applause.

(JULY 4) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... U-P-I has the latest news, next:

The town of Kennebunkport, Maine, moved its Fourth of July fireworks up a day to last night to accomodate President Bush, who leaves for London tomorrow evening. The president has spent the past two days boning up for the NATO summit tomorrow and Friday. He told reporters Tuesday NATO members support his approach to revamping the alliance and that he'll discuss with them a shift in nuclear defense policy.

NO holiday for NASA engineers. They'll work through the Fourth of July... gearing up for crucial tests to pinpoint the source of hydrogen fuel leaks that've grounded the shuttle fleet. NASA's associate administrator for space flight, William Lenoir, says it might take another two weeks to resolve the problem. He says he does NOT expect the shuttle fleet to be out of action much longer. However, the NASA official told reporters Tuesday- quote- ''If I'm here in two months eating crow, please bring some pepper.''

Soviet President Gorbachev faced the first test of his popularity at the Communist Party Congress yesterday when delegates voted on his proposed chairmanship of the rules committee. The committee will make many of the key decisions shaping the party's future. (JULY 4) UPI - In New York, some of the jurors who acquitted a Brooklyn man yesterday of one murder charge in last August's killing of a black teen-ager told reporters they did NOT regard the slaying as racially motivated. John Vento was the third of eight young white men to be tried in the murder of 16-year-old Yusuf Hawkins. Jurors were UNable to reach a verdict on a second murder charge, so the judge declared a mistrial and ordered Vento retried later in the year.

An apparent suicide pact has left a 19-year-old man dead and his 13-year-old live-in girlfriend in critical condition. Authorities near Portland, Oregon, say the couple put their heads together and fired a single shot from a .357 Magnum. The incident took place Monday night after the pair kidnapped and then released a car salesman during a test drive.

WASHINGTON (JULY 4) UPI - A federal prisoner was placed in special detention immediately before the November 1988 election so he could not tell reporters about selling marijuana to Dan Quayle when the vice president was in college in the 1970s, it was reported Wednesday.

The Washington Post reported that Bureau of Prisons Director J. Michael Quinlan ordered inmate Brett C. Kimberlin lodged in a special detention cell at the Federal Correctional Institute in El Reno, Okla., on Nov. 4, 1988, and again three days later.

The Post said Bureau of Prisons regional counsel Carolyn A. Sabol confirmed the detentions but said Kimberlin was initially detained because he planned to ''misuse the telephone'' and violate prison rules regarding news media contacts.

Kimberlin was returned to his cell Nov. 5 but on Nov. 7, the morning before the election, was again detained to keep him from calling reporters gathered in a Washington hotel to hear his story, the newspaper said, quoting a confirmation letter from Sabol.

Kimberlin, in a lawsuit filed in federal court in Washington, accused Quinlan and former Justice Department Loye W. Miller Jr. of conspiring to keep him quiet to protect the Republican campaign ticket of George Bush and Quayle.

Kimberlin called several news organizations during the waning days of the campaign to say he had smoked marijuana with Quayle at a fraternity party in Bloomington, Ind., in 1971 and sold him the drug more than a dozen times in the next few years.

Kimberlin never offered any corroboration for his claim and no major news organization printed it, the newspaper said.

Quayle's news secretary, David Beckwith, told The Post on Tuesday: ''The vice president has never used marijuana or, to his knowledge, met Brett Kimberlin.''

Kimberlin is serving 50 years for drug smuggling and participating in 1978 bombings at Speedway, Ind., earning him the nickname of ''the Speedway Bomber.''

The lawsuit said Quinlan and Miller ''intentionally caused ... Kimberlin to be placed repeatedly into detention for the purpose of stifling his attempts to communicate with the press about a matter of public interest and for the purpose of retaliating against Kimberlin for such attempts,'' said Washington attorney Howart T. Rosenblatt, who represents the prisoner.

The newspaper said Kimberlin's press contacts were monitored by Bush-Quayle campaign leaders because of several media inquiries and because Kimberlin's treatment at El Reno had been reported in several publications and raised questions about his constitutional rights.

Bureau of Prisons spokesman Greg Bogden declined comment on the report Tuesday because he had not received a copy of the suit. But Sabol, in a June 19 letter to Rosenblatt in which she denied an earlier complaint by Kimberlin, said the detentions were ''according to applicable Bureau of Prisons policy.''

The lawsuit contends Quinlan intervened on Nov. 4 after learning that officials at El Reno had given permission for Kimberlin to hold a news conference because he was being ''beseiged'' by reporters. Quinlan canceled the news conference and ordered Kimberlin's detention - a move Sabol said was to ''protect his physical safety.''

The Post said Sabol said Kimberlin was detained on information from Miller who she said was told by National Public Radio reporter Nina Totenberg that she had talked to Kimberlin on the telephone and ''feared for his safety.''

But Totenburg told The Post Sabol's claim was ''absolutely, categorically untrue.'' She said ''It is very clear to me they were looking for an excuse'' to keep Kimberlin from talking.

Miller, now a spokesman for the Northrop Corp., declined comment.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (JULY 4) UPI - The government Wednesday acknowledged widespread revulsion and temporarily suspended plans to club 30,000 seal pups and pierce their hearts, only hours after rejecting appeals and threats from animal rights lobbies.

But the Seal Action Group, which with other lobbies Tuesday promised protests and passive resistance if the seal harvest went ahead, branded the suspension a ''stalling measure'' and said demonstrations will not be called off until the plan is canceled.

The seals were to be stunned by clubbing and killed by a stab to the heart for their genitals to be used as an aphrodisiac, the meat as pet food and the skin for gloves and bags.

The Taiwanese-sponsored cull was to begin July 15 as one of a series of harvests until 1994 that could claim as many as 100,000 pups.

''In the light of misgivings about the procedure, the culling will be temporarily suspended,'' Environmental Affairs Minister Gert Kotze said in a statement from Lisbon, where he is visiting.

Kotze said, ''The original decision on the killing of the seals was taken after I had considered all relevant facts based on scientific findings and advice. The whole idea ... is to manage the marine environment properly.''

A spokeswoman for SAG called Kotze's move ''nothing more than a stalling measure. It doesn't satisfy us at all and we have no intention of abandoning our protest plans until he cancels this thing in its entirety.''

Authorities granted a Taiwanese consortium a five-year contract to harvest seals for commercial exploitation. The group intended to kill the seals during three months beginning in mid-July and process the carcasses at the site in the western fishing town of Port Nolloth for export to the Orient.

Animal-loving French actress Brigitte Bardot sent a passionate letter Tuesday to President Frederik de Klerk offering to pay for the lives of the seals.

Local animal-rights activists earlier sent an ultimatum to Kotze, vowing to mount protests and stage non-violent resistance such as standing between the clubbers and the pups.

The message said every Western country has banned seal-clubbing, which continues at the rate of thousands a year on South Africa's west and south coasts, and said the slaughter ''will badly tarnish our country's international reputation.''

But Kotze denied bowing to public pressure. ''This is not backtracking at all, but it's fair toward the public and conservationists to consider their objections and I want time to do this.''

The Department of Environmental Affairs had Tuesday ignored the animal-rights lobbies' demands and issued a statement justifying the cull on environmental grounds.

The statement cited ''strong evidence'' seals are causing a decline in numbers of jackass penguins and bank cormorants and said the animals are a pest to the fishing industry and ''must ... be seen as competitors'' threatening jobs and income.

The statement did not mention major objections of the pro-seals activists to the plan, including the processing and export of the creatures' genitals as an aphrodisiac, the large number of pups involved and the method of killing.

The government last year granted a Taiwanese consortium headed by Jiuh Weh Industries the right to cull for commercial use an unspecified number of seals until 1994, a Department of Sea Fisheries researcher said, noting up to 100,000 seals could be slaughtered.

Sea Fisheries official Pieter le Roux confirmed ''a prime purpose'' of the culling is to extract the genitals.

SAN ANTONIO (JULY 4) UPI - A national broadcast organization has condemned Supreme Court Justice Byron White's refusal to postpone a jail sentence for television reporter Brian Karem, who has refused to reveal a source.

Meanwhile, the general manager and managing editor of Karem's station, KMOL-TV in San Antonio, released a statement Tuesday calling for the reporter's release, charging attorneys with ''meaningless legal maneuvering'' and calling the case an ''abusive power play'' between a defense attorney and Bexar County prosecutors.

White denied Karem's request to stay the six-month sentence state District Judge Pat Priest imposed when he found Karem in contempt of court for refusing to reveal who arranged an interview with an accused murderer of a police officer.

''Locking up reporters for refusing to cooperate with the police smacks of totalitarianism,'' said David Bartlett, president of the Radio-Television News Directors Association.

Bartlett said attempts by police, prosecutors and politicians to intimidate reporters and keep the public in the dark are nothing new. ''But rarely have the courts allowed themselves to be made co-conspirators in such a dangerous violation of individual liberty and the public's right to know.''

Karem was charged with contempt for not turning over notes that would reveal who helped arrange a telephone interview with jail inmate Henry David Hernandez, who was arrested for the March 1989 shooting death of a San Antonio police officer.

Hernandez, whose brother Julian also was charged, told Karem the crime was committed in self-defense.

A statement signed by General Manager Bob Donohue and Forrest Carr, managing editor of KMOL, charged Hernandez' lawyer, Mark Stevens, with backing Karem's sentence to force a delay in the trial.

''What is the most fundamental of all defense tactics?'' the statement read. ''Answer: to delay the trial. From Mr. Stevens' standpoint, the worst thing that could happen would be for Brian to give up his rights and end the controversy, thus taking away Stevens' best mechanism for obfuscation and delay.''

The statement also accused District Attorney Fred Rodriguez and his assistant, Beth Taylor, of using Karem's notes to obscure a weak case.

''If they fail to win a guilty verdict against the Hernandez brothers, or in the event of a guilty verdict fail to win a stiff sentence, they have a ready-made scapegoat as long as Brian refuses to cooperate,'' the statement read.

Calls to Stevens at his office were not returned. Taylor is on vacation.

Ric Navarro, chief of the civil division of the district attorney's office said Karem was responsible for his own plight.

''He is the one who created the situation,'' said Navarro.

EVERETT, WASH (JULY 4) UPI - A pediatrician won a $3.3 million lawsuit against the manufacturer of an anti-asthma drug he said caused permanent brain damage in a young patient.

Dr. James Klicpera won the judgment Tuesday in Snohomish County Superior Court from the Fisons Corp.

Klicpera prescribed one of Fison's drugs, theophylline, to Jennifer Pollack, 3, who suffered permanent brain damage after taking the muscle relaxant.

Fisons settled earlier with the parents for $6.9 million and Klicpera's insurance company paid the parents $500,000.

Klicpera said he filed suit against Fisons ''to bring the details of this drug out into the open.''

Company attorneys could not be reached for comment.

Klicpera's attorney, Joel Cunningham, argued during the five-week trial that Fisons failed to properly warn doctors of the drug's hazards.

Lawyers for the drug company countered that the girl's brain damage resulted from medical mistreatment because she was given an unsafe dose of the drug.

Klicpera said no doctors in Snohomish County received a letter mailed in the mid-1980s by Fisons to physicians warning that the drug could cause severe seizures and possible brain damage in patients with a viral infection or fever.

He said Fisons mailed the letter to fewer than 2,000 doctors nationwide.

BOSTON (JULY 4) UPI - Jurors in the trial of a Christian Science couple charged in the death of their young son received their second definition of manslaughter in 24 hours Wednesday, then began their second full day of deliberations.

The 14-member jury requested another clarification of the circumstances under which they could convict David and Ginger Twitchell of manslaughter at the close of deliberations Tuesday evening. Judge Sandra Hamlin, who answered the same request at midday Tuesday, repeated her explanation.

The parents are on trial for failing to provide conventional medical treatment to their 2 1/2-year-old son, Robyn, who died of a bowel obstruction in April 1986. Instead, the couple chose their faith's spiritual healing.

Hamlin again told the panel that convicting the Twitchells would require a determination that the couple was negligent and reckless in denying their son conventional medical treatment and that such behavior led to his death.

Prosecutors say the couple was negligent for allowing Robyn to die after a five-day illness and violated the boy's own religious freedom by deciding which god he should die for.

Defense lawyers portray the former Boston couple, who now live in New York as ''loving parents'' guilty of no more than a tragic mistake for not realizing the child's ''flu-like symptoms'' would lead to his death.

The case has pitted the couple's First Amendment right to freedom of religion against the state's right to protect young children from neglect or abuse.

The defense contends the parents are protected by a 1971 Massachusetts law that prohibits prosecution of people such as Christian Scientists who eschew modern medicine and use ''spiritual means alone'' to treat their ill children.

The Boston-based First Church of Christ, Scientist, has closely monitored the case, taking out full-page advertisements in major newspapers at the trial's outset asking, ''Why is prayer being prosecuted in Boston?''

VILLERS-BOCAGE, FRANCE (JULY 4) UPI - Laurent Fignon's bid for a third Tour de France title came to an end Wednesday on the rainy roads of Normandy, where the ailing Frenchman was forced to abandon the race.

Fignon had completed 77 miles of the fifth stage between Avranches and Rouen when he threw in the towel.

''After 30 kilometers (19 miles), he was hurting more and more,'' said Cyrille Guimard, sports director of Fignon's Castorama team.

''The pain was reaching a peak. It was impossible for him to continue to Rouen, where he would have had a day to recuperate.''

The withdrawal is just the latest in a series of misfortunes for the 30-year-old Parisian, who lost last year's Tour de France by eight seconds on the final day heroics of American Greg LeMond.

Fignon injured his back in a fall during the Tour of Italy earlier this year, and was not believed to be at full strength coming into the French classic.

In the opening stages, Fignon was victimized by two more falls. On the Poitiers-Nantes stage Monday, he injured his right calf muscle in a fall. And Tuesday, on the approach to Mont St. Michel, he was in another group that collided on a narrow curve.

Fignon was in 47th place, more than 11 minutes behind overall leader Steve Bauer of Canada when he quit the race.

''This is a tough blow for him,'' Guimard said. ''He's going to have a tough time getting over it.

''It's been a bad year for Laurent. He's been unlucky.''

TOKYO (JULY 4) UPI - Japan announced Wednesday it will refuse to participate in any financial aid package for the Soviet Union when the leaders of the seven leading industrialized nations meet in Houston next week.

French President Francois Mitterrand and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl are expected to push for a major aid package for Moscow at the economic summit in Houston that starts Monday.

''The Japanese government holds great reservations toward Soviet aid,'' said Noboru Hatakeyama, a senior official in the Ministry of International Trade and Industry.

A 45-year-old territorial dispute between Tokyo and Moscow is the main obstacle blocking Japan's participation in economic assistance to the Soviets, Hatakeyama said.

''There is no way for Japan to give the Soviet Union aid until this (territorial) matter is solved,'' Hatakeyama told a news conference for foreign journalists.

The dispute over a group of islands in the Kuril archipelago has prevented Japan and the Soviet Union from signing a peace treaty to formally end World War II.

Kohl, who has committed his government to a $2.9 billion bank credit for Moscow, is expected to ask the summit leaders to join him ''to help the Soviet Union help itself.''

Japan will say it is willing to send experts to advise Moscow on economic reform and will agree to giving the Soviets observer status in the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade, an international trade organization, Hatakeyama said.

''In these measures we would be ready to support (Soviet President Mikhail) Gorbachev's perestroika,'' he said.

President Bush opposes major U.S. aid to the Soviet Union until it embraces a market economy.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is expected to join Japan in opposing major aid for Moscow, saying the Soviets must first fully embrace capitalism.

Japan also cites doubts about the health of the Soviet economy as a basis for withholding aid.

''We do not know where our resources are going,'' said Hatakeyama. ''It might be too premature to see where the Soviet economy is headed, and therefore, we would hesitate at providing financial aid.''

KUALA LUMPUR, MALAYSIA (JULY 4) UPI - Skeletons of several women were found among those said to have been the remains of up to 30 U.S. soldiers discovered on a boat carrying Vietnamese refugees.

U.S Embassy press information officer Mary Allen Gilroy said, ''It had been determined that some of the remains were those of women but we are unable to provide an exact figure.''

A three-man forensic team from the army's Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii made the findings when they were in Kuala Lumpur on June 16 and 17, she said.

The team included a forensic anthropologist and a photograher.

The Pentagon announced June 29 that the forensic experts determined the bones found aboard the refugee boat were those of Southeast Asians, not U.S. servicemen as the refugees claimed.

The boat, carrying nine Vietnamese refugees, left Vietnam May 30 and was discovered with a leak June 11 on a beach at Kota Tinggi, in the southern state of Johor.

The refugees had intended to hand over the remains to the U.S. Embassy in Singapore in the hope they could gain entry into the U.S. and also obtain a monetary reward.

Aboard the vessel were seven barrels of bones the refugees, ages 18 to 56, claimed were the remains of U.S. servicemen from the Vietnam war.

The 52-foot-long vessel had ''USA remains in my boat'' and ''this boat has USA Army remains'' written across the side.

In addition, the refugees turned over 27 U.S. identification ''dog tags'' which the embassy said did not match those on the Defense Department's list of 2,302 missing servicemen.

''The remains are still here but the embassy had yet to receive instructions about further action from the State Department or the Department of Defense, Gilroy said.

''In previous cases the remains would be repatriated to the country of origin or assumed origin,'' she added. ''However, I would not like to speculate on this case as each case is handled individually.''

The embassy received many such cases since the war ended in 1975 but out of these, only one proved to be legitimate, she said.

ATHENS, GREECE (JULY 4) UPI - The Lebanese Hezbollah group Wednesday accused Saudi police of firing on Moslem pilgrims in a tunnel near the holy city of Mecca, leading to a stampede that caused 1,426 deaths, and Iranian President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani said Saudi Arabia must answer for the incident.

Saudi officials have said the pilgrims died in the pedestrian tunnel when 50,000 people jammed inside, when the ventilation system reportedly failed. Saudi King Fahd said the tragedy might have been averted if the pilgrims had followed safety rules, while calling the deaths ''God's will.''

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted the Tehran newspaper Abrar as saying the Saudi account of what happened was falsified. Abrar called on Islamic authorities elsewhere in the world to send a fact-finding mission to Mecca to investigate.

A broadcast by the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God, monitored in Beirut said Saudi police trapped pilgrims in the tunnel near Mecca Monday after a demonstration inside, tossing smoke bombs and firing on the crowd.

''Saudi policemen blocked the tunnel after pilgrims formed a demonstration inside and raised slogans,'' the broadcast said, adding the trapped pilgrims then cried for help.

Quoting unidentified African pilgrims, the radio said the Saudi police tried to corner the pilgrims in one place to stop the demonstration, and after a fierce quarrel with the pilgrims, they tossed smoke bombs into the tunnel and opened fire.

The broadcast described the incident as a ''deliberate massacre.''

There was no immediate response from Saudi Arabia on the allegation.

In Zanjan, Iran, Rafsanjani said the Mecca tragedy was a ''bitter disaster and not so easily acceptable because those responsible for administering the holy shrines must answer to the Islamic world about this.''

Rafsanjani, speaking to reporters before the Hezbollah broadcast, said the Islamic world ''must give fundamental thought to the security of the holy shrines'' in Mecca.

Tehran newspapers also published editorials slamming the Saudi authorities for incompetence and calling on the Islamic clergy around the world to relieve the Saudi government of the responsibilities of administering the holy shrines.

Since July 1987, when Saudi police opened fire on demonstrating pilgrims in Mecca, killing more than 400, Iran has called for the shrines to be administered by an independent Islamic authority to be set up by the rest of the Moslem world.

Prince Nayef ibn Abdul Aziz had said the tunnel deaths occurred after about 50,000 pilgrims jammed in the walkway that leads to Mount Arafat near Mecca.

Reports from Riyadh said the tragedy was triggered when seven pilgrims fell from a packed bridge near one end of the tunnel. Panicked pilgrims retreated into the air-conditioned tunnel and collided with waves of others pushing through the other end.

Reportedly, the tunnel's ventilation system failed.

Saudi television showed hundreds of white-robed victims piled on one another on the floor of the tunnel.

Indonesia said at least 47 of its citizens, among a record 82,000 from that country making the pilgrimage, were killed in the incident. In Kuala Lumpur, officials said 19 Malaysian pilgrims were killed, including 12 women and seven men.

Doctors in Mecca speaking anonymously said the victims included Egyptians and Pakistanis.

The pilgrimage to Mecca is a trip every Moslem is expected to make at least once if he or she is financially and physically able. Pilgrims must pass through the tunnel to reach Mount Arafat, about 8 miles from Mecca, where the Prophet Mohammed, the founder of Islam, delivered his last sermon 14 centuries ago.

VIENNA (JULY 4) UPI - Albania is prepared to grant 15,000 exit visas immediately and is considering throwing open its borders to halt a stampede of refugees seeking asylum at foreign embassies, French diplomats said Wednesday.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said a large crowd of Albanians massed in downtown Tirana, Albania's capital, for the second day but there were no fresh attempts to enter foreign embassies, where at least 200 Albanians have sought asylum recently.

Diplomats said asylum-seekers were huddled inside about a dozen foreign missions and requested safe passage out of the country. Dozens of security troops were deployed outside the embassies to guard against new defections.

Adding to the tension, a bomb exploded overnight on the grounds of the Cuban Embassy, shattering windows but causing no injuries, the official Albanian Telegraphic Agency reported.

''This ugly act cannot but arouse indignation and cause anger in our people, who find in it direct links with yesterday's events outside foreign embassies in the capital,'' the news agency said.

Diplomats and official sources said the rush to the embassies followed street battles earlier this week between demonstrators and security forces. ATA said police dispersed about 400 rock-throwing protesters outside a foreign embassy Monday.

The news agency said a number of people were arrested and there were injuries on both sides.

In Paris, French diplomatic sources said the Albanian government is ready to immediately grant 15,000 exit visas and is mulling opening its borders to anyone wishing to emigrate.

On Tuesday, the Albanian government described one group that tried to enter an embassy as ''vagabonds, former prisoners ... (and) some deceived adolescents.''

The hard-line Marxist government of Ramiz Alia also was reported to be considering abolishing the exit visas needed to leave the country.

The Albanian Parliament approved some sweeping human-rights reforms May 8 that included granting citizens the right to a passport. Tirana, which for 40 years imposed a virtual ban on foreign travel, said it has issued thousands of passports under the new law. It was not clear how many people actually were allowed to leave the country.

Tanjug, quoting ''well-informed sources,'' said changes would be made immediately in the Albanian political leadership, especially the Internal Affairs and National Security ministries, as a result of the disturbances.

An emergency plenum of the ruling Communist Party was expected to be held within two days to enact the changes, the news agency said.

Some Albanians who sought refuge in the Chinese Embassy were reportedly turned over to Albanian authorities, who promised the refugees would be given passports and allowed to leave the country.

In Bonn, a foreign ministry spokesman said one of 83 Albanians at the West German Embassy suffered a pierced lung in clashes with police, describing the wound as life-threatening.

The official said Albanian authorities refused to allow West German military aircraft to fly into the country to deliver emergency supplies and a special crisis team was considering chartering a civilian aircraft to fly in the supplies and personnel.

A diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity, said he had no reports of violence Tuesday and was unable to say what provoked disturbances that apparently began over the weekend.

In Bonn, West Germany, Foreign Ministry spokesman Hanns Schumacher said police Monday night shot at four people who were climbing over a wall leading to the West German Embassy compound, and one of them was treated for a leg wound at the embassy.

Schumacher said the Albanians in refuge included 84 at the West German

Embassy and 60 to 80 at the French, Greek and Italian missions. The diplomatic source requesting anonymity said some Albanians took refuge in the embassies of Algeria, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Schumacher said the West German Ministry called in Albanian Ambassador Shpetim Caushi to protest ''in the sharpest manner.''

''The situation is grave,'' he said. ''It affects German-Albanian relations.''

West Germany has demanded the refugees be given free passage out of the country.

BEIJING (JULY 4) UPI - Heavy rains and a typhoon killed 31 people and injured more than 100 in two south China provinces, the semi-official China News Service reported Wednesday.

From late June to July 2, torrential rains in inland Hunan province left 22 people dead. The storms flooded more than 140,000 acres of farmland and destroyed 4,430 buildings, the agency said.

The sixth typhoon of the year hit coastal Fujian province June 29, killing nine people and injuring more than 100. Two people were reported missing after heavy rains, China News Service said.

Altogether, at least 31 people were reported killed in the two provinces.

The three Fujian cities of Zhangzhou, Quanzhou and Putian were hit hard by the typhoon, which inundated more than 93,000 acres of crops and destroyed 6,650 buildings, the report said.

The latest reports brought the number of people killed in recent floods and storms during south China's annual rainy season to at least 415.

Heavy rain and floods in rural Hunan killed 254 people in June and left nearly 75,000 homeless. In south Fujian province, typhoon Ophelia left 22 people dead and 20 missing between June 20-25.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (JULY 4) UPI - The West German coalition government Wednesday followed the lead of the East Berlin government in agreeing that all-German elections will be held Dec. 2, but did not agree on electoral procedure.

Both German governments have said they want unification to be completed this year and have indicated they are prepared to drastically cut the number of German troops to ease Soviet fears of a united Germany.

Senior government sources said Tuesday that Chancellor Helmut Kohl, Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher and Defense Minister Gerhard Stoltenberg agreed that troop levels of a united Germany should be kept below 400,000.

Wednesday, the West German news agency DPA quoted a government source as saying the figure ''is still completely open'' but would be ''between 301,000 and 339,000.''

The forces of both German armies total about 600,000 troops.

West Germany is expected to discuss the proposal at the NATO meeting in London this week.

The sources said Tuesday the West German delegation will present a plan stipulating that no country in Central Europe have more troops under arms than the combined Soviet and U.S. troop strength in the region.

Moscow and Washington are widely expected to agree at Vienna negotiations to limit their troops to 195,000 each.

The West German proposal may help ease Soviet objections to Western plans for a united Germany's membership in NATO.

Meanwhile, the parties in the West German government coalition agreed Wednesday that all German elections should be held Dec. 2, the date originally set for West German national elections.

The parties in East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere's government reached similar agreement Tuesday after the West German government floated the proposal.

East and West German officials are expected to discuss the election date and electoral procedure when they meet Friday in East Berlin to prepare the final German unification treaty.

West German Interior Minister Wolfgang Schaueble said there was still no agreement over election procedure, which in part hinges on whether the two countries merge before or after the election.

Kohl's Christian Democratic Union has suggested East Germany join the West German Federal Republic immediately after the elections.

The Free Democratic Party, junior partner in the coalition, opposes the proposal because it would mean voting procedure would be different in West and East Germany.

West German voting laws include a clause that requires a party to obtain at least 5 percent of the vote to be represented in parliament. East Germany has no such requirement.

The first part of the unification agreement took effect Sunday when the inner-German borders were virtually thrown open and the West German currency replaced the virtually worthless East mark in East Germany.

LONDON (JULY 4) UPI - The 16 NATO leaders, who launch a two-day summit Thursday, seek to remold a Cold War alliance into a vibrant political grouping as the new Europe takes shape.

''It is time for the alliance to rethink its purpose,'' a senior official at NATO said on the eve of the meeting.

Four decades of military doctrines like ''forward defense'' and ''flexible response'' are being reviewed in light of the past year's dramatic collapse of the Warsaw Pact and Eastern European nations' initiation of democracies.

U.S. President George Bush this week proposed making nuclear arms the ''weapons of last resort'' in Europe, moving away from NATO policy of early nuclear use to repel a conventional attack.

The heads of state are expected to issue a non-aggression declaration toward the Soviet Union as part of a Western effort to persuade the Soviets to accept NATO membership for a united Germany.

''You will get a very clear message about the peaceful intentions of our members,'' vowed NATO Secretary-General Manfred Woerner.

NATO leaders will also discuss whether to expand the talks on conventional forces in Europe (CFE), which focus on numbers of U.S. and Soviet troops, to include levels of European troops as well. The Soviet Union favors such a step.

The senior NATO official stressed, however, ''This summit is not being held to hectically meet a Soviet need, but because we think it's the right thing to do.''

''The discussions at the summit will set some very clear directions,'' he said of the meeting at stately Lancaster House, site of Queen Elizabeth II's 1953 coronation banquet.

The summit is billed as perhaps the most crucial in NATO's 41-year history determining whether the alliance retains a vital role in Europe's new order.

''NATO's continued existence is truly at stake,'' one top alliance diplomat said.

Many proposals have been floated politically to recast the alliance, including central roles for NATO in arms-control verification, environmental protection and drug-traffic control.

Woerner has received foreign ministers from Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia in recent weeks, and Bush this week proposed accrediting Soviet and East European diplomats to NATO.

''NATO countries are going to be spending a lot less money on defense. That's just a fact of life,'' says one top official, maintaining a key NATO political role is critical to retaining public support.

The United States, which wants to retain influence in Europe after its troop levels dwindle, is especially keen on NATO's continued vitality in a new era of relaxed East-West tensions.

France wants NATO's role to be restricted to security matters, leaving political chores to the 12-nation European Community and the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

The NATO summit follows a series of spring meetings involving the alliance's defense and foreign ministers.

''The threat from a united Warsaw Pact no longer exists,'' defense ministers concluded in May, after Bush scrapped plans to modernize aging nuclear artillery shells and Lance missiles in Europe.

A Bush proposal to unilaterally withdraw the 1,400 artillery shells is one item on the table in London.

Also up for review are the policies of ''forward defense,'' repulsion of a Soviet conventional attack at NATO's eastern borders and ''flexible response,'' the use of nuclear weapons to repulse an overwhelming Warsaw Pact conventional attack.

(JULY 4) UPI - In Moscow, radicals and conservatives are squaring off in a third day of debate over the fate of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union. One state farm chairman warned party delegates today that peasants are- as he put it- ''nauseated.'' And a deputy premier says Communists risk becoming an opposition party if they do NOT accept the end of monopoly rule.

A South African newspaper that recently reported on an alleged right-wing plot to kill Nelson Mandela and President De Klerk was itself targeted today. Police say an explosion rocked the offices of the liberal Afrikaans newspaper, causing ''fairly serious'' damage to the empty building. The blast in Johannesburg came hours after a white extremist group claimed responsibility for a string of urban bombings in the past week.

Six red, white and blue World War Two fighter planes will fly over lower Manhattan today as Macy's department store holds its 14th annual Fourth of July celebration. In Queens, neighbors of reputed mob boss John Gotti will be celebrating their independence at his annual July Fourth barbecue. But the Dapper Don's fireworks display usually keeps police from enjoying the holiday.

Today is NO holiday for NASA engineers at Cape Canaveral. The space agency is preparing for tests to pinpoint the source of crippling hydrogen fuel leaks that have grounded the nation's shuttle fleet. Officials say it may take another two weeks to resolve the problem... with at least one of the delayed shuttle flights expected to get off the ground before a scheduled October mission.

(JULY 4) UPI - West Germany says it will fly emergency supplies to its embassy in Albania, where more than 80 Albanians have taken refuge. But officials in Bonn say they waiting for Albania to O-K the shipments into the capital of Tirana. Diplomatic sources say as many as 200 Albanians- including one badly wounded by police gunfire- are holed up in various foreign embassies in Tirana.

South Africa is temporarily suspending plans to club and pierce the hearts of 30-thousand seal pups for use in pet food and other commercial ventures. Pretoria's environmental minister acknowledged what he called ''misgivings about the procedure'' in announcing the suspension today, saying he wants time to consider the objections. South Africa had granted a Taiwanese consortium a five-year contract to kill seals, despite international protest.

Samuel Doe may be looking at the end of his presidency in Liberia. Political sources say Doe has agreed in principle to resign... a decision made under pressure from close associates and as rebels battled his troops in Monrovia's suburbs. The sources say Doe was last seen staying near the U-S Embassy. But State Department officials in Washington say Doe has NOT yet asked for U-S help in getting out of his embattled country.

Scientists say depression may be the culprit behind the so-called ''yuppie flu.'' University of Washington researchers say they compared 26 people suffering from chronic fatigue syndrome... and found chronic depression to be a factor and NOT a common virus as previously suspected. Chronic fatigue has been called the yuppie flu because it often affects young professionals.

ROUEN, FRANCE (JULY 4) UPI - Canadian Steve Bauer remained in the overall lead in the 77th Tour de France Wednesday after a rainsoaked 187-mile stage through Normandy.

Gerrit Solleveld of Holland won the stage from Avranches to Rouen in a 60-mile breakaway, finishing in seven hours, 43 minutes, seven seconds.

During the stage, two-time Tour de France winner Laurent Fignon, ailing with a sore right leg, withdrew from the race. The 30-year-old Frenchman was injured in two falls in the previous two stages and was also suffering from a nagging back ailment from a fall in the Tour of Italy earlier this year.

Bauer, meanwhile, continued his strong riding to defend his lead, which he built in the first stage on a 10-minute breakaway with three other riders.

He ended the day with a 34-second lead over second-place Ronan Pensec of France.

The 31-year-old Canadian said he and his 7-Eleven team riders managed to limit Solleveld's margin Wednesday to about 4-1/2 minutes, enabling him to hold the overall lead.

''Solleveld was almost 10 minutes ahead at one point,'' Bauer said. ''You can't take chances. You have to defend the jersey. He ended up winning the stage, but he deserved it, and things worked out all right for me.''

Solleveld's victory put him into fifth place overall, but standings were otherwise little changed.

The Dutchman, who rides for the Buckler team made his move on a hill at the 126-mile mark near Lisieux, and was never caught. At the finish line in central Rouen, he slowed to raise his arms in a victory gesture.

''I built a good lead, and had the wind at my back,'' Solleveld said. ''I figured I could go all the way.''

Solleveld said he wasn't hindered by the cold, rainy conditions in the long Normandy stage.

''When it rains, most riders are cautious,'' he said. ''For me, it picks me up, and makes me want to attack. At the second food station, I made my move. I knew they would be slowing down behind.''

Fignon, meanwhile, ducked into a waiting car and hid his face from photographers. Cyrille Guimard, the sports director for Fignon's Castorama team, said, ''This is a tough blow for him. He's going to have a tough time getting over this.''

Bauer retained a big lead over his principal rivals. Mexican Raul Alcala finished the day in sixth place, 10:02 behind, while 1989 winner Greg LeMond was in 23rd place, 10:41 back.

Thursday, riders get their first non-riding day since the tour began, taking a plane to eastern France before Friday's 126-mile Sarrebourg-Vittel stage through the Moselle valley.

Friday's stage has four moderate climbs, a taste of the subsequent mountain stages in the Jura and Alps regions.

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA (JULY 4) UPI - Inflation in Colombia during the first six months of this year was 17.7 percent, the government reported Wednesday.

Inflation in June was 1.95 percent, compared to 1.37 percent in the same month a year ago, according to government figures.

The annual inflation rate reached 28.97 percent in June, the National Statistics Administration said.

The inflation surge was led by the health sector, where prices increased 3.35 percent in June, it said.

The government had hoped to contain inflation at 24 percent for this year.

OSLO, NORWAY (JULY 4) UPI - Oil production in the Norwegian sector of the North Sea crept up to 50 percent of the usual level Wednesday despite the third day of wildcat strikes.

A spokesman for the state-owned oil company Statoil said production during the preceeding 24 hours had exceeded 400,000 barrels of crude oil and was approaching 500,000, half of the normal figure.

The wildcat strikes broke out in three of Norway's four biggest fields, where the Oilworkers Collective Union is the leading union, after the Norwegian government introduced emergency legislation to halt a labor stoppage on Monday.

The union leaders, who called out their 4,000 members in a strike on Saturday after the collapse of a wage negotiation, urged them to obey the center-right government's decision to halt the strike. But some 1,000 rebellious workers instead went on a wildcat strike that has crippled the Norwegian oil industry.

Spokesmen from both the union and the employers' central organization said Wednesday they saw little hope of a negotiated settlement with the wildcat strikers, but the government said it would not use police against the workers.

''We have no tradition in Norway to justify the use of police against strikers,'' Regional Minister Johan Jakobsen, acting prime minister during Jan P. Syse's vacation, said Wednesday.

Jakobsen added police only would be used if the essential security on the oil platforms was threatened.

''An illegal strike remains a question to be solved by the workers and their employers. If either party seeks damages, that's a question for the courts,'' Jakobsen said.

Oil and gas production from the North Sea account for some 25 percent of Norway's income, bringing in approximately $23 million in taxation and interest revenue each day.

(JULY 4) UPI - Americans and admirers around the globe threw the United States a star-spangled 214th birthday party Wednesday, celebrating Independence Day with a special zest in a year when independence has taken on new meaning worldwide.

Traditional parades, fireworks and family barbeques vied for attention with such non-traditional commemorations as a cookout for the homeless in Washington, D.C., and a Fourth of July ceremony in communist Bulgaria.

Eager families began gathering by 6 a.m. for Boston's celebration, the annual evening Boston Pops concert along the Charles River capped by a 20-minute finale and 2 tons of fireworks.

In Philadelphia, where the Second Continental Congress adopted the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776, former President Jimmy Carter received the 1990 Philadelphia Liberty Award in recognition of his work since leaving office in promoting liberty at home and abroad.

Flocks of picnickers amassed on and around the Mall in Washington, D.C., for a day of festivities, starting with a noon parade along Constitution Avenue and topped off by a grand display of fireworks over the Lincoln Memorial, visible for miles around.

Nearby, Luther Place Church, a few blocks from the White House, staged a Fourth of July cookout for the homeless who live in a complex of group homes and shelters in the area.

The church's pastor, the Rev. John Steinbruck, said the Fourth of July barbeque was meant in part to keep public attention from wandering from the problem of homelessness.

''We're in a new ballgame now,'' he said of conflicts between the chuch and the neighborhood over efforts to help the homeless. ''We're now getting hostility instead of hospitality. The homeless are not romantic any more.''

Eastern Europeans experiencing their first Fourth of July free of domination by the Soviet Union joined in America's celebrations. In suburban New York, 14 East European editors were offered a taste of Independence Day in small-town U.S.A.

The guests, high-ranking editors from Poland, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and East Berlin, are in the New York area for 10-week internships with major American magazines, said Ruth Whitney, who hosted the party in Irvington, N.Y.

''We're having hamburgers, potato salad, ice cream, beer and wine - the usual - and they're all bringing Frisbees,'' Whitney said.

After a barbeque by Whitney's backyard pool, the group was to watch the annual Irvington fireworks display at a park by the Hudson River.

''It seems like the perfect place for them to spend their first Fourth of July,'' Whitney said.

Americans around the world - some living in nations where ''independence'' is still something to be won rather than celebrated - joined in spirit with the Fourth of July commemorations at home.

U.S. Ambassador Jack Matlock held an Independence Day reception in Moscow, drawing Yevgeny Primakov, a member of Mikhail Gorbachev's presidential council, and other Soviet officials, despite the continuing Communist Party Congress.

A big embassy bash in Beijing was washed out by torrential rain that began just as things were starting to hum to the music of a blues band led by an American correspondent.

After four decades of faithfully observing the anniversary of the 1917 Russian revolution, Bulgaria celebrated American independence for the first time with a ceremony at the national Palace of Culture under the theme, ''Bulgaria discovers America.''

The Bulgarians also hosted what they said was Eastern Europe's first-ever baseball festival, featuring teams from Czechoslovakia, West Germany, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and the United States.

NAIROBI, KENYA (JULY 4) UPI - Two of Kenya's most outspoken advocates of multi-party democracy were picked up Wednesday by the country's feared Special Branch police, their children said.

Kenneth Matiba, a former cabinet member who quit to protest election-rigging and was expelled from Kenya's single KANU party, was taken away by the police as he was leaving his downtown office and walking towards his car, Susan Matiba told United Press International.

''I am almost certain it was the security forces that picked him up,'' she said. ''I have no idea whatsoever where he is now. I don't know where anyone is.''

Susan Matiba was beaten up by an armed gang that stormed her father's house two weeks ago. Her mother suffered a fractured skull and she is in a hospital recuperating.

Kenneth Matiba, not home at the time of the attack, later linked the attack to his public stance for political pluralism in Kenya, which has been a one-party state since 1982.

Charles Rubia, another leading multi-party supporter and close colleague of Matiba, was picked up outside Nairobi's prestigious Muthaiga Golf course, his son told foreign correspondents.

The reported arrests came the same day local newpapers ran President Daniel arap Moi's hardest-hitting speech to date, accusing advocates of multi-party democracy of trying to undermine state security.

''There have been some developments in the country which suggest that some people wish to confuse the freedom to express their views with license to undermine state security or law and order,'' Moi was quoted by the Daily Nation newspaper.

''The government will use all the means at its disposal and all the powers conferred on it by the Constitution of Kenya to protect public order and State security,'' he warned.

Moi's statements capped a month of high political tension marked by the arrest of newsmen last week for publishing ''alarming'' material and a series of moves by the government aimed at silencing local and international press coverage of controversy in the country.

Plainclothes police have repeatedly broken up news conferences called by Matiba, Rubia and their lawyers, confiscating reporters' notebooks, cameras, film and audio tape.

Executives of the Standard newspaper were arrested, charged with publishing reports ''with the knowledge that the report was untrue and likey to cause fear, alarm and despondency to the public'' - illegal under Kenya's penal code.

The newspaper was reporting on violence and deaths as police cleared a squatter slum in the Nairobi suburb of Muoroto. The government denied anyone died in the operation.

Government sensitivity heightened as hundreds of copies of an underground song about Muoroto - describing the slum clearance as evidence that Kenya needs more than one political party - began circulating around the capital and being played in communal taxis.

''I call upon law-abiding citizens to shun and reject any attempt by any power-hungry individual to ... threaten law and order through the playing in public of subversive music or cassettes,'' Moi said.

Anglican bishops in Kenya have joined the loose alliance of former politicans and lawyers in their call for a change in Kenya, criticizing abuses of power by the police in the name of ''public and state security.''

They have warned such action would lead to ''repression, a denial of fundamental rights, harassment, mental and physical torture and ultimately death.''

(JULY 4) UPI - Another day of intense Communist Party debate in Moscow. Radical and conservatives are vigoursly debating the pros and cons of Mikhail Gorbachev's reform policies. Moscow's party chief told the 28th Party Congress today that Soviet communists face three choices- a return to authoritarian rule... rapid democratization... or a split among rival factions. The gathering is into a third day of work.

President Bush leaves tonight for a NATO meeting in London, confident that U-S allies support his approach to revamping the Western military alliance. Bush spent the past two days mixing business with pleasure in Kennebunkport, Maine, consulting with his advisers while celebrating the Fourth of July one day early. Bush has said he'll propose that NATO's nuclear weapons become an arms system of ''last resort.''

Tens of thousands of people are expected to line the banks of the Charles River today to hear the annual Boston Pops Fourth of July conert. But for music lovers with more modern tastes, the Beach Boys are planning a clambake and concert at the Otis Air Force Base in the heart of Cape Cod. Americans across the nation will celebrate the holiday by watching fireworks and cooking out.

The Soviet Interior Ministry is confirming a report of another attempted hijacking. The independent Interfax news agency says a woman with a two-year-old child tried to force a Soviet airliner to Turkey by claiming she had a bomb. But the plane continued on its scheduled course and landed without incident. Today's failed attempt is the latest in a wave of hijackings in the Soviet Union, most carried out by unarmed citizens trying to get to the West.

(JULY 4) UPI - Nelson Mandela told British business leaders in London this morning that economic sanctions against South Africa must continue until apartheid is dismantled. The black nationalist leader's address sets an agenda for disagreement before talks later today with British Prime Minister Thatcher. Thacher removed restrictions against Pretoria following its limited reforms.

Americans may NOT feel the need to light up their barbecues today, with much of the nation already sizzling. Most of the West is enjoyed clear and hot weather this Independence Day, with temperatures climbing toward the 100's across the desert Southwest and Southern Plains. However, the warmth is NOT necessarily good news in drought-stricken California, where officials are worried about the fire hazard of fireworks and record dry weather.

Calvin Klein is in a New York hospital, recovering from a fall from a horse yesterday near his Long Island home. A spokesman for the fashion designer says Klein suffered two broken ribs and a gash in his head in yesterday's incident. The 47-year-old designer was transported by helicopter to New York Hospital for treatment and is reported to be in stable condition.

Accidents happen... and this one could have ended in an early Fourth of July blast. Officials in Alaska say a helicopter accidentally dropped 500 pounds of dynamite into a lake near a new state dam. Officials say the lost dynamite poses little threat of exploding, but state and federal officials are demanding that the explosives dropped nearly two weeks ago are recovered.

GENEVA (JULY 4) UPI - Iran and Iraq are actively seeking the basis for a summit meeting to seal a peace settlement and resume ''good neighborly relations,'' Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati said Wednesday.

The two countries signed a U.N.-sponsored cease-fire in August 1988 after eight years of war and an estimated 1 million killed in battle.

But talks on a permanent settlement stalled in April 1989 over frontier issues. Iraq still held Iranian territory in the north and Iran refused to share the Shatt al-Arab waterway to the Persian Gulf in the south.

Two months ago, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein suddenly wrote to Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani about breaking the deadlock.

''The letter softened the atmosphere and we responded positively,'' Velayati said Wednesday.

''We have found that we are both more flexible than in the past,'' he said. ''We think Iraq has a friendlier disposition toward us.''

Although it is ''still too soon'' to think of a summit date, he said, there is now ''a better atmosphere'' and prospects for a permament peace accord ''have become more promising.''

''Experts at various levels will prepare a suitable foundation'' for a summit, Velayati told a news conference after a Tuesday meeting with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz and U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

In Iran, President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani said Wednesday the climate between Iran and Iraq had improved and there was now more hope for peace in the gulf region than two months ago.

Tehran radio quoted the president as saying in an interview that both countries now had more confidence in the other's desire for peace.

In a commentary Wednesday, Tehran radio said the Geneva meeting between Velayati and Aziz was constructive, but differences remained and there was need for caution.

Velayati and Aziz shook hands and addressed each other directly for the first time, despite many previous encounters.

The Iranian government is prepared for ''serious and substantive dicussions,'' Velayati told reporters.

''We also welcome the positive consideration by the secretary-general of the invitation extended to him by the governments of Iran and Iraq to visit the area,'' he said.

Such a trip by Perez de Cuellar, Velayati said, would ''prove valuable for expediting the implementation'' of the 1988 U.N. Security Council resolution 598 on troop withdrawals, exchange of prisoners, frontier delineation and a formal peace accord.

SEATTLE (JULY 4) UPI - One of the biggest parties ever held in Seattle is likely to be one of the most orderly, with the strongest drinks served and consumed being the many varieties of espresso coffee.

More than 40,000 people are expected to mark the 55th anniversary of Alcoholics Anonymous in a four-day, international celebration of sobriety that begins Thursday.

The city's largest convention will bring together A.A. members from 70 nations, including large delegations from Australia, Great Britain, Finland, Germany, Italy, Mexico, Canada and the United States.

Unlike the last major A.A. convention five years ago in Canada, representatives of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union will also be present.

The theme of the gathering is ''55 Years - One Day at a Time,'' highlighting one of AA's central concepts: that alcoholics are never ''cured'', but have to work moment to moment to stay sober.

Thursday night will kick things off with five get-acquainted dances featuring two big bands, a country-western group, music from the '50s and '60s and Top 40 music.

Between Friday morning and Saturday evening, about 250 workshops and meetings, with 900 participants, will be held around the city.

''While there are plenty of different subjects - we have a hunger for getting to know ourselves more - people are mainly just having fun doing this,'' said Richard B., a staff member of A.A.'s general service office in New York. Like all A.A. members, he prefers not to use a last name.

''But not far below the surface there is a seriousness of where we all came from,'' he said. ''And there's a gratitude for A.A. and the support of its members.''

In conjunction with the A.A. gathering, members of Al-Anon Family Groups, a fellowship for friends and relatives of alcoholics, are holding their second International Convention in Seattle July 6-8. While the two fellowships often cooperate, they are unaffiliated.

The 1.8 million member A.A. got its start in 1935 in Akron, Ohio, when two men - a doctor and a stockbroker - got together and shared their experiences about their struggle to stop drinking.

The support group that resulted mushroomed three years later after one of the founders wrote ''Alcoholics Anonymous,'' a text based on the founders' experience that included A.A.'s ''Twelve Steps.''

Probably the most well known of the steps is the first, in which alcoholics admit they are powerless over alcohol, and that it has made their lives unmanageble.

(JULY 4) UPI - The United States is 214 years old today and most Americans are celebrating by taking the day off to enjoy fireworks displays, band concerts and old-fashioned cook-outs. After spending the holiday with his family in Kennebunkport, Maine, today, President Bush leaves for London tonight to attend a NATO summit of 16 allied nations. Bush wrapped up two days of review sessions with top aides yesterday in advance of the NATO summit tomorrow and Friday. Bush says NATO members support his approach to revamping the alliance.

Dissension in the ranks continued today as the 28th Communist Party Congress continues in Moscow. Radicals and conservatives squared off in a fierce debate over the fate of the Communist Party. Deputy Premier Leonid Abalkin told reporters during a break in the meeting that communists risk being relegated to the sidelines as an opposition party if they do NOT accept the end of monopoly rule.

Nelson Mandela is meeting today in London with Prime Minister Thatcher. Even before his meeting, Mandela set the stage for disagreement with Thatcher over the issue of sanctions against South Africa. Mandela said sanctions against South Africa must remain until Pretoria does away with apartheid. Thatcher has removed restrictions against Pretoria as a reward for racial reforms.

Cooler weather helped firefighters battling wildfires raging from Alaska to Texas, but there is concern that hotter weather today will fuel more fires. MOSCOW (JULY 4) UPI - The Kremlin has lifted restrictions on rail shipments of key foodstuffs and other supplies to Lithuania, the last step in ending a blockade of the Baltic republic, the Lithuanian government said Wednesday.

A statement from the republic's government in Vilnius said Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene received a telegram Tuesday night from the Soviet Transport Ministry advising her all restrictions on shipments to Lithuania had been lifted.

''Orders were issued ... to proceed with the unobstructed loading of rail shipments for Lithuania,'' the telegram said.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev cut off all oil, most natural gas, sugar, coffee and other supplies to Lithuania April 18 in an attempt to force the republic to rescind its March 11 declaration of independence.

He later eased his stand and said he would end the blockade if the republic declared a temporary freeze on the declaration. On Friday, the Lithuanian Parliament approved a 100-day moratorium on the proclamation during talks with Moscow on secession.

Oil and natural gas supplies were resumed over the weekend. The end of rail restrictions was the last step in ending the blockade that left about 40,000 people unemployed and closed about a dozen enterprises.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (JULY 4) UPI - Sandinista union leaders called for a widening of a nationwide strike Wednesday to include hospital and supermarket workers, but there was little response from workers and hospitals operated normally.

The strike - the second since President Violeta Chamorro took office April 25 - entered its third day Wednesday.

Union leaders continued to maintain that more than 50,000 workers were on strike nationwide, but Labor Minister Francisco Rosales said fewer than 3,000 stayed away from work.

The Sandinista-led National Workers Front called on hospital workers to join the strike, and for hospitals in Managua to operate only emergency services, but the call was not widely heeded.

''Everyone is working here,'' Dr. Tito Gutierrez, a pediatrician at La Mascota Children's Hospital, told United Press International. ''This hospital is functioning normally and so are all the hospitals.''

A visit by United Press International to three of Managua's largest hospitals showed no signs of strikes, and administrators at each hospital said operations were normal.

The official Sandinista newspaper Barricada also called for workers at the nine government-run supermarkets in Managua to stop work.

Such a strike would not have an immediate effect on food supplies, as most Nicaraguans buy their produce from private vendors, including those at the large Eastern Market.

Rosales said Tuesday that the government was willing to discuss wages and other work-related issues with the workers at each government ministry or state-run industry, but rejected union demands for collective bargaining with the union, which represents some 400,000 employees nationwide.

Union chief Lucio Jimenez has warned that the strike will continue to grow unless Chamorro negotiates with the union on wages and Sandinista complaints about government plans to privatize state-run industries.

Other union demands include increased benefits and a minimum wage of $200 per month.

The strike was initially aimed at the agricultural sector in an attempt by the Sandinistas to stem the production of important export products like cotton and rice, but the union said 30,000 workers in Managua industries and government offices were also on strike Wednesday.

Also fueling tensions in the capital was the 3-day-old policy of the government to conduct all financial transactions in the new Nicaraguan monetary unit - the gold cordoba - which is scheduled to replace the current cordoba at the end of the month.

Although the new money has not yet arrived, consumer items were already being billed in gold cordobas and paid in either cordobas or U.S. dollars at the current exchange rate.

Central Bank President Francisco Mayorga also announced Wednesday the introduction of 5 million and 10 million cordoba bills. The introduction of the bills indicates the government does not expect a quick conversion to the new money and anticipates further devaluations in the old cordobas.

Mayorga said wages would not begin to be converted into gold cordobas until September.

The government managed to avert a potential crisis at the National Television station Wednesday morning when it agreed not to fire two workers.

MOSCOW (JULY 4) UPI - An opinion poll released Wednesday during the 28th Communist Party Congress found the Soviet people have little faith in either the party or the government, but aren't sure where to turn.

The poll of more than 1,400 people by the National Center for Social Opinion Studies found that 46 percent thought the current government should resign, with 32 percent undecided and only 22 percent saying the government should remain in power.

The standing of the government was even lower when people were asked if they felt the present leaders could take the country out of its current crises.

Only 8 percent said they felt the government could definitely solve the country's problems. Another 10 percent said it probably could, while 32 percent felt the government would fail to lead the way out of the crisis. Another 35 percent felt it probably would not succeed. Fifteen percent did not answer.

It was not clear from the survey, published in the liberal Moscow News newspaper, whether those responding considered President Mikhail Gorbachev as part of the government or were referring only to Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov and other ministers.

Asked whether they ''trust'' the present leadership, 46 percent answered ''no,'' 33 percent said they mostly trust the leaders and 6 percent put their full trust in the leadership. Twelve percent gave no answer.

The results of questions on the government showed a sharp drop in its prestige since a similar survey in May, when 14 percent felt the government could definitely solve the country's problems and another 18 percent said it probably could.

The Communist Party, in the midst of a pivotal congress at the Kremlin to determine its role in a multi-party system, also fared poorly in the Moscow News poll.

Asked which party they would support if there were multi-party elections, only 18.8 percent answered the Communist Party of the Soviet Union as it currently exists.

The rest of those polled were scattered between another 13 options, reflecting the dozens of fledgling parties that have sprouted in the last several months and the uncertainty of the political system.

The second largest grouping was communists on the so-called Democratic Platform, who have threatened to split from the Communist Party at the current congress.

Western European-style parties, like the Social Democrats and the Greens, drew the support of just under 10 percent and there were nine parties polling under 5 percent.

Twenty-nine percent of those polled said they could not answer.

When asked about Soviet political personalities, 84 percent said they supported populist Boris Yeltsin's recent election to the effective presidency of the huge Russian republic.

In a question about the trustworthiness of national politicians on a list that did not include Gorbachev, Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze came out on top as the most trustworthy, with 31 percent. Ryzhkov drew 27 percent. KGB Chief Vladimir Kryuchkov was at the bottom of the list - with the trust of only 1 percent of those polled.

MOSCOW (JULY 4) UPI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev linked his fate to that of his perestroika reforms Wednesday, saying the Communist Party's leadership should resign if it is unable to achieve real success.

Asked what the party leadership would do if it could not improve the country's situation, Gorbachev said, ''I think that if there is no change in two years, then that leadership should go.''

Gorbachev, who became the party's general secretary in March 1985 and had himself appointed president earlier this year, denied he was power hungry.

''Some people are trying to cast aspersions, and they say 'they have grabbed power and they want to keep that power.' Let me tell you: we had much more power before perestroika,'' he said. ''I don't know of any other person in the world who had more power than the general secretary of the Communist Party.

''If that was all I wanted, then it wouldn't have been necessary to carry out reforms.''

Gorbachev made his comments during a break at the third day of the pivotal 28th Party Congress that is to elect a new Central Committee and Politburo to lead the party.

Five of the current 12 members of the Politburo, including Gorbachev's two closest allies, have said they will not run in the elections.

Deputy Premier Leonid Abalkin took the floor of the Congress Wednesday afternoon in a dramatic plea to conservatives to abandon ''dogmas and myths'' about market changes or be swept away by reform movements.

''A party attempting to ... challenge the logic of social progress will inevitably be pushed out of the arena of historical struggle and be defeated,'' said Abalkin, main architect of the government plan to transfer to a market economy.

But his words seemed to have little effect on the delegates, who voted Tuesday to delete a reference to ''transition to a market economy'' from the name of the Congress's economics commission. Abalkin told reporters he doubted the conclave would back real economic reforms.

While most speakers at the Congress said only Gorbachev had the authority to lead the party, many also lambasted his handling of reforms.

''We have to admit that five years of perestroika has smashed and broken more than it has so far built,'' said Ayaz Mutalibov, head of the Azerbaijan party.

Anatoli Porochikov, a state farm director from Penza in the Volga River basin, said ''a front of so-called perestroika forces'' is trying to destroy the Communist Party.

Porochikov, decrying the proliferation of political rallies under Gorbachev's ''glasnost'' policy, said farmers in the provinces are angry because they must feed themselves plus ''17 other people walking around with posters and blaming everything on the party.''

''The peasantry is already nauseated by excessive pluralism and so-called democracy,'' he said to deafening applause.

Gorbachev told reporters during a break that he did not feel the criticism was a threat to his policies.

''I take this Congress as a whole and see that it represents all the concern of not just Communists but also society, the concern of people about what is happening and their desire to find a more correct approach to solve these problems,'' Gorbachev said. ''This is not conservativism.

''No one at the Congress has called the political course for perestroika into doubt,'' he said. ''This is the main thing. The conversation is about how best to carry it (perestroika) out.''

Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said there was opposition to reform in the party, but ''one must respect the opposition.''

(JULY 4) UPI - South African black leader Nelson Mandela told British businessmen today that sanctions against South Africa must remain until Pretoria ends apartheid. Mandela's pro-sanctions speech came only two hours before he met with British Prime Minister Thatcher in a first-ever meeting between a British leader and the African National Congress. Thatcher is the only Western leader to remove sanctions against Pretoria as a reward for racial reforms, including Mandela's release from 27 years in prison.

There was another hijacking attempt in the Soviet Union today. Authorities in Moscow say a woman with a two-year-old child tried to hijack a Soviet airliner to Turkey by claiming she had a bomb. The plane continued on its scheduled course and landed without incident. It turns out the woman only had a kitchen knife and a hammer. It was the latest in a wave of hijackings in the Soviet Union... five in the last three weeks. Most were carried out by unarmed Soviets trying to reach the West.

President Bush says he's looking forward to the NATO summit this week in London. After wrapping up a long Fourth of July vacation at his Maine home Bush departs for Europe this evening armed with allied support for his proposal to revamp the alliance. He says he's confident the London meeting will set a new course that will keep the alliance relevant in a changing Europe.

It's a sizzler across much of the nation today as temperatures climb into the triple digits in the Southwest and Southern Plains. Early morning temperatures across the South ranged from 81 in Miami to 77 in Atlanta, 76 in Charleston, South Carolina, and 74 in Knoxville, Tennessee. And warm air streamed toward New England from the upper Midwest, where the mercury built into the upper 60's and early 70's shortly after midnight.

But the red-hot temperatures are bringing fresh worries about the threat of new forest fires in drought-parched California. Officials warn that the record dry weather and holiday fireworks are a potentially explosive mix in the region stricken by a four-year drought. Karen Carroll of the State Department of Forestry says this year is the driest in many years, and ''things that wouldn't have started a fire five years ago will start one today.'' An arson-ignited blaze destroyed hundreds of homes in Santa Barbara.

(JULY 4) UPI - President Bush heads to Europe tonight on an overnight flight that puts him into London for tomorrow's NATO summit. Bush says he will bring up the subject of aid to Moscow, but he wants the Kremlin to get economic reforms going before it gets any money.

Nelson Mandela met with British Prime Minister Thatcher in London today at the end of a two-day visit. Thatcher is the only Western leader to lift sanctions against South Africa after it began reforms that included Mandela's release from prison. But Mandela still wants South Africa isolated until it ends apartheid .

The fate of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union is being openly debated in Moscow during the 28th Party Congress. One deputy premier warns that the party may be pushed to the sidelines as a weak opposition force if it does NOT end the political monopoly it has held for years.

(JULY 4) UPI - The two-day NATO summit opening outside London tomorrow will be the most unusual and important in the 41-year history of what started as a military alliance.

The 16 members, including President Bush, will spend much of the time discussing how best to help the former enemies of the Warsaw Pact that has been all but swept aside by the radical changes of the past months.

The democracies emerging in communist Europe are re-shaping the continent and NATO will have to find new grounds for its own existance.

France and Germany want to forge a joint aid package that will help Mikhail Gorbachev change the Soviet Union. President Bush wants Moscow's reforms in place before the aid flows East.

The U-S is also looking for a shift away from old defense policies that relied on nuclear power. One item on the table is the Bush proposal to unilaterally remove 14-hundred nuclear artillery shells.

France wants to keep NATO as a military presence. It believes the political chores are best left to the 12-nation European Community and to the 35-nation Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe.

The 46-hundred-83 delegates to the 28th Communist Party Congress gathered in Moscow continue debating the future of the party that has ruled the Soviet Union for most of this century.

The hardliners and liberals are divided on the three choices open- to either return to the old ways, to push along reform, or to break up into rival factions and face the possibility of becoming a minority opposition force.

But the average Soviet on the street has already given a thumbs down signal to both the party and the government it represents.

A new poll released today shows that 46 percent of the 14-hundred people interviewed believe that the current Soviet government should resign. Only 22 percent want it to stay. The remaining 32 percent are UNdecided.

The congress is an open debate of the five years of changes under the leadership of Gorbachev.

He won the first test of popularity by a three-to-one margin on the issue of his proposed chairmanship of the rules committee. The vote shows the widespread support he still has. But it also shows the size of his opposition.

(JULY 4) UPI - A publshed report says an Oklahoma prison inmate has filed suit, charging that he was placed in special detention immediately before the November 1988 election to prevent him from revealing damaging information about Dan Quayle.

The report said that inmate Brett Kimberlin was ordered into a special detention cell to prevent him from telling reorters that he sold marijuana to Quayle when the vice president was in college in the 1970's.

Bureau of Prisons Director J. Michael Quinlan reportedly issued the order that isolated Kimberlin at the Federal Correctional Institute in El Reno, Oklahoma, on November 4th, 1988, and again three days later.

The report said Bureau of Prisons regional counsel Carolyn Sabol confirmed the detentions, but said Kimberlin was initially detained because he planned to- in her words- ''misuse the telephone'' and violate prison rules regarding news media contacts.

The newspaper said Kimberlin was returned to his cell November 5th, but on the morning before the election, was again detained to keep him from calling reporters gathered in a Washington hotel.

Kimberlin filed a lawsuit in federal court in Washington, accusing Quinlan and former Justice Department Loye Miller Junior of conspiring to keep him quiet to protect the Republican campaign ticket of George Bush and Quayle.

Quayle's news secretary, David Beckwith, said ''The vice president has NEVER used marijuana or, to his knowledge, met Brett Kimberlin.'' Kimberlin is serving 50 years for drug smuggling and participating in 1978 bombings at Speedway, Indiana.

(JULY 4) UPI - If you like your Fourth of July hot, you woN'T have far to go today. If you like it cold, you're in big trouble.

Triple digit temperatures cover large portions of the nation on its 214th birthday, thanks to a high pressure system that apparently likes the idea of hanging out over the Midwest.

There were some thunderstorms in South Dakota and Minnesota earlier in the day and heavy rain fell in east Texas and southwest Arkansas.

The rain would be a blessing for areas of California baked dry by a four-year drought that has only increased the number of fires this summer. And the chances of holiday fireworks setting off more blazes has everyone worried.

The Fourth of July has grown to be more than just a celebration of an idea in one country. It has spread around the world, even to Bulgaria where residents are holding what is being called the first-ever baseball festival in East Europe.

It includes teams from Czechoslovakia, West Germany, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria- and the United States.

The annual fireworks display at Irvington, New York, will be viewed tonight by 14 East European editors who are getting their first taste of Independence Day along the Hudson River.

Torrential rains washed out most of the events scheduled at the U-S embassy in Beijing. But the reception in Moscow went off as advertised and even drew some Soviet officials attending the Communist Party Convention.

Two tons of fireworks are sitting along the Charles River in Boston waiting for the finale of the annual Boston Pops concert tonight. Some families began gathering at favorite spots even as the sun came up this morning.

NEW YORK, NY (JULY 4) UPI - Second baseman Ryne Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs and pitcher Ramon Martinez of the Los Angeles Dodgers have been voted National League Player and Pitcher of the Month for June.

Sandberg, a two-time winner of the NL monthly award, posted a .377 batting average going 43-for-114 while belting 14 home runs and 25 RBI during the month. He also hit three doubles, one triple, stole six bases and scored 32 runs. Sandberg easily beat out the Mets' Darryl Strawberry in the voting.

Martinez completed three of his six starters to go 4-0 with a 1.76 ERA in June. He had one shutout, struck out 56, allowed 36 hits and 11 runs with nine earned and walked 15. Martinez, a first-time winner, beat out several others including Scott Garrelts of the Giants, Dave Schmidt of the Expos and John Franco of the Mets for pitcher of the month honors.

Gorbachev says everyone should resign if there are NO improvements in the country over the next two years. A survey in Moscow reveals that most Soviet citizens doN'T trust the Communist Party or the Gorbachev government. Nearly half of the more than 14-hundred people polled said the current government should step down. (JULY 4) UPI - President Bush heads for NATO summit... Christian Scientist couple convicted of manslaughter in death of child... embattled Liberian president meets with U-S ambassador... And a firecracker hot Fourth of July. U-P-I has it all, next:

Air Force One is headed out over the Atlantic toward London and the start of a crucial two-day NATO meeting tomorrow. The summit is designed to help the alliance keep in step with all of the rapid political changes in Eastern Europe.

The journey for President Bush ends a long Independence Day holiday break at his summer compound in Kennebunkport, Maine. He will return right after the NATO meeting to prepare for next week's economic summit in Houston.

The political changes that swept Eastern Europe have NATO members debating both the military and economic options still open to them. Bush, for one, proposes a shift away from a heavy nuclear defense policy.

But he disagrees with France and Germany over their desires to open more immediate economic ties with Moscow. Bush says the money can come only after the Kremlin puts economic reforms into gear.

Other proposals up for discussion are NATO's role in arms control verification, environmental protection and drug traffic control.

A jury in Boston today convicted a couple of involuntary manslaughter in the 1986 death of their two-and-one-half-year-old son.

David and Ginger Twitchell are Christian Scientists. They face 20-year prison sentences following a trial that put religious freedom up against the state's right to protect children from abuse.

The prosecution alleged the Twitchell's relied on prayer instead of medical treatment when their son Robyn developed a bowel obstruction. He died five days later.

David Twitchell later called it a prosecution against his faith. But he said he holds NO animosity toward the jury, saying its members had little choice under the instructions they were given.

(JULY 4) UPI - U-S and Liberian officials are refusing to comment on a meeting today between the American ambassador to the western African nation and its embattled President Samuel Doe.

The hour-long meeting came as rebel forces intent on toppling Doe advanced toward the heart of the capital city of Monrovia.

Doe, who has held power since 1980, has agreed in principle to step down.

There's NO word whether Doe has accepted a U-S offer to evacuate him and his entourage from the civil war-torn nation.

There are reports that Doe's remaining troops have resorted to looting and petty thievery in Monrovia. The situation has caused many residents in the city to deflate the tires of their cars or to completely remove the tires to keep them from being stolen by army troops.

Many Americans spent Independence Day seeking ways to keep cool. Triple-digit temperatures and muggy weather covered the nation's heartland.

The survey comes as top party leaders debate their own future along with that of the party in Moscow.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev used a break in the discussions to give his own assessment of what is going on. He said the party and its leaders have two years to get things going in the right direction before they should resign.

The March 11th independence declartion by Lithuania brought a cutoff to all oil and most of the natural gas shipments. Sugar, coffee and other key foodstuffs were also added to the list.

Soviet President Gorbachev later eased up on the restrictions, saying the blockade would end if the republic declared a temporary freeze to the independence declaration. It did just that last Friday, calling for a 100-day moratorium.

Milwaukee researchers appear to have successfully turned back the clock for a group of 12 men aged 61 to 73.

Dr. Daniel Rudman says that the use of a synthetic growth hormone used to treat short children reversed the aging process among the study group by 10 to 20 years.

Rudman says the hormone could be used among the elderly to build muscles, improve heart and lung function and enable aged bodies to be more resilient.

But Rudman cautions that the hormone does NOT foreshadow a fountain of youth. Instead, he views it as a chemical means of allowing elderly people to produce a growth hormone that is naturally produced by the body until about the age of 60.

Men in the study received the hormone three times a week and suffered NO significant side effects.

Rudman says the next step researchers will take is to determine if the hormone can improve muscle strength.

(JULY 4) UPI - Police in Paris, France, are working on the idea that the same person may be responsible for two art thefts in the city today. In both instances, a cutter was used to separate the paintings from their frames during regular museum hours. One of the paintings was by Renoir ... the other by Ernest Hebert.

The Coast Guard says it has cleaned up most of last Sunday's spill of 30-thousand gallons of oil into the Elizabeth River at Norfolk, Virginia. But officials say it may take another two weeks to clean areas along the Chesapeake shore. An investigation into the incident continues tomorrow.

Philadelphia presented its Liberty Medal and the 100-thousand-dollar award that goes with it to former President Carter today. He was honored for his work to promote liberty and human rights since leaving office in 1981. Carter accepted the bronze medal in front of Independence Hall as the nation celebrated the Fourth of July.

The hills were alive today in Shoshone Canyon, Nevada... but NOT exactly with the sound of music. Contestants gathered in the small town near the Nevada-Idaho border for the 13th annual National Hollerin' Contest. And the winner was a bartender from nearby Jackpot. John Brannen shouted a message that was audible three miles away. A contest spokesman says competition was so tough this year that last year's winner failed to place.

GLENDALE, CA (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - GLENFED Inc. Thursday announced the appointment of Stephen J. Trafton as senior executive vice president and chief financial officer, effective July 16.

Trafton, 43, has over 20 years of experience in banking and financial services, and most recently was senior vice president and treasurer of Goldome Bank in Buffalo, N.Y. He will report to Keith P. Russell Jr., president and chief operating officer of GLENFED.

Prior to joining Goldome, Trafton held positions with Hibernia Bank, Gibralter Savings and Seattle-First National Bank.

Trafton's appointment as chief financial officer is part of a strengthening of GLENFED's existing financial management group, intended to keep GLENFED at the forefront of the banking industry, said Norman M. Coulson, chairman of the board of directors, in making this announcement.

Additionally, as part of these changes, David T. Hansen will continue as treasurer and chief accounting officer of GLENFED, and as chief financial officer of Glendale Federal Bank, the principal operating subsidiary of GLENFED. Hansen will report to Chief Financial Officer Trafton.

Paul Mullings, currently executive vice president and general manager of the Capital Markets Group of Glendale Federal Bank, will be promoted to the position of treasurer of Glendale Federal Bank, in addition to his existing responsibilities, and will also report to Trafton.

GLENFED is the parent company of Glendale Federal Bank, the third largest savings institution in the United States. Glendale Federal Bank exceeds the capital requirements mandated by the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act (FIRREA).

''A strong financial management team, with first-rate financial analysis and financial engineering skills, is absolutely essential to ensuring that GLENFED and Glendale Federal Bank continue to grow and prosper in the 1990s,'' said Coulson.

SANTA CLARA, CA (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - 3Com Corp. announced Thursday it has appointed Tom Steding vice president and general manager of the company's Enterprise Systems Division, and Ralph Godfrey vice president of 3Com U.S.A.

Steding oversees the engineering, manufacturing and marketing of the company's internetworking and communication servers products, while Godfrey manages the company's United States sales, marketing, customer support and service operations.

Steding, who reports to executive vice president of product operations Les Denend, manages the ESD organization, which designs and develops products such as routers, brouters, gateways, bridges and communication servers.

Godfrey's responsibilities include overseeing 3Com's U.S. sales organization and programs for the company's direct, reseller, original equipment manufacturer and distributor channels. In addition, Godfrey manages the company's U.S. sales operations and field administration programs.

Godfrey reports to Bob Finocchio, executive vice president of field operations.

Steding joins 3Com from Sony Microsystems, a UNIX workstation company based in San Jose, Calif., where he served as vice president of marketing and sales. While at Sony, Steding conceived and managed the development of a new niche marketing strategy focusing on imaging, video, color and optical storage.

Prior to his position with Sony, Steding was vice president of business development at Sunnyvale, Calif., based Ardent Computer Corp., a graphics supercomputer manufacturer.

Steding also was executive vice president and a member of the board of directors of Systems Control, a Palo Alto, Calif., based consulting and systems integration company, and a subsidiary of British Petroleum.

Steding, 45, was a Sloan Fellow at the Stanford Graduate School of Business and holds a doctorate in electrical engineering from the University of California, Berkeley.

In addition, Steding holds bachelor's and master's degrees in electrical engineering from the University of Michigan.

Godfrey joins 3Com from Unisys Corp., a Blue Bell, Penn., based computer systems manufacturer. Initially, he served as vice president of sales and marketing for Convergent Technology, which was acquired by Unisys in 1988.

Following the acquisition, Godfrey assumed the additional responsibilities of managing the company's $300 million value-added marketing division.

Prior to joining Unisys, Godfrey spent 20 years at Hewlett-Packard Co., a Palo Alto based computer manufacturer, where he held a variety of sales management positions. His last position with HP was national sales manager, business systems. In addition, Godfrey managed the company's value-added channels organization for the business systems group.

Godfrey, 50, holds bachelor's and master's degrees in electrical engineering from Auburn University in Auburn, Ala.

3Com Corp. is a leading independent global data networking company, providing multivendor connectivity that spans organizations and businesses worldwide. The company designs, manufactures, markets and supports networking systems based on industry standards and open systems architecture.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Rockwell International Corp.'s Collins Defense Communications has been awarded the initial contract, valued at $39.8 million, from the U.S. Air Force to produce the Automatic Communications Processor.

Contract options total an estimated $117.5 million.

Under the terms of the contract, Collins Defense Communications (CDC) will produce 815 Automatic Communications Processors, aircraft modification kits, support equipment and technical data for the Air Force. The 30-month contract was issued by the Warner Robins Air Logistics Center at Robins Air Force Base, Ga.

The Collins Automatic Communications Processor (ACP) is used by the Air Force's Military Airlift Command, Strategic Air Command and the National Command Authority to aid high-frequency communications. The ACP combines the application of selective calling, multichannel scanning, link quality analysis, and electronic counter countermeasures (ECCM).

The procurement of the ACP by the U.S. Air Force marks the first production hardware ordered for the Department of Defense that complies with the New Military Interoperability Standard 188-141A for Automatic Link Establishment.

The ACP has been nomenclatured the CP-2024/ARC-190(V) and the control unit has been nomenclatured the C-11814/ARC-190(V).

With ACP, operators no longer need to spend valuable time researching signal propagation data, establishing schedules, monitoring frequencies for incoming calls or making repeated voice calls to establish contact.

The ACP automatically scans up to 100 preset frequencies and continously builds and updates its own propagation or link quality analysis data base. It also listens for incoming calls, verifies their reception and lets the operator know a call has been received and from what station.

Work on the contract will be performed at CDC's Cedar Rapids facilities.

PORTLAND, OR (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE)--Electro Scientific Industries Inc.

(NASDAQ: ESIO) Thursday reported it is anticipating a loss in its fourth quarter ended May 31, 1990.

The company previously reported a loss of $3,140,000 (52 cents per share) on sales of $57,725,000 for the nine months ended Feb. 28, 1990.

The company said its fourth quarter results will be negatively impacted by both an operating loss and extraordinary expenses associated with the write-off of certain deferred expenses and restructuring costs.

''We have made significant expense reductions over the past nine months,'' said ESI President Mike Ellsworth. ''We will begin to show reduced expenses in the first quarter of fiscal 1991 which will enable the company to be profitable at a lower sales level.''

The company has reduced its workforce by approximately 15 percent over the past year, reduced both fixed and variable expenses and made major organizational changes. In addition, the company plans to continue its vertical integration reduction program over the next year.

The company expects to release fourth quarter and fiscal year result in the fourth week of July.

ESI is a world leader in the production of laser systems for trimming and processing microelectronic circuitry and a major materials and equipment supplier to the passive component industry.

FOSTER CITY, CA (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Metric Realty, a full service real estate company that provides advisory and investment services to public and corporate pension plans through Metric Institutional Realty Advisors, has become a wholly owned subsidiary of New York-based Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

MetLife, which has owned a 50 percent interest in Metric since 1988, exercised an option to buy the remaining interest of the company on June 29. The investment real estate company has operated at Metric Partners for the past two years, and it now will be named Metric Realty.

Ted Athanassiades, executive vice president of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., said: ''Metric occupies a unique high-growth position in the marketplace, and our further investment indicates a high level of confidence in Metric's institutional performance and its potential. The wholly owned subsidiary structure will enable us to more fully develop relationships with institutional clients.''

Robert A. Fiddaman, president of Metric Institutional Realty Advisors, added that, the company's institutional activity has blossomed, thanks significantly to its expertise and experience in the specialty of apartment investment. ''During the past 22 years, Metric and its affiliates have made apartment investments totaling more than $1.4 billion.''

Fiddaman said Metric's focus on apartment investing has been the foundation for significant recognition among institutional investors, many of whom now are seeing apartment investments as a supplement to their core real estate programs.

Metric Realty is a full service real estate investment company with proprietary research capabilities and acquisition offices nationwide. Metric maintains its own property management, asset management, and property disposition groups. Metric's total portfolio of investments, based on original acquisition costs, is in excess of $2 billion.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. is one of the nation's largest insurance and financial service organizations, providing coverage to more than 42 million people in the United States and Canada. Total assets under management by MetLife and its affiliates exceed $128 billion.

CARSON, CA (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - C. Glen Higuchi, president and chief executive officer of Pacific Business Bank, has reported that the bank has been rated one of the safest banks in the United States.

The rating is according to Bauer Financial Reports Inc. of Coral Gables, Fla.

Pacific Business Bank was recently awarded the Bauer five-star rating. The certificate given to Pacific Business Bank reads, ''Five stars is the highest rating we award and indicates that this institution is one of the safest, credit-worthy banks in the United States.'' Pacific Business Bank is one of only four banks in the Long Beach/South Bay region to be so recognized.

''We are proud of our excellent rating for safety,'' said Higuchi in reporting the award, ''because it underscores our commitment to safe and sound financial management.''

The Bauer organization uses a ''complicated formula'' to determine the ratings. The formula considers historical trends, loan delinquencies and other data. Only about 25 percent of the 13,194 banks which are surveyed nationwide make the ''Five Star, Safest Bank'' list.

Higuchi also announced that the board of directors of Pacific Business Bank declared a 5 cents-per-share cash dividend and a 5 percent stock dividend for all shareholders of record as of May 3. The dividends were paid on June 4. ''This is the second consecutive year that our bank has paid its shareholders a dividend which is made possible by our high level of financial performance,'' Higuchi said.

Pacific Business Bank is a full-service, independent commercial bank with offices in Carson and Gardena. The bank is well recognized for both business banking and for providing individual banking services to selected markets. Pacific Business Bank is a member of the FDIC.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Skyline Gold Corp. Thursday announced that it has reached agreement with Placer Dome Inc. to jointly conduct further exploration work on the Bronson Creek and Bonanza West gold prospects on its Reg claims property in the Iskut River Region of Northwestern British Columbia.

As part of the transaction, Placer purchased 500,000 flow through common shares of Skyline for $500,000 to fund an equal amount of exploration work on the Bronson Creek and Bonanza West prospects in the current exploration season.

These flow through shares were a portion of the recently announced 2,200,000 flow through share financing completed by the company in late June of this year. Placer has the option to spend a further $3.5 million on exploration in the succeeding two exploration seasons to earn a 60 percent interest in the prospects. The prospects encompass an area of approximately 1682 acres and represent about 11 percent of Skyline's Reg Claims property interest.

Upon satisfaction of the earn-in obligation, the property covering the prospects will be transferred to a joint venture operated by Placer.

Skyline will retain a 40 percent interest in the joint venture.

In a companion agreement, Placer agreed to advance up to $3.4 million to Skyline to meet its working capital and bank debt servicing requirements. Advances made by Placer will be evidenced by demand notes and secured by a debenture registered against Skyline's assets.

The notes are repayable upon the earlier of receipt of financing proceeds by Skyline to place the joint venture property into production or one year from the date that Placer elects to relinquish its interest in the joint venture property. Interest at 12 percent per annum will be repaid upon repayment of the notes. The notes and unpaid interest are convertible into common share of Skyline at $2.25 per share. The issue of shares is subject to shareholder approval.

Ronald Shon, chairman and chief executive officer, said, ''Completion of the Placer transactions will accelerate exploration of the Reg Claims property and confirms the significance of property interests held by Skyline in the Iskut River Region.''

MESA, AZ (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Two compelling factors make the U.S. Army's Light Helicopter (LH) the best solution for its 21st century armed reconnaissance and attack requirements, the leader of an industry team competing for the LH full-scale development award said Thursday.

The factors are ''leap-ahead'' technology that equips the LH to perform its missions safely and effectively in daylight, darkness and adverse weather for U.S. Army contingency operations anywhere in the world, and, second, an extensive risk reduction program that is proving the LH will perform as advertised when the first helicopters begin replacing 30-year-old Army rotorcraft in late 1996.

That's the view of Allen C. Haggerty, executive vice president of McDonnell Douglas Helicopter Co. and director of the McDonnell Douglas/Bell Helicopter Textron LH SuperTeam. He made his observations as the SuperTeam finalizes its proposal to the Army for the full-scale development phase of the LH program.

''The advanced electronic systems and sensors that will enable the LH to perform its armed reconnaissance mission with precision are a substantial improvement over current combat helicopter capability and are comparable to those being developed for next-generation fixed wing fighters,'' Haggerty said. ''And that's what it will take to control the battlefield against adversaries equipped with high technology weapons sold to clients in both hemispheres by the Soviets, their former Eastern Bloc allies, and other arms-producing nations.

LH is designed to replace some 3,200 tactically obsolete helicopters built in the 1960s, primarily for service in Vietnam. They are the OH-6A, AH-1 and OH-58 A and C models.

Haggerty said that in view of proposed termination of all major U.S. combat helicopter programs by the mid-1990s, the LH program is essential to the survival of the nation's capacity for producing military helicopters. ''Not having an LH will mean relying on foreign manufacturers for our combat helicopters,'' he warned.

Haggerty said the SuperTeam's proposed LH design for the full-scale development phase of the program will meet or exceed the Army's requirements for performance, cost and weight. The industry team's formal 2,500-page proposal will be submitted by Sept. 1, accompanied by nearly 200,000 pages of confirming data, test results and other substantiating material.

SAN JOSE, CA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Frame Technology Corp. Thursday announced that its FrameMaker workstation publishing software will support the OPEN LOOK graphical user interface on SPARCstation workstations made by Sun Microsystems Inc.

Frame's OPEN LOOK products will run under NeWS, Sun's Network-extensible Window System, which excels at high-quality text and graphics.

The most recent release of Frame's software, FrameMaker 2.1, provides full-featured word-processing, graphics, layout, equation editing, and book-building tools for creating a wide range of business and technical documents.

OPEN LOOK is a sophisticated yet easy-to-use interface designed by AT&T and Sun. OPEN LOOK gives applications a uniform ''look and feel'' across multiple platforms through consistent graphical metaphors, pop-up windows, and point-and-click mouse controls. NeWS is a flexible network-based window system built on the PostScript imaging model.

A key advantage of NeWS to Frame is that it will allow FrameMaker users to view an exact on-screen representation of their final output, which is critical to achieving high-quality documents.

''Our decision to support OPEN LOOK and NeWS was based on the growing demand for these standards expressed by our large Sun customer base, and the particular advantages OPEN LOOK and NeWS offer for developing very high-quality publishing products,'' said Paul R. Robichaux, Frame's president and chief executive officer.

According to Scott McNealy, Sun Microsystems' president and chief executive officer, ''Frame's commitment to the OPEN LOOK and NeWS standards will give their products a competitive edge in the marketplace.''

Since OPEN LOOK was introduced in April 1988, more than 8,000 software vendors have been working with the OPEN LOOK toolkit. There are currently 52 OPEN LOOK applications being shipped by 38 vendors.

The OPEN LOOK version of FrameMaker will ship in 1991. Versions of FrameMaker are currently available for Sun-3, Sun 386i, and SPACR workstations running under SunView, X Windows and the Open Windows Application Environment.

Frame is a leading supplier of workstation publishing software for creating business and technical documents. Versions of its FrameMaker software are available for multiple user interfaces and more than 25 different computer platforms. Frame markets its products worldwide through distributors, VARs, OEMs and directly to end-users.

PHOENIX (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Greyhound Dial Corp. (NYSE:G), Thursday announced it had entered into an interim operating agreement with Greyhound Bus Lines which provides for the payment of current rentals for 15 bus terminals, a major maintenance garage and approximately 2,000 buses leased or subleased to Greyhound Lines.

The arrangement, which covers periods subsequent to the June 4, 1990, bankruptcy filing by the bus line, also deals with certain other continuing relationships between the parties and is intended to maintain the uninterrupted operation of the bus line in the ordinary course of business while a reorganization plan is being developed.

The agreement, which has been filed with the bankruptcy court, is cancellable by either party upon 30 days' prior written notice and reserves the rights of both parities while stabilizing the substantial and many-faceted relationships between them.

Greyhound Dial sold the bus line in 1987 to a Dallas-based investor group.

BURBANK, CA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Edward Phillips and Carlos De Mattos co-chairmen of the board of Matthews Studio Equipment Group (NASDAQ:MATT) reported Thursday that the company's rental subsidiary, Hollywood Rental Co. Inc. has acquired 18 power generators for $1.1 million.

The generators were purchased to meet the high-intensity lighting requirements of both on-location and studio production work.

Sixteen of the generators are trailer mounted. The remaining two are tractor mounted, which can pull 40-foot trailers filled with lighting and other production equipment.

''This asset acquisition allows us to offer an additional category of service and further increases our capability as a one-stop, full-service provider to the film production industry,'' said De Mattos.

With this purchase, Matthews continues its strategy of growth through acquisition of compatible lines of business by substantially increasing its overall rental base. ''We believe this recent equipment acquisition will further accelerate the company's growth into the final quarter of the current fiscal year which ends September 30,'' De Mattos said.

Matthews has also recently acquired Innovative Television Equipment (ITE) of Newbury Park, Calif., which designs, manufactures and distributes camera accessory equipment and has just completed the purchase of substantially all of the production equipment assets of Burbank-based Lee America West Ltd.

FORT WORTH, TX (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Santa Fe Railway, Union Pacific Railroad and Burlington Northern Railroad are offering improved daily rail service between the Pacific Northwest and Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico.

Service on the ''Northwest Passage'' is possible through recent Voluntary Coordination Agreements negotiated among the carriers. A VCA allows a railroad to quote rates in specified markets of another railroad and route over each other's tracks, allowing the railroads to work virtually as one carrier.

Business moving southbound will originate in the Pacific Northwest on either the BN or UP. UP-originated traffic will move to Bend, Ore., connecting with the BN. The BN will handle UP-originated traffic as well as BN-originated business south to Bieber, Calif., connecting to the UP.

The UP will handle traffic to Stockton, Calif., where the Santa Fe will complete the southbound trip. The return movement will also run each day with orginating business from Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico moving on the routings northbound.

Commodities moving on the ''Northwest Passage'' include paper, timber, steel and lumber products. As business increases, the three carriers anticipate initiating a dedicated train to expedite the traffic.

The service agreements improve responsiveness to customers because a VCA allows automatic concurrences between carriers.

TORONTO (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Central Crude Limited (TSE, VSE:CLC) is pleased to report that Hemlo Gold Mines Limited, through its operator Noranda Exploration Company, Limited, is continuing its drilling program on Central Crude's Eagle River deposit with two drills being employed.

Ten holes have recently been completed on the No. 2 Shear Zone 1.2 kilometers east of the portal on a subparallel shear zone southeast of the No. 8 Zone. Previous drilling returned an intersection of .34 Opt Au uncut (.21 cut) over 16.4 feet. The mineralization, a quartz flooded shear zone hosted in volcanics, has been traced along a 1000 foot strike length and is open to depth and along strike.

The shear zone ranges in width from 10 to 35 feet and the central quartz veining has true widths from 5 to 25 feet.

Of the 10 holes completed, 2 returned no significant assays. The balance of 8 holes all intersected the mineralized shear zone.

The company further reports that prospecting, mapping and trenching programs are currently in progress on showings approximately 4km east of the portal. Numerous gold bearing quartz veins and shear zones are being evaluated. The most significant results to date are from the Stockwork Zone, a pyritic quartz stockwork occurrence within sheared mafic volcanics.

Gold values of 0.07 opt over 33 feet have been realized from chip sampling across the mineralized zone. High grade grab samples grading from .11 to 3.85 opt have been taken from sub parallel quartz flooded shear zones.

Noranda is continuing to evaluate the Economic potential of the main Eagle River deposit and which evaluation should be completed shortly.

Work at the company's Moss Lake Project optioned from Tandem Resources Ltd. and Storimin Exploration Ltd. located some 70 miles west of Thunder Bay, Ontario, is proceeding according to schedule. The open pit potential of the Mineralization continues to be evaluated.

Two thousand eight hundred feet (2,800') of Backhoe trenching mapping and chemical sampling over geophysical and prospecting targets has been completed to date. Assays are pending from all trenching. The Main Camp has now been completed and Metallurgical, ore microscopy and specific gravity testing by Noranda Evaluation Staff is currently underway.

Pulverizing the entire sample and screening for Metallics has increased the gold content by 20-30 percent. Further work using cyanide Leach process is in progress.

SCOTTS VALLEY, CALIF (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Seagate Technology (NASDAQ:SGAT) Thursday announced the appointment of Howard J. Kendall to regional sales vice president, responsible for sales activities in the Eastern United States, Eastern Canada and Latin America.

Kendall has spent six years with Seagate's sales force, most recently holding the position of director, Eastern region distribution sales. In his new role, Kendall will be responsible for development of both OEM and distribution business. He will report to Philip Detwiler, vice president, Americas sales, and operate from the company's regional sales office in Westford, Mass.

Kendall brings over 17 years of high-technology sales and marketing experience to Seagate, beginning with Control Data Corp. as a sales operations account manager for OEM business in the company's printer division. He then contributed his expertise to Centronics Data Computer, and later Data Printer Corp. as the company's manager of international sales and marketing.

In 1981 Kendall joined Printronix as an account sales executive responsible for the development of key OEM business.

In announcing the appointment, Phil Detwiler stated that Seagate's success in the growth and development of the Eastern region distribution channel is due in large part to Kendall's extensive sales and marketing experience.

''The Eastern United States, Canadian and Latin American markets continue to be of great importance to Seagate. We believe that Howard's years of experience in building new business have prepared him to successfully meet the challenges of his new position,'' said Detwiler.

Kendall, 43, holds a bachelor of arts degree from Bucknell University, and a master's degree in business administration from Ohio State University.

Seagate Technology is the world's leading supplier of disc storage products to original equipment manufacturers and remarketers.

LAS VEGAS (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - MarCor Resorts, Inc. (MAAR/NASDAQ) announced Thursday that to date 55.6 percent of the limited partnership interests in MarCor Resorts, L.P. V, the limited partnership which owns and operates the Rio Suite Hotel & Casino in Las Vegas and owns 125 acres in nearby Henderson, NV, had been tendered to it pursuant to the exchange offering made by MarCor.

The exchange offering, which originally expired on June 29, 1990, has been extended for two weeks and will now expire at midnight on Monday, July 16, 1990.

The proposal provides for the exchange of MarCor Resorts, L.P. V units for preferred stock of a newly created MarCor subsidiary, which in turn will be convertible into MarCor common stock. The limited partnership interests tendered in the exchange offering are valued at over $33 million. Prior to the exchange, MarCor owned 34.9 percent of MarCor Resorts, L.P. V; after completion of the exchange, MarCor will own at least 90.5 percent of MarCor Resorts, L.P. V.

MarCor President, James A. Barrett, Jr., stated, ''We are extremely gratified by the positive response to the exchange offering. At the very least, upon consummation of the exchange and after all shares issuable in the transaction are converted into MarCor common stock, outstanding MarCor common stock will increase by 6,065,455 shares or approximately 81 percent. Net stockholders' equity adjusted for this exchange at March 31, 1990 would be $46,003,826.''

Before the transaction can be consummated, the Nevada Gaming Commission and MarCor's stockholders must approve the transaction. MarCor is presently completing proxy materials, and the proposal will be considered at the annual meeting of stockholders. The annual meeting of stockholders originally scheduled for July 26, 1990, will be rescheduled by MarCor's Board of Directors to accommodate approval of the exchange.

MarCor Resorts, Inc. through a wholly-owned subsidiary, is the principal owner and operator of the first all-suite hotel/casino in the country, the Rio Suite Hotel & Casino, located in Las Vegas. MarCor and controlled entities own 165 acres in the greater Las Vegas area targeted for the development of future gaming resorts and ancillary uses.

SAN JOSE, CA (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - The Acer Group and Altos Computer Systems jointly announced Thursday that they have signed a Merger Agreement under which Altos, a worldwide leader in networked, multiuser computer systems, will become a member of the Acer Group, a multinational group of companies focused on the microcomputer industry.

The transaction, valued at approximately $94 million, has been approved by each company's board of directors. The Altos board of directors unanimously agreed to recommend that its shareholders accept a cash tender offer by a newly formed Acer subsidiary to acquire all outstanding shares of Altos stock at $8.35 net per share. Non-tendering shareholders will receive $8.35 in cash in the subsequent merger.

Following the merger, Altos will operate as an independent subsidiary of Acer. The Altos identity will be maintained. Altos' existing products will continue to be marketed and the company will continue to bring new products to the marketplace.

Stan Shih, chairman and chief executive officer of the Acer Group, said, ''The addition of Altos fits our long-range corporate strategy. This represents an additional step in Acer's global strategy to increase its presence in, and commitment to, the worldwide markets it serves.''

Leonard Liu, president of the Acer Group and chairman and chief executive officer of Acer America, noted that ''Altos provides Acer with complementary channels and a team experienced in delivering and servicing multiuser systems. The addition of Altos' San Jose facility enhances Acer's existing manufacturing capabilities in the United States. I'm happy that Ron Conway is remaining as president of Altos reporting to me. Together with Altos, Acer will be a leader in delivering microcomputer-based system solutions.''

Conway added, ''This merger adds stability and resources to Altos. We will have the critical mass to succeed in an increasingly competitive industry. This combination allows Altos to offer a variety of high-quality personal computers for our VARs to add to their product lines and integrate with our multiuser systems and file servers.''

AAC Acquisition Corp. is the Acer subsidiary that will make the tender offer.

Alex. Brown & Sons Inc. is acting as financial advisor to Acer and will act as Dealer Manager for the tender offer. Georgeson & Co. Inc. will act as the Information Agent. Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. is acting as financial advisor to Altos in the transaction.

Founded in 1977, Altos Computers Systems designs, manufactures, and markets UNIX-based networked, multiuser solutions for distribution in 60 countries. More than 128,000 Altos systems have been installed worldwide. Fiscal 1989 sales for the company were $140 million. The company's stock is traded on the NASDAQ exchange, symbol ALTO.

The Acer Group, founded in 1976 and based in Taiwan, is a multinational organization with more than 5,000 employees worldwide and revenue totalling more than $700 million in 1989. Acer's full product line extends from personal computer systems and peripherals to data communications products, ASICs, and multiuser systems. The firm markets its products through an established network of more than 10,000 dealers in over 70 countries. The Acer Group is the largest PC maker in Taiwan. Its stock is traded on the Taiwan stock exchange.

AKRON, OH (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Preliminary results from an experimental waste tire-burning project at one of Ohio Edison Co.'s coal-fired power plants look very promising.

In late May, Ohio Edison conducted a four-day test at its Toronto Plant in Toronto, Ohio, to determine emission characteristics and monitor generating unit performance as waste tires were burned with coal.

''Initial observations indicate that burning waste tires with coal does not reduce plant or environmental systems performance,'' said Edison's William J. Kolosi, director, research and technical services.

''In fact, it appears that burning tires with coal may have reduced sulfur dioxide and particulate emissions at the plant,'' he said. ''There is also the possibility that certain by-products of the tire-burning process can be collected and recycled.''

The Toronto Plant was selected by the company for the test because one of its generating units is equipped with a high temperature boiler that is ideally suited for the controlled burning of waste tires. During the test Edison was burning tires at an average rate equal to about 20 percent of the boiler's fuel requirements.

For the tire test-burn, Edison made arrangements with CASTLO Community Improvement Corp. in Struthers, Ohio, to deliver about 7,600 cleaned waste tires to the plant.

''By burning waste tires in our boiler, we can recover the energy they contain and significantly reduce the number of waste tires that are destined for landfills or tire piles,'' Kolosi said.

The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency and the North Ohio Valley Air Authority have supported Edison's efforts and provided the company the necessary approvals to conduct the tire-burn. The company will be reporting the test results to the agencies in August.

Results of the environmental monitoring are being prepared by an independent research firm that conducted emissions tests during the four-day project. Their findings, along with the evaluation of data on plant performance currently being conducted by Edison, will be completed in July.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Further to the company's news release of June 13, Steelhawk (COATS: STLH) announces the appointment of two new members to the board of directors, Don Klosterman and Lowell Dicke.

Formerly with the Baltimore Colts and Los Angeles Rams as general manager, Klosterman brings to the company an extensive background in all areas of business and commerce.

Dicke's background is in alternative energy project financing through key positions he has held with major engineering companies. Dicke, working with Cliff Sawyer, vice president technical development and board member since December 1989, is focusing his efforts on preparing a strategic plan for commercial introduction of the Nucell products.

Sawyer, also project manager, provides the business/technical interface for Steelhawk and has been instrumental in the engineering design of the commercial prototype in conjunction with Paul Brown, the inventor, and Pickard, Lowe & Garrick, Nucell's nuclear engineering consultants.

The Ionic Battery works by converting radioactive energy directly into electricity without first converting it into heat. The Pickard, Lowe & Garrick report states that, "vastly more energy can be created by an Ionic Battery, and Nucell's technology can lead to batteries that are smaller, lighter and much longer lasting."

In addition, Steelhawk Resources Ltd. announces the granting of incentive stock options to certain individuals, for 800,000 common shares of the company at a price of 70 cents per share, to expire July 5, 1992. Options granted previously, 500,000 shares at $1.50 per share, have been rescinded.

It operates 10 processing plants in Ontario and Quebec as well as a uniform manufacturing facility, Anchor Textiles. Anchor Textiles sells both to Work Wear Canada's uniform rental division as well as to outside customers.

Not included in the transaction are Work Wear Canada's other two manufacturing divisions, Sainthill Levine and Ella Skinner Uniforms, makers of men's and women's image apparel.

The transaction is subject to the completion of financing, approval of the Canadian government through Investment Canada, and certain other conditions. After anticipated taxes, expenses, and reserves, available net proceeds from the transaction are expected to repay Work Wear Corp. senior bank debt.

WOBURN, MA (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Alpha Industries Inc. (AMEX:AHA) announced Thursday that the board of directors amended its 1986 common stock purchase rights plan effective as of July 3, 1990.

The Amendment entitles the holders of rights to either acquire the company's common stock at a 50 percent discount, or, at the option of the board of directors, to receive one share of common stock for each right.

As originally adopted, the rights agreement provided that 10 days after a person or group (an ''Acquiring Person'') acquired 20 percent or more of the company's common stock, or announced an offer to acquire 30 percent or more of the company's common stock, the rights became exercisable and separately tradeable.

At the time, separate certificates representing the rights were required to be distributed. Once the rights became exercisable, the holders became entitled to buy one newly issued share of common stock for $30 (the ''Exercise Price'') for each right. In addition, if the company merged with or sold its assets to any other person, or engaged in certain transactions with the acquiring person, the holders of rights became entitled to receive upon payment of the exercise price that number of securities of the acquiring person with a value equal to twice the exercise price.

The amendment reduces the threshold which trigger the right to purchase securities of the acquiring person. The thresholds were beneficial ownership of 20 percent of the company's common stock, or the announcement of an offer to acquire 30 percent or more of the company's common stock.

These thresholds have been reduced to 15 percent, except with respect to persons who already beneficially own 15 percent or more, in which case the threshold is the acquisition of any additional shares of the company's common stock. This is consistent with the recently changed Delaware corporation statute.

The amendment adds a new right either to acquire the company's common stock at a 50 percent discount, or, at the option of the board of directors, to receive one share of the company's common stock for each right.

Commencing 10 business days after a person or group becomes the holder of 15 percent or more of the company's common stock, or 10 business days after a person or groups that already holds 15 percent or more of the common stock acquires any additional shares, the holders of rights, except the acquiring person, are entitled to purchase that number of shares of the company's common stock having a market value equal to twice the exercise price.

However, in lieu of the right to purchase shares of the company's common stock at a 50 percent discount, the board of directors of the company may, at its option, elect to issue one share of common stock for each right held by everyone other than the acquiring person.

In amending the rights agreement, the board of directors is expressing its continued confidence in the company's future and the determination that the stockholders be given every opportunity to participate fully in that future.

A letter regarding the amendment to the rights plan and a summary of certain terms of the rights plan will be mailed to stockholders.

MINNEAPOLIS (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - G&K Services Inc., a Minneapolis based uniform leasing firm, announced today that it has signed an agreement to purchase for cash the stock of Work Wear Corp. of Canada Ltd. a leading Canadian uniform leasing company.

The agreement is subject to the completion of financing, the approval of the Canadian government, and certain other conditions. The purchase price of the stock will be approximately (U.S.) $68 million, subject to certain adjustments, plus the repayment of (U.S.) $12 million in long term debt.

G&K is one of the nation's largest textile leasing operations, with fiscal 1989 revenues of (U.S.) $109 million. It serves customers in 22 states from 19 processing plants and 29 branch locations.

Work Wear Canada, headquartered in Toronto, is Canada's largest uniform leasing company with revenues for the 1989 calendar year of approximately (U.S.) $62 million. It operates 10 processing plants in Ontario and Quebec. G&K's purchase will also include Anchor Textiles, a uniform manufacturing division of Work Wear with a plant in Toronto. Anchor sells both to Work Wear's textile leasing divisions and to outside customers.

Work Wear Canada is an indirect subsidiary of Work Wear Corp. Inc., a major American uniform manufacturer owned principally by Paine Webber Capital Inc. Work Wear's U.S. manufacturing operations are not being purchased as a part of this transaction.

Financing in the form of long-term debt is being arranged by a consortium of U.S. and Canadian banks.

Commenting on the transaction, G&K Chairman Richard Fink stated that, ''We believe this is an excellent opportunity for us to expand into attractive new markets with a major acquisition. Work Wear is an outstanding company with an impressive financial record and strong customer loyalty. It is the dominant supplier of work uniforms in the industrial heartland of Canada.

Work Wear Canada, headquartered in Toronto, is Canada's largest uniform leasing company with 1989 revenues of approximately (U.S.) $62 million. The company offers a broad array of uniforms, wiping towels, mats, dust control products, and linens to over 30,000 Canadian customers. The company also manufacturers most of the uniforms which it rents to customers. Founded in 1923, the company now operates out of 21 locations, including ten processing plants and one uniform manufacturing facility.

LITTLE ROCK, AR (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Environmental Systems Co. (NYSE:ESC) announced Thursday that Jack W. Forrest, president and chief executive officer of Environmental Systems Co., delivered the following statement at a press conference at the University Club in Phoenix at 9:00 a.m., Mountain Standard Time:

''To The People of Arizona:

Governor Mofford has asked that we join her in exploring alternatives to the current plan for Arizona's hazardous waste management facility in Mobile.

I agree.

It's time to sit down and reason together. At ENSCO, we're serious about exploring the alternatives. So serious, in fact, that today we are beginning a voluntary 60-day moratorium on construction as a good-faith gesture.

ENSCO will stop or delay construction on any equipment or facilities that are to be used for the disposal or treatment of hazardous waste, including: incinerators, storage tanks, and the landfill. During this period, construction will be limited to only infrastructure facilities; such as utilities and ancillary buildings that are required regardless of the final size of the project.

Since 1983, our assignment from Arizona's government has been to develop a self-supporting facility that meets the highest, most stringent standards in the United States -- in other words, the country's finest facility, constructed and operated without any financial support from Arizona taxpayers. Our plans to accomplish this goal, as the record clearly reflects, always have been to accept waste from other states.

In 1990, while lawmakers continue to demand the finest, safest state-of-the-art facility, some now wish to restrict or eliminate out-of-state waste. ENSCO is prepared to reduce the size of Arizona's facility so that it handles only Arizona's waste. Choosing that alternative, however, will require a state subsidy and taxpayer dollars.

Hazardous waste is everybody's problem. And it is a problem we should and can solve by working together. By voluntarily taking this costly first step, we at ENSCO are demonstrating our commitment to help Arizona meet its hazardous waste management needs.''

Environmental Systems Co. provides integrated hazardous waste management services to private industry, public utilities and governmental entities. These services include chemical analysis, collection, transportation, processing and incineration of hazardous waste.

AKRON, OH (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - General Tire today announced a price increase ranging from two to four percent on its General-brand tires for the replacement market.

The increase, necessitated by the continued escalation of various related costs, takes effect on Aug. 1, 1990.

The General brand replacement tires, which are shipped to independent dealers and company-owned stores across the country, include tires for passenger and off-road vehicles, light and medium trucks, small and large farm and industrial vehicles.

Prices on all passenger tire lines will increase four percent with the exception of high performance lines, which will rise three percent.

Light truck radial tires will increase 3.2 percent with bias constructed being raised to three percent. The S-330 and D-440 medium truck tires will increase four percent.

All other medium truck, off-the-road specialty tires, farm and industrial will increase 3.5 percent.

General Tire is a full-line supplier to the original equipment and replacement markets. The company operates seven tire manufacturing facilities in North America and is a subsidiary of Continental AG of West Germany, the fourth largest tire manufacturer in the world.

NEW ORLEANS (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Freeport-McMoRan Copper Co. Inc.

(NYSE:FCX), Thursday declared a cash dividend for the three months ended June 30, 1990, of 26 cents per share on its Class A and Class B common stock payable Aug. 1, 1990, to all common shareholders of record at the close of business on July 16, 1990.

For the 10th consecutive quarter, the amount of the dividend exceeds the minimum cumulative quarterly dividend on the Class A common stock through the five-year period ending May 1, 1993, which is currently 10-1/4 cents per share.

The dividend amount reflects the continued excellent operating and financial performance of FCX's Indonesian copper operations, despite increased interest expense attributable to placing into operation certain facilities to accommodate production from the company's Grasberg copper/gold ore body. Prior to 1990, all interest costs associated with the Grasberg project had been capitalized.

The amount of this second-quarter 1990 cash dividend and the amount of the minimum cumulative quarterly dividend on the Class A common stock take into consideration the April 1990 one-for-one stock dividend paid on FCX's Class A and Class B common shares. Future quarterly cash dividends will continue to be based on actual operating and financial results and capital requirements. The amount of this dividend may not be indicative of future cash dividends.

FCX is a subsidiary of Freeport-McMoRan Inc. (NYSE:FTX) and owns approximately 85 percent of Freeport Indonesia Inc., which is engaged in the exploration, mining, and milling of copper, gold, and silver in Irian Jaya, Indonesia.

HUNT VALLEY, MD (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - EA Engineering, Science, and Technology, Inc. (NASDAQ: EACO) Thursday reported operating results for its nine months and third quarter ended May 31, 1990 compared to the similar periods in 1989.

Net income in the first nine months of fiscal 1990 was $548,900, or $0.22 per share, compared to $738,800, or $0.30 per share in the prior year. Net revenue increased 27 percent to $29.8 million from $23.5 million a year ago.

In the third quarter fiscal 1990, net income was $41,900, or $0.02 per share, compared to $301,200, or $0.12 per share, a year earlier. Net revenue was $10.3 million compared to $8.6 million in the comparable period in fiscal 1989.

The decline in net income is primarily due to the continuing delay in delivery by clients of samples for analysis in EA's analytical laboratory and to lower volume in building systems engineering at EA Mueller reflecting difficult industry conditions.

Dr. Jensen noted that since Company's quarterly operating results depend to a large extent on timing of contract awards and since costs associated with new business development tend to fluctuate during the fiscal year, EA's earnings can best be evaluated over several quarters rather than in a short, three-month interval.

Dr. Jensen attributed the increases in net revenue for the nine months to higher contract levels in several of the Company's service areas, particularly toxic and hazardous materials management, and to the growth of its Mid-Atlantic, Southeast, and Western regional offices and EA Laboratories.

EA Engineering, Science, and Technology, Inc. is a multidisciplinary professional services consulting firm providing a wide range of engineering, scientific, analytical, and remediation capabilities to address existing and potential threats across the nation. EA designs building systems for energy conservation, indoor air quality, and climate control; provides remedial designs at contaminated sites; and develops solutions for waste management, energy conservation, and emissions control.

EA is headquartered in Hunt Valley, Maryland, and has offices in Texas, California, New York, New Jersey, Georgia, Nebraska, Illinois, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Washington, and Virginia.

SAN FRANCISCO (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Seeking to warn consumers about some of the highest cancer risks they face from everyday household products, the Environmental Defense Fund and Sierra Club California Thursday filed notices of Proposition 65 enforcement actions against 16 paint remover, spot remover and water repellent products including Dow Chemical's popular K2r Spot-lifter.

''Risk levels from the main ingredient in paint strippers are 100,000 times higher than what California has set as the Proposition 65 standard '' said Dr. Diane Fisher, a chemist with EDF. ''The risk from the solvent in spot removers is 1,000 to 3,000 times higher than the state standard,'' she said.

The paint strippers challenged by the action are composed of up to 90 percent methylene chloride. The spot removers are 15 to 45 percent perchloroethylene. Both chemicals were listed more than two years ago as being known to the state of California to cause cancer.

The two chemicals are solvents that evaporate when the products are used and are therefore often breathed by the user.

''The consumer has no need to face these risks,'' said Carl Pope of the Sierra Club. ''Our investigators were easily able to buy alternative products that do the same jobs without either one of these known carcinogens,'' he said.

''The health risks are high and so are the potential liabilities,'' said David Roe, staff attorney for the Environmental Defense Fund. Manufacturers could face multi-million dollar fines.

Proposition 65 provides for up to $2,500 a day in fines for each individual user who has not received a clear warning about the cancer risks, and the products have been subject to the law in California for more than a year.

The spot removers challenged today also do not carry California's required warning -- even though some competing brands do. Other types of paint stripper also manage to avoid using the offending chemical in their formulas.

Some paint strippers warn that methylene chloride has been shown to cause cancer ''in certain laboratory animals. That might be a good warning if your are a laboratory animal but it doesn't meet the 'clear warning' test of Proposition 65. Californians opted for warnings about risks to people '' Roe said.

Roe said some manufacturers of paint strippers have added a clear California warning on the product, even when the ''laboratory animal'' statement is also present. Some retailers also give proper California warnings for both paint strippers and spot removers via shelf signs where the products are sold.

The challenges take the form of official 60-day notices, as required by the law. State prosecutors have 60 days to take over prosecution of the violations, after which the environmentalists may take the violators to court.

Proposition 65, California's landmark toxics law, was enacted by direct voter initiative in November 1986 and started taking effect in 1988.

ST. CLOUD, FL (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - F.F.O. Financial Group Inc. (NASDAQ:FFFG), a Florida based savings and loan holding company, Thursday reported earnings for the three and six month periods ended June 30.

Net income for the three month period ended June 30, 1990 was $452,483 (21 cents per share) compared to $582,123 (25 cents per share) for the similar period in 1989. Earnings for six months ended June 30, 1990 totaled $754,049 (35 cents per share) as compared to $1,275,158 (55 cents per share) for the similar period in 1989.

Total stockholders equity as of June 30 was $26,793,861 or $12.29 per share. Total assets declined during the quarter to $438,277,469. Total assets were $451,313,870 at March 31, 1990 and $455,437,914 at Dec. 31, 1989.

James B. Davis, president, chairman and chief executive officer commented, ''We are extremely pleased that our plan for improving our capital position is working. By continuing to meet strong residential loan demand but deemphasizing projects that are large or commercial in nature, we expect to meet our fully phased-in risk based capital requirements by year-end.

''We are also pleased to see that our cost cutting measures are beginning to take effect. Total overhead for the quarter ended June 30 was $279,600 less that the similar period last year, a 7.6 percent improvement.''

The company currently operates 12 full-service savings and loan branches in Central Florida under the name First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Osceola County and an SBA lending company based in Panama City, Fla. operating six branches through the southeast under the name Gulf American, SBL, Inc.

SAN ANTONIO, TX (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - U.S. Long Distance Corp. announced Thursday that its common stock will begin trading on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation system (NASDAQ) on Monday July 9.

The company's Form 10 General Registration Statement was cleared by the Securities and Exchange commission on June 28 and the National Association of Securities Dealers has approved the listing. The company will trade under the symbol, ''USLD.''

''Becoming an SEC reporting company and attaining a NASDAQ listing are major milestones for our company,'' said Parris H. Holmes Jr., president and chief executive officer.

''Achieving profitability and maximization of shareholder value were our primary goals for 1990. Last month, we were able to announce we had turned the corner on profitability as we are projecting to show a profit for the quarter ending June 30,'' said Holmes.

Holmes said he believed the NASDAQ listing would greatly assist in the broadening of shareholder interest, noting that the larger market afforded by the NASDAQ listing would provide for increased liquidity for USLD shareholders.

USLD, which has been listed on the Vancouver Exchange for the past three years, showed second quarter revenues on March 31, of $4.1 million, up 150 percent from $1.7 million for the same period the previous year. Second quarter results also represented a 20 percent increase in revenues over the preceding quarter, when the company recorded revenues of $3.4 million.

U.S. Long Distance Corp.'s net worth now exceeds $2.6 million following the completion of a $2.5 million equity financing in June. This financing arrangement raised $1.7 million in cash through a private offering of series A 10 percent cumulative convertible preferred stock, and $800,000 through USLD's exchange of series A preferred stock for debentures owned by several debentureholders.

The financing enabled the company to meet NASDAQ's recently raised financing standards for an over-the-counter listing.

USLD's primary business is providing long distance telephone service to the hospitality and payphone industries. The company also provides billing and collection services to interexchange carriers. The company currently provides over 2.5 million minutes a month of long distance service to its hotel, payphone and hospital customers and processes nearly two million records per month through its collection subsidiary.

PARAMUS, NJ (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - TSS Ltd. (NASDAQ: TSSL) Thursday introduced to the in-store promotion market the first pre-purchase coupon distribution program to be based on consumer brand preference.

The program will be executed in conjunction with TSS's The Savings Spot electronic coupon dispensing terminal.

The new ''Product Survey Program,'' which will be featured on TSS's in-store coupon dispensers, enables packaged goods manufacturers to selectively issue coupons to consumers based on their brand preferences, immediately before they begin shopping, resulting in higher coupon redemption rates.

Stephen D. Tannen, president and CEO of TSS Ltd., stated, ''Our Product Survey Program responds to the packaged goods industry's desire to distribute coupons targeted to shoppers who prefer a competing brand. Our approach involves pre-purchase distribution of coupons based on each shopper's brand preference. We at TSS continue to believe that the key to an in-store couponing program's effectiveness is reaching consumers before they begin to shop.''

The competitive diet cola product category can be used to illustrate how the Product Survey Program works. After entering her/his telephone number, a shopper is asked to select her/his preferred brand of diet cola from four displayed choices.

The Savings Spot dispenser then issues cents-off coupons, recipes or other promotional materials depending on the marketing strategy of the sponsoring manufacturer. The coupons can be redeemed in the same shopping trip.

For example, to reinforce usage by consumers who select the sponsor's diet cola, a 25 cents coupon can be issued. To encourage trial/purchase by those who select the diet cola of a primary competitor, a 75 cents coupon for the sponsor's brand can be issued. To encourage trial/purchase by those who select the diet cola of a secondary competitor, a 50 cents coupon can be issued.

At the end of the Product Survey Program, the manufacturer will receive data on brand preference share, coupon issuance, and store volume measurement on a pre, during and post program basis.

TSS Ltd., provides its proprietary in-store coupon distribution service to packaged goods manufacturers through its The Savings Spot program. The program features the company's patented, computerized, consumer-operated coupon dispensing terminals, installed in supermarkets, that print and issue cents-off coupons within three seconds after shopper selection.

TSS's common shares, warrants and units are traded on NASDAQ under the symbols TSSL, TSSLW and TSSLU, respectively.

PERTH AMBOY, NJ (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Bankers Corp. (NASDAQ:BKCO), announced Thursday that its board of directors has declared an initial quarterly cash dividend of 11 cents per share on the company's common stock payable on July 30, 1990 to the shareholders of record at the close of business on July 15.

Subsequent payment and record dates will be determined by the Board in the future.

Joseph P. Gemmell, chairman, president & C.E.O. of Bankers Corp., stated, ''The dividend announcement is in keeping with the intentions of the board of directors to pay a dividend at the rate of 45 cents per annum as disclosed during the conversion from a mutual to a public company in March 1990 when approximately 5.4 million shares were issued at $9 per share.''

He stated, ''I am pleased to report that continued strong earnings enabled the company to begin paying dividends in its first full quarter as a public company.''

The dividend payout approximates 17 percent of the second quarter's earnings. Bankers Savings, the wholly owned subsidiary of Bankers Corp. has been providing innovative deposit and loan services through its offices in central New Jersey since 1869. Its assets approximate $867.4 million and its capital $123.7 million which is equal to 14.3 percent of assets.

MANCHESTER, NH (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Davis P. Thurber, chairman of the board of directors of Bank of New Hampshire Corp., reported Thursday that the previously scheduled on-site examinations to be conducted by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, at the corporation's two national banking affiliates, Bank of New Hampshire, National Association, and Strafford National Bank, were commenced on April 23, 1990, and by mutual agreement, were not concluded prior to the close of the fiscal quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Accordingly, an annoucement of the operating results of the corporation for the fiscal quarter will necessarily be delayed.

He added that he anticipated all open issues between such affiliates and the examiners concerning the examinations, including, but not limited to, the extent to which one-time special adjustments will be made by each affiliate to the Allowance For Loan and Lease Losses, would be resolved in a mutually satisfactory manner on or about July 15, 1990, and, that final operating results for the second quarter, and year to date, would be announced by the corporation as soon thereafter as is feasible.

Thurber continued that, while the effect of such adjustments on the corporation is not subject to conclusive determination at the present time based upon well-recognized weaknesses in the regional and local economies and the effects of same on the general asset quality of the respective loan portfolios of all of the affiliates, management of the corporation has preliminarily identified a $16,000,000 increase in non-performing assets, before charge-offs for the quarter, and it is reasonable to estimate the special provisions for all affiliates will, in the aggregate, approximate $12,000,000, resulting in a quarterly loss for the corporation for the second quarter of approximately $6,500,000.

The quarter would otherwise have been profitable and on target with corporate objectives. This action will result in the first quarterly loss reported by the corporation since 1981. He emphasized that the provision would reflect the previously announced policy of recognizing and reserving for general portfolio weaknesses as they are perceived by management to materialize, but would not reflect a material weakness in any specific area of portfolio concentration.

He concluded by stating that management fully expected the coporation and its operating affiliates to return to profitability in the third and fourth quarters, but that an operating loss for the year ended Dec. 31, 1990, would now be likely.

FAIRFIELD, NJ (JUNE 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Prime Motor Inns Inc. (NYSE:PDQ) announced Thursday that it has sold the Rodeway Inns International franchise system to Manor Care Inc. for $14.9 million in cash. ''As with the sale earlier this week of the Howard Johnson and Ramada franchise systems, we will apply the proceeds of this transaction to further reduce our bank debt,'' said Peter E. Simon, chairman of Prime Motor Inns Inc.

''Our intent is to continue our program to pay down the balance of our bank debt by the end of the calendar year.

''The sales of these three franchise systems enables us to concentrate now on two business areas -- the management of our group of 136 hotels and the development of our highly successful Wellesley Inn and AmeriSuites properties,'' said Simon.

Prime Motor Inns owns, operates or manages 136 properties with approximately 20,400 rooms under the banners of AmeriSuites, Wellesley Inn Howard Johnson, Ramada, Holiday Inns, Sheraton, Hilton, Marriott and Days Inns. There are an additional ten new Wellesley Inns and AmeriSuites, which are under construction and anticipated to open by the end of calendar 1990.

ASHLAND, KY (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Addington Resources Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:ADDR) announced Thursday that it has expanded its interests in solid waste disposal systems through the acquisition by its wholly owned subsidiary, Addington Environmental Inc., of $1,000,000 (95,238 shares) of Series A Convertible Preferred Stock of National Recovery Technologies Inc. (''NRT'').

Addington purchased 28.4 percent of the total number of shares of the Series A Convertible Preferred Stock issued in a recent offering by NRT. The Series A Convertible Preferred Stock is convertible on a share-for-share basis into NRT's common stock. The Addington purchase represents approximately 9.6 percent of the NRT common stock on a fully diluted basis.

NRT is a manufacturer of municipal solid waste recycling processes and equipment. Processes developed by NRT remove recyclable material such as aluminum, steel, glass, corrugated box board, plastics, and compost humus from municipal solid waste for recycling programs, and provide an enhanced prepared refuse fuel for energy recovery incineration.

NRT owns or is exclusive licensee for six United States patents for comprehensive municipal waste stream processing and three foreign patents. A full scale, twenty tons per hour automated recycling system supplied by NRT commenced operations at a municipal solid waste station in Chicago, in late 1989.

In 1989, NRT also supplied an automated recycling system at a municipal solid waste station in New York City and a system of aluminum separators at a municipal solid waste facility in Miami. NRT is based in Nashville, Tenn.

Addington Resources mines coal in Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio and Illinois and is engaged in contracting, highway construction operations and sanitary landfill development and operation.

IRVINE, CA (JULY 5) BUSINESS WIRE - Western Digital Corp. (AMEX:WDC) said Thursday that it has been served in a lawsuit filed by Cadtrak Corp. alleging infringement of two U.S. patents relating to graphics display systems.

Western Digital said that Cadtrak's claim lacks merit. Western Digital's subsidiary, Western Digital Imaging, holds a broad license under the two Cadtrak patents covering both chips and circuit board products. Western Digital believes that customers of Western Digital Corp. and Western Digital Imaging do not need a license under the two Cadtrak patents. Western Digital intends to vigorously contest the lawsuit.

Western Digital noted that, in a lawsuit between Cadtrak and Commodore Business Machines, Commodore is seeking to have the court declare these patents invalid. Attempted enforcement of a patent known to be invalid can violate federal anti-trust laws, and Western Digital intends to seek treble damages and attorney fees from Cadtrak.

Western Digital Corp., headquartered in Irvine, is a multinational company that designs, develops, manufactures and markets semiconductor devices, subsystems, and intelligent disk drives for original equipment manufacturers and resellers which serve the microcomputer industry.

The Storage Products unit provides a broad range of intelligent disk drives and storage controllers. The Microcomputer Products unit provides communications, imaging, systems logic, and integrated systems products.

WESTBORO, MA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Banyan Systems, the leader in corporate-wide PC networking, Thursday announced the promotions, effective immediately, of Rodger E. Weismann to executive vice president, chief operating officer, and of Dr. James E. Allchin to senior vice president.

As executive vice president, chief operating officer, Weismann will be responsible for all aspects of the execution of the operating plans of the company. In this role, all functional areas will be coordinated through one person available for prompt and consistent action. In his theme to make it ''Easy to do Business with Banyan,'' Weismann intends to enhance programs focusing on quality and customer satisfaction.

With Weismann as chief operating officer, Mahoney will have additional time to focus on strategic matters, communicating the company message to industry analysts, press, business partners, and customers throughout the world. Weismann will report to Mahoney.

During his four and a half years at Banyan, Weismann has held a variety of executive positions and has headed such activities as hardware products, international marketing, customer support, information systems, contract and legal administration, in addition to being Banyan's chief financial officer throughout the period.

Before coming to Banyan, Weismann had been chief financial officer at McCormack & Dodge.He has more than twenty years business management experience.

As senior vice president, Allchin will continue to have overall executive responsibility for marketing, strategic relationships, software product development and support.

In recent months, his efforts have helped crystalize and drive home Banyan's marketing message, enhance company image, build strategic partnerships, and strengthen the teamwork between Banyan's engineering, support, and marketing activities. Since the company's inception in 1983, he has been the chief VINES architect, responsible for designing the current distributed network operating system architecture.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) COMTEX - The 6-K report filed at the SEC shows in a press release dated June 15, 1990, La Teko Resources Ltd. reported that the first gold of the 1990 season at the Ryan Lode Mine was poured on May 25. Approximately 800 onces have been processed to date.

An exploration program for the mine, begun in the first week in May of 1990, was set to be carried out in three stages. Of the three, stage one - a VLF survey, trenching and six short reverse circulation holes - was completed as of this release.

Results of stage one show ore more to be widespread on the property than previously believed. La Teko therefore reported concerns as to where to locate pads, and determined that exploration efforts to determine better the extent of the ore body would serve as the more significant agenda for the 1990 calendar year. The building of a heap, the company stated, would be of secondary importance during 1990.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows on June 25, 1990, Package Machinery Co.'s board of directors approved a plan to discontinue the operations of the company's Reed Division. The plan is expected to be completed by Dec. 31, 1990.

The Reed Division manufactured injection molding machines. It will continue as a service organization, providing warranty and other support services for the over 10,000 injection-molding machines produced by the division since 1936.

If not sold, pre-tax losses for the division are expected to sum to approximately $8 million, and would be recorded for the company's second quarter of 1990.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows Progressive Bank Inc.'s board announced the suspension of progressive's quarterly dividend for the period ended June 30, 1990. Further, it authorized the addition of $5 million to reserves against loan losses of Pawling Savings Bank, the company's primary subsidiary.

E. Hale Mayer, chairman and CEO of Progressive, stated that the actions were necessary for the company to maintain a strong capital position. As of March 31, 1990, corporate assets totaled $658.92 million, and capital totaled $65.37 million.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows at a May 16, 1990 special board meeting, Symbion Inc. elected to voluntarily and temporarily suspend the investigational device exemption study of the mitrflow valve in the United States. The action related the company's reappraisal and reorganization of its clinical studies and regulatory and monitoring staff. Monitoring of already implanted valves by Symbion will continue.

The board of directors of Symbion postponed the date of its 1990 shareholders meeting from July 29, 1990, until later in the year. The company will thus be able to present a comprehensive report of all of Symbion's medical devices to shareholders at the meeting.

In other news, Directors Edward J. McKinley, Charles A. Steinberg and Elizabeth H. Weatherman executed indemnification agreements with Symbion. Those agreements are identical to those executed between the company and Richard W. Alder and Gary M. Cole, as detailed in the corporate 8-K filing of May 30, 1990.

SEOUL (JULY 5) - South Korean trade officials want to open a commercial office in Vietnam, but are running up against a U.S. embargo on relations with Hanoi, sources said here Thursday.

An official at the Korea Trade Association (KOTRA) said South Koreans wanted to increase trade with Vietnam, but could not as long as Washington continued to put pressure on allies not to deal with that communist government.

Officials were trying to convince the U.S. government to lift the embargo, he said.

"We cannot ignore the Vietnamese market, we hope they release the embargo," said the official. Without a change in U.S. policy "we have no way to establish relations."

A senior Foreign Ministry official in charge of relations with Hanoi called plans for a trade office "wishful thinking" however. He also said that although Seoul listened to Washington on the matter, it was not under pressure.

A schism on the issue seemed to be developing between KOTRA and the Foreign Ministry following remarks by KOTRA President Lee Sun-Ki to the National Assembly Wednesday. Mr. Lee said South Korea would have a trade office in Vietnam before the end of the year.

Lee Sun-Jin, who is in charge of relations with Vietnam at the ministry, said he had called the Trade and Industry Ministry in the morning to obtain an explanation of the remarks and had been told there were "no such plans."

"No discussion is going on, without informing (the ministry) in advance KOTRA cannot go ahead with such plans," he said.

Mr. Lee acknowledged there had been a U.S. "request not to move fast on our relations with Vietnam."

"We are going to consult with the U.S. government" on relations with Hanoi he said. He added however that if Seoul determined that it was in its interests to have relations it would go ahead despite U.S. protest.

Two-way trade between South Korea and Vietnam reached 70 million dollars last year, according to official figures.

AGRIGENTO, SICILY (JULY 5) - Three men were killed and three others were wounded when mafia gunmen attacked a workshop in an apparent gangland settling of accounts at Porto Empedocle near here late Wednesday, police said.

One of the dead, Sergio Vecchia, had served a five-year jail term for involvement with Sicilian organized crime.

Investigators believe Mr. Vecchia, 33, and the other two men killed, his brothers-in-law, belonged to the so-called Albanese family suspected of murdering the chief of the rival Grassonelli clan in 1986.

Five people died in that attack.

SEOUL (JULY 5) - South Korean President Roh Tae-Woo asked Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu Thursday to defend the interests of Asia's newly industrialized countries (NICs) at the upcoming summit of major industrialized nations in Houston, Texas.

"Since the continuous development of the NICs concurs with the interest of the advanced countries, please reflect positively the positions of the NICs at the seven-nation summit conference," Mr. Roh told Mr. Kaifu in a telephone conversation, according to a press release.

Mr. Kaifu promised to try to transmit a "proper understanding" of the NICs' position to leaders of the seven main industrialized democracies, his office said.

Leaders of Britain, Canada, France, Italy, Japan, West Germany and the United States are to meet in Houston Monday through Wednesday.

Mr. Kaifu also said he would discuss with Western leaders possible changes towards reconciliation and cooperation on the Korean Peninsula in the wake of Mr. Roh's meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in San Francisco a month ago.

He pledged to make efforts for a balanced solution on agricultural issues since the summit is to discuss outstanding problems facing the final stages of the Uruguay Round of talks of the General Agreement on Tarrifs and Trade (GATT).

Mr. Roh expressed hope that Mr. Kaifu would make an official visit to South Korea in the near future, the release said.

Bonn (JULY 5) - Orders for West German industry rebounded in May from the April decline, rising on strong domestic demand, the Economics Ministry said here Thursday.

New orders were up by 2.5 percent over April's level, and in a comparison of April-May and the same two months of 1989, industrial orders were a full 4.4 percent higher in value terms.

The ministry said that domestic demand pushed up industrial orders by five per cent in May, while foreign orders slipped one percent.

MANILA (JULY 5) - The Philippines said Thursday it had deported two Frenchmen it alleged were confederates of the international terrorist known as Carlos.

However French authorities said their names do not appear in International Police Organization (Interpol) files.

Michel Lothoz and Christian Altbaum were arrested separately in March in the central city of Cebu where they were suspected of engaging in illegal activities, immigration commission spokeswoman Sarah Andres said.

Mr. Lothoz chose to be voluntarily deported on May 15 and Mr. Altbaum followed suit on June 2, she added.

Miss Andres said "intelligence informants" whom she did not identify pointed to the two men as among four surviving criminal confederates of Carlos.

Carlos is the nom de guerre of Venezuelan-born Illich Ramirez Sanchez, thought to have been responsible for a series of terrorist attacks in Western Europe and the Middle East in the late 1970's and early 1980's.

Stuttgart (JULY 5) - The West German electronics and automotive components company Robert Bosch said here Thursday it was in the process of boosting its world group investments this year by 23 percent to a record 2.5 billion marks (1.51 billion dollars).

Board chairman Marcus Bierich said the investment sum would reach some 12 percent of the firm's expected turnover of 32 billion marks.

In 1989, Bosch achieved turnover of 30.6 billion marks, up 10.5 percent on the year before. The surplus reached 626 million marks, a gain of 13 percent on 1988, Bierich reported.

He said the turnover volume would rise more slowly this year amid the economic slowdown in key foreign markets such as North and South America and Britain. The automobile market in Western Europe had also peaked, he said.

Automotive components, including anti-blocking systems and electronic fuel injections, accounted for over half of the company turnover, at 15.8 billion marks, in 1989, a gain of ten percent on the year before.

Bosch Telecom, the telecommunications division, achieved turnover of 6.9 billion marks, a gain of 3.9 percent on 1988, while consumer goods turnover by Bosch rose 22 per cent to 5.9 billion marks and production goods volume increased nine per cent to two billion marks.

CANBERRA (JULY 5) - Sales of Australian beef to the United States jumped in the first half of this year to 170,000 tons, from 115,000 tons in the same period of 1989, the Australian Meat and Livestock Corp. said Thursday.

Managing director Bruce Standen said beef and veal exports to the United States this year were expected to total 310,000 tons, compared with 277,000 tons last year.

Exceptionally good grazing weather in 1988 and 1989 enabled farmers to keep cattle from the slaughterhouse until U.S. prices rose this year.

STUTTGART, West Germany (JULY 5) - West German auto electronics, communications and consumer goods concern Robert Bosch said Thursday its net consolidated profit rose 13 percent last year over the 1988 level to 626 million Deutsche marks (374 million dollars).

Consolidated turnover was up 10.5 percent at 30.5 billion Deutsche marks (6.2 billion dollars), Bosch chief Markus Bierich told an annual press conference.

Turnover in the first six months of this year rose 4.5 percent over the same period last year to 15.9 billion Deutsche marks, and Mr. Bierich said he was expecting a slowdown in growth in turnover for the whole year to around four percent.

The group is somewhat of a special case, held 90 percent by the Robert

Bosch foundation and 10 percent by the founder's heirs, and with 90 percent of profit going to the foundation, which uses it for charity in line with the wishes of Robert Bosch, who died in 1942.

The group is to invest a record 2.53 billion Deutsche marks (1.5 billion dollars) this year, a 23 percent increase over the 1989 level, some two thirds of it in the auto equipment sector, with 310 million Deutsche marks going into communications technology.

The group employed some 179,300 people as at the end of June, up from 174,700 last year.

Mr. Bierich said the group had signed 48 cooperation agreements in East Germany to date, including one to set up a windscreen wiper and headlights plant at Eisenach and an assembly plant for Blaupunkt car radios - a Bosch subsidiary.

The group realised 52 percent of turnover abroad last year, up from 51 percent in 1988, with its principal overseas operations in France, the United States, Britain and Spain.

PARIS (JULY 5) - Only a third of the normal flight traffic was being handled at Paris' Roissy and Orly airports on Thursday as a strike by air traffic controllers entered its third and final day.

But airport officials were not expecting an easy ride when the controllers returned to work Friday, with an influx of passengers who had delayed their departure adding to the traditionally heavy traffic of a holiday season weekend.

To add to the problems, industrial action by ground staff at Roissy international airport on Friday is likely to hold up embarkation and disembarkation of passengers.

The controllers' strike for more pay has affected flights from other European airports due to pass through French airspace, particularly those from London.

Some 60 percent of French domestic flights on the Air Inter airline were axed Thursday, and 60 percent of Air France medium-haul international services.

KUALA LUMPUR (JULY 5) - Malaysia, the world's fourth largest cocoa producer, is set to join the International Cocoa Organisation (ICCO) in October, a top official said Thursday.

"It is inevitable. It is now the right time for Malaysia to join the ICCO and I will recommend and time it for October," said Minister of Primary Industries Lim Keng Yaik.

Malaysia's participation in the producer-consumer grouping, which operates a buffer stock aimed at stabilising prices, would have to be approved by the cabinet, he said.

The cabinet has already approved Malaysia's membership of the Cocoa Producers Alliance of 15 African, Latin American, Central American and Caribbean countries.

Dr. Lim said the timing coincided with the extension of the troubled International Cocoa Agreement (ICCA) for two production seasons from October with a suspension of its buffer stock operation.

Malaysia, which expects to produce 260,000 tons of cocoa beans in the current season, has stayed away from the pact, saying it placed the burden of operating the buffer stock on producer members and that the ICCA encouraged inefficient producers.

Cocoa prices fell to their lowest levels since 1975 earlier this year because of six successive seasons of surplus production.

The ICCO has accumulated almost 250,000 tons of cocoa and the buffer stock fund is owed nearly 160 million U.S. dollars by producers.

BEIJING (JULY 5) - More than 70 foreigners from four countries have been arrested in China's southwestern province of Yunnan for illegally "hunting or collecting" butterflies and other insects, the semi-official China News Service said Thursday.

Foreigners arrested since 1982 included 67 Japanese, the agency said quoting local police. It did not list other nationalities.

"The Chinese Government cannot tolerate such action," it said, recalling that Yunnan's lush countryside is home to a variety of rare and endangered species.

Three Japanese were ordered to leave China this week after paying stiff fines for hunting butterflies and other insects in Yunnan in an area off-limits to foreigners, hoping to sell them to collectors in Japan.

Other known cases have also involved fines and expulsions.

MANILA (JULY 5) - The Philippine army is to release 44 officers cleared of direct participation in a bloody coup attempt against President Corazon Aquino in December, a spokesman said Thursday.

Lieutenant Colonel Francisco Fuentes, two majors, 12 captains and 29 other junior officers are to be freed from a detention center at army headquarters here Monday, Lt. Col. Benjamin Enrile said.

He told reporters the 44, assigned to the northern province of Isabela, allegedly tried to drive to Manila to support rebel forces during the failed coup which left 119 people dead and more than 500 wounded.

Their release would bring to 260 the number of soldiers released after being detained for alleged involvement in the bid to oust Mrs. Aquino.

In the previous two weeks, 93 Philippine Marines and 12 paramilitary Constables were also ordered freed after being cleared by investigating bodies.

Although the Marines helped capture air force headquarters and a Naval air station and attacked military headquarters, investigators said they were only "deceived," into joining the coup attempt.

Nearly 2,000 soldiers surrendered or were captured as troops loyal to Mrs. Aquino, aided by the protective cover of U.S. military aircraft, crushed the sixth putsch against her four-year-old administration.

Most of the known leaders remain at large, led by cashiered army colonel Gregorio Honasan, who carries a five million-peso (213,000-dollar) price on his head.

Military sources have admitted the military is reluctant to move against renegade soldiers out of fear this will anger other soldiers.

The detained troops, once freed, will have to undergo only a seminar on military discipline before being accepted back into the ranks.

LAGOS (JULY 5) - The death toll from the collapse of a school at Port

Harcourt in southern Nigeria last month was 111, more than double the estimates given at the time, press reports here Thursday quoted an official as saying.

James Ntia, director of education in Rivers State, also told a six-man judicial panel Wednesday that the school, Saque Comprehensive College, had opened early this year without official approval.

The three-storey school collapsed on June 15 because its foundations had been intended for a bungalow and could not take the weight, building experts had told Agence France-Presse at the scene of the disaster.

The state government had initially put the death toll at 53.

One of the victims of the tragedy was a pregnant teacher, a survivor had told AFP.

The private college in the heart of the commercial city, owned by a 34-year-old influential and affluent businessman, existed because the government lacked sanctions against owners of illegal schools, press reports said.

Following an application by the school - with about 480 students and seven teachers - for official registration last January 24, the ministry of education had planned to inspect it on May 31 but the two parties later agreed to shift the exercise to July 27, Mr. Ntia said.

He added that he was shocked to find out when he visited the school on the day of the tragedy that it already had several classes though its application for approval had not been granted.

BONN (JULY 5) - The EEC appealed to Albania Thursday to let some 200 refugees sheltering in embassies in Tirana to leave the country, West German foreign ministry deputy spokesman Hans Schumacher said.

The ambassador of Italy, current president of the 12-nation European Economic Community, handed a note to that effect to the Albanian Foreign Ministry in Tirana.

Mr. Schumacher said the statement, drafted at West Germany's request, called on Albania not to harm people who fled to foreign missions and not to retaliate against their families.

The EEC asked that embassies be allowed to take charge of the refugees and that they be allowed to leave the country.

The Community also called on Albania to undertake democratic reforms rapidly and respect human rights.

TOKYO (JULY 5) - Seventy-five private Japanese firms launched a consortium here Thursday to conduct business linked to Japan's H2 rocket now being developed, company officials said.

Rocket Systems Inc., capitalized at 484 million yen (3.2 million dollars), will place orders with companies to manufacture H2 rockets and deliver them to the state-run National Space Development Agency (NASDA), they said.

The H2 rocket, 49 meters (yards) long and capable of launching a two-tonne satellite, is now being developed by the NASDA. The first of the rockets is scheduled to be launched in 1993, officials said.

Rocket Systems is comprised of industrial companies, banks, trading houses and electronic equipment makers.

Its largest members are Mitsubishi Heavy Industries Ltd, Ishikawajima-Harima Heavy Industries Co., Kawasaki Heavy Industries Ltd., NEC Corp., Nissan Motor Co. and Mitsubishi Corp.

Mitsubishi Heavy Industries president Yoshio Sasaki was elected president of Rocket Systems, company officials said, adding that the new company would also do business for foreign countries planning to launch satellites.

MANILA (JULY 5) - President Corazon Aquino on Thursday renewed her opposition to a congressional bill putting a cap on the Philippines' annual debt payments.

Such a move would violate international obligations, and prejudice the country's overall economic recovery and development program," she said in a statement.

Mrs. Aquino was reacting to a move by the lower house of congress to revive a bill limiting the country's annual servicing on foreign debts to 15 per cent of the country's exports.

Mrs. Aquino said that in January the country managed to buy back 1.3 billion dollars of its foreign debt at a 50 per cent discount, adding that the country was "in the process of getting further substantial reductions."

"The approach we have chosen, based on voluntary agreements rather than confrontation, has been very effective," she said.

Under the government's proposed budget for 1991, about 18.8 billion pesos (802 million dollars) will go to service the country's 27 billion dollar foreign debt.

Philippine exports totalled 7.8 billion dollars in 1989.

JAKARTA, July 5 (AFP) - The Indonesian government approved 4.56 billion dollars of foreign investment in the six month to June, down from 4.7 billion dollars in the whole of 1989, officials here said Thursday.

Sanyoto Sastrowardoyo, chairman of the Investment Coordinating Board (BKPM) told a press conference that 204 investment projects worth 4.56 billion dollars had been approved in the first six month of 1990.

This compares with 294 projects worth 4.7 billion dollars in 1989, he said.

Mr. Sanyoto predicted an investment boom here this year, among both domestic and foreign investors. He did not give details.

Japan was the largest individual source of foreign investment in 1989, with 53 projects worth 668 million dollars, followed by South Korea with 58 projects worth 460 million dollars and Hong Kong with 13 projects worth 348 million dollars.

Mr. Sanyoto also announced tax incentives for new investment and extentions of more than 30 percent of the initial investment in 13 of Indonesia's 27 provinces.

He said the move was intended to increase the flow of investment and the speed of development in underdeveloped regions outside Java, Bali and Sumatra.

Mr. Sanyoto said domestic investment approved in the first half of 1990 also rose to 648 projects worth 17 billion dollars. The total for 1989 was 864 projects worth 10.7 billion dollars.

The BKPM processes and licenses investment plans outside the oil and gas and the banking sectors.

LONDON (JUKY 5) - British food group Berisford International on Thursday axed its annual dividend and said it was willing to sell any of its activities after a 41 percent profit slump due to a disastrous move into the New York property market.

The news sent Berisford shares plunging 12 percent, or 11 pence, to 80 pence in trading on the London stock market.

The board was willing to sell "any of the businesses within the group" in a bid to reduce its debts, including its main pillar, sugar refining operation British Sugar, group chairman John Sclater said.

Berisford said it was making an extraordinary provision of 160.6 million pounds (285 million dollars) to cover its property losses and the costs of restructuring.

In the six months to March, taxable profit fell to 21.4 million pounds against 36.4 million in the same period last year, and earnings per share plunged 30 percent to 3.3 pence from 4.3.

But after tax credits, minority interests and extraordinary interests, the group showed a loss of 144.5 million pounds, a massive rise over its 17.7 million pound deficit for the same period the previous year.

The 1.8 pence interim dividend announced last year was cancelled.

BRUSSELS (JULY 5) - The European Commission said Thursday it had cleared a seven-million-dollar grant that Belgium offered to pharmaceuticals giant SmithKline Beecham, to help set up a vaccine unit near Brussels.

The European Economic Community's executive contested the aid last October, saying that the subsidy "threatens to distort competition" in the pharmaceuticals sector.

But on Thursday, it approved the aid, saying the investment aimed at developing new technologies in an "innovatory" field and thus bore "a particularly high risk."

The group's Belgian subsidiary, Smith-Kline Biologicals SA, has been offered 243.75 million Belgian francs (7.19 million dollars) towards its start-up capital, plus a five-year holiday from local taxes, to help set up the plant at Rixensart, southeast of Brussels.

The unit is to research "new generation" vaccines resulting from genetic engineering.

ROME (JULY 5) - Three of the four managers involved in the World Cup semi-finals which were decided on penalties would like another way of settling the outcome.

England manager Bobby Robson, whose side lost 4-3 in a shoot-out to West Germny following a 1-1 draw in Turin, said it would be better to simply carry on playing until a goal was scored.

"You could play on. Until the first goal. Eventually something would give. If football is supposed to be about stamina and temperament and fighting spirit, that would come out, but it's not for me to say, that's for FIFA.

''We would have played on. The Germans would have played on,'' he added.

However, German manager Franz Beckenbauer was less forthcoming on the matter.

"It's not up to me, that's the way it is, the rules," he said.

Corners is a possibility and on that criteria West Germany would still have beaten England, by 10-9, but Italy would have beaten Argentina 7-4.

Italy lost their shoot-out by the same 4-3 tally as England after a 1-1 draw.

Italian manager Azeglio Vicini said: "It's a terrible responsibility on one player's shoulders. He has to take all the responsibility for the last two hours. That's not right."

Even Carlos Bilardo, manager of triumphant Argentina, agreed it was an unsatisfactory solution.

"After two teams have given everything they have for 120 minutes it is hardly fair to separate them that way," he said.

"But corners don't necessarily reflect the pattern of play. It would really be better to replay the match but in a tournament there is little time.

"Perhaps the two semi-finals could be played on the same day. There was certainly a possibility here of advancing the quarter-finals by a day to allow for more time at the end of the tournament."

Argentina have qualified for the final without actually winning their quarter-final and semi-final matches. They drew 0-0 with 10-man Yugoslavia and 1-1 with Italy, when they were down to 10 men.

Three of the four quarter-finals in Mexico four years ago were decided by penalties after extra time failed to break the deadlock. Argentina were the only side to win inside 90 minutes.

West Germany are building something of an extra time pedigree.

They lost the 1966 final 4-2 to England after two hours, beat England 3-2 after extra time in the 1970 quarter-finals but then lost 4-3 to Italy in extra time in the semi-finals.

However, since shoot-outs were introduced in 1982, they have reached the finals of the last three tournaments on their penalty kicking ability.

They beat France on penalties in the 1982 semi-finals, needed penalties to overcome Mexico in the 1986 quarter-finals and have now beaten England in the same way to reach Sunday's final.

However the most moving picture of Wednesday night's drama was the sight of German captain Lothar Matthaeus consoling Chris Waddle after he had missed his kick.

That might well be repeated on Sunday as FIFA confirmed there was no provision for a replay. That means Diego Maradona or Matthaeus could lift the trophy in triumph without their team having actually won the final.

NOORDWIJK, Netherlands (JULY 5) - Whales look set for a year of peace and quiet with the major whaling nations -- Japan, Iceland and Norway -- apparently set to refrain from going on the offensive and demand a resumption of commercial whaling.

Before the 42nd annual meeting of the International Whaling Commission (IWC) being held here there had been growing fears among conservationists that a 1982 moratorium on whaling, which came into effect in 1985, was at risk.

Delegates questioned Wednesday by Agence France-Presse said it looked as if there would be no up-front battle this year between those for or against commercial whaling.

The head of a European delegation, who wished to remain anonymous, said that "the real battle will probably take place at the next meeting of the IWC, at Reykjavik", Iceland.

The source said Japan had requested an "interim quota" of 50 Minke whales for 1991.

While this would be for "native whalers", he said, stressing that "each year the number they ask for goes down", there was little chance that the Japanese would be granted their wish as this would amount to a breach of the moratorium.

The Norwegians, he said, would "probably wait for next year" before going on the offensive while waiting for the crucial question of "reclassifying the stocks" of whales to be settled.

Several delegates said Norway and Iceland were especially interested in the outcome of an inquiry by the IWC's scientific committee that would give a comprehensive assessment of the population of marine mammals and their rate of reproduction zone by zone.

The committee is also looking into "revised management procedures" of the stocks, which basically means reviewing new norms of preserving, or possibly harvesting, whales.

Only after these conclusions are reached will eventual new quotas be set: on them hangs the resumption or a continued moratorium of commercial whaling.

The IWC distinguishes between three types of whale: those whose numbers are not known, the "protected" species that cannot be hunted, and those than can.

As current estimates incorporate a wide margin of error, delegates are heading toward a solution that would give the whales the "benefit of doubt" and the Noordwijk conference would end with the status quo being maintained and harpoons being left aside for the moment.

Early Wednesday the technical committee rejected an Icelandic request for reclassification of the central north Atlantic zone.

One delegate who favours the moratorium said that this year's conference was best left to continue the status quo without rocking the boat. The major whaling nations, he added, had not asked for a suspension as they knew they would not get the necessary three-quarters majority.

There was one jarring note when Iceland's Fisheries Minister Halldor Asgrimsson said his country "has no place" in the IWC if the body "is not capable of taking the necessary decisions."

Mr. Asgrimsson recalled that the Commission had been set up in 1946 to "manage rationally the use of whale populations" and not as a "protection organization."

Asked about Iceland's reaction if the IWC refused to give it the quota of Minke whales it had requested, the minister simply replied that Iceland would be the host country at the next meeting "but we hope that (by then) there will have been changes in the policy of the commission."

ROME (JULY 5) - Italian manager Azeglio Vicini, under threat of losing his job after failing to win the World Cup, hit back at his critics on Thursday.

"I can't win whatever I do," he said. "One half wanted us to fall back in defence after we had gone ahead against Argentina. The other half wanted me to send on Roberto Baggio to finish the match with a second goal."

Vicini opted for Salvatore Schillaci, who scored five goals in six matches, and Gianluca Vialli to face Argentina and sent on Baggio, who had done little since his enthralling goal against Czechoslovakia, in the second half.

He rejected claims that Italy's physical preparation was inadequate and said the fact they were hosts forced them to play attacking football which was more demanding.

"It was up to us to put on a show and after a long season it was evident many of the players would be unable to put anything extra into 120 minutes of football," he said.

The Italians looked unable to score again once Argentine striker Claudio Caniggia had cancelled out Salvatore Schillaci's opening goal in Tuesday's semi-final which went to a penalty shoot-out.

Vicini's critics say he should have played midfielder Carlos Ancelotti and Pietro Vierchowod to bolster a defence which looked vulnerable in the middle in spite of a superb game by Franco Baresi.

Ricardo Ferri and Giuseppe Bergomi failed to cope with Caniggia and Diego

Maradona but Vicini angrly rejected the criticism which has replaced the disappointment of going out of the World Cup.

"It's easy to say what went wrong afterwards," he said.

However, he expects to make changes for Saturday's third place play-off with England in Bari.

"We must at least finish third," he said.

ERBA (JULY 5) - Captain Lothar Matthaeus pledged Thursday to lead the West German team to victory over Argentina in Sunday's World Cup final - as a gift to Franz Beckenbauer.

The 44-year-old trainer will be in charge of the national side for the last time in Rome's Olympic Stadium and has the chance to repeat a World Cup triumph he experienced as a player in 1974 in Munich.

''We want to present Franz with the World Cup title as a farewell present '' said Matthaeus a day after West Germany knocked out England in a dramatic semi-final penalty shoot-out.

''Taking part in the final is already a fantastic success, but now we want to crown this by taking the cup back to Germany.''

Beckenbauer, who won a record 103 caps for West Germany, said his side's chances of beating Argentina were far greater than in Mexico four years ago when the South Americans took the title in a 3-2 win.

Beckenbauer's first match in charge of the national side was in September 1984 when the opponents in a 3-1 defeat were Argentina.

''Maybe it is an irony of fate that Argentina are to be the last team I face,'' said Beckenbauer who will be succeeded by his assistant and former international teammate Berti Vogts.

''In any case, the outlook for us is good. We have played wonderfully well in six World Cup games and deserve to be in the final. I would really be pleased if the team became world champions.

PARIS (JULY 5) - OPEC oil producers pumped 23.2 million barrels of crude a day in June, nearly 1.2 million bd in excess of the 22 million bd target they agreed in May to prop up flagging oil prices, the International Energy Agency (IEA) said Thursday.

The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), which has scheduled its semi-annual ministerial meeting in Geneva from July 25, has "a problem of credibility", a Western oil official commented.

The IEA estimated last month's OPEC output to be down by a modest 0.35 million bd from its May level of 23.6 million, and by just under 0.9 million bd from the March peak of about 24 million.

But the IEA's monthly oil market report said OPEC's second quarter output, at 23.6 million bd, was only marginally less than the revised first quarter level of 23.7 million bd and marked a hefty 2.6 million bd increase over the corresponding period of 1989.

As a result, it said, the organization's production during the first half of the year averaged 23.6 million bd, a 15 percent year-on-year increase.

The IEA said high first half production levels had been accompanied by a "marked build-up in floating storage to the highest level seen since mid-1987," as well as large increases in other stocks held outside the industrial consumer countries.

It said provisional data from shipping sources indicated that crude oil in floating storage, as distinct from oil in transit, rose by some 0.2 million bd between end-March and end-June.

IEA experts linked this to a sharp increase in crude liftings in the Gulf in March.

They said stocks on land in member countries of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), which increased by 0.8 million bd in the first quarter to 463 million tons as of April 1, grew by an estimated further 0.3 million bd in the second quarter, to some 467 million tons on July 1.

The report said world oil supply was down by 0.6 million bd in June to 53.7 million, with production declines both in OPEC and in the OECD countries, where summer maintenance programmes have started both on the Alaskan North Slope and in the North Sea.

But a sharp recovery in Soviet oil exports raised net supplies from centrally planned economies to 1.9 million bd in June from 1.4 million in the first quarter.

Second quarter world oil supply of 53.6 million bd, virtually the same as in the first three months of the year, compared with estimated world consumption of 51.1 million, a moderate 1.8 percent increase over 50.2 million in the same period of 1989, the report said.

OECD demand rose year-on-year by 0.3 million bd or 0.8 percent to 36.3 million, while non-OECD countries boosted their consumption by 0.6 million bd to 14.8 million, a 4.2 percent increase.

The report said OECD consumption was now projected to increase by about 0.4 million bd or one percent to 38 million bd in 1990 as a whole, while non-OECD requirements would continued to expland by some 0.6 million bd to 15.3 million.

For the first half of next year, the IEA projected a somewhat faster increase of 0.8 million bd or some two percent at an annual rate.

MOSCOW (JULY 5) - Several earth tremors were recorded in Tadzhikistan, Soviet central Asia on Thursday morning, Tass news agency reported.

No one was hurt and no damage caused in the tremors which measured six points on the 12-point Mercalli scale.

The epicentre was 40 kilometres (about 25 miles) south-west of the town of Kulyab, the Dushanbe geoseismic centre said.

TURIN (JULY 5) - England still cannot believe they will not be playing Argentina on Sunday for the World Cup final.

Manager Bobby Robson, who leaves after Italy to take charge of Dutch club PSV Eindhoven, believed England would have gone on to lift the trophy had they won last night.

''We are cursing ourselves that we didn't beat West Germany. We would have fancied Argentina in the Final. We felt strongly that we could have won the World Cup,'' he said.

However two misses in a dramatic penalty shoot-out let in West Germany for a re-match of the 1986 final with Argentina.

Defender Stuart Pearce still believes his penalty miss cost England the chance of becoming World Champions. No matter that West Germany did not even require their last spot-kick when Chris Waddle blasted wildly off target.

Pearce was inconsolable after goalkeeper Bodo Illgner blocked his critical shot, the fourth of England's five.

He was last on the team bus having walked round the ground an hour after the drama with team physician Dr John Crane.

''I really feel for Pearce,'' added Robson. ''He's very disappointed, but these things happen."

However even if England had beaten West Germany they would have been without their best player. Paul Gascoigne's second booking of the tournament carried an automatic one match ban.

The realisation that he would miss the Final reduced him to tears, although that personal pain was superseded by the drama of the penalty shoot-out.

''Football teaches you to be resilient. You have to pick yourself up and get on with life. If you can't do that you shouldn't be in the game,'' he said.

Robson had set his sights on reaching the last eight but they will be placed third if they beat Italy in Bari on Saturday.

''We will pick up the threads and as far as I'm concerned the tournament is not finished. We have one more match to play and our objective is to finish third,'' he said.

They are already the most successful England side since the 1966 World Cup winners.

England were pilloried after their disastrous 1988 European Championship show and they scraped through the first round here but gradually got better.

Wednesday's semi-final was the third successive match in eight days they had to play extra-time. They had been lucky to survive against Belgium and Cameroon but their luck ran out when Andreas Brehme's shot spun off Paul Parker's foot and looped over Peter Shilton for a freak goal.

Hopes were restored ten minutes from time when Gary Lineker struck his fourth goal of the tournament and both sides hit the woodwork in extra-time.

That was until the shoot-out nightmare.

MOSCOW (JULY 5) - Soviet military officers Thursday took the country's diplomats to task over foreign policy which they claimed had resulted in the loss of Soviet allies, on the fourth day of the Communist Party congress here.

Soviet foreign policy since 1985 "has ended up with the expulsion of the Soviet Union from Europe, and a separation of the country from its allies," Ivan Nikulin, head of the political directorate of the Soviet army's southern theatre, said.

Criticising the "new political thinking" adopted under Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, General Nikulin charged that Mr. Gorbachev's notion of a "common European home" was "a myth".

Mr. Nikulin contended at a congress workshop session on international affairs that Soviet foreign policy had been successful in the last five years "only because of concessions".

A number of other congress delegates also lashed the country's foreign policy, according to the semi-independent news digest Interfax.

Their comments were made public as the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation was opening a summit in London to discuss the diminishing military threat from the eastern bloc.

LONDON (JULY 5) - Uncut diamond sales by the Central Seling Organisation (CSO), the London-based marketing arm of the De Beers group rose seven percent in the first half of this year to a record 2.47 billion dollars.

Sales in the first half of last year totalled 2.31 billion dollars.

The sales figures for the first half of 1990 were 40 percent above those in the second half of last year, when they totalled 1.77 billion dollars.

In South African rand terms, the first half sales totalled 6.64 billion rand, up nine percent over the first half of last year and 36 percent above the second half of last year.

TOKYO (JULY 5) - The collapse of the East bloc and the threat it posed to the industrialised West largely explains rising economic and trade tensions in the West, said an official report released here Thursday.

The report, published by the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI), said that "since World War II, Japan and other advanced Western nations have been tied together by the common threat of the Eastern bloc."

However, "now the Eastern bloc is declining and the frictions between the advanced Western nations are becoming more prominent."

The MITI report, produced by a committee of economists, academics and financiers, suggested guidelines for Japan's trade and industrial policy in the 1990's.

The interdependence of world economies and their internal structures are increasingly the subject of debate and conflict, the report said.

"The nations of the world are becoming more critical of Japan," the report said.

It attributed this increased criticism to the rapid growth of the Japanese economy and its influence abroad, saying Japan's rise had led to reactions of "worry, and even fear, from the international community."

However, the report said that Japan "can avoid becoming isolated from the international community" by recognising that its prosperity depends on a stable and prosperous international environment and on strengthening its links abroad.

"It is imperative that Japan cooperate closely with those advanced nations which share with Japan the common ideals of liberty, democracy and the free market economy."

Ties with the United States are particularly important, both for Japan and for the rest of the world, the report said.

However, it added, Japan must recognise that "the United States remains by far the leading force in the world today, exerting its influence over the oceans and continuing to play the most important role in the global order."

Regarding Europe, the report emphasised the importance of improving the balance of trilateral ties among Japan, the United States and Europe, where now "the Japan-Europe link is the weakest."

The report emphasised the "erosion of economic boundaries" and said poor international cooperation could lead to "closed markets based on protectionism and thus to the collapse of the global economic system."

However, the report called for stronger ties in the Asia-Pacific region where, it said, "cooperation could serve as a model for the rest of the world."

The report called for Japan to play a role "in the democratic and economic reforms in China, on the Korean peninsula and in Indochina ... "

KUALA LUMPUR (JULY 5) - The Kuala Lumpur Stock Exchange (KLSE) on Thursday amended listing rules for stockbroking companies wishing to go public in a move analysts said would ensure the firms stay in professional hands.

KLSE executive chairman Nik Mohamad Din Yusoff said that a new rule required brokerage houses seeking public listing to ensure that existing shareholders retained at least 51 percent of the firms' share capital.

He said non-members of the exchange, whether persons or corporations, were not allowed to hold individually more than 10 percent or in aggregate more than 49 percent of the brokerage firm's paid-up capital.

The KLSE may also impose a moratorium on the sale of major shareholdings of a brokerage firm for one year after it has been admitted to the bourse's list, following which divestment may be allowed at an annual rate of 20 percent.

Mr. Din said the exchange required the executive directors of broking firms seeking a listing to enter into service agreements of at least three years with the firms.

Analysts said the amendments, the latest in a series of moves to strengthen the securities industry, were aimed at preventing parties with little knowledge of the industry from taking control of broking firms.

The government had begun by encouraging banks to buy into stockbroking firms in order to inject professionalism and capital into the securities industry which took a drubbing after the 1985 collapse of Pan-Electric Industries.

In March, Finance Minister Daim Zainuddin ordered broking firms to raise their paid-up capital to 20 million dollars (7.41 million U.S.) after thousands of share certificates went missing during an unprecedented bull run.

Only one of Malaysia's 47 active stockbroking companies is currently listed on the KLSE.

LOS ANGELES (JULY 5) - The U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) trained Guatemalan rebels at a Mexican drug trafficker's ranch in the early 1980s, according to a government report revealed here Thursday.

The Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) report, described in Thursday's Los Angeles Times, said the CIA trained the Guatemalan rebels in Veracruz, Mexico, at the ranch of convicted drug trafficker Rafael Caro Quintero.

The report said a gun battle between the guerrillas and police erupted at the ranch sometime between 1981 and 1984 during a raid by members of the Mexican Federal Judicial Police (MFJP).

"As a result of the confrontation, 19 MFJP agents were killed. Many of the bodies showed signs of torture; the bodies had been drawn and quartered," the DEA report quoted an informant as saying.

The informant, who spoke to DEA investigators in September, was identified as Laurence Victor Harrison. According to the DEA, Mr. Harrison operated a communications network for drug lords and their confederates in Mexican police agencies.

Mr. Harrison said CIA personnel also stayed once at the home of convicted drug trafficker Ernesto Fonseca Carrillo.

Both Mr. Fonseca Carrillo and Mr. Caro Quintero were convicted and imprisoned in Mexico for their part in the 1985 torture-murder of DEA agent Enrique Camarena and his Mexican pilot.

Mr. Harrison also said the CIA was using the Mexican Federal Security Directorate as a cover at the same time members of that Mexican police force were working with "major drug overlords" shipping narcotics to the United States.

The DEA report, submitted as evidence in the trial here of four other men linked to the Camarena murder, was obtained late Tuesday by the Los Angeles Times.

The report did not explain why the CIA was allegedly training Guatemalan rebels or if the spy agency knew who owned the ranch.

The CIA denied the DEA report. "The CIA does not engage in drug-running activities," an agency spokesman said.

ROME (JULY 5) - Diego Maradona and Jorge Burruchaga will win the World Cup for Argentina on Sunday says defender Juan Simon.

"When Diego is fit and Jorge is at his peak we are the best in the world," claimed the big defender.

"And we have found a great goalkeeper in Sergio Goycoechea."

Goycoechea was the penalty save hero against both Yugoslavia and Italy.

Maradona started the tournament with a protective cap for crushed toes and has been struggling with a blood clot on his ankle since their last group game with Romania.

He played his best match so far against Italy in Tuesday's semi-final with passing which time and again exposed the Italian defence.

And he could not have wished for a better midfield partner than Burruchaga who was everywhere.

He was kicked on the knee against Italy but manager Carlos Bilardo said he would be fit for the final.

"He has improved with every game. He gives us an extra option in attack," said Bilardo who would not say which players would replace the suspended Julio Olarticoechea, Ricardo Giusti, Sergio Batista and Claudio Caniggia.

Argentina have three players left from that 1986 final -- Oscar Ruggeri, Burruchaga, who scored the winner, and Maradona.

Olarticoechea, Giusti and Batista also played in the Mexico City final.

Caniggia, who scored the winner against Brazil in the second round and the equaliser against Italy in the semi-finals, refused to take his punishment lying down.

"A one match ban for handling a ball is grotesque," he said. "I didn't kick anyone."

French referee Michel Vautrot gave Caniggia his second yellow card of the tournament for stopping a pass with his hands - something he had been trying to do whenever the ball went over his head.

Bilardo was philosophical about the suspensions.

"You just have to get on with life," he said.

BUDAPEST (JULY 5) - Hungary's dollar-denominated current account showed a surplus of 243 million dollars for the first five months of this year, against a 772 milion deficit in the same period last year, it was announced here Thursday.

The improvement was largely due to a rise in the trade surplus to 340 million dollars during the period from a mere 24 million in the first five months of last year, the MTI news agency quoted the Hungarian national bank as saying.

For the whole of 1989, the dollar current account showed a deficit of 1.43 billion dollars last year, while the trade surplus totalled 537 million dollars, MTI said.

Ruble-denominated trade with the Soviet Union and other members of the Eastern bloc trading alliance COMECON showed a deficit of 230 million rubles (143 million dollars at the official rate) in the first five months of this year, against a surplus of 20 million (12.5 million dollars) last year, MTI said.

The 600 million ruble (375 million dollars) current account surplus with COMECON countries in the first five months of 1989 became a 400 million ruble (250 million dollar) deficit in the same period this year, it added.

Hungary is seeking to absorb its surplus in rubles with the Eastern bloc and at the same time show a surplus in hard currency trade with the West in a bid to pay off its foreign debt of almost 21 billion dollars, the highest per capita foreign debt in Eastern Europe.

MEDELLIN, Colombia (JULY 5) - Colombian authorities are sending 500 police reinforcements to this drug-trafficking center to help put an end to a wave of violence by hitmen in the pay of drug lords, police said Thursday.

Authorities decided to deploy the reinforcements here after bombs destroyed four neighborhood police posts Wednesday. There were no reported injuries in the blasts.

The targeted police booths had been vacant since the weekend, when patrolmen were withdrawn in the face of a new wave of bombings and shootings against security forces here.

Also Thursday, Mayor Omar Florez called for the national government to declare a state of economic and social emergency in Medellin.

Mr. Florez said that under such a decree, the government could implement plans for investments in Medellin that would generate jobs and provide for the basic needs of the city's more than one million residents.

Police Colonel Fernando Echeverry said authorities here decided to overhaul the security system of this industrial city, home to the Medellin cartel which U.S. authorities say ship 80 percent of the cocaine smuggled into the United States.

Col. Echeverry said police patrols would be increased in the strategic areas of Medellin, with patrolmen being continually rotated.

He said police posts would be staffed by an officer, two junior officers and 20 patrolmen, and that the uniformed police would be bolstered by a large corps of undercover agents.

He added that the city's motorized patrols -- which began two weeks ago with two helicopters, police cars and motorcycles -- would be intensified.

The measures were taken in response to the violence unleashed by Medellin-based drug traffickers.

At least 167 police have died in the Medellin metropolitan area this year, with the most recent killing occurring overnight Wednesday. Authorities say the Medellin cartel's reputed director, Pablo Escobar, has offered his hitmen a bounty of thousands of dollars for every policeman they kill.

Security forces here have been searching for Mr. Escobar since last August, when President Virgilio Barco unleashed a crackdown on the nation's powerful drug lords.

The drug traffickers have responded with their own offensive of indiscriminate car bombings and assassinations of police and politicians.

ADDIS ABABA (JULY 5) - African foreign ministers are split over a common response to western pressure to introduce multi-party democracy, delegates at an Organization of African Unity (OAU) meeting here said Thursday.

"We must avoid imposing on Africa a system imported from elsewhere", Egyptian foreign minister Boutros Ghali told Agence France-Presse.

"We must not open the door to neo-colonialism. Let us evolve as we wish", he said, noting that Egypt had opted for a multi-party system.

"The important thing is to protect human rights", he said, adding that it mattered little whether a country chose single-party rule or political pluralism as long as human rights were not violated.

OAU Secretary-General Salim Ahmed Salim has invited OAU foreign ministers here to prepare next week's OAU summit to coinsider how Africa should respond to democratic changes in eastern Europe and the changing superpower relationship.

"Africa has long been criticized for human rights violations, for the absence of democracy and the lack of democratic institutions", Mr. Salim said in a report being discussed by the ministers behind closed doors.

Delegates said the ministers appeared to be divided into two camps. "Most delegates support the changes in eastern Europe", said an observer who has attended the discussions.

Others, however, argued that one-party rule was not necessarily undemocratic and Africa should not blindly follow eastern Europe, a delegate said.

"But there is general agreement that Africa should not be subjected to outside interference," he said.

"You can have democratic participation in the political process and free speech without a multi-party system".

Many African countries have been wracked by popular demonstrations for democracy.

The governments and ruling parties of Zaire, Ivory Coast, Gabon, Congo and Cape Verde are among those who have agreed to pave the way to political pluralism. Even the government of war-torn Angola, for long a communist bastion, has agreed to move towards a multi-party system.

Zambia's beleagured President Kenneth Kaunda was the latest African leader to come under fire. Zambians, incensed over the doubling of the price of maize-meal, their staple food, took to the streets last month to demand political change.

Other topics discussed by the ministers included conflicts in the Middle East.

A representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), Ibrahim Abu Khalil, said the new Israeli government of Yitzhak Shamir was rejecting all peace efforts.

Some hardline members of the government had called for the expulsion of all Palestinians from the occupied territories, he said.

BERLIN (JULY 5) - Thousands of East German metalworkers stopped work briefly Thursday, seeking more pay and a guarantee that their jobs would not be lost, the ADN news agency said.

There have been several such stoppages in the troubled industry, which is likely to be thoroughly overhauled with the introduction of a market economy, since German monetary and economic union took effect on Sunday.

Negotiations between the IG Metall union and employers were broken off two days ago in several parts of the country.

The employers are refusing union demands of a guarantee that no jobs will be lost over the next two years and for a reduction in the working week from 43.75 hours to 40 hours.

Several thousand metalworkers stopped work for half-an-hour Thursday in seven factories in the Leipzig region in the south, calling for negotiations to resume.

In Erfurt, where there are some 270,000 metalworkers, negotiations began after some 9,000 people, according to the union, staged a demonstration in the town to pressure the employers to talk.

In a related development, management at a car plant at Eisenach in the south making the Wartburg car said that almost a tenth of its workforce was to be cut, with 850 of its 9,350 workers being made to retire early.

MOSCOW (JULY 5) - Soviet authorities sent 28 tanks and 15 armoured personnel carriers across the border into the little Estonian town of Tori Thursday morning to stop a meeting of old soldiers.

Estonian officials said later Thursday that the republic's Memorial Federation had cancelled the meeting of veterans from both world wars and from the Estonian war of independence of 1919-1920.

A chorus of protest rose in the Soviet Union over the meeting, which according to Soviet reports would also have attracted Estonians who fought during the occupation for the Nazis in the 20th SS division or in units known as Omakaitse.

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted the vice-president of the international committee of former prisoners in Buchenwald Nazi concentration camp, Emil Karlebach, as saying the meeting would profane the memory of the victims of Nazi terror.

Before the Soviet troops arrived, the Estonian government had appealed to the organisers not to use ''symbols that offend public feelings''. Estonian Prime Minister Edgar Savisaar had written to the Kremlin, promising his government would ensure an orderly meeting.

BRUSSELS (JULY 5) - Fourteen European companies next week will form a consortium to promote the European standard of high-definition television (HDTV), in rivalry with Japanese and U.S. firms.

The consortium, named Vision 1250, groups the European Economic Community's biggest electronics firms, such as Philips of the Netherlands and Thomson of France, and its biggest television broadcasters, such as the British Broadcasting Corp. and RAI of Italy.

Formally launched on July 14 with the powerful backing of the EEC's executive Commission, Vision 1250 will aim to manufacture and manage HDTV equipment for professional use.

HDTV is considered one of the great prizes of consumer manufacturing in the 1990s, promising cinema-quality television pictures with digital stereo sound.

But Japan and the EEC have been at loggerheads as to which standard should be adopted.

Japanese firms, far ahead in HDTV research and development, have produced a standard that is not directly compatible with current television sets.

The EEC has contested this as a world standard, arguing that consumers should not be obliged to buy a different set when broadcasts are eventually in HDTV frequences only. The European standard aims at to doubling the line density of today's 625-line television pictures.

The Vision 1250 launch in Strasbourg, France, to be attended by members of the European Parliament, will include a giant-screen demonstration of footage of the EEC assembly and excerpts from the World Cup, the European Commission said Thursday.

PARIS (JULY 5) - The number of housing starts in France totalled 122,600 in the first five months of this year, a 7.6 percent drop on the 132,700 for the same period last year, according to figures released here Thursday.

The May figures showed a sharpening in the slowdown, after a 7.4 percent fall in the first four months of the year.

The same trend showed in year on year figures, with the number of new housing starts in the 12 months to May, at 328,700, up 2.2 percent over the preceding 12 months, against a 2.8 percent rise in the 12 months to April.

The slowdown is particularly marked in the rental sector and in the Paris region, the housing ministry said.

GENEVA (JULY 5) - About 6,000 Liberians belonging to the anti-government Ghios and Manos tribes have taken refuge in six Red Cross centres in Monrovia, the International Committee for the Red Cross said Thursday.

Meanwhile, about 500 refugees from the pro-government Mandingo tribe are arriving daily in neighbouring Sierra Leone, a spokesman for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), Jeff Crisp, said Thursday.

The UNHCR estimates that 160,000 Liberian refugees are in Sierra Leone, Ivory Coast and Guinea, most of them from the Nimba province where tribes support rebel leader Charles Taylor and his National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPLF).

The refugees in Red Cross centres in the Liberian capital are also from tribes loyal to Mr. Taylor, a former Liberian civil servant who is calling for the resignation of President Samuel Doe.

Rebels have agreed to participate in a fresh peace initiative to end the country's bloody civil war, but have marshalled more than 4,500 soldiers for a final assault on Monrovia, a rebel spokesman said Thursday.

The ICRC said both authorities and rebel forces were aware of the existence of the refugee camps. The refugees have been going to their jobs during the day and returning to the refugee centres at night.

Mr. Crisp said Mandingo refugees arriving in Sierra Leone said they had witnessed "atrocities committed by men in uniforms" and many have lost family members.

The UNHCR has appealed to the international community for 13.4 million dollars to help the Liberian refugees.

MANAGUA (JULY 5) - Employees of the nation's banking and telephone systems as well as customs workers walked off the job Thursday, as strikes called earlier this week among industry and agricultural workers gained momentum.

Also Thursday, the conservative government of President Violeta Chamorro announced that Labor Minister Francisco Rosales would meet with leaders of the leftist National Workers' Front (FNT) who were detained by police for two hours Wednesday as they were about to hold a press conference here.

The union leaders were taken to National Police headquarters, where hundreds of FNT supporters congregated to press for their release, union sources said.

The FNT -- linked to the leftist Sandinista National Liberation Front (FSLN) that relinquished the presidency to Mrs. Chamorro after 10 years in power -- called the strike to demand a minimum monthly wage equivalent to at least 200 dollars, job security, government loans to industry and construction, and a voice in government economic policy.

Union sources said "we can expect little in the talks (with the labor minister) because the government only wants to discuss the salary issue."

Employees at the Telecomunications and Mail (TELCOR) company paralyzed all international operator-assisted telephone service and threatened to cut all automatic domestic service as well as international direct-dial service.

Airport customs officers were divided between affiliates of the FNT, who supported the strike, and other unions who wanted to remain on the job.

Of Nicaragua's eight land, air and sea customs terminals, only the workers at the international airport here and at the Penas Blancas border crossing with Costa Rica, stayed on the job.

LUXEMBOURG (JULY 5) - The European Economic Community's first loan to Hungary will go towards improving the country's electricity network, the European Investment Bank (EIB) announced Thursday.

The EEC's lending arm said 15 million European Currency Units (ECUs) (18.75 million dollars) was being lent toward a three-phase scheme to modernise the Hungarian national grid and introduce a computerised control system.

An additional 20 million ECUs (25 million dollars) may be lent to the scheme, it said.

The EEC in November 1989 authorised the EIB to lend a combined total of up to one billion ECUs (1.25 billion dollars) to Poland and Hungary as part of the effort to help them move towards a market economy.

PRETORIA (JULY 5) - The South African economy has shown a further mild decline in the first quarter of 1990 resulting in "a light recession", the South African Reserve Bank's quarterly review, released Thursday, says.

It reports a gradual "cyclical slowing down" of the economy since the first quarter of 1989.

It makes no specific mention of economic sanctions, imposed against South Africa in various forms since 1986.

The review says the economy may cool down further and attributes this to brittle business and consumer sentiment in light of rapid recent and prospective socio-political developments.

"Less buoyantly confident sentiment has also tended to result from gold price declines such as those in late March and in late May and early June, and from the impact of these gold price movements on the behaviour of share prices on the stock exchange," the review said.

Business confidence has not been helped by the African National Congress's promise to nationalise key sectors of the economy if it comes to power.

The review said real Gross Domestic Product had continued to shrink due to falling farm prices and lower gold prices and production.

Gross Domestic Product at market prices stood at 232.6 billion rand (87.7 billion dollars) at the end of 1989.

Unemployment had declined, in apparent contradiction to the "cooling-down" of the economy, the review notes.

The review points out that the total real output of the economy in the second quarter of 1990 is likely to be hit by recent increases in politically-motivated absenteeism, labour unrest, recent and current "industrial action" in various sectors of the economy, among other reasons.

Other factors reported in the review of the first quarter of 1990 include:

- An estimate that the aggregate real output in the economy during the first quarter of 1990 had declined by a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.5 percent;

- There had been downward trends in net new company registrations, wholesale and retail sales at constant prices, the number of new motor vehicles sold, and the rate of extension of new bank credit;

- The cooling down of the economy was also reflected in shrinkage of the M3 money supply;

- A dramatic improvement -- mainly because of a huge swing in short-term capital movements -- was observed on the capital account of the balance of payments in the first quarter of 1990. The balance on the current account stands at 2.276 billion rands (858 million dollars);

- A major strengthening of both the total South African gross and net foreign reserves during this period to 7.8 billion rand (2.94 billion dollars) by the end of March, despite a decline of 429 million rand (161 million dollars) in April due to foreign loan repayments;

- The Reserve Bank's gross foreign reserve holdings had fallen back moderately in April and to a lesser extent in May.

- The inflation rate had improved significantly, dropping from 14.9 percent to around 14.4 percent.

TEL AVIV (JULY 5) - The political bureau of Israel's Labour Party decided here Thursday that its central committee would meet in two weeks to resolve the leadership challenge facing Shimon Peres.

The 2,000-member committee will decide on whether to hold a leadership contest and on when and how it could be held, amid a campaign by the party's number two Yitzhak Rabin to oust Mr. Peres.

The political bureau said in a special meeting that the central committee should also decide when and how to select the Labour candidate for the post of prime minister in the next general election in 1992.

Mr. Peres has said that under the party's regulations he cannot be replaced until the end of his four-year mandate, which expires in the election year.

But a Labour law commission recently authorised the central committee to begin a procedure for the leadership dual between Mr. Peres and Mr. Rabin, who are long-time personal rivals.

"The battle will be bitter," one of Mr. Rabin's aides said.

Twenty-eight Labour MPs out of 38 have said they back Mr. Rabin to replace

Mr. Peres after the Labour leader's failure earlier this year to muster support for a new government.

But supporters of Mr. Peres say he has the backing of the party's rank-and-file.

A coalition government in which Mr. Peres held the finance portfolio and Mr. Rabin was defence minister collapsed in March after a dispute over U.S. proposals for Israeli-Palestinian talks.

In June, Yitzhak Shamir of the right-wing Likud bloc succeeded in forming a new administration without Labour.

BRUSSELS (JULY 5) - The population of the European Economic Community (EEC) rose by 1.8 million last year to 327 million, chiefly because of a huge influx of East Germans to West Germany, the EEC's statistics agency reported Thursday.

The inflow of about one million East Germans accounted for 85 per cent of the increase, which goes against the Community's general demographic tendency, Eurostat said.

It warned that, in 1990, only Ireland among the EEC states will have a birthrate higher than the number of deaths.

The replacement rate is a statistical average of 2.1 children per couple.

But the birth rate last year sank to 1.58, reaching as low as 1.3 even in Roman Catholic countries such as Italy and Spain that traditionally have high birth rates, the agency said.

BAGHDAD (JULY 5) - President Saddam Hussein has urged the Iraqi population to economize on water because of the dispute with Turkey over the Euphrates River, newspapers reported Thursday.

"From now on, we must know how to use the waters that come from the Euphrates economically," the president said earlier this week on a tour of several Iraqi governorates.

"We must ration in irrigation," he said, addressing himself to the 1.5 million Iraqi farmers who live on the banks of the river.

He also called on the agriculture ministry to revise its land improvement projects, estimated to cost around 200 million dinars (640 million dollars at the official exchange rate).

Iraq has blamed Turkey for the failure of a conference in Ankara last month on sharing the Euphrates, and denounced Turkish intransigence as a threat to Iraqi and Syrian agriculture.

An agreement on sharing the river, which rises in Turkey before flowing into Syria and Iraq, has eluded the three countries for decades.

Mr. Hussein called on the Iraqi population to "use water not according to whims, but in keeping with needs, in the interests of Iraq," according to the newspaper reports.

Iraq has two great rivers, the Euphrates and Tigris, and the population is not accustomed to water shortages. But the president said the situation could worsen in coming years unless an accord was reached with Ankara.

Baghdad has urged Turkey to raise the amount of water it has decided to supply to its southeastern neighbours to 700 cubic metres (24,500 cubic feet) per second, rather than 500 cubic metres (17,500 cubic feet) a second.

President Hussein accused Turkey of "not acting in keeping with law on the issue."

Amid the strains in relations, Iraq has postponed the signing of cooperation agreements with Turkey on security and industry until after the water issue has been resolved.

Syria and Iraq, although bitter rivals in the Arab world, joined forces in January to criticise Ankara for a month-long diversion of the Euphrates aimed at filling the huge Ataturk dam in southeastern Turkey.

LAGOS (JULY 5) - The Nigerian External Affairs Ministry will begin moving from Lagos to Abuja, the nation's future capital, next week, ministry sources said on Thursday.

The transfer, to be completed before the middle of August, will begin next Wednesday with the ministry's International Organisations Department, they said.

The transfer is part of government efforts aimed at ensuring the installation of all ministries in the capital before the presidency moves there late next year.

Five other ministries -- Agriculture, Trade and Tourism, Industry, Internal Affairs and Water Resources -- have already moved to Abuja.

The transfer is intended to encourge "unwilling" diplomatic missions and other international organisations accredited to Nigeria to hasten their move to the new capital, the sources said.

Some missions have not put up any buildings in the future capital, and some have complained of unavailability of land on which to build.

Most of these missions have officially protested to government of that they have not been given enough time to make the move and over the lack of residential and office accommodation and recreational facilities, high cost of living and poor transport facilities in Abuja, diplomatic sources told AFP.

Some, who said that they had invested heavily in providing offices and residential quarters for their personnel, explained that since the new capital was just about to take off, they would rather remain in Lagos for the time being and only transfer to Abuja when the need arose.

Efforts are being made to make Abuja comfortable for all residents, including foreign diplomats, ministry officials have said.

JAMMU, INDIA (JULY 5) - The Kashmir state government Thursday assumed extraordinary powers to tackle a worsening Moslem militancy, including those to make arrests without warrants and curb the press if necessary.

Jammu and Kashmir state governor Girish Saxena proclaimed Thursday that the Moslem-majority valley's four districts of Anantnag, Baramulla, Kupwara, Pulwama and Srinagar had been declared "disturbed areas."

The proclamation would empower a magistrate or a middle-ranking police officer to open fire or "use force even to the extent of causing death" in the event of violence in the named areas.

Those officials would not require approval for such action from higher authorities.

The Jammu and Kashmir Disturbed Areas Act, 1990, as it was officially entitled, also vests in state authorities sweeping powers to make arrests and searches in a bid to tackle the bloody militant campaign to end Indian rule over Kashmir, which has left more than 700 dead this year.

Mr. Saxena's announcement, made in Srinagar, Jammu and Kashmir's summer capital, came in the wake of stepped up militant violence which left more than 700 dead this year.

In the last two weeks some 100 civilians have died, mainly in the valley where the militancy has its stronghold.

Officials in Jammu, the state's winter capital, said that the act would also authorise security authorities to assume drastic powers of arrest and search without warrants and the use of force to destroy militant hideouts or illegal arms dumps.

They could also invoke the act to curb the press if necessary, the officials said.

NEW DELHI (JULY 5) - State authorities declared a virtual state of emergency Thursday throughout Indian Kashmir as a strike lamed transport in the area and three persons died in civil unrest.

The United News of India said Girish Saxena, the new governor of the state of Jammu and Kashmir, issued an order banning outdoor assemblies of five or more persons and authorising police to shoot those suspected of disturbing the public order.

Saxena also ordered police to destroy ''terrorist hideouts''.

The governor's order came as a strike called by the outlawed Jammu and Kashmir Liberation Front paralysed transport throughout Indian Kashmir.

Three persons were reported killed and 19 injured in clashes between police and separatist extremists.

NAIROBI (JULY 5) - Two former government ministers who have called for the establishment of a multi-party system in Kenya have been detained under a law in the East African state providing for indefinite detention without trial.

The detention of Kenneth Matiba and Charles Rubia under the Public Security Act was announced in the official government gazette late Thursday.

The order was signed by a minister of state in the president's office,

Jackson Angaine.

The two men were arrested Wednesday, along with six other people including Raila Odinga, a former detainee and son of the one-time Kenyan vice-president Oginga Odinga.

President Daniel arap Moi, who has vehemently held out against the idea of restoring multi-party politics to Kenya, had accused Mr. Matiba and Mr. Rubia of planning to hold an unauthorised public meeting.

According to President Moi, there had been a plot to have people start firing on the crowd at the meeting with the aim of blaming the police and causing chaos in the country.

LIMA (JULY 5) - Three weeks from the presidential inauguration, police Thursday said they had detained some 4,500 people and searched 1,823 vehicles in the preceding 24 hours to prevent rebel attacks in Lima and the neighboring Pacific port of Callao.

Some 1,450 police officers participated in the roundup, which netted only two suspected rebels in a shootout Wednesday night.

Security forces said they surprised the two as they were planting dynamite charges at a school in Callao. The explosives were deactivated and a cache of automatic rifles was seized.

Police also neutralized four bombs planted at San Marcos University, where suspected rebels from the leftist Shining Path insurgency raised the group's banner.

TUNIS (JULY 5) - Algeria is to take over the chairmanship of the Union of the Arab Maghreb (Uam) at a summit to take place July 21 to 23 in Algiers, the Tunisian government announced Thursday.

In a communique that followed its Wednesday meeting, the Tunisian government said the actions taken during the term of Tunisian chairmanship in the first half of this year had brought an ''especial vitality'' to the ''joint action'' of the Uam.

The chairmanship of the grouping, which links Mauritania, Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia and Libya, changes every six months.

Among achievements claimed by the Tunisians is agreement for Tunisian and Libyan citizens to visit one another's countries with nothing more than an identity card and to own property in one another's countries.

A protocol just signed in Tripoli also guarantees free trade and capital transfers between those two countries.

HAVANA (JULY 5) - President George Bush's recent Latin American debt proposal was an attempt to cordon off the hemisphere economically from Japan and a unified Europe, the communist party newspaper Granma said Thursday.

Granma said his proposal to boost Latin America's economies by forgiving a substantial portion of the region's foreign debt to the United States and creating a hemsphere-wide free-trade zone would "create false illusions."

Cuba said the proposal unveiled last week was the economic equivalent of the 19th century Monroe Doctrine, under which the United States staked out the Americas as its sphere of interest and warned outside powers to keep out.

The "indisputable domination of the regional market by the United States keeps European and Japanese products from penetrating," Granma said.

Granma also dismissed as "ridiculous" Mr. Bush's proposed 300-million-dollar lending program for nations in the region that remove barriers to foreign investment, make market-oriented reforms and sell off state businesses.

According to Granma, more than 40 per cent of Latin America's exports to the United States were restricted by licenses and quotas while only 10 per cent of fell into a preferred trade category.

The United States has offered to contribute 100 million dollars to the lending fund and will ask Japan and the European Community to kick in another 100 million dollars each, Mr. Bush said.

"It's an insignificant and absurd figure," the newspaper said, adding that the "proposal to open up to foreign investments is just a way to assure a greater penetration by American multinationals."

Granma estimated that Latin American nations' foreign debt for 1989 hit 434 billion dollars and that those nations owed the United States 12 billion dollars. The newspaper added that the U.S. proposal to forgive seven billion dollars amounted to only 2.8 per cent of the region's total debt.

While Cuba was critical, the U.S. inititive has drawn praise from both business leaders and Latin American and Caribbean diplomats.

Venezuelan President Andres Carlos Perez said the plan "is the first and definitive step aimed at putting an end to the historical misunderstanding which has limited the two regions of the hemisphere, the United States and Latin America."

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) - A global warming trend scientists attribute to man-made carbon dioxide and other gases may be due in part to periodic ocean currents like El Nino, according to a study released here Thursday.

El Nino -- Spanish for Christ child -- is a large flow of warm water in the eastern Pacific which surges every four or five years around Christmas along the northwestern coast of South America.

Jim Angell, of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), found that by subtracting the effect that uncommonly warm ocean currents have on world temperatures, the so-called greenhouse effect is reduced by 27 percent.

The warming greenhouse effect is generally blamed on an increase of gases which prevents the planet's heat from dissipating.

Scientists have established that in the last 20 years world-wide temperatures have risen by 0.33 degrees centigrade (0.59 degrees Fahrenheit), and many are concerned that growing industrial activity is to blame.

Mr. Angell's study does not provide any clear-cut answers, but it does seem to indicate that unusual ocean currents have a greater impact on world temperatures than previously thought.

But it makes no attempt at determining whether the ocean currents are a cause or an effect of the warming trend.

Mr. Angell's study was prompted by the absence of any cooling effect from volcanic eruptions like Indonesia's Mt. Agung, in 1963, and Mexico's El Chichon, in 1982.

The NOAA scientist discovered that the warming effect of El Nino had masked cooler temperatures caused by volcanic smoke and ash blocking the sunlight.

SAN SALVADOR (JULY 6) - El Salvador's Defense Ministry said Thursday it would comply with an arrest warrant for an army colonel charged with destroying key evidence in the November 16 murder of six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper and her daughter.

Colonel Carlos Camilo Hernandez, 37, was assistant director at the Military Academy here when he allegedly ordered the institution's entry and exit logs destroyed before judicial authorities could impound them as evidence in the murder case.

The priests were apparently murdered by a group of soldiers during a dusk-to-dawn curfew imposed by the government shortly after leftist rebels launched a major offensive on the capital and the rest of the country.

Colonel Guillermo Alfredo Benavides, the Military Academy's director, and seven officers and enlisted men were charged with the murder, but the prosecution has been hampered by lack of evidence.

The academys' record-keeper testified that the entry and exit logs were removed and burnt on Col. Hernandez' orders.

In a statement last month before Judge Ricardo Zamora, Col. Hernandez denied giving those orders.

Judge Zamora's arrest warrant was delivered Monday to Defense Minister Rafael Humberto Larios, an army general, a statement from his ministry said.

PHILADELPHIA, PA (JULY 5) - Hailstones ripped the nose cone off a DC-9 passenger plane in flight near here Thursday and starred the windshield, forcing the pilot to make an emergency landing, officials said.

Eastern Airlines spokesman Robin Matell said none of the 42 passengers or five crew was injured.

"It's a fiberglass dome and that was shattered by the hail," he said, explaining that the plane, which landed at Philadelphia International Airport, encountered "heavy storm activity" soon after taking off from nearby Newark, New Jersey, en route for Atlanta, Georgia.

Dan Korzeniowski, a Philadelphia airport official, said the pilot made a pass by the control tower to allow a visual inspection of the undercarriage.

He said the nose cone housed radar and other instrument systems.

SAN JOSE (JULY 4) EFE - Groups of Contra rebels who refused to disarm with the rest of the former U.S.-backed guerrilla force are still at large in southern Nicaragua, Costa Rican Security Minister Victor Emilio Herrera said Wednesday.

Herrera told reporters that Nicaraguan officials involved in discussions on opening the San Juan river border that separates the two countries had said armed rebels remained in the area, but they did not specify how many.

Costa Rican press reports quoting sources within the Contras' "Southern Front" force said there could be as many as 2,000 armed rebels left along the border.

Last Wednesday the Contra's chief, Israel Galeano, turned over his gun to a United Nations peace-keeping force, marking the end of a 24,000-strong guerrilla force that fought a 10-year war on U.S. funds to topple the left-wing Sandinista government.

SANTIAGO (JULY 5) EFE - The remains of what are believed to be 18 Chilean peasants who were allegedly executed by the Army shortly after the 1973 military coup have been uncovered in the southern province of Valdivia, officials said Thursday.

Relatives of the 18 wept as several bones, shreds of clothing and buttons were dug up near the village of Chihuio, 800 km south of the capital, by judicial and forensic experts.

The exacavation was carried out on the orders of Judge Nibaldo Segura, charged with investigating the deaths of the farmers and forestry workers who disappeared shortly after former dictator Gen. Augusto Pinochet seized power in 1973.

Roman Catholic Church lawyers have accused the Army of killing the peasants, among whom was a 14-year-old boy.

According to locals, the bodies were transfered from the three original graves currently being excavated to another site close by in 1978.

Forensic experts have said that they expect to find few remains at the first site and will continue scouring the area for the second graves.

Provincial authorities in Valdivia have said 84 people disappeared or were executed after being arrested by the "Cazadores" military command which controlled the area following the coup.

The then-head of the Cazadores, Sen. Santiago Sinclair, has denied the allegations, however Roman Catholic Church lawyer Mario Gonzalez claimed Thursday that there are official records which prove the involvement of Sinclair's men in the killings.

Thursday's excavation comes just under a month after 20 bodies of murdered leftist political leaders were pulled out of a mass grave in the northern town of Pisagua, 1,900 from the capital.

The Pisagua discovery sparked indignation from human rights organizations and politicians who called for the resignation of Pinochet as Army chief and the prosecution of military officers guilty of post coup massacres.

Under the military-drafted constitution, the general may remain at the head of the Army until 1997.

Meanwhile, in the southern town of Temuco, 673 km south of Santiago, human rights organizations denounced 130 cases of missing persons whose families had feared to report the disappearances under the harsh 16-year-long military dictatorship.

Pinochet handed over power to democratically-elected President Patricio Alywin in March.

In the southern city of Coyhaique, 1,947 km south of the capital, 18 cases of missing persons have also been reported to rights groups.

#90186m0003 07/05/1990 ~Market Consensus Surveys
FALLS CHURCH, VA (JULY 5) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2)MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

Profit taking forced the Nikkei average down 94.25 to 32,351.67. ... Negative news about profits drops the FT 100 11.7 to 2343.8. The DAX index rises 2.09 to 1927.22. ... WESTERN UNION agrees to sell to AT&T its telex, computer mail and computer data transmission services for $180 million. The deal raises badly needed cash for Western Union and makes AT&T a leader in the growing market for sending messages among computers.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

World Bank President BARBER CONABLE will release a report on the global economy of the next decade, and ways to reduce poverty at 10:30 a.m. EDT today. ... The financial markets await tomorrow's LABOR DEPARTMENT release of the unemployment figures. ... Also tomorrow, the FEDERAL RESERVE is scheduled to release its consumer credit report and the TREASURY DEPARTMENT releases the results of the May 15 FOMC meeting.

FROM THE BULLS:

"Historically, the market does well around the Fourth of July holiday," says HARRY LAUBSCHER of TUCKER ANTHONY & R.L. DAY INC. The numbers show the Dow rising 77% of the time on the day before the holiday, and 66% of the time on the day after. "My feeling is the Dow will work its way higher over the next few weeks," continues Laubscher. He says that disappointing profits and Fed policy may hamper stocks, but that "we still feel there will be a summer rally." ("Investor's Daily", 7/5)

FROM THE BEARS:

"What we're seeing developing is a lot like October of last year," says MICHAEL JENKINS, editor and publisher of "Stock Cycles Forecast." "In every single case where you have a pattern like this, you have a big short covering squeeze ... and then you have a devastating break of 200 points or so." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 7/3)

STOCK MARKET:

The Dow closed above 2900 Tuesday due to institutional buying, explains DALE TILLS of CHARLES SCHWAB & CO. "At the end of the quarter and the month there's typically corporate cash that needs to be invested." Tills also says slight gains in the bond market "helped a little, but volume was extremely light. I think we did 10 million shares in the last hour.

There just was not a whole lot of activity." Nevertheless, with the five-day winning streak, "it's tough to fight the trend." (UPI, 7/3)

"We're still defying the laws of gravity," says ALAN ACKERMAN, of GRUNTAL & CO., about the stock market. "We hang up here on this tightrope. We seem to do better than we expect to do." One of the reasons the market is doing well is that "people are looking for liquidity," according to Ackerman. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 7/3)

Stocks could have a sloppy July says ANDREW ADDISON, editor of the "Addison Report" who feels the market has been weakening internally for the past month. "Resistance in the 2950 area is formidable," writes Addison. "The market is vulnerable to disappointing news ...[with] likely risk to just below 2800." Longer term, Addison stands by his projections of 3400+ on the Dow by the end of 1991. (CNBC "World Business", 5/7)

"The economy looks to be topping out, especially the consumer sector," says JOHN MONTGOMERY of FOXHALL INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT. "What really concerns us is the valuation of stocks. They're not tremendously outrageous, but they're extremely high in terms of dividend yield and price to book value. Additionally we're concerned with the lack of breadth in the market. We take this as a sign that there's not much confidence in this market." Montgomery recommends a portfolio including 10% cash, 45% bonds and 45% stocks. (CNBC "Business View", 7/3)

"There are expectations in the market that the Fed will do an easing very soon," says SHEARSON's NEWTON ZINDER this morning. "If that does not occur there could be some disappointment." Zinder says recent weakness in the dollar is a sign that currency traders are looking for lower interest rates. He looks for interest rates to trend down, but "the stock market may not respond as vigorously as people think" because of weakness in the economy. (FNN "World Business Update", 5/7)

"There are too many positive signals out there to be bearish," says LEON COOPERMAN, chairman of GOLDMAN SACHS ASSET MANAGEMENT. "Bear markets never begin with cash levels so high." Nevertheless, Mr. Cooperman is wary of the market's high P/E, currently 15 times expected 1990 earnings and its low dividend yield, recently less than 3%. He also says that stocks are selling at a pricey 2.7 times book value at a time when asset values are declining. ("Fortune", 7/16)

"The stock market's been doing better because the bond market's been doing better, and the bond market's been doing better because the indicators of inflation have been coming down," says PETER CANELO, investment strategist at BEAR, STEARNS & COMPANY. "It's not clear that the Fed's going to move short-term interest rates lower immediately, unless the employment numbers coming out Friday are a lot weaker." He adds that Bear, Stearns expects no change in the employment numbers, which he says is "a pretty soft reading on the economy." (NYT, 7/4)

"I would be hard pressed to call it anything other than a trading- range market right now," says GEORGE ADLER, director of portfolio management at BANC ONE ASSET MANAGEMENT CORP. "We are all sitting on our hands waiting for something to happen." (WSJ, 7/5)

REUTERS' CHRISTINA TOH-PANTIN reports stock prices advanced modestly Tuesday, undeterred by a spate of weak corporate earnings projections and an almost day-long slump in the bond market. But she says the gains lacked real force and she still questions the stock market's ability to sustain its advance. (Reuters, 7/3)

STOCK TIPS:

LEON COOPERMAN, chairman of GOLDMAN SACHS ASSET MANAGEMENT, advises buying companies with above-average unit growth and minimal sensitivity to the economy's ups and downs. Many of his top picks are drug stocks like BAXTER INTERNATIONAL, GLAXO HOLDINGS and SMITHKLINE BEECHAM. ("Fortune", 7/16)

While not prepared to abandon their bullish posture, the editors at the "Option Advisor" are worried that the market has broken some key support levels and the technology sector has run out of steam. "Nevertheless, we view the downside risk as relatively limited ... [an] uptrend could resume with little or no warning." They recommend buying the AMERICAN EXPRESS October 35 call, saying the company has reached a turning point. They say WAL-MART stock is overextended and would buy the September 55 put. (CNBC "World Business", 7/5)

"Right now small growth stocks are really attractive," says MORGAN STANLEY's BARTON BIGGS. These stocks were ignored during the Eighties as takeovers and buyouts focused investor attention on larger, lumbering companies. But with takeovers subsiding, he expects that growth stocks will return to favor. Among Biggs's favorites: SURGICAL CARE AFFILIATES and MEDICAL CARE INTERNATIONAL in the home health-care field, and high-tech picks BMC SOFTWARE and LINEAR TECHNOLOGY. ("Fortune", 7/16)

#90186m0004 07/05/1990 ~Market Consensus Surveys

FALLS CHURCH, VA (JULY 5) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

The dollar drifted lower Tuesday against some major currencies, with the pound continuing to gain on the expectation that the U.K. currency will soon become fully integrated in the European Monetary System. The German mark held its own, having survived monetary union. "As yet, the decline in the dollar hasn't hurt U.S. security prices," says BRIAN FABBRI, chief economist at MIDLAND MONTAGU ECONOMICS. "I think partly because what's gone on is endemic to individual countries." (WSJ, 7/5)

"I don't really see the dollar going into a free fall," says AKIO NAKANO of LONG-TERM CREDIT BANK. "Sentiment is weak, but the market is cautious. It will be a slow, gradual decline." (NYT, 7/5)

The shrinking difference in interest rates in the U.S. and Japan "may give the yen the edge to really rally against the dollar," says DAI SAWAI of CITIBANK. However, this trend may take some time to manifest itself. "The market is still too directionless to say that the dollar and yen have made a clear reversal." (NYT, 7/5)

The "prognosis for the U.S. economy" has hurt the dollar against other currencies, according to TIMOTHY SCALA of SEQUOR GROUP. "Many people are starting to feel it is sluggish." (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/3)

Interest rate speculation flurries following the Fed's FOMC meeting, but IAN SPENCE of MANUFACTURERS HANOVER is optimistic that the outcome will help the dollar. "Theoretically, lower interest rates should be negative for our currency, but I don't necessarily see it that way. Lower interest rates tend to have a positive impact on our stock market and that in turn pulls in foreign equity." (CNBC "Business View", 7/3)

"The dollar has been pretty weak in the past four or five days and gold prices are picking up," says PETER CANELO, investment strategist at BEAR, STEARNS & COMPANY. He believes that this may cause the Fed not to take any action following the FOMC meeting. (NYT, 7/4)

"Inflation appears to be under control, economic activity is slipping, money supply growth is extremely restrained and the odds of a major deficit reduction package being enacted obviously have increased tremendously during the past week," says ELLIOTT PLATT, director of economic research at DONALDSON, LUFKIN & JENRETTE. What all that adds up to is a "drop in yield to 8% within the next few months, and end the year below that level." ("Investor's Daily", 7/5)

BRIAN FABBRI, chief economist at MIDLAND MONTAGU ECONOMICS, says that bond traders won't make any major new moves until the employment report comes out tomorrow. (WSJ, 7/5)

A. GARY SHILLING of SHILLING & CO. says that a recession "may have already started." He predicts that interest rates will plunge as much as two percentage points as the civilian unemployment rate soars. He urges investors to "start to move into Treasury bonds and other high-quality bonds." (WSJ, 7/5)

Junk bonds are undervalued and stocks are overvalued, according to JOSEPH BENCIVENGA, managing director for high yield research at SALOMON BROTHERS. He believes the bond market, unlike stocks, has already priced-in the possibility of a recession. With bonds trading at a deep discount, issuers are looking to repurchase bonds with bank loans. "Not all will get credit to buy back their bonds, but there are a handful and that's where the investor can profit handsomely," says Bencivenga, who likes the middle tier of issues which trade at 50%-80% of par and have more upside potential. He says individual investors are better off buying bonds through mutual funds but names ENVIRODYNE as an attractive individual issue. (CNN "Business Morning", 7/5)

"There are a fair amount of securities to bid on next week," says STEPHEN SLIFER, money market economist at SHEARSON LEHMAN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES INC. "Everywhere you look there's supply, and there has to be some limit to how much we can take with interest rates at current levels. People could rebel a bit and push rates higher." (WSJ, 7/5)

THE ECONOMY:

"The Wall Street Journal" reports its survey of 40 economists shows that the consensus is the economy will expand at only a 1.6% annual rate, adjusted for inflation, in this year's second half. Growth will pick up slightly in next year's first half, to a 1.8% pace. Interest rates will go down, and as an indication of lower inflation the consumer price index will rise only 4% over the next 12 months. The economists also predict a sturdy dollar and higher unemployment. (WSJ, 7/5)

Factory orders climbed a healthy 2.1% in May possibly fueled by fears of an auto manufacturers strike. WILLIAM SULLIVAN of DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS says Tuesday's number may indicate a turnaround for the industrial sector. "We continue to get data that suggest manufacturing activity is picking up. As an example, yesterday's Purchasing Managers' Report showed another increase, and the factory order data for May fits in with this notion that maybe the worst for the industrial sector is behind us." (CNBC "Business View", 7/3)

CYNTHIA LATTA, senior financial economist with DRI/McGRAW HILL INC. says that the factory orders report "is dominated by the gain for autos, but not limited to them." She believes this bolsters the purchasing managers' view that the manufacturing sector is in a recovery. (NYT, 7/4)

ROBERT DEDERICK, chief economist for NORTHERN TRUST CO. in Chicago says the factory orders report is "a small positive because orders are edging upward," but he questions the manufacturing sector's ability to maintain its growth. "This is a modest uptrend, one that I view as being quite vulnerable. Unless we get some strength in consumption and capital goods spending, it will be vulnerable to aborting its growth." (WSJ, 7/5)

"It looks as if the manufacturing sector is on the mend at the present time," says JAMES FRALICK of MORGAN STANLEY. "We had a fairly good increase in durable goods orders." (FNN "Marketwrap", 7/3)

"The economy is clearly vulnerable to a recession right now, and we are increasingly likely to move into one" this year, says PHILIP BRAVERMAN, senior vice president at DKB SECURITIES. "The longer the Fed delays its inevitable easing, the steeper the economic decline." (WSJ, 7/5)

"The [employment] numbers tomorrow morning may give economic signals that are not very rosy," says MARIA FIORINI RAMIREZ, president of RAMIREZ CAPITAL CONSULTANTS. With census workers coming off the job rolls, the numbers will look weaker than they should. "In the next couple of months all these census workers will be out of the picture and that's when you'll get a true picture of momentum on the economic front." (CNBC "World Business", 5/7)

#90186p1788 07/05/1990 ~PR Newswire

NORWOOD, MA (JULY 3) PR NEWSWIRE - Microcom, Inc. (NASDAQ: MNPI) announced today that they will adjust their previously announced revenues and earnings for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended March 31, 1990. The reduction in revenues of approximately $3.5 million, or 22 cents per share, is principally due to the overstocking of key North American distributors that occurred in the fourth quarter. Although the company had announced its earnings for fiscal 1990, it has not issued its financial statements to the Securities and Exchange Commission or mailed them to stockholders. Accordingly, the company is required to reflect these adjustments in their fiscal 1990 financial statements.

Additionally, Microcom announced that revenues for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 will be approximately $10.5 million and the company will report a loss per share in the range of 43 cents to 48 cents. "First quarter revenues for all products in North America were substantially below analysts' earlier estimates principally due to tightened credit policies with distributors and resellers. In addition, sales reserves were increased and purchases of the LAN bridge and Protocol Modem(tm) products were delayed. International revenues for all products were in line with analysts' estimates," said James M. Dow, president and CEO of Microcom.

Sales, net income and earnings per share for the fourth quarter and fiscal 1990 are as follows:

March 31, 1990

	Quarter Ended	Year Ended
Sales	$18,254	$71,540
Net Income	1,059	9,543
E.P.S.	11 cents	1.00

AKRON, OH (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Roadway Services, Inc. (NASDAQ: ROAD) reports revenue for the second quarter ended June 16 of $669,270,000 compared with revenue of $614,204,000 in the second quarter last year, which ended June 17, 1989.

Net income for the second quarter this year was $22,808,000 or $.58 per share compared with $26,220,000 or $.67 per share in 1989.

For the 24 weeks constituting the company's first half, revenue was $1,309,519,000 compared with revenue of $1,177,424,000 for the first half last year. Net income for the first half this year was $39,309,000 or $1.00 per share compared with net income of $41,969,000 or $1.07 per share for the first half of 1989.

Second quarter tonnage for Roadway Express, the company's principal operating subsidiary, increased 2.3 percent from last year, which reflects an increase of 3.9 percent in less-than-truckload tons and a decline of 2.8 percent in truckload tonnage.

Revenue for Roadway Express grew 3.8 percent while cost pressures continued to reduce the subsidiary's operating margin, which declined from 6.5 percent of revenue in the second quarter a year ago to 4.4 percent of revenue in the second quarter this year.

"During much of the quarter, a labor cost increase of approximately 2.5 percent effective April 1 under the industry labor contract had to be absorbed with no increase in pricing," said Joseph M. Clapp, chairman and president of Roadway Services.

A freight rate increase yielding approximately 4 percent was implemented June 4. For the quarter, net freight rates were 2.4 percent higher compared with the corresponding period a year ago.

In addition to higher direct wage costs, significant cost increases were incurred for workers' compensation and employee medical benefits.

Operations of VFS Transportation, Inc., the truckload subsidiary of Viking Freight, Inc., were discontinued during the second quarter. Costs related to the discontinuance of operations totaled $.03 per share in the quarter.

Excluding Roadway Express, second quarter revenue increased 21.5 percent while the operating margin improved to 7.4 percent for the quarter compared to 6.3 percent in the corresponding quarter last year.

PERTH, WESTERN AUSTRALIA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Bond Brewing Holdings Limited (BBH) today announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, Dimola Pty. Ltd. (Dimola), has extended the expiration of its tender offer for the 12-5/8 percent extendible subordinated debentures of BBH until midnight, New York City time, on Tuesday, July 24, 1990. Withdrawal rights for tendering debentureholders have also been extended until midnight, New York City time, on Tuesday, July 24, 1990. BBH stated that, according to the depositary for the tender offer, less than 1 percent of the principal amount of Debentures outstanding had been tendered pursuant to the tender offer as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time, on Tuesday, July 3, 1990.

BBH also announced that, pursuant to a letter dated July 2, 1990 from legal counsel to the syndicate of banks constituting BBH's senior lenders to the trustee for the BBH debentures, the banks have advised the trustee that, subject to the reservation of rights set out in the letter, they are prepared to allow the trustee to distribute to debentureholders the amount paid by BBH to the trustee on June 29, 1990 in connection with the interest payment due June 1, 1990. As a result of such letter, BBH has entered into discussions with the trustee, with a view towards causing interest accrued for the six month period ended May 31, 1990 to be paid to all debentureholders on the date debentures are accepted for payment pursuant to the offer. Accordingly, Dimola is amending the tender offer to eliminate the requirement that tendering debentureholders waive all rights to receive such interest payment.

BBH has also stated that it expects to distribute a supplement to Dimola's offer to purchase and consent solicitation, dated June 5, 1990, to all debentureholders. According to BBH, such supplement will include additional financial information relevant to debentureholders, as well as disclosure relating to additional developments since June 5, 1990.

WAYNE, NJ (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Lederle Laboratories and Wyeth- Ayerst Laboratories today announced an agreement to co-market an important new antihypertensive agent, Verelan(R).

Verelan is a new, patented, once-a-day formulation of verapamil, the most widely prescribed calcium channel blocker for hypertension.

The combined sales forces of Lederle, Wyeth-Ayerst and the A.H. Robins Company will begin calling on cardiologists, internists, general practitioners and family practitioners in July to provide these physicians with medical information about Verelan.

Verelan is a special, pellet-filled capsule which provides smooth, consistent absorption and 24-hour blood pressure control. Unlike traditional long-acting verapamil formulations, Verelan can be taken with or without meals. Traditional formulations must be taken with food to achieve the desired absorption profile.

Lederle has licensed exclusive U.S. marketing rights to Verelan from Elan Corporation PLC. Elan developed Verelan using its patented pellet- filled capsule SODAS(R) (Spheroidal Oral Drug Absorption System) technology, and Elan holds the NDA for the product. Verelan was approved for marketing in the U.S. on May 29, 1990.

Lederle Laboratories, a division of American Cyanamid Company, is a research-intensive organization that manufactures and markets a broad range of products including ethical pharmaceuticals, vaccines, generics and vitamins/nutritionals.

Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories, a division of American Home Products, is also a major research-oriented pharmaceutical company with leading products in the areas of cardiovascular medicine, female health care, hospital products and infant nutritionals.

IRVINE, CA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Toshiba America Information Systems Inc. today filed suit in California superior court against Tech Data Corp., a Florida-based electronics distributor.

The suit claims that Tech Data has breached its contract with Toshiba, and asks damages in excess of $1.6 million. Toshiba terminated its distribution agreement with Tech Data and five other distributors of Toshiba portable computers and peripherals as part of a strategic reevaluation of its distribution programs earlier this year.

"Tech Data's overdue accounts has put us in a very difficult position. They have refused to settle this situation in a way that we think is fair and equitable, in spite of the generous allowances of our ramp down program," stated Frank Martin, Toshiba's director of channel marketing.

"We recognize the difficulties inherent in dissolving such a business relationship, and have made every allowance consistent with good business practice."

The distribution agreement with Tech Data and the other affected distributors terminated as of April 15, 1990. Toshiba's ramp-down program allowed the distributors limited purchase rights through June 15, 1990 and certain inventory return privileges through June 30, 1990. The notice of termination allowed six weeks for the settlement of promotional and market development accounts.

Toshiba announced its new distribution strategies in March, following meetings between Toshiba management and each of the company's distributors. The new strategy emphasizes the penetration of the Fortune 1000 marketplace through national reseller organizations.

Toshiba will also focus on a network of independent quality dealers and smaller independents and value-added resellers (VARs) supported by a single distributor, Merisel (formerly Softsel/Microamerica). "We believe this arrangement will best serve both our dealers and our end users," said Martin.

PITTSBURGH (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Equitable Gas customers now have the option to pay their monthly gas bills in a SNAP (Simple No-fuss Automatic Payment) through electronic fund transfer, the company announced today. The company currently is including information about SNAP in customers' gas bills.

Customers participating in the free service will no longer have to write checks or buy postage to pay their monthly gas bills. It eliminates trips to Equitable bill payment sites and waiting in line to pay bills in person. Gas bills are paid automatically on the due date, so there are never any late payment charges.

With the SNAP program, customers authorize the automatic transfer of funds from their checking account to Equitable to pay their monthly gas bills. A participating customer continues to receive monthly gas bills to keep track of gas consumption and expenses.

On the bill's due date, funds are automatically withdrawn from the customer's checking account and deposited to his or her Equitable Gas account. A record of the payment appears on both the customer's next gas bill and monthly bank statement.

FAIRFAX, VA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - American Capital and Research Corporation (NASDAQ: ACRCA) today reported fiscal 1991 first quarter financial results for the period ended May 31, 1990.

First quarter gross revenues were $131,991,000, 22 percent higher than the $108,534,000 reported in the comparable period last year. Operating income was up 47 percent to $6,983,000 for the first quarter of this year compared to $4,760,000 last year. Net income for the quarter just ended was $2,759,000, or 15 cents per share, a 64 percent increase over the $1,678,000, or 12 cents per share, reported for the first quarter last year.

James O. Edwards, chairman and chief executive officer of ACR, noted that the 25 percent increase in earnings per share is consistent with plans, and suggested that ACR has been able to incorporate the broader equity base as a result of last December's issuance of common stock without any adverse impacts on earnings per share growth.

Company Highlights -- According to Edwards, one of the highlights of the first quarter was that ACR's backlog of signed contract work passed the $1 billion mark. About one-third of this backlog is expected to be realized this fiscal year. Other recent highlights include:

-- Winning the $119 million, five-and-a-half-year construction management contract of the $6 billion Boston Harbor cleanup project.

-- Winning a $50 million environmental engineering contract with the U.S. Air Force; a $31 million engineering and construction management contract with a major steel producer; a $13 million subcontract to help develop the Automated Patent System for the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office; and several multi-million dollar contracts to support U.S. Environmental Protection Agency regulatory programs.

-- Signing an $85 million credit agreement with a group of banks led by Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company.

-- Completing the acquisition of Edgar, Dunn & Conover Inc., a large and experienced West Coast management consulting firm.

-- Having ACR's largest subsidiary, ICF Kaiser Engineers, recognized by Engineering News-Record as the fifth largest construction management firm in the nation.

-- Electing a new board of directors composed of six inside and three outside directors, which reflects the current mix of public versus employee shareholdings.

About the Firm -- ACR -- which earned revenues of more than $500 million in the 12 months ended Feb. 28, 1990 -- provides environmental, engineering, and other professional services to public and private sector clients, both in the United States and abroad.

The Fairfax-based firm owns a number of subsidiary companies, which are involved in addressing some of the most pressing environmental issues of the 1990s, including hazardous and nuclear waste cleanup, clean air and acid rain, groundwater contamination, global climate change and stratospheric ozone depletion, waste minimization and recycling, waste disposal and incineration, and environmental compliance.

MADISON HEIGHTS, MI (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Code-Alarm, Inc. (OTC: CODL), leading manufacturer of auto alarms and security systems, today announced it had purchased the assets and business operations of Anes Automotive Electronics, Inc. of Marina Del Rey, Calif.

The purchase price will approximate $3.9 million, subject to final audit.

Anes, a longstanding factor in automotive security, has enjoyed a substantial and growing customer base for 25 years. Anes products are handled by merchandising specialists such as Walmart, Fedco, Western Auto, Northern Automotive, Trak Auto and Canadian Tire.

"For Code-Alarm, Anes offers a strong and effective entry into the increasingly important mass-merchandising arena," said Rand Mueller, president and CEO of Code-Alarm, Inc. "The fact that Code-Alarm is strong in high-tech automotive security and Anes is tops in mechanical security devices gives this union an important potential," added Mueller. Anes electronic products will be phased into Code-Alarm's "quality-first" manufacturing program by Tessco Inc., the Code-Alarm subsidiary in Georgetown, Texas. Certain other Anes activities involving packaging, quality control and some electronic assembly will also be transferred to Tessco.

Anes Inc. has been established as the corporate style for the new organization. Jay Smith, currently Code-Alarm's vice president for sales, will be named executive vice president for Anes Inc. and will head the reorganized group. Smith has compiled an enviable record with Code-Alarm during the past five years, moving from district and regional sales to his new position with national operating responsibilities.

Code-Alarm currently manufactures electronic security products for both homes and automobiles. The company supplies advanced automotive security systems for General Motors, Ford and Chrysler and distributes Code-Alarm, Mirage and Scorpion products through a network of dealers nationwide.

SOUTH CHARLESTON, WV (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Seven university professors were honored recently for significant, innovative academic achievements in catalysis research by Union Carbide Chemicals and Plastics Company Inc. (UCC&P).

The seven finalists for the 1990 Innovation Recognition Award received unrestricted grants and invitations to participate in a UCC&P catalysis symposium. The award is part of a continuing effort to strengthen the bonds between academic and industrial researchers. In addition, the researchers will continue to discuss emerging technologies with UCC&P scientists.

Recipients of 1990 Innovation Recognition Awards are:

-- Prof. Emily A. Carter, chemistry,
   University of California, Los Angeles
-- Prof. Mark A. Davis, chemical engineering,
   California Institute of Technology
-- Prof. Gregory H. Hillhouse, chemistry, University of Chicago
-- Prof. Richard F. Jordan, chemistry, University of Iowa
-- Prof. Bruce E. Koel, chemistry, University of Southern California
-- Prof. James M. Mayer, chemistry, University of Washington
-- Prof. Jeffrey M. Stryker, chemistry, Indiana University

"The Innovation Recognition Award program enables Carbide scientists to stay on top of rapid changes in technology and novel approaches to catalytic systems," said John Saunby, technology director for UCC&P's Solvents and Coatings Materials division. "It also provides university scientists with valuable support for their research."

Catalysis, a Union Carbide core technology, is directly involved in the manufacture of many of UCC&P's products. The synthetic equivalent of enzymes in the human body, catalysts are substances that modify the rates of chemical reactions without being consumed in the process. Catalysts are used to improve the manufacturing efficiency of basic industrial chemicals.

Industrywide, the value of catalysis-related products in the United States is approximately $100 billion a year.

SUNRISE, FL (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Attorneys' Title Insurance Fund, Inc. relies on Racal-Milgo Omnimux(R) 8000 T1 multiplexers and digital systems to cut costs, improve efficiency and provide revenue-generating opportunities from its statewide integrated voice and data network.

The fund, an Orlando-based title insurance company, wanted a sophisticated digital telecommunications network capable of handling the technologies and projected business growth of the 1990s. But its analog network was limited to the equipment and telephone companies' rate structures of the 1980s.

The fund was interested in combining its voice and data applications to reduce current costs while allowing for future potential growth in the video conferencing and imaging areas.

How could the company migrate its Florida-wide network operations toward greater corporate opportunities, including expansion outside the Sunshine State?

Its response was to join CO-NET, the offering of National Integrated Support Systems, Inc. (NISS), which permits customers to share all network resources with NISS and other CO-NET customers.

"With CO-NET, The fund gets the advantages and flexibility of having its own private network while being able to share all network resources and excess capacity normally inherent in any network," said Harold H. Anthony, president of NISS.

NISS wanted to show the fund how the response time could be cut, see the business as well as technological benefits of a private network, and then build in safety and reliability through redundancy in the T1 loops and the eventual use of a disaster recovery option.

"The network provided us a considerable increase in the work it handled, at least 20 percent increase in throughput and a 75 percent decrease in network response time," said Don Johnson, The fund's telecommunications manager.

"Instead of the network being a cost center, it becomes a resource," Anthony said. "Now The fund knows the costs involved in expanding when they add nodes and customers. That makes their business planning more efficient, more productive - and easier. They were looking at ten to 15 percent per year increases in network costs. That has been cut."

The fund network features 12 Racal-Milgo Omnimux 8000 T1 multiplexer nodes, Communications Management Series (CMS)(R) 56 Kbps time division voice-data sub-nodes multiplexers with CMS Digital Service Units (DSU 556s). This equipment is controlled by NISS's CMS 2062 network management system. The T1 nodes are connected by Advanced Telecommunications Corp. fiber optic circuits under a Co-Net tariff which further reduced the circuit costs.

ROCKFORD, IL (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Sundstrand Corporation (NYSE: SNS) announced today that it will accelerate the financial reporting of its Brazilian operation which will result in five months of Brazilian operating performance being reported in the second quarter. At its 1990 annual meeting, the company announced that second quarter earnings were expected to be $2 or $3 million lower as a result of economic conditions in Brazil.

In the second quarter, the company will report a reduction in pre-tax and net earnings of approximately $7 million, which includes the aforementioned estimate plus approximately $4 million of losses resulting from the acceleration of its financial reporting.

Historically, Sundstrand Brazil has been consolidated in Sundstrand's results on a three-month lag basis. Given the current economic situation in Brazil, Sundstrand believes it will be more informative to its shareholders if it reduces this financial reporting lag to one month.

During May, Sundstrand Brazil reduced its work force by about 30 percent and, under current conditions, believes that it is an approximate break-even posture.

The company believes these actions have put the majority of the adverse results of its Brazilian operation behind it and under current circumstances does not anticipate significant additional losses at Sundstrand Brazil for the balance of 1990. Along with many companies operating in Brazil, Sundstrand has been adversely affected by constrained economic conditions resulting from Brazilian President Collor's recent actions to reform the markets and stabilize the economy.

Sundstrand Corporation, with 1989 sales of $1,595.4 million, is a market leader in the design, manufacture and sale of a variety of proprietary, technology-based components and subsystems for aerospace (67 percent of 1989 sales) and industrial (33 percent of 1989 sales) markets. Sundstrand's common stock is listed on the New York, Midwest, and Pacific Stock Exchanges.

DEARBORN, MI (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Michigan will host a mini-version of the World Cup Soccer Championship July 6-8 - the 11th Annual Wolverine Soccer Tournament, co-sponsored by Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F) and the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association (MSYSA).

Beginning at 8 a.m. Friday, 155 teams of boys and girls 18 and under will compete at Schoolcraft College and Bicentennial Park in Livonia. The tournament will continue through Saturday at both locations. Championship games for all age groups will be played at Schoolcraft College beginning at 4 p.m. Sunday, after the broadcast of the World Cup Finals.

The tournament is one of the Midwest's most prestigious youth soccer events, and is expected to attract over 3,000 participants and more than 6,000 spectators from the Midwest, Northeast and Canada.

"Participation is up more than 20 percent from last year," said Sandie Lawson, MSYSA publicist. "I attribute the increase to Ford's involvement." Ford's sponsorship of the program is part of its ongoing effort to support young people with quality opportunities to excel.

Profits from the tournament support the Michigan Olympic Player Development Program, which is designed to prepare young athletes for the Olympic tryouts. They try out for a state team that has the opportunity to attend a 12-state regional camp, then a chance to compete nationally.

JACKSONVILLE, FL (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc. (NYSE: WIN) directors today proposed a 2-for-1 stock split to be effective in October and increased its monthly cash dividend rate for the 47th consecutive year -- a New York Stock Exchange record.

Sales of the largest southern based retailer will exceed $9.7 billion and a new peak in earnings is expected when final figures for the fiscal year ended June 27 are available, predicted A. Dano Davis, chairman and chief executive officer.

Increased monthly dividends of 18 cents per share on present outstanding common stock for July, August, September and October were declared by the board. The new monthly dividend rate on existing shares represents an increase of 1 cent per month plus a 1/2 cent per share special dividend declared in conjunction with the proposed 2-for-1 stock split. The previous rate was 16 1/2 cents per share or $1.98 annually. The new dividends, representing a 9 percent increase, are payable Aug. 1, Sept. 4, Oct. 1 and Nov. 1 to shareholders of record on July 16, Aug. 15, Sept. 17 and Oct. 11.

At the annual meeting on Oct. 3, shareholders will be asked to increase the authorized shares from 50 to 100 million in order to effect the 2-for-1 split. Approximately 39,155,510 shares are currently outstanding.

After the split, effective Oct. 31, the monthly dividend rate will be 9 cents per share on the new shares, an annual rate of $1.08, which is equivalent to $2.16 on present shares. In raising the dividend rate, Winn-Dixie leads all companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange for consecutive dividend increases. Today's action also marked the 56th straight year that cash dividends have been paid.

Winn-Dixie is a major food retailer operating 1,218 food supermarket s in 13 Sunbelt states.

HARRISON, NJ (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Lechters, Inc. (NASDAQ: LECH) today reported sales of $13.6 million for the five-week period ended June 30, 1990, an increase of 18 percent over sales of $11.5 million during June 1989. The company's comparable store sales increased 1.1 percent during June 1990 as compared with June 1989.

Sales of $57.6 million for the 22 weeks ended June 30, 1990, represent an increase of 21 percent over sales of $47.6 million for the comparable period in 1989. Year to date through June 30, 1990, the company's comparable store sales were up 1.3 percent.

Lechters, Inc., based in Harrison, operates 322 specialty houseware stores in 32 states as compared to 274 stores on June 29, 1989, an increase of 18 percent.

The company plans to open, during the balance of the year, 41 new stores, and expected to have 362 stores in operation by the end of its fiscal year in January 1991, as compared with 297 stores in operation at the end of its fiscal year in January 1990. This represents a net increase of stores in operation of 65 stores (69 new stores opened and four stores closed).

The company initiated a pilot program during May 1990 to test point-of-sale registers in six to its stores and ancillary computer software in its home office. Test results have been very positive, and the company has decided to begin implementation in the chain during July, as originally anticipated.

PROVIDENCE, RI (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - H.E. "Buzz" Harrington, Jr., after a banking career spanning 33 years with the same institution, will retire as chairman and chief executive officer of Fleet Bank-NH in September. The bank's board of directors has named Dean T. Holt president and chief executive officer, effective September 4th.

Harrington, 58, began his banking career at Indian Head National Bank, which would later become Fleet Bank-NH, in 1957 as a member of the Management Training Program. Holt, 49, joined Fleet Bank-NH in March as senior executive vice president and chief credit officer. He had been president of the Business Credit Division and chairman of credit policy for Fleet Credit Corp., Providence, R.I., an asset-based lending subsidiary of Fleet/Norstar Financial Group (NYSE: FNG). Fleet Bank-NH also is a Fleet/Norstar subsidiary.

A native of Albany, N.Y., and a graduate of the University of New Hampshire and the Stonier Graduate School of Banking, Harrington held positions of increasing responsibility in the bank's credit and loan areas. He served as president of Indian Head National Bank from 1975 to 1986, becoming executive vice president of the bank's parent company, Indian Head Banks, Inc., in 1975, and president and chief executive officer of the parent company in 1981. Harrington, widely known and respected in the banking industry as an early advocate of interstate banking for New Hampshire, spearheaded the negotiations that brought Indian Head into the Fleet/Norstar organization.

In 1988 the company was acquired by Fleet/Norstar and Harrington became chairman and chief executive officer of Fleet Bank-NH.

Holt joined the Commercial Banking Division of Fleet National Bank,

Providence, R.I., in 1977 as a vice president. He transferred in 1981 to the Products and Services Division where he served as Commercial product manager. He was named a group head in the products and Services Division the following year. In 1983 he was named a senior vice president and manager of the bank's New York Loan Production Office and became president of Fleet's Credit's Business Credit Division in 1986. In 1989, Holt was named chairman of credit policy for Fleet Credit.

Fleet/Norstar Financial Group is a diversified national financial services company listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Fleet/Norstar has approximately 1,000 offices in 40 states. WASHINGTON (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Marriott Corporation (NYSE: MHS) today reported earnings per share from continuing operations of 46 cents in the 1990 second quarter ended June 15, compared to 48 cents in the 1989 quarter.

Marriott said earnings per share from continuing operations were up 12 percent excluding the impact of airline catering operations divested in December 1989 and lodging transaction gains in the 1989 second quarter.

The company said net income for the 1990 second quarter was $46,000,000 (46 cents per share), compared to $67,000,000 (59 cents per share) in the year-earlier period which included results of airline catering and discontinued restaurant operations. Sales totaled $1,764,000,000, versus $1,698,000,000 in the 1989 quarter.

J.W. Marriott Jr., chairman and president, said operating performance for both lodging and ongoing contract service businesses improved over 1989, although second quarter 1990 results were affected by continued overcapacity in the lodging industry. Marriott said that recent industry data show construction starts for the U.S. lodging market were down nearly 40 percent in the first quarter of 1990. He noted that demand is now growing at a faster pace than the supply of new rooms.

Marriott said the company is reviewing proposals from a number of groups for the purchase of its family restaurant operations, and anticipates disposition will be completed by mid-199l. Marriott completed the sale of its Roy Rogers fast food restaurant division in April 1990.

For the 1990 first half, Marriott reported earnings per share from continuing operations of 72 cents, compared to 82 cents last year. However excluding the impact of airline catering operations divested in December 1989 and lodging transaction gains in 1989, earnings per share from continuing operations were up 14 percent in the 1990 first half. Net income was $74,000,000 (72 cents per share), compared to $113,000,000 ($1.00 per share) in the 1989 first half which included results of airline catering and discontinued restaurant operations. Sales totaled $3,448,000,000 in the 1990 first half, versus $3,325,000,000 a year ago.

Washington-based Marriott Corporation is a diversified hospitality company involved in lodging and contract services.

WEST PALM BEACH, FL (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Josef J. Barr, chairman and chief executive officer of Jewelmasters, Inc. (AMEX: JEM), told shareholders at the annual meeting today that the company had reached an agreement with Western Development Company, a leading developer of outlet malls, to operate Jewelmasters stores at two Western Development malls in the Philadelphia and Fort Lauderdale, Fla., metropolitan areas.

Barr told shareholders that Jewelmasters has signed ten-year store leases at Western Development's Franklin Mills outlet mall, located north of Philadelphia, and Sawgrass Mills, a new mall opening in October 1990 near Fort Lauderdale.

Jewelmasters is also in the final phase of negotiations for a lease at an additional location near Washington and plans to open a fourth store location near Chicago in the summer of 1991. The new stores will operate under the Jewelmasters Department Store Manufacturer's Outlet.

"Jewelmasters' entry into outlet malls is an important new direction for our company," said Barr. "It helps us diversify our business base, which includes 55 leased fine jewelry departments in better department and specialty stores, as well as a couture fine jewelry store in Palm Beach.

"We have watched the success that fine firms such as Saks Fifth Avenue and Ann Taylor have enjoyed in Western Development's outlet malls, and we have decided to join them in this new direction," Barr said. "Being in the company of other fine stores that offer value-priced merchandise is well suited to Jewelmasters' merchandising concept, both as a manufacturer and retailer."

In operating its leased departments, Jewelmasters has found that 60 percent to 70 percent of all fine jewelry purchases are made during a sale period. In the Mills projects, Jewelmasters can offer merchandise at everyday sale prices.

At the same time, outlet stores will offer Jewelmasters an additional opportunity to sell overstock merchandise, discontinued styles, and depleted stocks that are no longer in all of the leased departments of a particular chain in which the company operates.

"Western Development has welcomed Jewelmasters as a supplier of what its middle-income customers are seeking - quality branded and designer merchandise at value prices, under one roof," said Barr. "We look forward to further expansion with Western Development as they continue to open new outlet malls throughout the country."

Jewelmasters, Inc. designs, manufactures and sells fine jewelry through leased departments in better department and specialty stores nationwide.

TACOMA, WA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Nalley's Fine Foods, Tacoma-based manufacturer of chips, snacks and canned foods, will host 10 representatives of snack companies from Japan, Taiwan and Korea on Friday, July 6.

The team, brought to Washington state by the USA Dry Pea & Lentil Council, is touring Nalley's as an example of a company that is successful at manufacturing and marketing snack foods.

According to Bruce Bauman, product director for Nalley's Chips & Snacks Division, the team will be given a tour of Nalley's chip plant at 10 a.m., then meet with Nalley's research and development department to discuss how snacks are made in the United States.

Following the tour of Nalley's, the team will take a tour of the Port of Tacoma, then head to Pullman, Wash., to visit dry pea and lentil farms and meet with Washington State University researchers.

The Pacific Rim snack companies are considering selling a snack made with dry peas in this country. They would purchase the dry peas from Northwest growers, partially produce the snack, then sell it to an American company to complete the process and handle the marketing. The snack, now popular with Far Eastern consumers, is high in fiber and low in fat and cholesterol.

"The nutrition issue is becoming more and more important to American consumers," said Harold Blain, director of the USA Dry Pea & Lentil Council, Moscow, Idaho.

"Dry peas and lentils, although often overlooked by U.S. consumers, are higher in insoluble fiber than oat bran," Blain continued. "Washington and Idaho produce 100 percent of the dry peas and lentils sold commercially by the U.S., and 65-70 percent is now exported.

"We'd like to see a better domestic market -- that would help the farmers " he added.

JFK INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT, NY (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - New York- based Tower Air reported its May 1990 revenue passenger miles (RPMs) declined 31.7 percent.

Total RPMs for the month were 126.3 million, down from 183.8 million during May of 1989. Carrier's available seat miles (ASMs) were cut back 22.8 percent, from 192.7 million in May 1989 to 148.7 million in May 1990. Total revenue passengers boarded dropped 35.7 percent, from 48,335 in May 1989 to 31,060 in May 1990. Average load factors on all of Tower Air's services declined only slightly from 87.8 percent in 1989 to 87.7 percent in 1990. The large drop in RPMs, ASMs and passenger boardings mostly is attributable to a reduction in scheduled departures from Miami to Scandinavia in particular. Last year in May, the airline operated 12 Boeing 747 flights to the Scandinavian countries. During the same month this year, no scheduled flights were operated from Miami to those countries. Scheduled service will resume from Miami to Scandinavia in November of this year.

Tower Air is a U.S. international scheduled and charter services operator headquartered at New York's JFK International Airport. It provides scheduled Boeing 747 service to Copenhagen, Denmark; Oslo, Norway; Stockholm, Sweden; and Tel Aviv, Israel. The carrier also operates Boeing 747 charter services to a variety of European destinations including Paris, where Tower Air expects to begin offering scheduled service from New York next spring.

RICHMOND, VA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Circuit City Stores, Inc. (NYSE: CC) today announced record June sales of $184.6 million, which represents a 23 percent increase from June 1989 sales of $150.5 million and includes a six percent increase in comparable store sales.

We were pleased with June's higher-than-expected comparable store sales increase," said Richard L. Sharp, Circuit City's president and chief executive officer. "Our business was generally strong throughout the month, and we also benefited from a calendar change that caused June to have one additional Saturday this year versus last. As a result, July of this year will have one less Saturday."

Circuit City continued its geographic expansion during the month with the opening of six Superstores, including a three-store entry into the Cincinnati, Ohio, market. Grand opening promotions began this week in Cincinnati.

The company also added its fifth Superstore to the Philadelphia, Penn., market; opened one Superstore in Lancaster, Calif.; and relocated a Superstore in Nashville, Tenn.

Circuit City Stores, Inc. is the nation's largest specialty retailer of brand-name consumer electronics and major appliances. With headquarters in Richmond, Va., it operates 133 Superstores, 19 Circuit City stores and four Impulse mall stores in the Eastern United States and in California, Nevada, and Arizona.

ST. PAUL, MN (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - ZEOS International, Ltd. (NASDAQ: ZEOS), has announced a new laptop computer system based on Intel Corporation's 80386DX processor.

The new ZEOS laptop will initially feature a 20 megahertz processor speed, a high resolution Backlit florescent LCD display, a 42 megabyte hard disk drive and a 1.44 megabyte floppy disk drive. The battery-powered system will also be provided with an AC power adapter.

With projected delivery to begin in late August, the new ZEOS system is being offered at prices which range from $2,195 to over $3,495 depending on the particular configuration the customer selects.

Commenting on the new laptop system, ZEOS president Greg Herrick said, "Battery-operated 80386 laptops are a comparatively new product category. We believe this new ZEOS '386 system affords a tremendous value. It should be well received by customers interested in both high performance and portability."

At the same time, Herrick noted that the 20MHz 80386 laptop product is a good complement to the company's 16MHz '386SX portable system. Originally scheduled to ship in mid summer the SX portable, utilizing a high resolution gas plasma display and AC power only, is presently scheduled to begin shipping in late September. "We are now offering our customers two choices in transportable 80386-based computing. Their choice will depend upon their specific needs. Both systems offer superior values."

The company is presently developing a marketing program design to encourage customers to become repeat buyers for both systems. According to Rick Apple, director of marketing at ZEOS, "Because these types of systems tend to appeal to larger volume purchasers as well as individuals, we are now developing programs which encourage buyers to 'come back for more.'"

In addition to 24-hour-a-day sales, ZEOS offers all its customers a 24-hour-a-day Toll Free Technical Support "Hotline Number," a one-year limited warranty, express parts replacement and a 30-day money-back guarantee. Customers may reach ZEOS 24 hours a day by calling 800-423-5891.

ZEOS International, Ltd., manufactures and markets direct to end users, ISA and EISA (Industry & Extended Industry Standard Architecture) personal computer systems and work stations based on the Intel 80386DX/SX and 80486 microprocessors worldwide under the ZEOS name.

DALLAS (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Investor T. Boone Pickens today said that Toyota Motors Co. is responding to his campaign to open up the closed corporate or keiretsu system in Japan.

Pickens cited a report in today's leading Japanese daily newspaper, the Asahi Shimbun, that Toyota is changing some of its keiretsu policies in response to Pickens' efforts to assert his ownership rights over one of Toyota's keiretsu members. Pickens' investment firm, Boone Co., owns 26 percent of Koito Manufacturing Co., an auto parts supplier to Toyota.

"Toyota's policy change took place in late June when Mr. Pickens, chairman of Boone Co., voiced his criticism of keiretsu at the Koito Manufacturing Co.'s shareholders meeting on June 28. Some believe Toyota's new policy to be a direct result of his criticism," the Asahi Shimbun reported.

Because of U.S. and Pickens' complaints about keiretsu, the Asahi Shimbun reported that Toyota will begin buying more parts from American auto parts suppliers, and has invited 50 American manufacturers to a conference in Japan in October to discuss establishing "long-term transaction relations."

"We have to make sure this is more than just a bone thrown to America by Toyota and Japan's other powerful cartels," Pickens said. "Toyota is showing that our attacks on the closed keiretsu system are on target, but we should not be satisfied until Americans can participate fully in the Japanese economy, including holding board of directors seats, just as Japan does in the U.S. economy."

In another development, Pickens said Japan's leading financial daily newspaper, the Nihon Keizai Shimbun, published an editorial on July 3, stating that Pickens' dispute with Koito points to a fundamental problem Japan faces in the international economy.

"It is not possible for the Koito business partners and employees to follow a course of internationalization if the large shareholder was angered with the procedures of the shareholders meeting," the editorial said. Pickens walked out of Koito's June 28 shareholders meeting calling it a "farce."

TULSA, Okla. (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Parker Drilling Co. (NYSE: PKD) today announced a subsidiary has been awarded two deep well contracts to drill in the foothills of the Llanos region of Colombia.

BP Exploration Co. (Colombia) Ltd. awarded the jobs which call for two Parker rigs to be extensively modified to fit the requirements of drilling the 16-18,000 foot wells.

"Colombia is an active market for Parker Drilling and these contracts allow us to maintain our strong presence there while making significant improvements to our rig fleet," said Robert L. Parker Jr., president and chief operating officer.

Rig 216 from Parker's Colombia division already has been modified to the newest technological SCR electric standards and has spud on its Cusiana No. 2A location east of Bogota. Modifications are taking place on the second rig, number 221, and it is estimated that rig will spud by mid-August.

Each project is expected to last 240 days. The one-well contracts between BP and Parker Drilling Co. International Ltd. call for options of two additional wells per rig.

Modifications to the rigs have taken place in Colombia and at Parker Technology Inc., Parker Drilling's research and development and service center in Odessa, Texas.

Parker Drilling is a Tulsa-based international oil and gas drilling contractor with operations in 15 countries.

EDISON, NJ (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Midlantic National Bank, the lead bank of Midlantic Corporation (NASDAQ: MIDL), has acquired the corporate trust business of National Westminster Bank NJ, a subsidiary of National Westminster Bancorp Inc.

Midlantic purchased the trusteeship, paying agent and registrar accounts - primarily with New Jersey municipalities, school districts and corporations - serviced by NatWest NJ.

With this acquisition, Midlantic National Bank's corporate trust services portfolio amounts to $10 billion, with a total of approximately 1,300 accounts.

"This purchase fits into our business plan of continuing to expand our corporate trust service activities for corporations and governmental agencies while remaining a quality provider of these services," said James B. Wynsma, executive vice president, financial management and trust department, Midlantic National Bank.

"In addition, the transaction is very attractive due to economies of scale that will be realized and service enhancements Midlantic will be able to provide users." The transaction is expected to be completed during the month of August when NatWest's current accounts are converted to Midlantic.

"Our philosophy - for both our existing customers and those who now join us from NatWest NJ - continues to be one of providing our clients with the highest level of service, so they can be confident theiraccounts are well-managed," stated Richard J. O'Connell, vice president, Midlantic National Bank, corporate and municipal trust services.

"Midlantic is large enough to offer its corporate trust users all the services they need, yet we recognize the importance of providing individual, personalized service."

CHICAGO (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Amoco Chemical Company today announced it will construct a trimellitic anhydride (TMA) unit at its Geel, Belgium, facility.

The unit, which has a design capacity of 23,000 tons per year, is expected to be operational by early 1993. Amoco Chemical is the largest producer of TMA in the world. TMA is a specialty chemical that is used in high-temperature wire enamels, high-performance plastics, powder coatings, and specialty high-temperature and extractable-resistant plasticizers for polyvinyl chloride.

"Amoco Chemical is expanding its TMA production capacity to meet the growing needs of our customers," said William E. Gerwing, Amoco Chemical's vice president and general manager, industrial chemicals. "This expansion will allow Amoco to maintain its worldwide leadership role in TMA production and meet demand into the next century."

Gerwing said the company chose its Geel facility as the site for the new unit because of the expanding European demand for this chemical.

The new unit will use Amoco Chemical's proprietary mid century oxidation process, which is used at the company's existing TMA plant at Joliet, Ill. The process has been considerably improved to increase yield and quality, Gerwing said. The unit is state-of-the-art environmentally, having been designed to reduce wastewater and air emissions.

DALLAS (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - The Southland Corporation announced today that the amended registration statement on Form S-4 filed Monday with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has received clearance from the SEC and has been declared effective. Southland will commence the exchange offers to restructure its outstanding public debt and 15 percent cumulative exchangeable preferred stock today, and the offers will expire at midnight, New York City time, on Aug. 1, unless extended.

The company also announced that it will hold a special meeting on Aug. 1 of the holders of its preferred stock to vote upon the approval and adoption of certain amendments to the company's restated Articles of Incorporation, all as more fully described in the proxy statement-prospectus. Preferred stock holders of record as of the end of business on July 13 will be eligible to vote at the meeting in person or by proxy. If the exchange offers are extended, the company intends to postpone or adjourn the special meeting so that it will occur on the expiration date.

The exchange offers are the first step of a two-part plan, which includes the previously announced infusion of $400 million of new capital by Ito-Yokado and Seven-Eleven Japan, two longstanding Southland business partners.

The exchange offers would provide bondholders with debt securities with an aggregate principal amount of approximately $550 million. In addition, bondholders and preferred shareholders are being offered approximately 18-1/2 percent of Southland's common stock in the exchange offers. Existing stockholders would retain approximately 6-1/2 percent of the common stock, and, following consummation of the exchange offers, Ito-Yokado and Seven-Eleven Japan would purchase 75 percent of the stock.

This announcement does not constitute an offer to sell or to buy any security or the solicitation of any consents or proxies, which offers and consent or proxy solicitation shall only be made by means of a proxy

SEATTLE (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - The first Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) destined for service with the United Kingdom arrived July 4 at Royal Air Force Base Waddington in Lincolnshire, north of London, Boeing Aerospace and Electronics announced. After being outfitted with mission equipment and tested, it will be the first AWACS delivered to the RAF.

The U.K. has ordered seven AWACS for delivery beginning next spring, and running into early 1992. Its AWACS fleet will provide the U.K. with increased airborne surveillance capability, as well as improved command/control/communication within its military forces.

The aircraft that arrived at Waddington, designated E-3D Sentry, was flown to England from Seattle non-stop by a crew from Boeing Defense & Space Group, Aerospace & Electronics Division. Boeing has built 57 AWACS for the United States, NATO, and Saudi Arabia.

The U.K. aircraft was the second off the production line for the RAF. The first will remain at Boeing until late December as part of an extensive testing program.

At Waddington, the second aircraft will be outfitted with mission equipment by a team from British Aerospace and Boeing, which has about 20 employees at the base.

This team will install the radars, computers, consoles and communications equipment which make AWACS the premiere airborne early warning system. Flight testing of this equipment will begin next fall, with final acceptance testing during the winter.

British Aerospace will assume the major role in the installation and checkout of mission equipment for the remainder of the RAF AWACS fleet. A cadre of British Aerospace employees has trained at Boeing for this purpose. In addition to the U.K. fleet, Boeing is manufacturing four AWACS for the French air force, with deliveries also scheduled to begin next spring.

LONG BEACH, CA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - McDonnell Douglas' (NYSE: MD) efforts to achieve Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) certification of its new MD-11 tri-jet this year have reached another milestone with the beginning of FAA certification tests on the fourth aircraft.

"Credit for our ability to have all four aircraft in FAA certification testing this early in the program goes to those who insist on detailed planing, careful designing, quality production and teamwork," said MD-11 flight test program head George Field. "The dedication of the FAA personnel who work with us has also been an important factor in our progress."

One more MD-11 will enter the test program late this summer, with initial FAA certification and deliveries planned for this year's fourth quarter. To date, a total of 371 orders and other commitments have been received from 31 customers in 24 countries.

The four aircraft in the flight test program have accumulated more than 900 flight hours since the first MD-11 made its maiden flight on Jan. 10, 1990. General Electric CF6-80-D1F high bypass turbofan engines power three of the flight test aircraft, and one is powered by Pratt & Whitney PW 4460 high bypass engines. The Rolls Royce Trent 650 engine is also offered on the MD-11. The MD-11 is produced by the company's Douglas Aircraft division in Long Beach.

CLARKSTON, MI (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - A ground-breaking ceremony occurred in the Detroit suburb of Clarkston today as Saturn dealer Al Serra and company officials turned the first shovels full of earth for the future home of "Saturn North."

Joining Serra in the ground-breaking ceremonies were Donald W. Hudler, Saturn vice president of Sales, Service and Marketing, and Gerald R. "Jerry" Lewis, Saturn UAW coordinator for Sales, Service and Marketing team.

"Al Serra typifies our Saturn dealer partners," Hudler said. "They are highly successful retail automotive experts with organizations committed to providing superior customer satisfaction and an exceptional sales and service experience."

The stand-alone, uniform Saturn facilities "will feature new concepts in merchandising and servicing cars including side-by-side sales and service entrances to enhance customer convenience and satisfaction," Hudler said.

"We're focusing on providing a pleasant experience for each customer who walks through the front door of this dealership," Serra said. "This key element of Saturn's philosophy will distinguish us in the market place."

Saturn currently has signed franchise agreements with 100 dealers for 113 marketing areas to build 131 dealer facilities across the United States.

The automaker plans to introduce its cars first on the West Coast, Tennessee and the Southeast this fall, followed by a rollout across the country.

Paying tribute to the automaker's Spring Hill, Tenn., home and the environment, an area at the site was designated for a special tulip poplar tree to be planted at the dealership following construction. "The tulip poplar symbolizes Spring Hill, the team spirit, and the hard work that will go into every car we will build," said Lewis.

While construction of Saturn's dealer facilities is under way in several states, equipment installation and validation of the automaker's new manufacturing and assembly complex in Spring Hill nears completion.

Saturn Corporation, an independent subsidiary of General Motors, is based in Spring Hill, and Troy, Mich. The company's mission is to develop, manufacture and market a family of high-quality, affordable cars to compete in the subcompact and compact segments of the market.

Saturn products will be built at a four million-square-foot manufacturing and assembly complex in Spring Hill. The first cars, two-door and four-door models, will be introduced in the fall of 1990.

TULSA, OK (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - ONEOK Inc., (NYSE: OKE) a Tulsa-based energy company, today reported earnings of 31 cents per share of common stock for the fiscal year's third quarter ended May 31, 1990. This compares with 29 cents per share reported a year ago.

Operating income for the quarter was $14.8 million, up about $.9 million over last year. Consolidated net income for ONEOK Inc. of $8.4 million during the 1990 fiscal year's third quarter was essentially unchanged from the third quarter last year.

J. D. Scott, chairman, president and chief executive officer, said that weather for the third quarter was slightly warmer than last year and six percent warmer than normal. The effects of the warmer weather on ONEOK's Oklahoma Natural Gas Co. utility operations were mitigated by the fact that the company was serving more customers this year, Scott said.

For the 12 months ended May 31, 1990, ONEOK's earnings per share of common stock were $1.20 compared with 58 cents for the 12 months ended May 31, 1989, restated for a 2-for-1 stock split effective last quarter. Net income increased to $33 million compared with $16.6 million for the 12 months ended May 31, 1989. The increases in earnings per share and net income are primarily the result of large write-downs of assets in the previous year which are no longer adversely affecting operations expense.

Net operating revenues were $95.7 million for the third quarter and $392.3 million for the 12 months ended May 31, 1990. This compares with $84 million and $352.9 million, respectively, for the same period a year earlier.

ONEOK Inc. is a diversified energy company engaged in natural gas transmission and distribution, oil and gas exploration and production, contract well drilling, and the sale of natural gas liquids.

The company's stock is traded on the New York and Midwest Stock Exchanges under the trading symbol of OKE. ONEOK has outstanding 26.6 million shares of common stock which reflects a 2-for-1 stock split which was effective last quarter.

SAN DIEGO (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - The following is a letter to stockholders of Maritime Resorts International (OTC "Pink Sheets"):

"Dear Stockholder, We would like to announce an exciting development. Maritime Resorts International (MRI) has just acquired Millerton Games Inc., a California corporation which holds the management contract on Table Mountain Rancheria Bingo Enterprises in Friant, Calif.

Table Mountain Rancheria Bingo Enterprises is a high-stakes Indian bingo and card room casino located 20 miles north of Fresno, Calif. The operation grossed $10 million in 1989. The average occupancy was 780 people per night. This is about one-half of the casino's capacity of 1,500 people.

Millerton Games Inc., which is now a wholly owned subsidiary of MRI, was acquired for six million restricted shares at a value of 45 cents per share.

Included in this acquisition is a Note/Contractual obligation for approximately $2.5 million. This obligation is now payable to MRI. The management contract, now acquired by MRI, is valid for an additional 7.5 years.

There are more than 500,000 people living in the surrounding Fresno area. With proper promotion, this population base should fill the casino virtually every night with a potential of doubling the 1989 occupancy rate.

This operation is tied in with other Indian gaming halls throughout the United States via satellite through Gamma International. With this system there are potential prize payouts up to $1 million.

In addition to the bingo, a full-service card casino has now been installed. We are now preparing to expand the operation to operate off-track satellite horse race betting on the premises.

Our main priority, of course, is to get the Starship San Diego under construction so that our primary objective can be achieved."

RADNOR, Pa. (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Sun Co. Inc. (NYSE: SUN) announced today that its board of directors voted to opt out of the disgorgement provision of the recently passed Pennsylvania takeover statute.

The legislation, signed into law April 27, includes three principal provisions concerning the fiduciary duty of directors, control-share acquisitions, and the disgorgement of profits following failed takeover attempts. Publicly owned Pennsylvania corporations were permitted to exempt themselves from all or part of the law within 90 days of passage.

The directors elected to remain within the fiduciary duty and control-share provisions because they believe that these two provisions are consistent with their primary responsibility to its shareholders. The board emphasized that Sun's fundamental objective is the creation of value for its shareholders and that, in its opinion, the disgorgement provision would not contribute to enhanced shareholder value.

BERLIN (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - With the arrival of German economic and monetary union, American Express Travel Related Services announced today its intention to rapidly build up a comprehensive network of travel and financial services in the German Democratic Republic (GDR).

From today GDR consumers will be able to apply for the American Express Card and purchase American Express Travelers Cheques.

Further expansion of American Express' services include the future opening of travel service offices in East Berlin, Leipzig and Dresden. The first agency is scheduled to open in the fall of 1990.

An American Express servicing office is to be established in Alexanderplatz. This will primarily be responsible for expanding the number of service establishments accepting the American Express Card, as well as the processing of potential Cardmember applications.

In announcing these new initiatives at yesterday's press conference in Berlin, Juergen Aumueller, president of American Express Travel Related Services for Europe, the Middle East and Africa, said: "American Express will now be able to offer all its full range of travel and financial services to inbound travelers to the GDR. At the same time, the increasing number of travelers outbound, who in many cases are now planning their first holiday abroad in the West, recognize the name of American Express is a guarantee of quality customer service.

"Additionally, the availability of the American Express Travelers Cheque, now available from the Sparda and Berliner Sparkasse banks, offer the safest, cheapest and most convenient cash-free means of payment while traveling."

American Express Travel Related Services Company Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of American Express Company (NYSE: AXP), is a family of travel, financial, insurance and communications businesses.

VERNON HILLS, IL (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Wickes Lumber Co., one of the nation's largest building materials suppliers, today announced the prospective sale of 32 of its lumber centers and five support facilities in five southeastern states.

The centers are being purchased by Kenneth L. Miron and an investor group led by Peter J. Solomon Company Limited.

The 37 sites are located in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. The name of the new company has not been disclosed.

In announcing the sale, Wickes Lumber chairman and chief executive officer

William A. Hensler noted, ''This transaction provides us with an opportunity to implement an essential part of our long-term strategic plan and decrease our debt.''

Kenneth L. Miron will be president and CEO of the new company. Since 1969, Miron, 51, served as president and COO of Miron Building Products Co. Inc. based in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. Miron resigned from Miron Building Poducts earlier this year in order to devote himself full-time to this acquisition.

Peter J. Solomon Co. and its investors will own the majority of the equity in the new company. The firm was established by Peter J. Solomon, a former vice chairman and head of investment banking at Shearson Lehman Hutton. Wickes Lumber Co., based in Vernon Hills, Ill., has an annual sales volume exceeding $1 billion in 1989.

VENLO, THE NETHERLANDS (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Second quarter and first half results were reported here today by Oce-van der Grinten N.V. (NASDAQ: OCENY). Oce, international manufacturer of design engineering and office systems copying systems, has its home base in Venlo, the Netherlands and North American headquarters in Chicago.

Consolidated second quarter net income for the three months ended May 31, 1990, advanced 1.6 percent to $13.0 million, or $0.86 per share based on 15,067,320 shares outstanding, compared to $12.8 million, or $0.85 per share based on 15,031,530 shares outstanding at the fiscal 1989 year-end.

Revenues in the second quarter totaled $307.9 million, an increase of 17 percent compared to $263.3 million for the second quarter of fiscal 1989. Internal growth accounted for 9 percent of the increase, after eliminating the positive effect generated by Graphics (+ 13 percent) and the negative effects of exchange rate fluctuations (- 5 percent).

Operating income rose by 11 percent to $22.3 million from $20.2 million, the main contributing factor here being strong office systems sales.

Net financial expense during the second quarter amounted to $4.7 million being considerably higher than the comparable 1989 second quarter's $2.9 million, the main factors here being higher interest rates, the 1989 acquisitions and the consequent increase in interest bearing debt. These higher interest expenses were partly offset by increased interest income from financial lease contracts.

Second quarter cash flow (net income + depreciation) advanced 10.5 percent to $47.6 million from 1989's second quarter $43.1 million.

Revenues in the first half totaled $604.0 million, an increase of 17 percent compared to $516.1 million for the first half of fiscal 1989. Internal growth accounted for 9 percent of the increase, after eliminating the positive effect generated by the contribution of Graphics (+ 13 percent) and the negative effects of exchange rate fluctuations (- 5 percent).

First half operating income rose 16 percent to $41.6 million, the main contributing factors here being the favorable development of office systems' sales and the acquisition of Graphics. Design engineering sales showed only a modest increase, absent Graphics' contribution. On balance, exchange rate changes had a negative influence on operating income.

Higher interest rates and an increase in interest bearing debt due to acquisitions made in the second half of fiscal 1989 increased net financial expense by $3.8 million to $9.4 million.

First half cash flow advanced 12.5 percent to $90.4 million from $80.4 million in 1989's second half.

Oce is the parent company of an international group of companies renowned worldwide for advanced products and systems for the presentation of information on paper comprising: multi volume copiers and copying supplies for standard and network office applications; copying and plotter systems for design engineering offices; printing and publishing systems; graphic film and photo sensitive materials.

Oce's products and systems are largely developed, produced and marketed within the group, which employs 11,000 people in 90 countries, and in some 20 of which it has its own operating companies.

MEMPHIS, TN (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Holiday Inn hotels recently unveiled their All-American Wine List, which features selected wines available at all company-owned and -managed Holiday Inn and Holiday Inn Crowne Plaza hotels across the United States. The All-American Wine List will also be featured at participating franchised Holiday Inn hotels.

The introduction of the All-American Wine List is the focal point of a varietal wine program begun in company-managed Holiday Inn hotels earlier this year to encourage sales of wine by the bottle and glass. The program also helps ensure a high level of quality in wine list offerings.

In April, the Holiday Inn Wine Council, made up of Holiday Inn employees from hotel servers to corporate management, met at Wente Bros. Winery in Livermore, Calif. Council members were selected based upon superior performance and creativity in wine sales and service, as well as overall excellent job performance. During the April meeting, the council was responsible for tasting more than 275 wines and choosing the ones to be included in the Holiday Inn All-American Wine List.

MILAN, ITALY (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Ferruzzi subsidiary Montedison SpA (NYSE: MNT) said today that the corn starch-based biodegradable thermoplastic materials, whose creation by the Ferruzzi/Montedison Group was announced less than one year ago, are now a commercial reality. The first production line for Mater-Bi (the trade name under which these materials will be sold) recently went into regular operation at Novamont's Terni plant, located in central Italy. Novamont is the Ferruzzi/Montedison subsidiary established to develop chemical products from renewable agricultural sources.

The current production capacity for Mater-Bi is 5,000 tons per year, which corresponds to corn starch consumption of 3,000 tons per year. A capacity expansion to 15,000 tons per year (consuming 9,000 tons of corn starch) is programmed for first quarter 1991. Based on expected demand for the products, Novamont plans to achieve an ultimate capacity of 100,000 tons per year, with corresponding starch consumption of 60,000 tons, within the mid-1990s.

The trade name Mater-Bi covers a series of thermoplastic materials resulting from Ferruzzi/Montedison's research using original proprietary technology and covered by roughly 10 patents registered or in the process of registration in the major countries of the world.

More specifically, Mater-Bi is an alloy of a natural component (corn starch and other natural substances) with a synthetic component, an oxygenated polymer which is hydrophilic and has a low molecular weight. The biodegradable properties of these materials were described yesterday during a press conference by Professor Amilcare Collina, head of research for the Ferruzzi Group and CEO of Novamont.

The mechanical properties of the new materials now being produced at Terni are comparable to those of traditional thermoplastic materials and the same processing equipment can be utilized (e.g. injection molding, thermoforming, extruded film, blown film, etc.).

These new starch-based materials are not alternatives but rather complements to the more widely commercialized plastic materials and will serve to broaden the range of Montedison's new materials product line.

Mater-Bi will be sold in market segments where the biodegradability of plastic materials is highly valued, such as human hygiene and personal health care, medical/surgical aids and certain packaging applications.

The Ferruzzi Group is a leading international industrial system which operates in the chemical, pharmaceutical and energy sectors through Montedison and in the agro-industrial sector through Eridania, with an aggregate turnover of approximately $40 billion.

DENVER (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - The Fort St. Vrain Nuclear Generating Station, according to Public Service Co. of Colorado (NYSE: PSR), is likely to be decommissioned and repowered in the next five years.

Richard C. Kelly, senior vice president of finance and chief financial officer, said the decision was made following an evaluation of several responses to the company's request for decommissioning proposals received earlier this year. Contributing to this decision was the existence of long-term regulatory and environmental uncertainties associated with the originally planned 50-year decommissioning period.

Fort St. Vrain ended electric production in August 1989 and began defueling procedures in November 1989. The defueling process was temporarily suspended in early 1990, when the plant's on-site fuel storage wells were filled to capacity. Defueling will resume when the company begins shipping the fuel to a designated Department of Energy facility.

The shipments, which will be made under the terms of a 1965 agreement with the DOE, have been delayed because the state of Idaho has been unwilling to accept additional spent fuel without further assurances from the DOE that the Idaho facility will not become a site for the long-term storage of Fort St. Vrain's fuel.

As a contigency, Kelly said the company is pursuing an alternate plan of designing, licensing and, if need be, constructing an interim fuel storage facility on the plant site.

Under the originally planned 50-year decommissioning period, the estimated cost of defueling and decommissioning was $233 million in 1988 dollars. Kelly said the existing provision for the costs of defueling and decommissioning the plant will be adequate assuming the successful implementation of the early decommissioning and repowering approach and the timely resumption of fuel shipments. In that regard, he noted successful implementation will require various regulatory approvals.

Fort St. Vrain was the nation's only high-temperature gas-cooled reactor. The technology has been considered the model for future nuclear plants.

PONTIAC, MI (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Paced by strong month-ending sales of Grand Prix, Sunbird, Grand Am and LeMans, Pontiac Division dealers delivered 70,036 vehicles in June -- the best of any month in the 1990 model year and the highest for any month since May 1989. Grand Prix, Sunbird and LeMans recorded their best-ever June 21-30 sales while June deliveries were the second highest ever for Grand Am.

With a 48.9-percent increase in the June 21-30 sales period to close the month, Pontiac's total sales in June increased 16.1 percent over June 1989 when sales totaled 60,335. In May 1989, Pontiac sold 71,800 vehicles.

Grand Prix sales during the final 10 days of June totaled 5,511 units, a 136.6-percent increase over the year-ago period. For the month, Grand Prix sales were up 62.2 percent for the best June since the current model was introduced.

Sunbird continued its strong showing in the subcompact segment, topping the year-ago June 21-30 period by 110.2 percent to put June in the books at 41.8 percent over June 1989 with sales of 11,817 units. For the model year, Sunbird sales continue ahead of the year-ago pace by 14.5 percent.

Grand Am continues as Pontiac's top seller with sales in the final 10-day period up 56.4 percent. For the month of June, dealers delivered 23,756 Grand Ams -- a 28.9-percent increase over the year-ago month.

VENLO, THE NETHERLANDS (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Second quarter and first half results were reported here today by Oce-van der Grinten N.V. (NASDAQ: OCENY). Oce, international manufacturer of design engineering and office systems copying systems, has its home base in Venlo, the Netherlands and North American headquarters in Chicago.

Consolidated second quarter net income for the three months ended May 31, 1990, advanced 1.6 percent to $13.0 million, or $0.86 per share based on 15,067,320 shares outstanding, compared to $12.8 million, or $0.85 per share based on 15,031,530 shares outstanding at the fiscal 1989 year-end.

The company reports in Dutch Guilders/Florins (NLG). As a convenience for U.S. readers, the results for 1990 and 1989 have been converted at NLG 1.9136 : $1, the noon buying rate of May 31 1990. This compares with NLG 2.2265 : $1 used at this time last year.

Revenues in the second quarter totaled $307.9 million, an increase of 17 percent compared to $263.3 million for the second quarter of fiscal 1989. Internal growth accounted for 9 percent of the increase, after eliminating the positive effect generated by Graphics (+ 13 percent) and the negative effects of exchange rate fluctuations (- 5 percent).

Operating income rose by 11 percent to $22.3 million from $20.2 million, the main contributing factor here being strong office systems sales.

Net financial expense during the second quarter amounted to $4.7 million being considerably higher than the comparable 1989 second quarter's $2.9 million, the main factors here being higher interest rates, the 1989 acquisitions and the consequent increase in interest bearing debt. These higher interest expenses were partly offset by increased interest income from financial lease contracts.

Second quarter cash flow (net income + depreciation) advanced 10.5 percent to $47.6 million from 1989's second quarter $43.1 million.

Half year figures Consolidated first half net income for the six months ended May 31, 1990, advanced 5 percent to $22.5 million, or $1.49 per share based on 15,067,320 shares outstanding, compared to $21.3 million, or $1.42 per share based on 15,031,530 shares outstanding at the fiscal 1989 year- end.

Revenues in the first half totaled $604.0 million, an increase of 17 percent compared to $516.1 million for the first half of fiscal 1989. Internal growth accounted for 9 percent of the increase, after eliminating the positive effect generated by the contribution of Graphics (+ 13 percent) and the negative effects of exchange rate fluctuations (- 5 percent).

First half operating income rose 16 percent to $41.6 million, the main contributing factors here being the favorable development of office systems' sales and the acquisition of Graphics. Design engineering sales showed only a modest increase, absent Graphics' contribution. On balance, exchange rate changes had a negative influence on operating income.

Higher interest rates and an increase in interest bearing debt due to acquisitions made in the second half of fiscal 1989 increased net financial expense by $3.8 million to $9.4 million.

First half cash flow advanced 12.5 percent to $90.4 million from $80.4 million in 1989's second half.

Office Systems: first half sales totaled $313 million, an increase of 10 percent. Internal growth, which amounted to 14 percent, was particularly strong during the second quarter compared to the same period last year. Among contributions to this increase, sales and rentals of the Oce 2500, introduced last year for the very high volume sector of the market -- 100,000 copies per month -- continued to do well. Oce's high volume market position is being further boosted with encouraging initial sales of the Oce 2400 for customers making up to 100,000 copies per month.

Design Engineering: fiscal 1990 first half sales advanced 26 percent to $291 million. Internal growth, that is after eliminating Graphics (+ 29 percent) and exchange rate effects (- 5 percent), amounted to 2 percent. Copying supplies maintained good growth rates, but equipment sales growth declined. In the second half of 1990 deliveries of two important new design engineering machines will start: the Oce 7100, a large format plain paper copier and the Oce G9800 wide body raster plotter. A good order backlog has been built up for both these new machines.

Balance sheet Shareholders' equity increased by $19 million to $495 million at the end of the first half, compared to $476 million at the same time last year. Exchange rate changes had a negative influence. Shareholders' equity as a percentage of total assets at the end of May 1990 amounted to 40 percent, compared to 39 percent at the end of fiscal 1989.

Recent developments -- Far East activities have been expanded through the establishment of new joint ventures in Thailand and Malaysia (49 percent Hagemeyer and 51 percent Oce). Also, Oce Graphics (Taiwan) Ltd. Has been set up to handle Graphics' activities in Taiwan.

-- The nominal NLG 20.00 Oce share was split May 9 into five par value shares of NLG 4.00 each. For Oce's U.S. ADR's, which have always had a par value of NLG 4.00, the split means that one ADR equals one ordinary share.

-- Since May 28 Oce shares have also been officially listed on Switzerland's Zurich, Basel and Geneva stock exchanges.

Oce is the parent company of an international group of companies renowned worldwide for advanced products and systems for the presentation of information on paper comprising: multi volume copiers and copying supplies for standard and network office applications; copying and plotter systems for design engineering offices; printing and publishing systems; graphic film and photo sensitive materials.

Oce's products and systems are largely developed, produced and marketed within the group, which employs 11,000 people in 90 countries, and in some 20 of which it has its own operating companies.

LITTLE HOCKING, OH (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Plastic Masters Inc., Du Pont's (NYSE: DD) Little Hocking facility, has received a $13,000 training grant from Ohio's Buckeye Hills Hocking Valley Regional Development District.

The grant will be used to train 75 employees for their current positions and ten for new positions. The training is grouped into three areas, management, maintenance, and production/laboratory, and offered by Washington Technical College in Marietta, Marietta College, Toledo Scales in Worthington, and Hunter Labs Special Services in Reston, Va.

Training should begin in July and continue through March 1991. Some of the courses offered are microcomputer, introduction to supervision, fundamental business communications, developing initiative and assertiveness, basics of statistical process control, and fundamentals of electronics.

This award was given as part of a state program called the Ohio Industrial Training Program (OITP). The Little Hocking plant is one of 249 Ohio facilities to be awarded training money this year. The grants will be used to reimburse the company for part of the instructional costs.

"This program allows us to train twice as many people in a short timeframe. We expect this training to help improve our production rate," said Gordon Goudy, Plastic Masters plant manager.

"This program enables the state to play a significant role in the continued education of our residents." said Doug Unsold, economic and comunity development/OITP director of the Buckeye Hills Hocking Valley Regional Development District.

The Little Hocking facility is a compounding site for industrial resin and is one of 12 Du Pont reclamation sites for industrial waste.

READING, PA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Metropolitan Edison Co. reported that electric power supplies are marginal today, and circumstances may develop that could require the Pennsylvania-New Jersey-Maryland Power Pool to implement procedures to limit peak loads.

The tight power situation results from current weather conditions. The projection for today is based on information available as of about 1 p.m.

Met-Ed and the 10 other utilities in PJM, which serve 8.3 million customers in the middle Atlantic states, operate as one system and jointly implement procedures to limit peak loads when required to keep electricity flowing to customers.

Underlying the tight power supply situation is strong economic growth in the middle Atlantic region, which pushed up demand for electricity. Met-Ed and other utilities manage their operations to accommodate a range of risks and uncertainties, but there are occasions when circumstances combine to create a tight supply situation.

This continued growth will require Met-Ed and the other GPU System utilities to continue to add transmission and generating facilities to support the electric energy requirements of the economy, even though emphasis continues to be placed on energy conservation and load management revenues.

SAN ANTONIO (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. Long Distance Corp. announced today that its common stock will begin trading on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation system (NASDAQ) on Monday, July 9, 1990.

The company's Form 10 General Registration Statement was cleared by the Securities and Exchange commission on June 28 and the National Association of Securities Dealers has approved the listing. The company will trade

under the symbol, "USLD."

"Becoming an SEC reporting company and attaining a NASDAQ listing are major milestones for our company," said Parris H. Holmes Jr., president and chief executive officer.

"Achieving profitability and maximization of shareholder value were our primary goals for 1990. Last month, we were able to announce we had turned the corner on profitability as we are projecting to show a profit for the quarter ending June 30, 1990," said Holmes.

Holmes said he believed the NASDAQ listing would greatly assist in the broadening of shareholder interest, noting that the larger market afforded by the NASDAQ listing would provide for increased liquidity for USLD shareholders.

USLD, which has been listed on the Vancouver Exchange for the past three years, showed second quarter revenues on March 31, 1990, of $4.1 million, up 150 percent from $1.7 million for the same period the previous year. Second quarter results also represented a 20 percent increase in revenues over the preceding quarter, when the company recorded revenues of $3.4 million.

U.S. Long Distance Corp.'s net worth now exceeds $2.6 million following the completion of a $2.5 million equity financing in June. This financing arrangement raised $1.7 million in cash through a private offering of series A ten percent cumulative convertible preferred stock, and $800,000 through USLD's exchange of series A preferred stock for debentures owned by several debentureholders. The financing enabled the company to meet NASDAQ's recently raised financing standards for an over-the-counter listing.

USLD's primary business is providing long distance telephone service to the hospitality and payphone industries. The company also provides billing and collection services to interexchange carriers.

The company currently provides over 2.5 million minutes a month of long distance service to its hotel, payphone and hospital customers and processes nearly two million records per month through its collection subsidiary.

CYPRESS, CA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Mitsubishi Motor Sales of America Inc. today posted sales of 22,171 units for the month of June, representing a 90 percent increase over the same period last year and marking the second highest monthly sales record in the company's history.

Year-to-date total vehicle sales for June reached 114,751 units, from 66,949 units a year earlier, marking the company's 14th consecutive month showing an increase over the previous year. Total passenger cars were up 102 percent and included record Galant sales of 6,650.

Rick Lepley, vice president of sales, attributes the company's strong sales to the completion of a three-month incentive program and continued dealer expansion throughout key market areas. "We've added more than 40 dealers during the first half of 1990 and sales momentum is definitely on the rise," said Lepley.

The company anticipates increased sales and consumer awareness with the introduction of the 1991 model lineup later this fall, including the all-new 3000GT grand touring sports car. The 3000GT will showcase the height of Mitsubishi technology offering consumers the benefits of all-wheel drive, four-wheel steering, four-wheel independent suspension and four-wheel anti-lock brakes in one integrated package.

Mitsubishi Motor Sales of America Inc., Cypress, was established in 1981 by Mitsubishi Motors Corp., Tokyo, and markets a full line of subcompacts, compacts, sport coupes, luxury cars, vans, light trucks and sport/utility vehicles.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Bristol-Myers Squibb Company (NYSE: BMY) today announced that Wayne A. Davidson will expand his current role as president of the Bristol-Myers Squibb Pharmaceutical and Nutritional Group by assuming responsibility for the Bristol-Myers Squibb Pharmaceutical Research Institute.

In his new capacity as head of the worldwide pharmaceutical business, Davidson, who previously reported to Richard M. Furlaud, president of Bristol-Myers Squibb, will report directly to Richard L. Gelb, chairman and chief executive officer. Davidson is also an executive vice president of the company and a member of its board of directors. Furlaud continues as president and a director of Bristol-Myers Squibb Company.

"At the time of our merger with Squibb last October, I asked Dick Furlaud if he would take over the leadership of our two very successful pharmaceutical businesses and start the process of turning them into an even more creative and productive organization," said Gelb. "Eight months later, I can say that this goal has been achieved. Both Dick and I believe that now the time has come to pass on the leadership of our pharmaceutical business.

"As president of Bristol-Myers Squibb, Dick will now be a member of the Office of the Chairman and will continue to work with me on the many strategic, policy and organizational issues that face our company as we enter the decade of the '90s," Gelb said. "I congratulate Dick for the job he has done so effectively in bringing our pharmaceutical businesses together, and I thank him for his total dedication and untiring efforts during these past eight months. I look forward to our new working relationship."

Furlaud, in announcing the leadership change at a recent meeting of the Bristol-Myers Squibb Pharmaceutical Group, said, "I can't think of anyone better qualified than Wayne Davidson to lead our pharmaceutical group in the years ahead."

Davidson began his career at Mead Johnson in 1958 and was named president of Mead Johnson in 1977. He was elected vice president of Bristol-Myers Company in 1978 and senior vice president in 1981. In 1984 he became president of the U.S. Pharmaceutical and Nutritional Group.

In 1988 he assumed additional responsibility for the Bristol-Myers International Group and, with the addition of responsibility for the science and technology group in 1989, became responsible for the worldwide pharmaceutical business of Bristol-Myers Company. In 1989 he was elected an executive vice president and named to the board of directors.

GUILDERLAND, NY (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Intermagnetics General Corporation

(NASDAQ: INMA) (IGC) announced today that its Magstream business unit has received an award from the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) under the Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) Program for approximately $50,000.

Garry R. Morrow, Magstream business manager, stated, "We are very pleased to receive this award which will permit us to determine the feasibility of utilizing the unique Magstream technology to produce a low cost fuel oil substitute from the refuse of coal cleaning plants. This process could serve to lower our dependence on foreign oil imports as well as reducing sulfur emissions and the amount of waste requiring disposal."

Magstream is a patented IGC process for separation of fine particles based on subtle differences in density and/or weakly magnetic properties. In addition to coal cleaning, it has applications in minerals processing and scrap recycling. Magstream is a registered trademark of Intermagnetics General Corporation.

The federal SBIR program aims at strengthening the role of innovative firms with less than 500 employees in areas of federally funded research and development, and is designed as a phased process than may be continued for a three-year time period. Phase I awards are to determine the scientific feasibility of an idea and may not exceed $50,000; Phase II awards are to perform research and development on the most promising ideas resulting from Phase I, where funds up to $500,000 are awarded to each project selected for continuation. Under Phase III, the companies are expected to pursue commercial applications of the research, either by use of non-federal funds or by non-SBIR contracts provided by the government.

IGC is a leading manufacturer of superconducting wire and superconducting magnet systems, especially those used in MRI medical diagnostic imaging systems. The company also produces cryogenic equipment, permanent magnetic systems and material separators.

NEW ORLEANS (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - James D. Cole, president and chief executive officer of Newpark Resources, Inc. announced today that S&S Newpark Ventures, L.P., a limited partnership formed for the purpose of investing in the company, has increased its equity ownership of the company to 82.8 percent.

In a transaction which closed June 29, 1990, S&S acquired substantially all of the common stock and warrants previously held by the company's banks, together with the right to purchase approximately $9.0 million of notes held by certain of the banks for $5.1 million, at a discount of $3.9 million. The company is being assigned the right by S&S to purchase at a discount the previously mentioned bank debt. S&S has provided the company a $1.8 million capital injection through purchase of a subordinated note of the company. S&S agreed to subordinate its existing approximately $5.6 million note under certain circumstances. Also, S&S anticipates subordinating such note to a new loan at such time as replacement financing is obtained.

For the injection of capital, subordination and conveyance of the right to acquire the bank debt of certain of the banks at a discount, S&S is being issued 10,000,000 additional shares of common stock, and an additional 6,700,000 shares in exchange for cancellation of warrants for a like number of shares acquired from the banks in this transaction or previously owned, bringing its ownership to 82.8 percent of the approximately 44,000,000 shares to be outstanding.

As part of the overall restructuring, the company's board of directors has approved and the company will effect a one-for-ten reverse stock split in order to reduce the company's capitalization as appropriate to its current size. The record date for the transaction has been set for July 16, 1990.

As part of the restructuring, the standstill agreement with S&S and the banks, originally scheduled to expire on June 30, 1990, now provide for an expiration date of June 30, 1991. During this standstill period, the company intends to seek refinancing to avail itself of the opportunity to purchase the previously mentioned bank debt at a discount and to provide additional working capital.

The company provides environmental, oilfield and marine services in the Gulf Coast market.

LONG BEACH, CA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) delivered 59 MD-80 series twin-jets in the first half of the year, the most the company has put into service in the first six months of any year since it began producing the popular jetliner in 1980.

The 59 deliveries were also the most twin-jets of any kind that McDonnell Douglas has transferred to customers during the first six-month period in each of the past 20 years.

The MD-80 series of aircraft is a short to medium range two-engine jet. The quiet, fuel efficient airliner has nearly 10 years of service with 50 operators worldwide. It recently passed a milestone when it carried its 500 millionth passenger.

The MD-80 series includes five versions that provide different range capabilities and engine take-off thrusts as well as passenger-preferred five-across seating.

Douglas has delivered 745 MD-80s, and the company has orders and other commitments for an additional 804 planes. The MD-80 is one of the most successful jet transport programs in commercial aviation history and a fleet mainstay for many operators.

Douglas Aircraft has produced more than 45,750 airplanes in its 70-year history, including 16,600 transports and nearly 2,700 jetliners.

ROCHESTER, NY (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastman Kodak Company's (NYSE: EK) Graphics Imaging Systems Division recently donated 59 Kodak Image Maker 5060-A cameras to schools that teach graphic arts in the United States and Canada.

The cameras make black-and-white proofs and negatives which printers and publishers use in producing printed materials.

Kodak awarded the cameras -- each valued at $11,072 -- through a lottery administered by the Graphic Arts Technical Foundation and the International Graphic Arts Education Association.

Schools whose teachers belong to the organizations qualified for the drawing.

"The lottery was an equitable way to distribute the cameras to the schools " said David R. Gadbaw, national director of trade relations and marketing operations for Kodak's Graphics Imaging Systems Division.

"Kodak," he added, "is committed to supporting education in the graphic arts field."

TROY, MICH (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE- K mart Corporation (NYSE: KM) and Exide Corporation today announced their program to clean up the junk batteries stored in consumers' garages and basements across the U.S. resulted in more than 100,000 batteries returned to K mart stores for recycling.

The four-week-old program averaged 25,000 returned batteries per week. This ongoing program has the potential of recycling 1 million batteries over the next year.

"The overwhelming consumer response to this program proves consumers want information about how they can work toward a healthier environment," said Joseph E. Antonini, K mart chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer.

"K mart is committed to providing a healthier environment for America.

Educating our employees and customers about how products K mart sells affect the environment is one of the key elements of K mart's environmental program," added Antonini.

Batteries -- such as those used in automobiles, boats and garden tractors -- pose safety and environmental concerns if they are improperly handled or discarded.

Batteries contain lead and sulfuric acid, both harmful substances if handled directly and which can create ground contamination problems if not correctly discarded. The chemical reaction between lead and sulfuric acid yields hydrogen gas, which is highly explosive.

"Exide was pleased to offer a program that provides consumers with the opportunity to clean up their environment without harming themselves," said Joe Calio, Exide vice president of sales and marketing.

Under this cooperative environmental and consumer safety program, Exide recycles the lead and plastic from discarded batteries to manufacture new battery products. Exide trucks pick up the batteries at the more than 2,200 K mart stores across the country.

K mart and Exide urge consumers to handle batteries with care and return all used batteries to their local K mart store.

Exide Corporation is the world's largest and oldest battery manufacturer. Exide Corporation founded the battery industry in 1888 and is the only totally integrated battery manufacturer in the United States.

K mart Corporation serves America with over 4,000 retail outlets in all 50 states in the United States and in Puerto Rico and Canada. K mart, currently operating 2,324 K mart stores, is also the parent company for Pay Less Drug Stores, Builders Square, Waldenbooks, PACE Membership Warehouse, Inc. and The Sports Authority.

PARIS (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Compagnie de Saint-Gobain today announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, SG Acquisition Corp., has extended the expiration date of its $90 per share cash tender offer for all outstanding shares of common stock of Norton Company (NYSE: NRT). The tender offer and withdrawal rights are now scheduled to expire at 5:00 p.m., New York City time, on Tuesday, July 17, 1990.

As previously announced, the staff of the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS) has been conducting an investigation under the Exon-Florio Amendment to the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988 of the transactions contemplated by the merger agreement among Saint-Gobain, SG Acquisition and Norton. CFIUS has informed Saint-Gobain that under the Exon-Florio Amendment the investigation must be completed no later than July 23, 1990. The president must announce any decision to take action under the Exon- Florio Amendment within 15 days after completion of the investigation.

The Exon-Florio Amendment authorizes the President of the United States to investigate a proposed foreign acquisition of a U.S. business to determine the effects on national security.

SG Acquisition Corp. has been informed by the depositary that as of the close of business on July 3, 1990, approximately 9,504,003 shares of common stock of Norton Company have been tendered to SG Acquisition Corp. These shares represent approximately 45.42 percent of Norton Company's outstanding common shares.

MONTVALE, NJ (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Federal Paper Board Company, Inc. (NYSE: FBO) today announced increased sales for the second quarter of 1990 but lower earnings compared to last year.

For the 12 weeks ended June 16, 1990, net sales were $317,203,000 compared to $308,789,000 last year. Net income was $34,571,000 compared to $51,395,000. Earnings per share on a fully diluted basis were $0.75 per share compared to $1.12 for the second quarter 1989.

For the 24 week period ended June 16, 1990, sales were $634,013,000 compared to $593,513,000 and net income was $73,357,000 compared to $98,491,000. Earnings per share on a fully diluted basis for the 24 week period were $1.60 compared to $2.16.

The increased sales reflect revenues for Imperial Cup Corporation, acquired in October of 1989, and a full quarter of sales for Thomas Tait & Sons, Ltd., the Scottish paper mill acquired in the second quarter of 1989. Both operations contributed to second quarter earnings.

Operating profits from the company's folding carton plants continue to be higher than in 1989. The phase-out of the Beacon, New York carton plant will be accomplished later this year, with no significant impact expected on earnings. The wood products operations posted a strong earnings performance for the second quarter with increased lumber prices accounting for the majority of the improvement. The Augusta Sawmill modernization is partially completed; some equipment became operational in mid-June.

The company has begun construction of a poly-extrusion laminating facility in Prosperity, S.C., which is expected to start-up later this year.

Federal Paper Board Company, Inc. manufactures and sells solid bleached paperboard, bleached market pulp, recycled paperboard, folding cartons, lumber, paper cups, and in the European market, uncoated freesheet paper. The company operates two bleached kraft paperboard and pulp mills, one recycled paperboard mill, nine folding carton plants, five wood products mills, four paper cup converting plants and one uncoated freesheet mill in the United Kingdom. Federal has approximately 6,600 employees.

ST. LOUIS (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Mark Twain Bancshares Inc. (NASDAQ: MTWN) announced a third quarter dividend of 22 cents (88 cents annually) to be paid on Aug. 10, 1990 to shareholders of record of its common stock (par value $1.25) on July 20, 1990.

"Mark Twain continues to pay between 30 and 40 percent earnings to shareholders in the form of dividends," said John Dubinsky, president and chief executive officer of Mark Twain. "This percentage allows us to retain sufficient earnings to support futures growth of the company both through internal growth and external acquisition."

This is the 83rd consecutive common stock divident in the history of the company, which has increased its quarterly dividend 23 times in the past 21 years since its public formation in 1969. The most recent increase was in January 1990 when the company announced a 10 percent increase in the dividend rate.

There have been three common stock splits in the company's history: a three-for-two split in 1987, and two two-for one-splits in 1979 and 1983.

DETROIT (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Detroit Edison (NYSE: DTE) today introduced a conservation program to help businesses in southeastern Michigan purchase and finance new energy-saving equipment to increase energy efficiency and reduce operating costs.

Through the Performance Contracting Program -- a unique partnership between Detroit Edison and four energy management contractors -- commercial and industrial customers can cut their electricity and other energy costs by up to 15 percent, with no up-front consulting or equipment costs.

Under the program, a customer's specific energy needs will be evaluated by one of the Detroit Edison contractors, who will recommend more efficient heating, cooling and other electrical equipment if available and help the customer secure financing to pay for its purchase and installation. Under a unique arrangement, the customer pays for the contractor's services over time with a portion of the energy dollars saved.

Additionally, Detroit Edison has established a $1.67 million fund to contribute to customers for payment of services and equipment recommended by the contractor.

"Through Performance Contracting, customers can install equipment and implement new procedures that may not have been economically feasible in the past," said Robert S. Luke Jr., a Detroit Edison energy services consultant.

Companies using at least 500,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity annually are eligible for the program. Detroit Edison estimates that at least 10 performance contracts will be in place by the end of 1991.

Once a customer agrees to participate in the program, the assigned contractor will perform a detailed audit on the company's buildings to identify opportunities for more efficient use of electricity, gas, water and other energy sources. The contractor then will make its recommendations, and identify the cost, energy savings and payback periods.

The contractor also will monitor the energy savings over the term of the contract and report results to the customer and utility.

In addition to the Performance Contracting Program, Detroit Edison offers its commercial and industrial customers a free lighting efficiency analysis. The utility also will conduct an electrical and thermal energy analysis on request for qualifying midsized and large business customers.

Performance Contracting is just one of 13 new Detroit Edison- sponsored conservation programs approved recently by the Michigan Public Service Commission to help customers improve efficiency and reduce their energy costs. Detroit Edison last month announced programs for residential electric water-heating and electric space-heating customers.

Customers who qualify for the utility's energy conservation programs will receive information in the mail. Interested commercial and industrial customers can contract their Detroit Edison account executive or return the post-paid card included with the promotional package.

OYSTER BAY, NY (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Acclaim Entertainment, Inc. (NASDAQ: AKLM) today announced that it had advised MCA Inc. (NYSE: MCA), that it did not approve the statement of net assets prepared by MCA in accordance with the terms of the purchase agreement for Acclaim's recently completed acquisition LJN Toys, Ltd.

The acquisition of LJN was closed on April 20, 1990, for a purchase price of $22,248,000, subject to final adjustment for changes in LJN's net assets from Dec. 31, 1989, through April 20, 1990. Pursuant to the terms of the acquisition agreement, on June 4, 1990, MCA delivered to Acclaim a report prepared by Price Waterhouse, LJN's independent accountants, which stated that such final adjustment required Acclaim to pay an additional $306,000 to MCA.

On July 3, 1990, Acclaim advised MCA that its review of the statement of net assets resulted in a final adjustment of a net amount due from MCA to Acclaim of $9,692,000. The acquisition agreement provides for arbitration before a nationally recognized accounting firm if MCA and Acclaim cannot resolve this matter by July 18, 1990.

Acclaim Entertainment, Inc. is a leading publisher, marketer and distributor of home entertainment products under the Acclaim and LJN labels. These include Nintendo Entertainment System software, Nintendo Game Boy compact video system software, wireless remote controllers and hand-held electronic video games.

EL PASO, TEXAS (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Helen of Troy Corporation (NASDAQ: HELE), developer, designer and marketer of personal care products, today reported results for the first quarter ended May 31, 1990.

Net earnings were $802,000 or 15 cents per share on sales of $24,730,000, compared with net earnings of $1,927,000 or 35 cents per share on sales of $23,287,000 in the prior year's quarter.

Gerald J. Rubin, chairman and chief executive officer, pointed out that "The company's products have maintained or increased their shares of market despite a sluggish retail climate and hesitancy on the part of customers to build inventories.

"Although our largest customers are on target with us, moderate sized and smaller retailers are significantly below expectations. As compared to the prior year's first quarter, earnings were impacted by pressure on margins from a highly competitive environment, additional advertising expense, and investments in our Beauty Biz beauty supply stores which have grown from 15 to 39 units since the end of last year's first quarter.

"We are preparing to enter the European market in February 1991, under our agreement with Procter & Gamble Distributing Company for the license to market Vidal Sassoon personal care appliances and brushes and combs in most of Western Europe."

The company is the exclusive licensee for the Vidal Sassoon personal care appliances, brushes and combs in the United States and Canada.

Helen of Troy products -- hair dryers, curling irons and other hairstyling implements, hairsetters, lighted mirrors and brushes and combs -- are sold primarily under the trade names of Vidal Sassoon and Helen of Troy.

BALTIMORE (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Due to the warm weather the region has been experiencing and the subsequent demand for energy, Baltimore Gas and Electric (NYSE: BGE) is asking its customers to conserve electricity.

Heavy electric usage, particularly the demand of air conditioning, has strained the ability of utilities in the Mid-Atlantic area to meet present demand.

In order to conserve electricity, BG&E is specifically asking customers to:

-- Curtail air conditioning usage by setting thermostats as high as personal comfort permits. As a guideline, BG&E suggests setting central air-conditioning and heat pump thermostats no lower than 80 degrees. Window units should be set somewhat higher than the normal setting. These steps will not only lower demand, but will lower customers' bills.

-- If you are going to be out of the house for more than four hours, turn your air conditioner off.

-- Postpone some household chores such as washing and drying clothes or running dishwashers until after 8 p.m., when electric demand subsides.

-- If you own an electric stove or oven, consider using outdoor cooking equipment such as gas or barbecue grills, if feasible.

BG&E personnel will continue to monitor the situation and alert customers to any new developments.

SANTA CLARA, CA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Networked Picture Systems Inc., a supplier of electronic design and prepress systems to the professional color printing industry, today announced preliminary sales results of approximately $840,000 for the quarter ended June 30, 1990.

This compares with sales of $304,382 in the second quarter of 1989. Revenues for January through June 1990 are approximately $940,000, representing a 77 percent increase over sales of $532,287 in the like period last year.

Though final results for the period ended June 30, 1990, are not yet available, the company expects to report a material loss, with corresponding deficits in working capital and net worth.

The company announced that additional information regarding its financial performance would be available when it releases its complete second quarter report next month.

NPS' proprietary software is the core of its principal product, Page Express(R), a high performance IBM-compatible 80386-based color prepress workstation. The Page Express system performs a significant portion of the prepress functions currently performed on relatively expensive electronic publishing workstations.

Page Express eliminates many of the production bottlenecks normally encountered on such other workstations, thereby meeting the market demand from customers who wish to increase the productivity of their prepress operations.

NPS markets its systems principally to color separation trade shops and their clients that demand cost effective, high quality color printing. Page Express is compatible with the leading commercial scanners and film plotters such as those supplied by Scitex, Hell, Crosfield, and Dai Nippon Screen, as well as the new film plotter supplied by Optronics.

In addition, the page description data from PostScript language files created with popular desktop publishing programs such as Aldus PageMaker, QuarkXpress, and Ventura Publisher are used by Page Express with its image processing capabilities to generate printed pages consisting of electronically typeset linework combined with continuous tone full color images.

DETROIT (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - A "GM Goodwrench Quick Service Plus" test-market program will begin this fall in Birmingham (Ala.), Columbus and Cincinnati (Ohio), San Antonio (Texas) and San Diego (Calif.).

"This new program is an obvious extension of our 'Mr. Goodwrench Quick Lube Plus' program successfully launched nationwide earlier this year," said David P. Robison, director of marketing for GM Service Parts Operations (SPO). "Our intent is to further enhance overall customer satisfaction by encouraging GM vehicle owners to have their service maintenance performed by GM dealers."

The program is a collective effort supported by GM's corporate Customer Sales & Service staff, the GM vehicle nameplate divisions and SPO. Approximately 50 GM new-vehicle dealerships will participate in the test-market activity which runs from Aug. 1 through Jan. 31, 1991.

Only Goodwrench-certified dealers currently offering "Quick Lube Plus" convenience in the five market areas will have the opportunity to take part in testing the "Quick Service Plus" program.

The eight categories offered in "Quick Service Plus" are: shock replacement, engine maintenance service, brake inspection, front-end alignment, air conditioning service, radiator service/coolant, tire rotation, and transmission service.

As part of the test market strategy, "Quick Service Plus" will guarantee that all service work (except tune-ups and alignments) will be completed within one hour from the time of write-up. Should the service time exceed one hour, customers will receive either a reduced price or a free "Quick Lube Plus" service, depending on the test-market area.

"We've selected a wide variety of guarantee and service combinations in order to more accurately determine customer needs and expectations," said Robison. "We're committed to listening to what our dealers and GM vehicle owners have to say."

All five test markets will have suggested retail prices established for each service. In addition, two markets will guarantee the lowest advertised prices for comparable work on GM vehicles.

Participating dealers will receive comprehensive training, specially designed uniforms and signs, and direct-mail advertising materials to support their efforts.

Specific radio and newspaper advertising has also been developed to build consumer awareness of the new "Quick Service Plus" program.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Centaur Partners Group announced today that Vice Chancellor Maurice Hartnett of the Delaware Chancery Court today (July 5, 1990) found that the changes to the Stockholders' Rights Plan enacted last January by the board of directors of National Intergroup, Inc. (NYSE: NII) are not valid because they were adopted by the board without shareholder approval.

Vice Chancellor Hartnett found that the Jan. 26, 1990 "amendment" transforming NII's "poison pill" with its 20 percent "flip-in" trigger into a plan with a 10 percent trigger and other changes is so radical in alternation of the plan as to constitute a "new" plan.

Because NII's shareholders voted in 1989 to approve a resolution that any "new" plan had to be approved by stockholders, the vice chancellor found that the board of directors, which had recommended the 1989 resolution, had violated the shareholders' contractual rights.

Melvyn Estrin and Abbey Butler, principals of the Centaur Partners Group, stated: "We are gratified by the vice chancellor's decision holding that NII's board of directors violated the rights of its shareholders. We regard the attempt to restrict shareholder rights as just one more example of the incumbent board's disregard for shareholder interests."

NEW YORK (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - WMS Industries Inc. (NYSE: WMS) announced today that it is moving its corporate headquarters from New York City to its existing Chicago facility and reducing its corporate staff. Although the closing of the New York headquarters, which is expected to be completed by July 31, will result in a one-time charge of approximately $3 million for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, annual savings are estimated to be approximately $2 million a year thereafter. Louis J. Nicastro, chairman and chief executive officer, stated "This move should permit the company to generate improved results in future periods by reducing corporate overhead and by enabling management to more closely focus on building its amusement-game businesses."

The relocation will affect the company's top executives: Louis J. Nicastro, will reassume the presidency; Neil D. Nicastro, executive vice president and treasurer, is relocating to Chicago where he will become chief operating officer; Harold H. Bach, Jr., a former partner in the accounting firm of Ernst & Young, will join the company in Chicago as chief financial officer; and Norman J. Menell will step down as president and chief operating officer and become vice chairman of the board of directors. He will also continue to serve as an officer and director of the company's hotel and casino businesses.

Louis J. Nicastro said that as a result of the one-time charge associated with the relocation and lower than anticipated sales of amusement games during the fourth quarter, the company expects to report a loss for its fourth quarter and a sizeable loss for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990 due to the $7 million non-recurring charge to earnings reported in the third quarter with respect to the company's investment in Divi Hotels N.V. the $3 million non-recurring charge associated with the relocation and an expected operating loss for the fiscal year. The year end operating loss is largely due to Hurricane Hugo's effect on the company's hotel and casino businesses and the impact on the company's amusement game businesses of the delay in the introduction of its latest video games. The delay in introducing new models of video games contributed to operating losses because design and development expenses were charged to fiscal 1990 results while most of the revenues from sales of those models will not be recognized until fiscal 1991.

Nicastro further stated, "The company is well positioned to take advantage of its strengths in both its hotel/casino and amusement game businesses. As the leading manufacturer of pinball games, the company now expects to secure a significant share of the worldwide video game market as its new video games are introduced in the coming year. The company will also benefit from the opening of new markets in Eastern Europe. Our hotel and casino properties are in better condition with more facilities than ever before. The excellent reputation of our properties and management staff enabled us to enter into a partnership agreement with one of Japan's largest construction companies, Kumagai Gumi Company, Ltd. for the joint development of a $164 million destination resort complex at the old El Conquistador site in Fajardo, Puerto Rico, which will contain 750 rooms, a marina, convention facilities and an 18 hole PGA golf course as well as an island that will be transformed into a 'fantasy island' for guests' use and enjoyment."

In summary, Nicastro noted that the company is poised for a strong comeback in 1991, and that his view of the company's future is very positive.

HOUSTON (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Directors of American Heavy Lift Shipping Co., a Jones Act tanker concern based in Houston, have elected J. Barry Snyder as president and chief executive officer effective July 1.

He succeeds Capt. Henry A. (Boe) Downing, who retired after 40 years in the maritime industry.

Snyder was founder and CEO of Signet Corporation, a privately owned Houston corporation engaged in bulk and petroleum distribution, towing and ship management. Prior to forming Signet, Snyder held a number of management positions with Texaco and Interstate Oil Company.

American Heavy Lift Chairman J. Kevin Murphy said Capt. Downing will be a consultant to the board of directors.

American Heavy Lift owns and operates four Jones Act tankers, the S.S. King, Knight, Spray and Solar, all former Gulf Oil Company ships. Privately owned, American Heavy Lift began operating in 1985.

Snyder, who organized Signet in 1976, had been operations manager of Interstate Oil Transport Company of Philadelphia and superintendent of Environmental Protection World Wide for Texaco Oil Company. He is a graduate of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy and holds Bravery and Meritorious Service Medals from the American Petroleum Institute, U.S. Department of Commerce, U.S. Department of Treasury, U.S. Coast Guard and the president of Texaco for acts of heroism and lifesaving following collision of Texaco Massachusetts and M/V Alva Cape June 16, 1966. Snyder has been national vice president of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy Alumni Association and national vice president of Kings Point Foundation.

HUDSON, OH (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Hitachi Medical Systems America, Inc. today announced that it has now completed the FDA 510K process for marketing its MRP-20 permanent magnet magnetic resonance imaging system in a mobile trailer. The MRP-20 was cleared for fixed site installations in late 1989.

Magnetic Resonance is the latest diagnostic device to be installed in a mobile environment to be shared by several hospitals. This cost- sharing mechanism allows the benefits of this newest diagnostic imaging technique to be offered to the widest clinical marketplace.

Hitachi Medical Systems America, Inc. has seen considerable interest in the MRP-20 from private companies which provide mobile diagnostic services to hospitals. Because of its unique permanent magnet design, the Hitachi MRP-20 offers significant advantages to mobile users. The system requires no cryogens; therefore, there is a significant reduction in operating costs as well as set up time at each location. System size and nominal fringe field allows the MRP-20 to be installed in as little as 350 square feet. This maximizes the all-important operating space within the mobile suite. High reliability, now proven in numerous fixed installations, will also be an important contributor to mobile success.

Hitachi Medical Systems America, Inc. is a joint venture company formed in June, 1989 by Hitachi Medical Corporation of Japan and Summit World Trade of Hudson, Ohio.

Hitachi Medical Corporation, a subsidiary of Hitachi, Ltd. (NYSE: HIT) employs 2,000 people in the manufacture, sales and service of a variety of medical equipment. Their products include nuclear medicine equipment, diagnostic X-ray systems, CT scanners, ultrasound imaging equipment, MR imaging equipment, therapy equipment, hospital accounting terminals and related equipment for medical applications.

Summit was formed in 1987 to provide sales, service and marketing support to domestic and foreign manufacturers of medical equipment.

CORAL GABLES, FL (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - The Texaco Foundation today presented $10,000 to The Miami Project to Cure Paralysis at a short ceremony at The Miami Project's headquarters on the campus of the University of Miami Jackson Memorial Center.

Presenting the check to William H. Allen Jr., chief executive officer of Atico Financial Corporation and a member of the board of directors of The Miami Project, was C. Robert Black, president of Texaco Latin America/West Africa.

Black said, "I am impressed with the research work being done, and the identification of factors under investigation to find a possible cure for paralysis. It is extremely gratifying to see the commitment of people involved in seeking a cure for what has heretofore been considered an incurable disability.

"Texaco is proud to be associated with the effort to find a cure for this disability that has struck down so many people. We hope our contribution will help further the cause of this very worthwhile organization."

The Miami Project to Cure Paralysis is a multi-disciplinary basic science and clinical research effort dedicated to finding more effective treatments and, ultimately, a cure for the paralysis resulting from spinal cord injury. The Miami Project is officially designated a Center of Excellence by the University of Miami School of Medicine.

The Texaco Foundation was established in 1979 under the sponsorship of Texaco Inc. Its purpose is to enhance the quality of life by providing financial support to selected non-profit, tax-exempt organizations in six broad areas identified by the company: Civic and public interest, social enrichment, education, health and hospitals, environmental, and arts and culture.

The Foundation seeks to play a meaningful role in efforts to improve understanding among all people, and to achieve the broad betterment of society.

DES PLAINES, IL (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - United Stationers Inc. (NASDAQ: USTR) reported net sales of $250 million in its third quarter ended May 31 1990, an increase of 2.7 percent over the $244 million in the comparable year-ago quarter. Net income was $2.3 million, compared to $6.4 million in the year-ago quarter. Earnings per share were $.15 on 15,504,372 weighted average shares outstanding, compared to $.41 on 15,479,952 shares for the year-ago quarter.

For the nine months ended May 31, 1990, sales were $751 million, up 2.4 percent compared to sales of $733 million a year ago. Net income was $9.7 million, compared to $20.7 million a year ago. Earnings per share for the nine months were $.63 compared to $1.34 per share last year.

"Our third quarter earnings were primarily affected by the continuing shift of our product mix. Promotionally priced items grew to represent a greater proportion of our sales," said Joel D. Spungin, chairman of the board.

"As we move forward, we are placing increased emphasis on purchasing, enhancing our marketing programs and continuing our expense control efforts. We are confident that our plans will enable us to capitalize on market opportunities and improve our profit performance," Spungin added.

United Stationers Inc. is the nation's largest wholesaler of office products to resellers. Through its computer-based distribution system, it makes more than 25,000 items available substantially within 24 hours through distribution points in 56 major cities.

The common stock of United Stationers is traded over-the-counter (OTC), is reported through the NASDAQ system (Symbol: USTR) and is quoted in its national market system listings.

DES MOINES, IA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Allied Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: ALGR) Board Chairman and President John E. Evans today announced the company has received a favorable written private letter ruling regarding the sale of Allied Life. Evans said, "The ruling will allow us to proceed with the sale of the life subsidiary."

The plan as originally proposed was comprised of four steps:

-- Selling the life subsidiary to the company's parent, Allied Mutual, in exchange for 2.7 million shares of Allied Group, Inc. common stock valued at $36.5 million.

-- Replacing the existing pension plan with an employee stock ownership plan (ESOP).

-- Leveraging the ESOP to purchase 2.4 million shares of company convertible preferred stock valued at $36 million.

-- Adding $28 million from the proceeds of the sale of convertible preferred stock to the surplus of the company's property-casualty subsidiaries, enabling them to increase their pooling participation to 53 percent from 41 percent.

The company took interim measures to allow the increase in the pooling participation as of Jan. 1, 1990. Those measures included establishing a non-leveraged ESOP and borrowing $20 million to fund the necessary increase in the property-casualty subsidiaries' surplus.

"Now that approval from the IRS has been received," Evans said, "we'll sell the life subsidiary, leverage the ESOP, repay the $20 million bridge loan, and transfer an additional $8 million to the property-casualty subsidiaries." The restructuring will be completed before the end of July. The ESOP will then be a 37 percent owner of the company, and Allied Mutual's ownership will be reduced to 37 percent from 75 percent.

Allied Group, Inc. is a regional holding company that offers property-casualty insurance, excess and surplus lines insurance, and an array of financial services. The company does three-fourths of its business in property-casualty insurance. Since 1985, Allied Group's compound growth rate for revenues and EPS has been 29 percent and 32 percent, respectively. The restructuring will allow continued growth by significantly increasing capacity in its core business.

WASHINGTON (JULY 6) PR NEWSWIRE - South Africa has crumbled under the weight of public pressure and canceled its proposed hunt of 25,000 baby and 5,000 adult fur seals, according to The Humane Society of the United States (HSUS).

Earlier this week members of HSUS, the nation's largest animal protection organization, contacted the South Africa embassy to oppose the killings.

According to HSUS president John Hoyt: "We are elated that South Africa abandoned this terrible proposal, and we commend them for doing so. The slaughter of tens of thousands of these gentle animals would have been barbaric."

The hunt was scheduled to begin July 15. The seal meat was to be used as dog and chicken food, while the hides would be made into gloves. The genitals are valued in some Asian countries as an aphrodisiac.

An embassy spokesperson said public outcry within South Africa itself, as well as that from the international community, forced the government to shelve plans for the hunt, HSUS said.

Said John Grandy, HSUS vice president for wildlife and habitat protection, "This action renews our faith in the power of the people and affirms the public's commitment to the environment and its wildlife."

ALPHARETTA, GA (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Digital Communications Associates Inc. (DCA) (NYSE: DCA) today reported earnings of $37.4 million or $2.53 per share for its fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, compared to $17.7 million or $1.19 per share reported for the same period a year ago.

DCA noted that earnings for the year ended June 30, 1990, included an unusual net gain of $4.4 million or 30 cents per share relating to the disposal of certain assets. This net gain included the sale of DCA's wide area networking operations to Racal Electronics Plc in its second quarter ended Dec. 31, 1989, and a write off of assets and liabilities and establishment of certain reserves for DCA's Digital Transmission Systems Inc. (DTS) subsidiary in the same period. The DTS operations, not sold to Racal, were written off because DTS no longer fit with DCA's concentration on personal computer (PC) communications operations.

DCA also noted that earnings for the year ended June 30, 1989, included an unusual charge of $12.6 million or 85 cents per share incurred in connection with its acquisition of DTS in December 1988.

Revenues for the year ended June 30, 1990, were $203.2 million, compared to $208.2 million for the prior year. For the year ended June 30, 1990, average shares outstanding were 14.8 million, compared to 14.9 million for the prior year.

Earnings for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, were $8.6 million or 59 cents per share, up from the $7.6 million or 51 cents per share for the same period a year ago.

Revenues for the quarter were $53.4 million, compared to $54 million for the year-ago period. Average shares outstanding for the quarter were 14.6 million, compared to 14.9 million for the same period a year ago.

During the quarter ended June 30, 1990, DCA completed the repurchase of $25 million of its common stock originally authorized by DCA's board of directors in September 1988, and in April 1990 announced the authorization of the repurchase of up to an additional $25 million.

During the quarter ended June 30, DCA repurchased a total of 1,114,300 shares of its common stock at an average price of $22.28 per share. During the year ended June 30, DCA repurchased a total of 1,736,800 shares at an average price of $21.26 per share.

OKLAHOMA CITY (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - Express Services, Temporary and Permanent Personnel announced the addition of the fourth franchise in Ohio, according to Robert A. Funk, president and chairman of the board.

Located at 3469 Great Western Blvd., Columbus, Ohio, the new franchise was awarded to Nancy Mosholder. Other franchise locations in Ohio are Cincinnati, Dayton, and Springfield.

Express Services, a full service personnel placement firm, has three divisions: Temporary Help, Permanent Placement, and Robert William James & Associates Executive Search division. The company was recently ranked by Inc. magazine, for the second time in succession, as one of the top 100 fastest growing companies in the nation.

"We are delighted to expand Express Services in Ohio," said Funk. "The state has offered great opportunities for our other offices, and we believe the Express office in Columbus will also greatly contribute to the personnel needs of Ohio."

Founded in 1983, Express Services ended the first year with 13 franchises and $2 million in revenues. Headquartered in Oklahoma City, Express Services now employs over 130,000 people nationwide. In six short years revenues for the company have climbed to $150 million with over 140 franchises in 34 states.

PITTSBURGH (JULY 5) PR NEWSWIRE - National Intergroup Inc. (NYSE: NII) announced today that it is appealing the Delaware Chancery Court decision declaring ineffective the January amendment to NII's Rights Plan.

The amendment lowered to ten percent the threshold at which the plan's "flip-in" feature triggered and added an "exchange" feature which has become customary in Rights Plans.

A spoksman for NII said, "we firmly believe that the decision is wrong and we are therefore appealing it. We are convinced that the lowering of the threshold was a necessary and appropriate response to the threat to shareholders posed by Centaur's acquisition program. Without the amendment, Centaur and its fellow dissidents would be free to creep closer to outright control without paying a control premium to anyone."

SAN FRANCISCO (JULY 4) PR NEWSWIRE - A Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) lawsuit was filed this week against the IRS in the U.S. District Court of Northern California by the President of the Church of Scientology International, Reverend Heber C. Jentzsch. The Church said the suit was filed after the IRS failed to respond to an FOIA request and subsequent appeal to the IRS, after one and a half years of delay, which is allegedly in violation of the statutory limit under the Act.

The suit charges that documents released during Congressional Hearings on IRS misconduct in the 1970's disclosed the IRS's infamous "Information Gathering and Retrieval System" (IGRS). According to the suit, this "system" which was maintained by the IRS during this time, targeted individuals and groups for political and religious reasons, none of them related to tax purposes.

The suit maintains that Reverend Jentzsch and the Church of Scientology were among those entities specifically listed on the IGRS "hit list," which also included such individuals as John Wayne and groups such as the American Civil Liberties Union.

Also according to the lawsuit, IRS employees maintain positions at the International Police Organization's (INTERPOL) headquarters in Lyon, France and work under the direct supervision of the Interpol Secretary General. According to the Church, Interpol is a private international organization which poses as a quasi-governmental agency, and which has complete immunity from oversight. The Church noted that INTERPOL is currently the subject of many international investigations, including the General Accounting Office (GAO), the European Parliament and the Council of Europe. The Church maintains that INTERPOL has been a conveyor belt of false information on the Church of Scientology and other religious and civil rights groups, in violation of its charter.

The suit charges that the connections between the IRS and Interpol strongly suggests that IRS records being requested under the FOIA will show direct IRS involvement in religious persecution and violation of human rights.

"There must be better oversight to stop the IRS from mauling the citizens of this country, and conducting unwarranted investigations," Reverend Jentzsch claimed. "By forcing these documents into the open, we can make that kind of oversight a reality."

BATON ROUGE, LA (JULY 5) UPI - Thomas Jefferson probably never envisioned that a U.S. legislature would spend the Fourth of July wrestling with such issues as gun-toting barber inspectors.

Of course, the Founding Fathers didn't take Louisiana into account when they signed off on Jefferson's Declaration of Independence in 1776.

The state House of Representatives, in session on the holiday trying to work its way through a huge pile of pending legislation before its session ends July 9, approved a bill repealing a law that allows barber inspectors to carry weapons.

Rep. Robert Adley, House floor leader for the Senate-passed bill, was at a loss for words trying to explain the measure to his fellow legislators.

Adley later said he did not have a clue as to how the inspectors had gotten the right to carry arms in the first place.

''I have no idea,'' Adley said. ''I have no idea. I mean, until it came up barber inspectors carrying a gun? I had no idea.

''I never got any complaints from barbers.''

BEAVERTON, Ore. (JULY 5) UPI - Mentor Graphics, one of Oregon's most successful companies, has found itself in the midst of an earnings slump.

Even though the company will still show a profit for the quarter that ended Saturday, a drop in sales from the previous quarter and a year earlier will mean a hiring freeze, said Thomas Bruggere, the company's co-founder and chief executive.

Mentor Graphics, which produces computer systems for designing electronics employs about 2,600 people worldwide, about half of them in the Portland area.

Mentor has posted consecutive quarterly earnings growth since Sept. 30, 1985, and has had steadily increasing sales growth since 1982.

Bruggere said he expects the downturn to last through this quarter, and into the next quarter, which begins Oct. 1. That's when the company will begin shipping new products, Bruggere said.

Earnings for the second quarter of 1990 are expected to be between 5 and 10 cents a share. In comparsion, earnings for the quarter that ended March 31 were 26 cents a share.

The drop in sales has been slightly less dramatic. For the quarter that just ended, sales are estimated to hit between $101 million and $103 million, the company announced Tuesday.

That compares with $106 million in the second quarter of 1989 and $116 million in the first quarter of 1990.

Exact figures will be announced July 19.

''We have said for some time that we expected 1990 to be a tough year,'' Bruggere said.

He blamed the lower sales figures partly on spending cuts by the company's defense and computer industry customers.

In addition, Bruggere said many customers may be waiting for Mentor's new product line, which will feature faster and cheaper computing hardware that will be supplied to the Beaverton company by Hewlett-Packard Co.

PARIS (JULY 5) UPI - A jazz band, French champagne and a famous tightrope walker highlighted Fourth of July groundbreaking festivities for the new U.S. cultural center in Paris.

The rain-threatened ceremony, attended Wednesday by Mayor Jacques Chirac and U.S. Ambassador Walter Curley, marked the official start of construction on the $26.7 million center, which will be the largest such American facility in Europe when completed in 1992.

''I had prepared a speech, but given the weather, I think the best way to make myself popular with you is to be as brief as possible,'' Chirac told the American and French guests, many holding umbrellas as a light rain fell.

The usually verbose Chirac kept his promise.

Before the speeches, Phillipe Petit balanced on a tightrope with a giant musical note and a large brush, which he hung from one of two specially constructed towers. He also carried a huge cardboard book cover of Jules Verne's ''Around the World in 80 Days,'' unfurled giant drawings of the center, and pretended to conduct an orchestra.

The center's architect is American Frank Gerhy, who designed a highly fragmented structure to reflect the various activities the institution will promote.

One side of the building, with slanted walls, uneven windows and piled blocks, evokes an old Parisian street with narrow, crooked buildings. The facade also includes a tower and a semicircular entrance.

Gerhy, whose designs include the Walt Disney Concert Hall in Los Angeles and the Hollywood Library in Hollywood, said he tried to subtly evoke the California image for the Paris center.

''Over there people wear jeans, not bow ties,'' he said. ''It's that idea of casualness, comfort, openness and liberty that I wanted to express here.''

The center will be located near a new park and border the River Seine in the Bercy section of Paris, which is undergoing a major transformation from a wine warehouse area to a modern office and residential district.

The facility will house a cinema, theater, library, exposition galleries, an English language and American civilization program as well as restaurants and apartments spread over eight floors and a 20,400-square-yard area.

An U.S. cultural center has existed in Paris since 1934 but the old building on Boulevard Raspail in the center of the city was sold three years ago to raise money for the new structure, whose financing comes exclusively from private sources.

The old building had become too small to handle expositions and artistic performances.

MOSCOW (JULY 5) UPI - A retired KGB officer defended secret police whistle-blower Maj. Gen. Oleg Kalugin, and a liberal newspaper called the renegade operative a ''martyr of glasnost'' like Boris Yeltsin.

President Mikhail Gorbachev stripped Kalugin of his rank and all his awards Saturday for saying the KGB had not abandoned its dirty tricks and it still routinely snoops on Soviet citizens.

In response, retired KGB Col. Mikhail Lyubimov wrote in the newspaper Moscow News Wednesday that he was sickened by the hounding of his fellow officer and he was going to spare his former employer the trouble of taking away his awards.

''I renounce the medal of 'honored KGB worker' in protest of the persecution of Kalugin,'' Lyubimov wrote.

The liberal newspaper defended Kalugin in a separate article recalling Yeltsin's ouster from the Politburo in 1988 for having the gall to tell Gorbachev, in front of the communist leadership, that his policies were failing.

''A new great martyr of glasnost, Oleg Kalugin, has been created,'' Moscow News said. ''The system rejected openly the person who was criticizing it openly. We can remember Yeltsin and prosecutor (Telman) Gdlyan.''

Gdlyan, wildly popular among the people, put the son-in-law of late leader Leonid Brezhnev away for 12 years for bribe-taking in 1988, but was removed last year from the prosecutor's office when he alleged that corruption extends into the highest party leadership.

Lyubimov, the latest KGB operative to find his voice, said Kalugin should get a medal for finally telling the truth about the super-secret agency rather than being stripped of awards earned during his three-decade career.

''In fact, he did more for raising the prestige of the KGB than (his) official praisers,'' Lyubimov said. ''He showed that brave people work in the KGB, that they are troubled by the state of perestroika in this organization.''

Lyubimov said the KGB establishment is packed with high-ranking officers who devised the KGB policy of repression under Brezhnev and they are frightened of being sent packing like members of their counterpart services in East European countries.

''If a KGB employee resists, he will be sacked in such a way that no other organization will hire him,'' Lyubimov said.

A poll published in Moscow News put KGB chief and Politburo member

Vladimir Kryuchkov at the bottom of the list of the most trustworthy members in the leadership. One percent of those questioned felt they could trust Kryuchkov.

(JULY 5) UPI - It was hot as a firecracker in many parts of the nation this Independence Day... but that didN'T stop Americans from celebrating the 214th birthday of the United States. Traditional parades, fireworks displays and family barbeques vied for attention with such NON-traditional commemorations as a cookout for the homeless in Washington, D-C.

Americans around the world joined in spirit with the Fourth of July celebrations at home. U-S Ambassador Jack Matlock held a reception in Moscow, drawing a number of high-ranking Soviet officials despite the continuing Communist Party Congress. A big bash at the American Embassy in Beijing was washed out by torrential rain.

An attorney for a Christian Scientist couple convicted Wednesday of involuntary manslaughter in the death of their young son says she'll appeal. Rikki Klieman blasted the verdict handed down by a Boston jury as a ''mockery'' of the faith that relies on spiritual healing rather than modern medicine to fight illness and injury. Two-year-old Robyn Twitchell died of a bowel obstruction in April 1986 after his parents tried prayer to treat his illness.

At the last super-power summit, President Bush and Soviet President Gorbachev signed an agreement to ban chemical weapons. Despite that, a Dallas newspaper says the Pentagon is considering suing to force two U-S chemical manufacturers to sell officials a key ingredient needed to make poison gas artillery shells. The paper says the companies had rebuffed Defense Department requests to sell the government the chemical.

(JULY 5) UPI - Nicaraguan police arrested eight top Sandinista union leaders Wednesday but freed them after two hours in custody. But the unionists say they were warned against continuing a three-day-old general strike. Earlier Wednesday, union chiefs had called for an expansion of the walkout... but the call went largely UNheeded. So far, the nationwide strike has been concentrated in the agricultural sector.

Soviet authorities say a woman with a two-year-old child tried to hijack a domestic flight to Turkey Wednesday. But they say the airliner continued on its course and landed without incident. The failed attempt is the latest in a wave of hijackings in the Soviet Union. In the last three weeks, four Soviet airliners have been hijacked to either Sweden or Finland. A fifth small plane was taken to Turkey.

BOSTON (JULY 5) UPI - A synthetic growth hormone used to treat short children also appears to reverse some aspects of the aging process in the elderly, researchers said.

Scientists at the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee said Wednesday injections of the hormone over a six-month period reversed 10 to 20 years of aging with respect to body composition in 12 men aged 61 to 73.

Dr. Daniel Rudman said the results indicate that the hormone could be used to help older people build muscles, improve heart and lung function and recover from infirmities such as broken bones.

By the end of the six months, the hormone had a ''highly significant'' effect on the men who received it, increasing the amount of their lean body tissue - including muscle - by an average of 8.8 percent and decreasing fat tissue by 14.4 percent, Rudman and colleagues reported in The New England Journal of Medicine.

They said the hormone also increased the thickness of the men's skin by 6.6 percent. Thinning of the skin, reduction of muscle mass and an increase in fat are all characteristic aspects of aging.

The researchers used a synthetically produced version of the growth hormone that the human body produces naturally but which tends to decline in quantity after age 60, Rudman said. The hormone is secreted by the pituitary gland, an organ at the base of the brain.

Among about one-third of 25 million elderly Americans, production of growth hormone has virtually ceased, for reasons that scientists do not understand, Rudman said.

He said the problem may lie in age-related changes affecting an area of the brain known as the hypothalamus, which sends signals to the pituitary gland telling it to make growth hormone.

''The pituitary gland is still there and it can still function, but for some reason, it isn't receiving the signals,'' Rudman said.

The men in the study who received the hormone were all healthy and had an average age of 67. They received injections of the hormone three times a week in amounts adjusted for their body weights. Rudman said the doses were comparable to those used to treat children with growth deficiencies.

There also was a comparison group of nine men in the study who ranged in age from 65 to 81 and received no hormone treatments. Rudman said they showed no significant changes in body composition during the research period.

Although some of those who received the hormone had small increases in blood pressure, Rudman said the substance produced no significant side effects in any of the men.

He said if use of the hormone moves beyond the experimental stage, it would not be to create a youth elixir for healthy elderly people but to ''improve the resistance of the frail elderly, especially after a bone fracture, or an operation or a bout with pneumonia.

''As people get older, their lean body mass shrinks and it is harder for them to recover from illnesses. Anything that would help them build up the muscles that are needed to swallow and breathe and pump blood would probably improve the outcomes for them,'' he added.

In an editorial accompanying the study in the journal, Dr. Mary Lee Vance of the University of Virginia said the study was an ''important beginning'' in understanding how the growth hormone works in adults, but she noted that the concept of giving it to older adults raises a number of ethical issues.

She said questions include whether it should be given to healthy elderly people to slow aging and whether it brings about substantial improvements in muscle strength and mobility. Vance also said there is a question of benefit versus cost, since hormone treatments for children currently cost between $10,000 and $30,000 a year.

Until recent years, the growth hormone was scarce because it had to be extracted from the pituitary glands of human cadavers. But now, the synthetic version can be produced in potentially unlimited quantities through genetic engineering, Rudman noted. The two companies that currently produce it in the United States are Genentech Inc. of South San Francisco and Ely Lilly Co. of Indianapolis, which partially funded Rudman's research.

Rudman said the next step in his research involves determining whether the growth hormone can improve muscle strength, work capacity and endurance in older people and whether it can improve the ability of frail elderly inhabitants of nursing homes to take care of themselves.

(JULY 5) UPI - Americans and their admirers around the globe threw the United States a star-spangled Independence Day party, celebrating the nation's 214th birthday with a special zest in a year when the very word ''independence'' has taken on new meaning worldwide.

''It's a very sensitive moment for me and very exciting,'' said Adal Rizk, a native Egyptian who was sworn in Wednesday as a U.S. citizen with 471 other immigrants in a Seattle ceremony. ''My dream came true. It's my biggest day.''

Traditional parades, fireworks and family barbeques vied for attention Wednesday with such non-traditional commemorations as a cookout for the homeless in Washington, D.C., and an official Fourth of July ceremony in communist Bulgaria.

Eager families began gathering by 6 a.m. for Boston's celebration, the annual evening Boston Pops concert along the Charles River capped by a 20-minute finale and 2 tons of fireworks.

In Philadelphia, where the Second Continental Congress adopted the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776, former President Jimmy Carter received the 1990 Philadelphia Liberty Award in recognition of his work since leaving office in promoting freedom and human rights at home and abroad.

Flocks of picnickers amassed on and around the Mall in Washington, D.C., for a day of festivities, starting with a noon parade along Constitution Avenue and topped off by a grand display of fireworks over the Lincoln Memorial, visible for miles around.

Nearby, Luther Place Church, a few blocks from the White House, staged a Fourth of July cookout for the homeless who live in a complex of group homes and shelters in the area.

The church's pastor, the Rev. John Steinbruck, said the Fourth of July barbeque was meant in part to keep public attention from wandering from the problem of homelessness.

''We're in a new ballgame now,'' he said of conflicts between the church and the neighborhood over efforts to help the homeless. ''We're now getting hostility instead of hospitality. The homeless are not romantic any more.''

Eastern Europeans experiencing their first Fourth of July free of domination by the Soviet Union joined in America's celebrations. In suburban New York, 14 East European journalists were offered a taste of Independence Day in small-town U.S.A.

The guests, high-ranking editors from Poland, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and East Germany, are in the New York area for 10-week internships with major American magazines, said Ruth Whitney, who hosted the party in Irvington, N.Y.

''We're having hamburgers, potato salad, ice cream, beer and wine - the usual - and they're all bringing Frisbees,'' Whitney said. After a barbeque by Whitney's backyard pool, the group watched the annual Irvington fireworks display at a park by the Hudson River.

William Holstein, a business professor at the State University of New York at Albany, held a similar ''good old-fashioned American cookout'' for a Hungarian delegation learning about American free enterprise.

''We really wanted just to do hot dogs and hamburgers to show how a typical American would have a Fourth of July backyard barbeque,'' said Holstein's wife, Audrey.

Americans around the world - some living in nations where independence is still something to be won rather than celebrated - joined in spirit with the Fourth of July commemorations at home.

U.S. Ambassador Jack Matlock held a reception in Moscow, drawing Yevgeny Primakov, a member of Mikhail Gorbachev's presidential council, and other Soviet officials, despite the continuing Communist Party Congress.

A big embassy bash in Beijing was washed out by torrential rain that began just as things were starting to hum to the music of a blues band led by an American correspondent.

After four decades of faithfully observing the anniversary of the 1917 Russian revolution, Bulgaria celebrated American independence for the first time with a ceremony at the national Palace of Culture. The theme: ''Bulgaria discovers America.''

''The average Bulgarian appreciates American democracy and has a good knowledge of the American values,'' the official news agency BTA said.

The Romanian government, which has sought to mend strained U.S.-Romanian relations following last month's crackdown on anti-government demonstrators in Bucharest, sent a congratulatory message to President Bush and called for a new ''spirit of mutual respect and confidence'' between the two countries.

Bush spent most of Independence Day at his summer home in Kennebunkport, Maine, before leaving for Thursday's NATO summit in London. He caught a fireworks display in Kennebunkport Tuesday night and then started his Independence Day early, speeding through 18 holes of golf before an afternoon filled with boating and fishing.

More than 40,000 people in Atlanta joined the president in rejecting the notion that holidays are strictly for rest and relaxation. They ran - or, in the case of the many wheelchair competitors, rolled - for 10 kilometers in the 21st Peachtree Road Race.

In Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a morning ''Sandblast'' contest drew more than 25,000 to the beach to watch the creation of sand sculptures, many with patriotic or environmental themes. The biggest was a giant Snoopy lying on a 200-ton sand castle surrounded by Charlie Brown, Woodstock and other Peanuts characters.

DALLAS (JULY 5) UPI - The Defense Department is considering legal action to require two U.S. chemical manufacturers to sell the Pentagon a key ingredient for chemical weapons, despite an agreement signed by President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to ban such armaments, a newspaper said Thursday.

''It's still an option,'' Lt. Col. Steven Roy, a Pentagon spokesman, told the Dallas Times Herald. ''All of that is under review.''

Citing company policies forbidding involvement in chemical warfare, the two companies, Occidental Chemical Corp. of Dallas and Mobay Corp. of Pittsburgh, have rebuffed Defense Department requests to sell the government thionyl chloride, which is needed to make poison gas artillery shells.

The Defense Department had sought to buy the thionyl chloride to replenish its supplies of the chemical, which were exhausted last month.

Stung by the rejection, Pentagon officials have threatened to invoke a Cold War-era law that allows the government to ''compel acceptance of defense-related production'' for national security reasons.

What makes the situation particularly unusual is that the Pentagon is continuing to pursue the matter even after an agreement at the recent superpower summit to end production of binary chemical weapons and curtail existing stockpiles.

Although the chemical weapons program appears doomed, the Pentagon has not relented in its current mission, just in case the agreement collapses or is not ratified by the Senate.

''We signed an agreement with the Russians that has not yet been approved by Congress,'' Roy said. ''After Congress approves that and the treaty enters into force, we will have canceled the binary chemical program.''

An Occidental spokesman said the Texas company has heard of no change in Pentagon policy.

''We haven't heard anything,'' said spokesman Charlie Dana. ''It's been quiet.''

The United States resumed production of chemical weapons in 1987 after a two-decade hiatus in response to the reported use of the deadly weapon by the Soviet Union in Afghanistan and by Iraq in its war against Iran. But one expert on chemical weapons said support for continuing American production had fallen dramatically in the past year.

The squabble between the Pentagon and the Texas manufacturer became public in March when the Pentagon and the Commerce Department confirmed they were considering legal action under the 41-year-old Defense Production Act to force the two chemical companies to sell them the chemical that creates a lethal nerve gas when mixed with other ingredients.

Occidental and Mobay are the only domestic producers of the chemical, which is used commercially in pesticides and plastics.

Dana said Occidental's policy prevents the firm from participating in the production of chemical weapons.

''We won't knowingly sell or produce a chemical that could end up being used in that way,'' he said.

The Army said the chemical was needed because the military was about to use up its supply that was purchased decades ago.

The Pentagon said it would try to obtain thionyl chloride from foreign sources, but Roy said the Pentagon has been unable to do so. Because of the missing ingredient, Roy said, ''we are not producing completed chemical weapons right now.''

Bush administration critics accused the White House of hypocrisy for pressuring American manufacturers to produce ingredients for chemical weapons while lecturing foreign firms, particularly German companies, for allegedly supplying identical ingredients to Libya and other nations.

BOSTON (JULY 5) UPI - A lawyer for a Christian Scientist couple convicted of involuntary manslaughter for relying solely on prayer to treat an illness that killed their young son vowed to appeal, denouncing the verdict as a ''mockery'' of the religion.

A Suffolk County Superior Court jury deliberated for slightly more than two days before returning the guilty verdict Wednesday against David and Ginger Twitchell.

The panel of eight women and four men determined the Twitchells were guilty of wanton neglect in allowing their 2 1/2-year-old son, Robyn, to die of a bowel obstruction after a five-day illness in April 1986. The couple did not summon medical aid for the boy, instead trying to cure him through prayer.

Defense attorney Rikki Klieman said she would appeal and maintained the Twitchells were being persecuted for following their religious beliefs. The Christian Science faith relies on spiritual healing rather than conventional medicine to combat illness and injury.

''Christian Science was on trial from beginning to end. A mockery was made of the faith in that courtroom. This type of conduct should not be condoned in the criminal justice system,'' she said outside the courtroom.

But special prosecutor John Kiernan said the case, which pitted religious freedom against the state's right to protect children from abuse, sets an important precedent.

''It does have precedential value,'' Kiernan said. ''It will certainly send out a message that when a child is in need of medical care, then the obligation of the parent is to provide medical care.''

The case is the fifth in the United State in the last two years in which Christian Scientist parents were convicted of criminal charges. All others remain on appeal.

The Twitchells, formerly of Boston's Hyde Park section, could each face up to 20 years in prison. Sentencing has not yet been scheduled.

Several jurors wept as they left the courtroom, but David Twitchell, 35, and his 34-year-old wife were calm as the verdict was read.

Outside the courtroom, David Twitchell said he bore no animosity toward the jurors, saying they had been left no choice but to deliver a guilty verdict.

''My first reaction is we cannot thank the jury enough,'' said Twitchell, who now lives with his wife and three other sons in Brentwood, N.Y. ''As you all heard, it was hard for some of them. Given the instructions they were given and the way the prosecution and the case was handled I don't think they had much choice. I don't think they had any choice.

''This has been a prosecution against our faith,'' he added.

Klieman said Judge Sandra Hamlin's instructions steered the jury to return a guilty verdict. ''I don't see how they had any room at all to maneuver except to return a verdict of guilty,'' she said.

When the jury forewoman delivered the verdicts shortly after 5 p.m., Klieman asked Hamlin to poll the jurors to make sure they were certain of their verdict. The judge refused.

Massachusetts law recognizes spiritual healing as a viable form of medicine, but Hamlin told the jury the statute requires that parents seek professional care for children with life-threatening diseases or injuries.

''Christian Science has an extraordinary record of healing, but they're saying that it has to be a perfect record,'' said church spokesman Nathan Talbot. ''It's very different standard from that held up for medical practice.

''But that's all right. We can't complain about that. We'll have to do better with our spiritual healing.''

Robyn Twitchell was treated with prayer at the couple's Boston home by a Christian Science practitioner. He received no conventional medical care before dying of complications on April 8, 1986.

Kiernan said at the close of the highly publicized two-month trial a guilty verdict would send a message, mandating ''that when a child is that ill, you must call a doctor.''

''This boy was sacrificed for his own parents' pursuit of spiritual purity '' said Kiernan. ''The name of his god was 'mother and father.' His mother and father abandoned him.''

Lawyers for the defense portrayed the couple as loving parents who were guilty only of a tragic mistake in misjudging the severity of ''flu-like symptoms'' that precipitated the tot's death.

(JULY 5) UPI - Dennis Martinez sought his revenge from the mound but he did entertain other thoughts.

Martinez, who limited the Cincinnati Reds to five hits over eight innings Wednesday night in the Montreal Expos 5-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds came to the plate in the first inning against Tim Birtsas with a 5-0 lead and in his view, wearing a target.

The right-hander, who earlier in the year hit Cincinnati pitcher Jack Armstrong with a pitch, fully expected Birtsas to even the score.

He was right, Birtsas plunked Martinez on the elbow with a pitch.

''I walked to first base holding my bat and I was really thinking of hitting Birtsas with it,'' Martinez said. ''I was really mad. He hit me in the elbow on purpose. I'm lucky it wasn't my head. Hopefully it's over now. We're even. I knew they were going to throw at me.''

Intentional or not, nailing Martinez may not have been such a good by the Reds.

The incident only fired up Martinez en route to evening his record at 6-6.

''I was pleased with the way I pitched tonight,'' said Martinez. ''I had my doubts how well I'd be able to continue after I got hit, but I was motivated by the fact we really needed to win this game. That enthusiasm got me to the eighth inning.

Martinez tired a bit in the eighth, so in came Dave Schmidt, who worked the ninth to record his 10th save.

''That was a big game for us tonight,'' Expos Manager Buck Rodgers said. ''It's nice that we finally got Dennis some runs. He looked to me like he was running out of gas in the eighth inning. That's why I brought Dave Schmidt in and he got the job done.

Montreal scored all five runs in the first inning off Cincinnati starter Scott Scudder, 1-2. With one out, Mike Fitzgerald walked and Larry Walker was hit by a pitch. Tim Wallach followed with a bloop single to center, loading the bases. Mike Aldrete then drilled a two-run single to right and Andres Galarraga made it 4-0 when he doubled to deep center. Birtsas replaced Scudder and gave up a single to Tom Foley who scored Galarraga.

''I don't know what the problem is with him (Scudder), but I'm not going to give up on him,'' Reds Manager Lou Piniella said. ''Our bullpen did a nice job for the remainder of the game and gave us a chance to come back. We just fell short.''

The Reds got a run back in the fifth. Glenn Braggs singled, went to third on two groundouts and scored on a Hal Morris pinch-hit single.

Cincinnati closed to 5-3 in the eighth on Paul O'Neill's two-run homer, his 11th on the year.

In other National League action, San Francisco routed St. Louis 9-2, New York pounded Houston 7-4, Atlanta topped Philadelphia 4-1, San Diego nipped Pittsburgh 5-4 and Chicago downed Los Angeles 5-3.

In the American League it was: Boston 4, Minnesota 3; Seattle 3, Cleveland 2; Toronto 4, California 2; Detroit 10, Chicago 7 in 12 innings; Kansas City 13, New York 6; Milwaukee 7, Oakland 1; and Baltimore 9, Texas 4.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Giants 9, Cardinals 2

At San Francisco, Bill Bathe hit a two-run homer and the Giants scored two runs on Terry Pendleton's throwing error in a four-run seventh inning. John Burkett, 8-2, gave up two runs and four hits over seven innings for the victory. Jose DeLeon, 6-7, took the loss.

Mets 7, Astros 4

At New York, pinch hitter Mike Marshall hit an eighth-inning sacrifice fly and Howard Johnson followed with a two-run homer to pace New York. The Mets won for the 14th time in 15 games. Dwight Gooden, 8-5, gave up four runs and seven hits for the win. John Franco pitched the ninth for his 15th save. Juan Agosto, 4-2, was the loser.

Braves 4, Phillies 1

At Philadelphia, Dale Murphy homered and drove in two runs and Greg Olson singled in a run to break a seventh-inning tie and snap the Phillies' three-game winning streak. Tom Glavine, 5-5, gave up six hits in 6 2-3 innings for the win. Joe Boever pitched the ninth for his eighth save. Pat Combs dropped to 4-7.

Padres 5, Pirates 4

At San Diego, Eric Show earned his first victory in more than a year and contributed two RBI to help San Diego snap a seven-game losing streak. Show, 1-6, allowed three hits in five innings of relief to gain his first win since June 1989. Greg Harris got a game-ending double play for his fifth save. Neal Heaton, 10-4, suffered the loss for the Pirates, who now lead the New York Mets by just a half game in the National League East.

Cubs 5, Dodgers 3

At Los Angeles, Marvell Wynne hit a two-run homer and Joe Girardi doubled in two runs to lift Chicago. Rookie Mike Harkey, 6-3, allowed seven hits in 6 1-3 innings for the win. Les Lancaster got the final out for his fifth save. Fernando Valenzuela, 6-7, who no-hit St. Louis in previous start, gave up ten hits in seven innings for the loss.

(JULY 5) UPI - Bo doesn't know his own strength.

Jackson's mammoth three-run homer triggered a seven-run seventh inning Wednesday, rallying the Kansas City Royals to a 13-6 win over the New York Yankees.

Jackson's home run, a towering 450-foot blast over the center-field fence off reliever Lee Guetterman, was his 15th of the year. Though he has six home runs in the last nine games, Jackson can't seem to judge the distance of his blasts. And he doesn't care.

''I thought it was going to be caught or be off the top of the wall because I got under it,'' said Jackson. ''I don't care how far they go, just so they go over the fence.''

His teammates love to view their flight.

''That was some poke,'' said Frank White, who marveled at the height of the shot that landed halfway up a grass knoll. ''I can't imagine Bo getting a cheap home run. I think he's just starting to show the abilities he has.''

Jackson, whose been hot at the plate recently (15 RBI in 10 games), finished fourth in fan balloting for Tuesday night's All-Star Game but isn't concernedwith making the squad.

''I don't think about it (All-Star Game), the only thing I think about is the next game,'' said Jackson, who was the MVP of last year's game.

But Jackson must also have been thinking of the previous game when he slammed a solo shot off Guetterman.

''He threw me an off-speed pitch last night so I was looking for a fast ball tonight,'' said Jackson.

Bo remembers.

Guetterman, 5-3, gave up five runs and four hits in a third of an inning.

''You have to go to your horse (Guetterman),'' said Yankees Manager Stump Merrill. ''Of course, it's been so long since we've been in that situation.''

Bob Geren's three-run home run put New York in that situation, giving the Yankees a 5-4 lead in the top of the seventh before Jackson followed a walk and Bill Pecota's single with his boomer.

White and Kevin Seitzer each had two-run homers for the Royals, who were able to withstand a season-high 18 hits for the Yankees.

Steve Crawford, 2-1, gained the victory in relief of starter Bret Saberhagen.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston nipped Minnesota 4-3, Seattle clipped Cleveland 3-2, Toronto topped California 4-2, Milwaukee mauled Oakland 7-1, Baltimore battered Texas 9-4, and Detroit outlasted Chicago 10-7 in 12 innings.

In the National League it was: San Francisco 9, St. Louis 2; New York 7, Houston 4; Montreal 5, Cincinnati 3; Atlanta 4, Philadelphia 1; San Diego 5, Pittsburgh 4; and Chicago 5, Los Angeles 3.

-- AROUND THE AL --

Red Sox 4, Twins 3

At Minneapolis, Dwight Evans smashed a two-out, three-run homer in the ninth inning off Rick Aguilera, 2-2, to rally Boston. Dennis Lamp pitched three hitless innings to improve to 2-2. Jeff Reardon threw the ninth for his 14th save.

Mariners 3, Indians 2

At Cleveland, Jeffrey Leonard drove in one run and scored another and Randy Johnson, 9-3, won his sixth straight decision to help Seattle claim their sixth triumph in seven games. Mike Schooler gained his 21st save. Cleveland's Charles Nagy, 0-2, suffered the loss in his second major league start.

Blue Jays 4, Angels 2

At Toronto, Errors by California pitcher Jim Abbott and center fielder Devon White helped Toronto to two first-inning runs. Toronto starter John Cerutti, 5-6, gave up two runs and nine hits over 5 2-3 innings for the victory. Tom Henke recorded his 15th save.

Brewers 7, Athletics 1

At Milwaukee, Ron Robinson, 2-1, hurled his first complete game of the year and Greg Vaughn drove in three runs with a homer and a double, helping Milwaukee snap a five-game losing skid. Dave Stewart, 10-7, was rocked for six runs and eight hits in 2 1-3 innings.

Orioles 9, Rangers 4

At Arlington, Texas, Sam Horn's two-run homer highlighted a four-run sixth inning for Baltimore. Orioles shortstop Cal Ripken's record errorless streak ran to 75 games despite a wild thro first base in the third inning. Dave Johnson, 8-4, garnered the win and Charlie Hough, 7-6, took the loss.

Tigers 10, White Sox 7

At Chicago, Mike Heath belted a three-run home run with one out in the 12th inning off Ken Patterson, 1-1, to lift Detroit. Lance McCullers, 2-0, picked up the victory allowing just one hit in four innings.

(JULY 5) UPI - An Independence Day fireworks display went haywire Wednesday night in Torrington, Connecticut... injuring 18 people. Officials say the accident occurred near the end of the 45-minute display when a rocket shot into the audience. A three-year-old boy who suffered severe burns and a 31-year-old woman hospitalized in intensive care are the most seriously injured.

A fire swept a house in Grand Prairie, Texas... west of Dallas... killing a seven-year-old boy and severely burning his eight-year-old brother Wednesday afternoon. Authorities speculate the boy had seen his grandfather using gasoline to kill fireants and somehow decided to try it himself. He apparently took it into the house... where it was ignited by a water heater pilot light.

President Bush is on his way to London for the two-day NATO summit that begins Thursday. On Wednesday, the president applauded comments by the Soviet foreign minister that Moscow's defense spending has been excessive... holding out the prospect of Western economic assistance if the Soviet military budget is pared. Bush has said he thought such assistance should NOT be offered until economic reform programs are actually in place in the Soviet Union.

The drug and perjury trial of Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry resumes Thursday with the defense getting its chance to call witnesses. But Barry's attorney makes it clear Rasheeda Moore, the government's star witness, woN'T be called back to testify. During her five days on the stand, Moore... Barry's former lover... said she and the mayor used cocaine more than 100 times during a three-year span.

(JULY 5) UPI - Thundershowers dampened the Plains and Midwest early Thursday, doing little to cool a stubborn summer heat wave, while scattered storms rained over parts of the South and hail battered parts of upper New England.

The National Weather Service said thunderstorms dumped heavy rain southwest of Milwaukee, Wis., early Thursday as showers rained over Lake Michigan east of Kenosha and over northern Illinois.

A tornado touched down just before midnight near Martelle, Iowa, 45 miles southwest of Dubuque in the northeast portion of the state, police said.

Showers and thunderstorms, some producing very heavy rain, pressed through eastern Texas and southwestern Louisiana Thursday, while a massive high-pressure system centered over Missouri kept temperatures blazing.

Many Fourth of July celebrations in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana were held in 100-degree heat. Thirteen cities in Texas hit the century mark Wednesday, with Laredo's 105 degrees the highest in the state.

An excessive heat advisory was posted for the central portion of North Texas through Thursday.

Partly cloudy skies and humid conditions were reported throughout Maryland Pennsylvania, West Virginia and New Jersey, with morning lows in the 60s and mid 70s. Thunderstorms over northern Pennsylvania began clearing Thursday.

After a steamy Fourth of July, a cold front entered northwestern New England early Thursday. Ahead of the front, humid, tropical air covered the region.

Skies were hazy over most of the region, with rain in Worcester, Mass., and Burlington, Vt. Heavy thunderstorms moved from Vermont into New Hampshire Thursday before the cooler weather took hold, dumping hail in some areas.

A stalled high-pressure system kept weather hot and dry over much of the South, but scattered thundershowers managed to dampen the Florida Panhandle and southern portions of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Morning temperatures across the South ranged from 79 in Miami and Atlanta to 78 in Charleston, S.C. and Jacksonville, Fla. and 74 in Knoxville, Tenn.

A slow-moving cold front brought scattered light showers to the northwest part of Washington state and the mountains of Idaho and Montana.

The edge of the front spread patchy clouds over much of California, while gusty winds buffeted the coast. The clouds brought little relief for the drought-parched state, however, and forecasters estimated rainfall Thursday would not exceed trace amounts.

Nevada cooled down to the mid 80s during the night under fair skies following another 100-degree day. But forecasters predicted a scorcher Thursday, with the mercury in Las Vegas pushing toward a high of 106 degrees.

LIBREVILLE, GABON (JULY 5) UPI - Troops patrolled the presidential palace and other strategic points in the Gabonese capital Thursday as preparations were made to display the body of former opposition leader Joseph Redjambe, witnesses said.

Redjambe's body was to be transferred from the morgue where it has been kept since May to the headquarters of his Gabonese Progress Party, where it will be shown until the funeral Saturday.

Burial has been put off more than a month for fear it would lead to riots such as those that shook the West African country in May, seriously threatening the government of President Omar Bongo and halting oil production for three days.

Redjambe died in late May under circumstances that have remained mysterious despite an autopsy carried out in the presence of French doctors that found unexplained needle marks in his abdomen.

Opposition leaders in the former French colony charge that Redjambe, a prominent business and political figure in Gabon, was poisoned.

The government released only partial results of the autopsy and has yet to make public the results of toxocological tests.

The reinforcement of soldiers at key points in the capital is evidence of the government's determination to suppress any new demonstrations, according to political sources in Libreville.

The sources said soldiers had practically disappeared from Libreville in recent weeks.

On Wednesday, Gabonese Progress Party President Pierre-Louis Agondjo-Okawe called on Redjambe's followers to maintain ''absolute calm'' during the ceremonies and to insure ''extreme vigilance in the face of any attempt to disturb the funeral by elements hostile towards the multi-party democracy that is being born.''

General elections, in which opposition political parties will be allowed to participate for the first time since Gabon gained independence from France in 1960, are scheduled for the fall.

HONG KONG (JULY 5) UPI - The first group of Hong Kong's Vietnamese refugees to await Western resttlement in a Philippine holding center left the British colony Thursday for Manila.

The 32 Vietnamese boarded a commercial jet bound for Manila, where they are scheduled to be transferred to a British-funded holding center in nearby Bataan.

The Vietnamese, classified as political refugees under a Hong Kong screening policy that separates political from economic refugees, will live in the camp until they can be resettled in other countries.

A spokeswoman for the Philippine Consulate said Manila had agreed to issue visas to the group after being guaranteed by resettlement nations and the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees that the Vietnamese would leave the Philippines by December 1992.

The 15 men, eight women and nine children were the first group to leave from about 5,000 of Hong Kong's refugees scheduled to be transferred to Philippines by the end of the year.

The camp, which cost Britain $53.5 million to have constructed, was an attempt by London to ease overcrowding in Hong Kong's cramped detention centers.

About 54,000 Vietnamese live in the colony's refugee camps - only about 10 percent of whom are expected to be classified as political refugees and resettled in the West.

The rest, deemed economic migrants, face continued life in the camps or a one-way ticket back to Vietnam.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (JULY 5) UPI - President Roh Tae-woo refused Thursday to accept the resignation of Prime Minister Kang Young-hoon, who was angry at being forced to make a public apology for perceived campaign misdeeds.

Political and government sources said Kang offered to quit in a meeting with Roh but the South Korean president asked him to stay.

Kang apologized Tuesday before the National Assembly for the diversion of government funds for the 1987 presidential campaign. Roh won the election.

''I feel sorry for the fact that of the 1987 government budget, 55.2 billion won ($79 million) earmarked for regional projects were diverted to projects wooing voters in an election year,'' Kang said Tuesday.

The prime minister noted the incident occurred under the government of President Chun Doo Hwan and would not happen again.

Kang apologized under pressure from the ruling Democratic Liberal Party, which wanted to break a parliamentary deadlock over the campaign issue raised by the opposition Party for Peace and Democracy led by Kim Dae Jung.

Kang was unhappy about making the statement and later told his Cabinet there in fact was no budget diversion despite his apology. He said he wanted to step down as prime minister to take responsibility for disgracing the Cabinet.

But Kang is expected to take Roh's advice and stay on, the sources said.

Meanwhile, South Korea proposed Thursday to reopen talks with North Korea July 19 on a parliamentary conference between the two countries.

North Korea cut off alls contacts with the South in late January to protest an annual military exercise involving South Korean and American forces.

BEIJING (JULY 5) UPI - China urged Western nations Thursday to take ''positive steps'' to improve relations with Beijing, hoping the countries at next week's Houston summit will ease sanctions imposed after the Chinese crackdown on dissent last year.

The call came amid mounting indications that Japan, one of the ''Group of Seven'' industrial nations meeting July 9-11 for their annual summit, will push for approval from the other countries to relax the sanctions against China.

The Western nations and Japan halted high-level political visits to China, suspended military cooperation and withheld new loans after Chinese troops fired on unarmed protesters in Beijing in June 1989 and violently suppressed the pro-democracy movement at Tiananmen Square.

The Chinese government has acknowledged the sanctions have hurt. But it has taken a dual-track diplomatic response, trying to show improvements in its human rights record while at the same time insisting China will not bow to foreign pressure.

At a news briefing, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Jin Guihua said Beijing ''is always willing'' to improve ties with Western nations, but added ''the difficult relations between China and Western countries were not created by the Chinese side.''

The Chinese have insisted the Western sanctions constitute interference in their internal affairs.

Jin did not directly refer to next week's G-7 summit, but said, ''We hope the Western countries will take timely positive steps in improving relations with China.''

Despite some slight relaxations, the Western sanctions remain largely in place, including the suspension of new loans by the World Bank for all but ''humanitarian needs'' projects. The United States has led the bank's member nations regarding policy toward lending to China.

The World Bank has approved five new loans since the crackdown, ranging from earthquake relief to a forestry project, but officials say all fall within the humanitarian guidelines and note other projects, including a major transport loan, remain blocked.

At the summit, Western diplomats believe Japan, Britain and Canada will be the most likely of the seven to support easing the sanctions, with the United States and France most unwilling, and Italy and West Germany somewhere in between.

Japan wants to resume its ''yen-loan'' program to China since the latest package, worth $5.6 billion, was actually approved a year before the sanctions were imposed. But Japanese diplomats say Tokyo first wants a sign from other Western nations.

Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu told a visiting Chinese official this week in Tokyo that Japan would work ''not to isolate China at the Houston summit.''

But the United States may remain reluctant. Although President Bush has worked to restore relations with Beijing - including the politically costly step of renewing China's most-favored-nation preferential trade status - the Chinese have responded with moves viewed in the West as largely cosmetic and have so far failed to persuade critics in Congress.

''The Congress does not appear ready to change its stance on the World Bank,'' said a Beijing-based Western economist, noting freeing World Bank loans would be seen as a signal to other lenders.

China has this year freed more than 800 detainees jailed after the June 1989 crackdown, including some prominent dissidents, and last week allowed leading dissident Fang Lizhi and his wife to leave the country after a year in refuge at the U.S. Embassy.

But Western diplomats and human rights organizations estimate that several thousand more remain imprisoned without charge or trial. The Chinese government has refused to give a comprehensive account of the number arrested last year or those still held.

(JULY 5) UPI - Around the world... around the clock, U-P-I has the latest news.

President Bush is in London for a two-day summit of NATO leaders. The meeting of the 16-nation alliance is expected to produce a new agenda for NATO in line with a changing Europe and the end of the Cold War. The president spent a long holiday weekend at his vactation home in Kennebunkport, Maine.

The NATO summit is being billed as perhaps the western alliance's most crucial meeting in its 41-year history. The leaders are expected to issue a NON-aggression declaration toward the Soviet Union in an effort to persuade the Soviets to accept NATO membership for a united Germany.

During the third day of the Soviet Communist Party Congress, President Gorbachev hinted yesterday he may NOT be around much longer if his perestroika reforms doN'T work. He said if the Soviet Union's situation doesN'T improve in two years... ''then the leadership should go.''

Traditional fireworks, family barbecues, and parades marked this year's Fourth of July festivities. The nation's capital hosted a parade along Constitution Avenue and put on a major fireworks display over the Lincoln Memorial. There also were some NON-traditional commemorations such as a cookout for Washington's homeless.

A Boston jury has convicted a Christian Science couple of manslaughter in their son's death. The panel ruled yesterday the couple committed wanton neglect in letting their two-and-a-half-year-old son die of a bowel obstruction in 1986. The case pitted religious freedom against the state's right to protect children from abuse.

(JULY 5) UPI - The Lebanese fundamentalist group Hezbollah is accusing Saudi police of firing on Moslem pilgrims in a tunnel near the holy city of Mecca. More than 14-hundred people died during a stampede in the tunnel Monday. Saudi officials say the chaos was sparked by several pilgrims losing their footing.

A Tokyo court has ruled against sex discrimination in promotions. The court yesterday ordered a government-affiliated agency to pay 640-thousand dollars in back salary to 18 women. The women sued the agency because they were denied promotions even though they were as qualified as the men who were promoted.

Researchers at the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee say a man-made hormone used to treat short children appears to reverse some aspects of the aging process in the elderly. Dr. Daniel Rudman says the hormone could help older people build up their muscles, and improve heart and lung functions.

Actor Gene Hackman is in a Portland, Oregon, hospital where he underwent a full round of medical tests yesterday. The actor admitted himself to the hospital Tuesday complaining of chest pains. A hospital spokeswoman says doctors are determining whether the 59-year-old actor suffered a heart attack.

The Whopper has arrived in East Germany. Burger King officials say the fast-food chain opened its first restaurant at Dresden's main railway station yesterday. ATLANTA (JULY 5) UPI - Olive Ann Burns, whose novel ''Cold Sassy Tree'' became a best-seller and a cable television movie, died at Piedmont Hospital Wednesday. She was 65.

Burns had been ill since 1975 with lymphoma, a disease that also claimed her husband, Andrew Sparks, 70, last September.

The body will be cremated and a memorial service will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday at Peachtree Road United Methodist Church.

She is survived by a son and daughter.

''Cold Sassy Tree,'' a novel of small-town life in north Georgia in 1906, was a Book-of-the-Month alternate selection in 1984 and the New York Public Library put it on a list of 200 books it recommended for teenagers.

The book was made into a 1989 Turner Network Television cable movie starring Faye Dunaway and Richard Widmark.

(JULY 5) UPI - President Bush is in London for a NATO summit... Soviet President Gorbachev says he'll resign in two years if his reform policies fail to succeed... and America rests after celebrating its 214th birthday. These stories, and more... next from the wires of United Press International.

President Bush is in London for a two-day NATO summit that's expected to chart a new course for the western alliance.

NATO is trying to figure out its new role in the post-Cold War era.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says Bush has ''dramatic'' proposals for the alliance. Fitzwater did NOT elaborate... but remarked the proposals also would affect the Warsaw Pact and German reunification.

Before leaving the Pease Air Force Base in Dover, New Hampshire, yesterday Bush commented he was looking forward to the trip. He also praised a statement by Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze who called Soviet defense spending excessive.

Bush said he hopes the Soviets will reduce their defense spending and added it would be easier for the West to provide the Soviet Union with some economic assistance is such steps were taken.

NATO General-Secretary Manfred Woerner said the NATO leaders will deliver a very clear message about their peaceful intentions. The heads of state are expected to issue a NON-agression declaration toward the Soviet Union. It's hoped this will allay any fears the Soviets may have about a unified Germany in NATO.

(JULY 5) UPI - The 28th Soviet Communist Party Congress is in its fourth day today.

The Soviet news agency Tass says the party Congress has split into seven ''working groups'' to tackle various issues such as socio-economic... national... and international relations. Tass labeled the workshops a ''novelty'' in Soviet Communist Party Congress proceedings.

During a break in yesterday's session, President Gorbachev says if his nation's situation does NOT take a turn for the better within two years, he will step down.

The Soviet president denied he was power hungry... and remarked he had much more power before the introduction of his perestroika reforms. Gorbachev, who became the party's general secretary in 1985... added if power was his main objective, it would NOT have been necessary for him to carry out reform.

But a Soviet opinion poll indicates the Soviet people have little faith in their government or the Communist Party. The National Center for Social Opinion Studies surveyed 14-hundred people. Only 18 percent said they felt the government could definitely solve the country's problems.

(JULY 5) UPI - Americans marked their nation's 214th birthday in a traditional- and a NOT so traditional fashion. The usual parades, fireworks and family barbecues came along with a cookout for the homeless in Washington, D-C.

Luther Place Church staged a cookout for street people who live in an area just a few blocks from the White House. The church's pastor says the idea was more than just to provide food for the hungry... but to make sure Americans doN'T forget about the plight of the homeless.

In another twist, some Eastern Europeans joined in the celebrations in a year when the very word ''independence'' has taken on a new meaning worldwide.

In suburban New York, 14 East European journalists took part in a barbeque in Irvington before watching the town's fireworks display.

And in Moscow, U-S Ambassador Jack Matlock held a Fourth of July reception. A member of Mikhail Gorbachev's presidential council and other Soviet officials attended, despite the continuing Communist Party Congress.

An Iowa family saw more than the flash of fireworks this holiday... thinking they were off to a bad start with the flashing lights of a police car.

Diane Crane says she and her husband were NOT happy to see a Nebraska State Trooper's car pull alongside theirs at a rest stop in Milford.

Wondering what they'd done wrong, the family's confusion deepened when the two officers asked if they could kidnap Diane, her spouse and three children.

The unplanned holiday detour involved the clan spending the holiday as guests of Seward, Nebraska, taking part in the town's Fourth of July festivities.

Diane Crane says the family woN'T have to be kidnapped in such a fashion again... saying they had such a good time they plan on coming back.

East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, and Yugoslavia also will receive help in shifting their now-defunct central planning economies toward a free-market system.

Said Secretary of State Baker- ''This is a transition never before undertaken by so many so quickly.'' The 24 sponsoring nations include the United States, the 12 European Community nations, Japan and other industrialized countries.

The aid program is worth hundreds of Millions of dollars in professional training, food aid, and technical assistance.

The Soviet Union was excluded from the economic aid program because the Group of 24 as its called is waiting for results from the Soviet Communist Party Congress. Romania also was left out because of President Ion Iliescu's complicity with miners who attacked anti-government demonstrators.

Saudi Arabia is facing accusations three days after the tragedy that killed more than 14-hundred Moslem pilgrims.

The Lebanese fundamentalist group Hezbollah today is accusing Saudi police of shooting at the pilgrims in a tunnel near the holy city of Mecca. Iran's president says Saudi Arabia must answer for the incident, but Saudi officials so far have NO response to the charge.

Saudi officials have said several pilgrims lost their footing and fell from a bridge near the end of the tunnel, starting a tragic stampede. The tunnel's ventilation system also reportedly failed... adding to the panic.

While saying NOthing today, Saudi King Fahd has said the tragedy might have been averted if the pilgrims had followed safety rules. Fahd also described the deaths as ''God's will.''

TOKYO (JULY 5) UPI - Restaurant chain operators Kyotaru Co. said Thursday it has purchased Best Western Food Inc., a meat processing company based in Los Angeles, for $41.26 million to supply beef for the Japanese market.

Japan, under pressure from the United States, agreed in 1988 to drop quotas on imported beef products by April 1, 1991. In response, Japanese food companies have been actively buying ranches overseas to continue to supply beef to their customers through Japanese sources.

Best Western will supply beef to the Kyotaru restaurant chain, according to reports in the Nihon Keizai Shimbun and the Kyodo News Service.

Kyotaru spokesman Masakazu Yoda said the company has not decided if it will import beef for other distribution purposes through Best Western.

Yoda said Robert Wiviodt, Best Western's president, has been replaced but other management-level employees will remain with the company.

Best Western had sales of $66.13 million in 1989, according to Kyotaru.

PARIS (JULY 5) UPI - France's tourism minister was forced to resign after it was revealed he paid unemployed actors and students to cheer Socialist speakers at a seminar he organized on the theme of progress, sources said Thursday.

The government said Minister Olivier Stirn resigned of his own accord Wednesday night but the sources said it was clear that he did so at Prime Minister Michel Rocard's request.

The incident was highly embarrassing to the political establishment, still smarting from the brouhaha over an amnesty law passed last year to protect legislators from prosecution for campaign financing irregularities.

''The whole matter is rather ridiculous,'' an aide to Rocard was quoted as saying Thursday by the Paris daily newspaper, Liberation. ''But it happened at a bad moment. There are times when it is criminal to be ridiculous.''

Stirn paid some 100 students and unemployed actors $60 each last week to clap and cheer at a two-day seminar he organized in Paris around the theme of progress.

Numerous members of the governing Socialist Party spoke at the sessions and messages from Rocard and President Francois Mitterrand were read to the delegates, adding to the government's embarassment.

The announcement of Stirn's resignation came just hours after he told a television interviewer he would not leave the government. External Commerce Minister Jean-Marie Rausch was named Stirn's successor.

The affair came at a time of persistent rumors and newspaper reports that relations between Rocard and Mitterrand have hit a new low, with Mitterrand said to be eagerly waiting the opportunity to replace the prime minister.

Stirn changed political parties five times in just over 10 years of public life and was considered an outsider by the ruling Socialists. His resignation could also lead to a series of changes in the Cabinet, according to French political analysts.

LONDON (JULY 5) UPI - President Bush is proposing that NATO leaders invite Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to addresss a NATO meeting soon as a sign of the Western alliance's non-aggressive stance, diplomatic sources said Thursday.

The proposal appears to be the dramatic surprise the White House planned for the NATO meeting, seen as the most crucial in the alliance's 40-year history as it adjusts to the historic changes in the East.

The sources said there was no fixed date for the Gorbachev invitation, which Bush would also like extended to other leaders of Warsaw Pact countries. The sources said the invitation was not for the current NATO summit, which concludes Friday.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater had earlier said there was a possibility the NATO leaders would agree on having Warsaw Pact observers at NATO in the future.

Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said at the opening meeting of Thursday's summit that both Gorbachev and Czechoslovakia President Vaclav Havel sent messages expressing interest in the outcome of the summit.

Bush is known to want to give Gorbachev a positive signal at this time, when the Soviet president is under pressure from militarists and hardliners at home. The signal is also intended to reassure the Soviets that a united Germany within NATO poses no threat.

Bush arrived at Heathrow airport just outside London aboard Air Force One shortly after 7 a.m. He spent about an hour conferring with his top advisers before meeting with NATO Secretary-General Manfred Woerner.

Earlier, Bush told reporters said he did not interpret a statement Wednesday by Gorbachev as meaning he would resign if his reforms do not succeed.

Gorbachev said his country's ''leadership should go'' if his economic reforms do not succeed in two years. The remark was widely interpreted as another threat by Gorbachev to resign if his efforts fail.

''That isn't what he said,'' Bush said, refusing to elaborate. Woerner, asked the same question, said, ''We're not commenting.''

White House aides said they expected vigorous debate among NATO members during their two-day gathering, although they also indicated a final statement already had been drafted.

Fitzwater said the president was ''well rested, looks great and slept all the way'' during the seven-hour flight. However, reporters at Heathrow said Bush appeared tired.

Bush had with him numerous new points to present to NATO that represent ''the most dramatic change in ... NATO history,'' Fitzwater said, without being specific.

''They are dramatic for the impact they will have on NATO, the Warsaw Pact the future of the CSCE (Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe) and German reunification,'' Fitzwater said.

Wrapping up a long Fourth of July vacation at his summer compound in Kennebunkport, Maine, Bush left the Pease Air Force Base in Dover, N.H., for his overnight flight to London.

Earlier Wednesday, Bush told reporters on a morning golfing outing he was ''looking forward to the trip.''

He applauded comments by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze that Soviet defense spending has been excessive, holding out the prospect of Western economic assistance if the Soviet military budget is pared.

''I've always maintained that they're spending a very large percentage of the gross national product on defense,'' Bush said of Shevardnadze's remark that Soviet leaders had ''ruined the country ... by squandering a quarter of our budget'' on the military.

''And I hope that, given the changes in the world, they'll be able to curtail that defense spending some,'' Bush said. ''If they do, I think it would be much easier for the West to give them certain kinds of economic assistance. It would be a very good thing. So we'll see how it comes out.''

Bush so far has opposed suggestions from France and Germany that the West put together a joint aid package to buttress Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Bush has said he was willing to discuss the matter with allies, but thinks such assistance should not be offered until economic reform programs are actually in place in the Soviet Union.

After the 16-nation NATO allliance finishes meeting Friday, Bush returns to host the economic summit of the major Western industrialized nations next week in Houston, where he expects the question of aid to be raised.

The president started his Independence Day early, speeding through 18 holes of golf before an afternoon of boating, fishing and the other recreation during his vacation in Kennebunkport.

The president Wednesday was clearly relaxed and ready for the alliance gathering, called to chart the future course of NATO with the crumbling of the Warsaw Pact and a diminished military threat in Europe.

Bush, aware that change is necessary if NATO is to remain a powerful force in European politics, confidently predicted Tuesday the meeting would go well for the United States and the allies would support his blueprint for change to adapt to the new circumstances.

Bush said he had received votes of confidence from several allied leaders for the set of proposals, which includes a significant shift away from NATO's longheld nuclear defense policy and adjustments in conventional strategy.

Crafted to reassure Moscow about NATO's intentions as East and West Germany rush to unification, the Bush proposal would have nuclear weapons become an arms system of ''last resort,'' not part of a doctrine of ''flexible response'' that traditionally has controlled post-war U.S.

(JULY 5) UPI - Stock prices closed lower Thursday on the Tokyo Stock Exchange in slow trading, as lack of incentives dampened a modest morning rally, ending four straight sessions of gains.

The blue chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which gained only 31.32 yen Wednesday, lost 94.25 points to close at 32,351.67. TOPIX, the Tokyo Stock Price Index of all listed major shares, fell 1.31 points to 2,362.04.

An estimated 460 million shares changed hands, down from 546.61 million shares Wednesday.

Brokers said investors lacked incentives in the backdrop of a weaker yen and turned to selective buying centering on issues neglected in recent days. Brokers said share prices declined after scoring gains in the morning because of last minute arbitrage selling and profit taking on short-term gains. It was the Nikkei's first decline in four sessions.

"There was no clear direction," said Yoshio Ogawa, general manager of equities operations at Nikko Securities Co. Analysts said most investors stayed on the sidelines, waiting for the release Friday of U.S. employment data for June.

The Tokyo Stock Exchange said turnover in the major section for the first half of this year fell 47.3 percent from a year ago to 66.209 million shares due largely to the market slump earlier this year. Trading was valued at 106.2 trillion yen, or about $708 billion, down 37.2 percent, the exchange said.

Despite the decline of the key indicators, gainers outnumbered 476 to 463 Thursday, with 187 issues unchanged.

Constructions were generally lower. Other losers included precision instruments such as Canon and Ricoh, foods, securities, and textiles. Trading houses were selected for buying along with distribution-related issues and some nonferrous metals.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices lost ground on the Hong Kong Stock Exhange as bouts of profit taking snapped a three-day rally that amounted to a more than 85-point gain.

The Hang Seng Index lost 7.05 points to close at 3,356.44. The decrease followed a rise of 6.95 points Wednesday.

Volume was light at 1.66 billon units, down from a moderate 1.84 billion shares Wednesday.

Stocks opened the day slightly higher, gaining nearly six points in the first 15 minutes of trading. The market drifted lower as profit taking cut the early gains and the morning session closed off 2.76, brokers said.

"It has been a quiet day today," said Howard Gorges, an analyst with South China Securities. "The second-liners were taking the limelight... this is a healthy pause following the sharp gains of the last three days."

The drop in the market broke a three-day rally that posted the highest gains since May 1987. Profit taking spilled over into the afternoon session, sending prices lower, brokers said.

Industrials lost 13.77 points, Financials added 3.65 and Utilities gained 6.53. Properties dropped 15.23 points.

Share prices edged up in light trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange with the lackluster mood expected to continue throughout the week.

The Straits Times Industrial Index rose 5.23 to 1,533.48. The All Singapore Index gained 0.99 to close at 435.02. Turnover was 38.66 million units.

Analysts said there was still considerable trading in bank stocks, with buying by fund managers aimed at hitting the 40 percent ceiling on foreign ownership. The government announced last week foreign ownership would be doubled from 20 percent.

A dealer said August was expected to be bullish as good corporate news is usually announced then. Others traders said however new issues entering the market will offer more competition for investors funds.

Gainers were Oriental Hldg., UMW Hldg., Singapore Press Foreign, United Overseas Bank Foreign, Singapore Airlines Foreign, Development Bank of Singapore, and United Overseas Bank.

Losers included Far East Shipping, ASEAN Fund, Great Eastern Life, OUE, and Wearne Brothers.

The rally kicked off by the new financial year continued to gain momentum on the Sydney Sharemarket, undeterred by the booming Australian dollar.

The All Ordinaries index rose 16.9 points to 1,557.7. Turnover was 143.4 million shares.

The strength of the rally, started with the new financial year July 1, caught many professional analysts offguard.

Buyers again turned to blue-chip industrial and resource stocks, with gains taking place across the board. Among the blue chips, Brambles, Comalco, News Corp., and Lend Lease scored the biggest gains.

The banks, which would be the first to benefit from any fall in interest rates, firmed. Westpac rose ten cents to $4.98, ANZ gained six cents to $5.06, and NAB was up six cents to $6.60.

The resource issues gained on stronger gold prices. MIM, CRA, Pasminco, and Queensland Resources all scored gains, while WMC, Australia's leading gold producer, rose eight cents to $4.82.

BHP continued to rise, gaining 22 cents to $9.94 for a total gain of $1 this week.

Gold issues gained popularity again, with the Gold Index rising 11 points to 1,287.8

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (JULY 5) UPI - The Malaysian government Thursday indicated it is confident the United States would be responsible in releasing its tin stockpile and not affect the already depressed condition of the Malaysian tin market.

''(The) Asean Washington Committee could be mobilized to put forth the views of Asean, especially Asean members of the Association of Tin Producing Countries to the U.S. government at the first opportunity,'' Malaysian Primary Industries Minister Lim Keng Yaik said.

Members of Asean, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, include Indonesia, Singapore, Thailand, The Philippines, Brunei and Malaysia.

The AWC provides a pernament forum which facilitates dialogue between the members of Asean and the U.S. administration, Lim said.

The U.S. National Defense Logistics Agency, formerly the General Services Administration, resumed commercial sales of tin Monday after they were discontinued in 1985.

The sales of 20 tons of the stockpiled tin via the auction system, brought down the price of the metal Thursday to a three-year low of 16.04 Malaysian ringgit (approximately $5.95) per kilogram on the Kuala Lumpur Tin Market.

Total tin held by the NDLA was reported to be about 170,216 tons and the agency had received congressional approval to sell 7,000 tons of tin this year.

''The U.S. Administration had on many occasions reacted to the views posed by AWC and had been responsive to them,'' Lim said.

Lim said during the 1987 recovery of the very depressed tin market as a result of the October 1985 collapse of the International Tin Council, the U.S. administration had been very helpful in releasing its tin stockpile at the level of 3,000 tons.

However, the minister noted the lack of cooperation from tin producers, especially those from non-ATPC countries, has caused stockpiles of tin to increase.

''If the non-cooperation persists, the tin price would continue to remain at a low level,'' he said.

Brazil, for example, has not indicated it intends to join the tin group.

''If Brazil is consistent with international commodities cooperation among producers, we hope that it would reciprocate Malaysia's joining the Cocoa Producers' Alliance at their request,'' Lim added.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - Initial claims for state unemployment insurance benefits totaled 365,000 for the week ending June 23, an increase of 6,000 from a week earlier, the Labor Department said Thursday.

The statistics are adjusted for seasonal factors.

The revised figure for the previous week was unchanged at 359,000 initial claims, according to a weekly report compiled by the department's Employment and Training Administration.

(JULY 5) UPI - NATO leaders have begun a two-day summit in London that's expected to redefine the alliance in response to the drastic changes in Eastern Europe. One alliance diplomat declared- ''NATO's continued existence is truly at stake'' as the 16 heads of state arrived for the meeting in central London.

President Bush is among the leaders convening in London, bringing with him what his spokesman describes as ''dramatic'' proposals. White House aides say they expect vigorous debate among NATO members during the two-day gathering... but they also indicate a final statement has already been drafted. Bush conferred with top advisers for about an hour before meeting with NATO's secretary-general.

The Soviet news agency Tass says the 28th Communist Party Congress has split into seven ''working groups'' today, concentrating on specific economic and political issues. The Kremlin workshops are being held one day after Soviet President Gorbachev tied his fate to the future of his perestroika reforms. Gorbachev also denied suggestions that he is power hungry.

A three-year-old Connecticut boy is hospitalized in stable condition following a Fourth of July accident that also injured 18 other people. Officials say a fireworks display went haywire last night in Torrington, with a rocket shooting into a crowd of about five-thousand revelers in a city park.The rocket landed in a crowd about 300 feet away from its platform.

TORRINGTON, CT (JULY 5) UPI - A rocket launched in the grand finale of a Fourth of July fireworks display veered astray and exploded in a screaming crowd, injuring 19 people, including a 3-year-old boy, authorities said Thursday.

''It was the grand finale and everybody was looking up and one just veered off into the crowd and exploded,'' Fire Department Lt. Nicholas Florio said after the rocket exploded in a crowd of about 5,000 people Wednesday night.

The festive crowd was celebrating the city's 250th birthday as well as Independence Day when the accident occurred at 9:40 p.m. near the end of the 45-minute fireworks display in Fuessenich Park.

As cheering spectators watched the finale on the banks of the Naugatauck River, one of the rockets went astray, skidding about 300 feet from the platform and into the crowd, Florio said.

People scattered and screamed as the device landed but there was no widespread panic and people came to the aid of the injured, said Florio.

A standby ambulance crew took the injured to Charlotte Hungerford Hospital in Torrington.

Nineteen people were taken to the hospital, where the most seriously injured, 3-year-old Robert Shopey, was given initial treatment for third-degree burns, said hospital spokesman Robert Summa.

The boy was then taken by the Life Star helicopter to Hartford Hospital where a spokeswoman said he remained in serious condition early Thursday.

The boy's mother, Rebecca Shopey, 23, was in satisfactory condition early Thursday at Charlotte Hungerford. Christola Chausse, 31, was in fair condition in the intensive care unit and Michael DuPont, 11, was stable, said Summa.

Summa said 15 other spectators at the city-sponsored event were treated at the hospital for burns and bruises and released.

Florio said an investigation was under way to determine just how the skyrocket went astray. He said it was not known whether the rocket was faulty or slipped off its holder as it was being launched.

The Pentagon is trying to replenish its supplies of a chemical needed for chemical arms, despite a superpower agreement to ban such armaments.

The summer heat takes it toll is more ways than previously thought. Researchers say men appear to produce substantially fewer sperm in summer than in winter. PORTLAND, OR (JULY 5) UPI - Actor Gene Hackman was hospitalized in stable condition Thursday, awaiting the results of tests to determine what caused his chest pains.

The actor was traveling through Oregon when he drove to St. Vincent Hospital and Medical Center and checked himself in about noon Tuesday after complaining of chest pains, said hospital spokeswoman Denise Tomasovic.

Initial reports indicated Hackman might have suffered a heart attack but hospital officials said doctors were awaiting test results to determine what happened.

Doctors had hoped the results could be returned by late Wednesday afternoon but they decided that more tests would be required, nursing supervisor Margaret Daniel said. Daniel would not say why doctors had ordered more tests or what the results of the earlier tests had shown.

Hackman, 60, won the best actor Academy Award in 1971 for ''The French Connection.'' He also appeared in ''Bonnie and Clyde,'' ''The Poseidon Adventure,'' ''The Conversation,'' ''Superman I'' and ''Superman II,'' and more recently in ''Hoosiers'' and ''Mississippi Burning.''

WARSAW, POLAND (JULY 5) UPI - Poland's agriculture minister resigned Thursday over the Solidarity-led coalition government's handling of protesting farmers, the first casualty of a cabinet shakeup that could involve as many as nine ministers.

Agriculture Minister Czeslaw Janicki, in a speech to the Sejm, or lower house of Parliament, blamed both the government and farmers for the worst crisis yet in the government of Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki.

Mazowiecki is expected to announce other changes in the 23-member Cabinet during a major policy speech to the Sejm Friday.

The prime minister met for two hours Tuesday with President Wojciech Jaruzelski to discuss the growing crisis, caused partly by continued criticism by Solidarity leader Lech Walesa that too many communists remain in the government.

However, most of the speculation in the Polish press centered on probable changes in ministries that have come under the most criticism for failure to carry out their functions - health, telecommunications, domestic consumer goods, housing and industry.

The ministers who may feel the ax are from all parties, including Solidarity.

At a news conference, government spokeswoman Malgorzata Niezabitowski denied charges by farmers and Peasant Party leaders that the government was pursuing an ''antipeasant policy'' by refusing them guaranteed minimum prices for their products.

''The (economic stabilization) program requires sacrifice from all groups, including workers, intelligentsia and farmers,'' she said. ''We cannot permit guaranteed minimum prices because we will risk the collapse of the whole economic program.''

The immediate reason for Janicki's resignation was last Friday's use of police to eject angry farmers who had been occupying the Agriculture Ministry building to press demands for higher prices for their products.

Several deputies, who were among those forcibly removed from the building, threatened to resign over the incident, which was the focus of a stormy debate.

The Sejm voted to form a commission to investigate whether force was necessary and who ordered it.

''The farmers had the right to protest and their deputies had the duty to support their protest,'' said deputy Jacek Soska of the Peasant Party.

''I have tried to make the whole government conscious that agriculture requires special treatment, at least during the (economic) adjustment period,'' Janicki, of the Peasant Party, told the deputies in announcing his resignation.

''I did not find support among the government for my postulates and ideas of programs for supporting agriculture,'' he said. ''On the other hand, there was no understanding for the difficult economic situation of the country among farmers and their unions.''

Janicki blamed several parliamentary deputies for making the situation worse by joining the occupation.

''The participation of deputies was an event of no precedence,'' he said.

Deputy Finance Minister Wojciech Mislag said the government has found money in its budget to provide another $105.26 million for farmers through subsidies for milk and the dairy industry, increased agricultural credits and other aid programs.

LUTSEN, MN (JULY 5) UPI - About 10,000 members of the loosely knit counter-culture group known as the Rainbow Family raised joined hands around a ''peace pole'' in a northeastern Minnesota meadow and prayed for peace and healing in the world on the Fourth of July.

The event in the Superior National Forest, which followed a morning of voluntary silence, marked the climax of the 19th annual Rainbow gathering.

Near the peace pole, a man dressed to look like a ram led the crowd in chanting a mantra, then shouted, ''No more wars, no more weapons, no more nuclear warheads. Take the tools of war away. We are the children of the father and the mother (Earth).''

The chanting was enhanced by bongos, drums and an occasional horn, and the crowd broke into choruses of ''give peace a chance.''

The pole was held up in the inner circle by a man painted bright white. A large pile of crystal rocks was connected to the pole by a hollow wooden tube. Budhist monks and children sat nearby, chanting and praying.

''I love you,'' a woman called out between choruses.

Others yelled: ''Love your fellow man,'' ''Freedom to speak your will,'' ''Stop the vicious war on drugs'' and ''Let every creature on earth be free.''

With clasped hands in the air, the crowd swayed while the American flag flapped in the breeze and soap bubbles floated overhead.

''For ever and ever and ever, we are one with the infinite sun,'' the crowd sang amid the aroma of incense and burning sage.

Many of the Rainbow members, some naked, danced to the pulse of the drums, hugged, cheered and ate watermelon.

''This is the best gathering I've been to so far,'' said Mike Ober of New Orleans, who was attending his third.

''When you see people holding hands and om-ing, it seems kind of hippified but in the context of the Rainbow it works,'' he said. ''It's such that there are no bad things here. I never lose my temper here and I don't drink while I'm here. Everyone has a real positive attitude.

''We're just here praying for peace. This spot will never be the same. The spirit lives here now.''

About 120 law enforcement officers from across the state patrolled the area during the weeklong gathering but only minor arrests were made, mostly for drug possession and traffic violations.

DETROIT (JULY 5) UPI - Years of mistrust built up by traditionally adversarial roles between management and labor will hamper this summer's negotiations for a new contract between the United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp., a top union bargainer said.

UAW Vice President Stephen Yokich, to lead the union's bargaining team when talks begin with the formal across-the-table handshake July 18, said the giant automaker has also lost the trust of workers by "playing games" with labor agreements, like skirting issues and challenging contract language.

"Some how, some way, they are going to have to find a way to assure us that during the life of this next agreement ... we can trust them," Yokich was quoted in the Detroit News Wednesday. "I think that's going to be the most difficult part of bargaining with them."

Efforts to reach a new contract covering about 350,000 GM hourly workers start this month to replace the existing three-year pact that expires Sept. 14. Similar efforts between the UAW and Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. covering about 150,000 workers begin that same week.

While the current GM/UAW contract calls for a moratorium on plant closings the top automaker has ceased operations at four assembly facilities by using the term "idling."

Three plants - the Fiero plant in Pontiac, Mich., as well as plants in Framingham, Mass., and Kansas City, Mo., have been effectively closed since the last contract was signed in 1987. A fourth plant in Lakewood, Ga., is slated to close this summer, with no future product plans in place according to GM sources.

GM argued successfully in arbitration this year that the Fiero plant was not closed but "idled" in 1988 as a result of poor sales of the sporty two-seater, which has been plagued by engine problems that forced a recall last week of every Fiero ever made.

Yokich said GM is "always looking for a way out of a situation..." and that it has to "learn to play it straight" after years of practicing what he called gamesmanship instead of joint cooperation in what has become a severely competitive market.

"It's pretty difficult when you are sitting there trying to negotiate an agreement and you have to look for every little angle that they might use to avoid what you just negotiated," he said.

The union's top priority this year for UAW workers at all Big Three carmakers is to strengthen job security, partly be convincing companies to bring back work that has been given to outside companies, or transferred abroad, including Mexico.

EAST BERLIN (JULY 5) UPI - East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere urged NATO Thursday to abandon its ''flexible response'' strategy on the use of nuclear weapons and other remnants of the Cold War.

Presenting a government statement to Parliament, de Maiziere said he had ''great expectations'' from the NATO summit that opened Thursday in London.

He reiterated the government's stance that a united Germany must be fully sovereign over its territory - an implied rejection of Soviet proposals that Germany may unite now but would only gain full sovereignty several years later.

''From our point of view, NATO must consider itself as an alliance of democratic and free states in the widest possible sense and must reform its structure and strategy,'' he said.

''This means taking leave of the strategy of flexible response linked with first use of nuclear weapons and forward defense,'' the conservative East German leader said.

NATO leaders in London are reviewing the policy of ''flexible response,'' or the use of nuclear weapons to repulse an overwhelming attack by conventional Warsaw Pact forces. Also up for discussion is the strategy of ''forward defense,'' conceived to stop a Soviet conventional attack at NATO's eastern borders.

Most military strategists consider the doctrines obsolete because risk of a surprise attack is now remote and because short-range nuclear arms are aimed at targets in now-friendly East Germany.

A proposal by President Bush to use nuclear arms only as ''weapons of last resort'' would move away from the early use implied in ''flexible response '' but would still retain NATO's flexibility for ''first use'' of atomic weapons.

De Maiziere said the Warsaw Pact ''as it exists today must be changed carefully, also with the help of the GDR (East Germany).''

The East Bloc alliance has been weakened by the reform movement that has swept Eastern Europe in recent months, drawing several former communist countries politically closer to the West and away from the Soviet Union.

Both the East and West German governments back a Western plan - rejected by the Soviet Union - under which a united Germany would be a member of NATO, but would not station any troops in what is now East German territory.

The military affiliation of a united Germany remains the main stumbling block in six-power negotiations over German unification - dubbed the ''two-plus-four talks'' because of the involvement of the two German states and the four World War II victors: Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

Senior government sources in Bonn and West Berlin say both German governments are prepared to limit to fewer than 400,000 the number of troops in a united German army to ease Soviet objections of Germany's membership in NATO.

In another development, East German Defense and Disarmament Minister Rainer Eppelmann announced Thursday that a West German member of the Social Democratic Party, security expert Egon Bahr, was appointed an official advisor to the East German army for at least six months.

The East and West German governments have both called for unification before the end of the year and for all-German elections Dec. 2, the date originally set for West German general elections.

Delegations from both states are to discuss the issue during negotiations to prepare the final treaty on German unification, scheduled to start Friday in East Berlin.

LONDON (JULY 5) UPI - While NATO's 16 leaders debated the fate of the Western alliance Thursday, many Londoners seemed oblivious to the event in their city, instead mourning the World Cup demise of their national team.

Random interviews showed few people had even heard of the critical NATO meeting.

''What are they increasing or decreasing this time?'' asked Jason Lucchesi a hardware shop worker. ''They could do it by fax. It would be a lot cheaper.''

''We all thought it was some sort of festival,'' said Rashid Khan. ''Who knows? Maybe something good will come out of it.''

The most obvious public signs of what has been billed as the most important summit in NATO's 41 years were constantly circling helicopters, traffic snarls and a mammoth tent complex constructed in central London to house the press.

Hundreds of journalists scurried about in the billowing structures, clambering to grab the latest press release and rushing to the next briefing.

The cream-colored tents and adjoining outhouses and canteen reportedly piqued the queen mother, who, according to insiders, objected to the rather unsightly mushroom in Green Park near her plush residence.

Authorities bowed to tradition and moved some of the more tasteless accomodations from her view and closer to Piccadilly, where the tents creaked and swayed in blustery gray weather.

Hundreds of police patrolled the streets surrounding the nearby Lancaster House summit site - a stately Georgian mansion where Queen Elizabeth II had her coronation banquet.

Their main concern was provided by about 30 anti-nuclear protesters, who stood behind barriers, holding banners declaring ''No to NATO.''

Officers arrested at least five demonstrators for trying to walk through the cordon to deliver their views to the leaders of the Western alliance. The demonstrators held loaves of bread to show where their priorities lay.

''We want to go in there and speak to the NATO leaders,'' said one protester, as she was ushered into a nearby police van. ''It's quite reasonable.''

But the concerns of many citizens were focused on more pressing patriotic matters: the demise of the English soccer team in a Wednesday World Cup semi-final against West Germany in Turin, Italy.

''It was a very emotional thing. I lost 200 pounds ($352) on England last night,'' sighed carpet salesman Munir Ahmad.

''Still, I might catch a sight of Mr. Bush, and I will say, 'Mr. Bush, why don't you come here and buy a carpet,''' he said, smiling at the prospect.

LONDON (JULY 5) UPI - Hundreds of English soccer fans went on the rampage in at least 12 towns, smashing shop windows and wounding about 10 police officers after England lost to West Germany in the World Cup semifinals, police said Thursday.

Scotland Yard and the Home Office said they had no total figures for the number of people arrested for soccer-related violence after Wednesday night's game. But the British Broadcasting Corp. said there were about 600 arrests.

English fans vented their rage at England's defeat in the penalty shootout by chasing German students and attacking West German-made cars, police said.

Scotland Yard said one of the worst incidents of about 21 reported in the London metropolitan area occurred in Cheshunt, when 300 to 400 people threw bricks, bottles, glasses and fireworks at police late Wednesday night.

One officer required hospitalization for head injuries sustained in the melee, which ended after police arrested 68 people and broke up the crowd, a Scotland Yard spokesman said. Most of those arrested were expected to appear in court on various charges.

Another police officer in East London lost several teeth when someone threw a brick at his face, the spokesman said.

In the resort town of Brighton, 53 miles south of London, about 200 English fans chased a group of German students, smashed store windows and looted shops. Three police officers sustained injuries in clashes with the fans.

''There was serious public disorder in Brighton and Worthing within minutes of England's defeat,'' a police spokeman said. ''The situation was much worse than we hoped.''

Twenty extra police officers in riot gear were called in to assist the 60 officers trying to quell the violence in Brighton, the spokesman said.

Police were forced to lock 300 German students inside nightclubs for their own safety, later arranging for buses to carry them away to safety, police said.

Shortly after midnight, officers in full riot gear confronted the crowd to which refused police calls for them to leave. Forty people were arrested.

In nearby Worthing, 15 shop windows were broken and some looting was reported when about 200 people roamed the streets after the match, police said. Five officers were hurt, including one constable who suffered a broken nose, and police arrested 19 people.

About 50 youths smashed West German-made cars in Eltham, south east London police said.

Police said vandals smashed shop windows in towns including Torquay, Ipswich, Stourbridge, Portsmouth and Dunstable. Soccer-related violence also was reported in Daventry and Bournemouth.

Home Office spokesman said there were no overall statistics available yet on the total number of incidents following Wednesday night's match.

A spokeswoman for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Thatcher was ''always appalled by mindless violence.''

Thatcher congratulated by West Germans in a statement Wednesday night and said she was ''very proud of the England team.''

''Despite losing the penalty shot, they played a good game,'' the prime minister said, adding in that it was England's best-ever performance abroad.

An estimated 30 million British viewers had packed pubs and private homes across the country to watch the semifinal match in Turin, Italy.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - The American Institute of Architects violated antitrust laws by illegally restraining trade, the Justice Department said Thursday in a civil antitrust suit.

The group ''unreasonably restrained price competition in the sale of architectural services,'' the Justice Department said.

The industry trade group that represents many architects in America signed a settlement agreement with the Justice Department that was filed simultaneously in U.S. District Court.

A federal judge will have to review the government's suit, and the consent decree, and decide whether to accept the proposed settlement.

The Justice Department said about 54,000 architects belong to the trade group and that the AIA ''entered into an unlawful agreement'' to prohibit members from providing free services, engaging in competitive bidding and discounting their fees.

As part of the proposed settlement with the government, the architectural trade group must ''institute a comprehensive antitrust compliance program'' during the next decade, the Justice Department said.

Further antitrust violations ''may result in disciplinary measures and charges of criminal contempt,'' the Justice Department said.

It is not the first time the American Institute of Architects has been cited for violation of America's antitrust laws. In 1972, a ''final judgment'' was entered against the group for antitrust violations, the Justice Department said.

The proposed consent decree ''supercedes'' the 1972 order, the Justice Department said.

TOKYO (JULY 5) UPI - Japan promised to give Peruvian President-elect Alberto Fujimori $4.6 million in development aid on the day he takes office, officials said Thursday.

Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu told Fujimori the money was intended to finance an irrigation project and would be delivered on July 28, the day of Fujimori's inauguration, a Foreign Ministry official said.

''It will be officially signed after Fujimori's inauguration,'' said the official. ''It has not been announced officially yet, but it has been approved by the Cabinet at a meeting June 23.''

Fujimori left Japan Thursday after a five-day visit that included an emotional return to his ancestral home in southern Japan and several offers of aid from private sources.

The Japanese took pride in the fact that Fujimori is the first Japanese descendant to be elected president of a Western nation.

In addition to the government grant, Fujimori collected at least $152,000 in private donations, including $66,000 from the president of a small company. An 81-year-old woman also gave him $66,000 and asked him to use it to feed the poor in Peru.

Residents of Kawachi, the small town Fujimori's parents left in 1934, collected the equivalent of $20,000 to give the president-elect to help save Peru's economy.

An official with the Kumamoto state government, where Kawachi is located, said the state was embarrassed by the small amount and had launched an official drive to raise money for Peru.

Japan's official aid is earmarked for a irrigation project in a farming area 50 miles north of the capital of Lima.

Japan also pledged to send a fact-finding mission to Peru to advise Fujimori on economic reform and investigate possible aid projects.

Fujimori met with top business leaders to ask for their support in rebuilding Peru's badly damaged economy.

Peru has inflation of over 2,000 percent a year and about $20 billion in foreign debt.

Fujimori's trip led to what the media called ''Fujimori Fever.'' During his visit to Kawachi, he was mobbed by crowds in a campaign-like atmosphere.

GENEVA (JULY 5) UPI - U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar criticized Cuba Thursday for failing to cooperate with the United Nations in its investigation of alleged human rights violations in the country and said he was sorry he could not go there himself.

Cuba and Haiti are the only two countries in South America where democracy is still lacking, he said.

While he has a mandate from the U.N. Human Rights Commission to report on Cuba, Perez de Cuellar said a ''credible report'' depends on cooperation by the Cuban government.

''Unfortunately, I can't go there myself to witness what is happening,'' he said. ''But I do have other sources.''

Havana last year allowed a visit by a Human Rights Commission investigator but the government severely restricted access to political prisoners and anti-government groups.

Cuba was one topic of questioning at a news conference held by the U.N. chief executive, who is in Geneva for a meeting of the U.N. Economic and Social Council.

He reiterated a call for industrialized nations to help Third World countries overcome their crippling debt problems, and not to lose interest in them as soon as they become democracies.

''Democracy must be accompanied by development,'' Perez de Cuellar said. ''The problem is that once we get democracy, the interest (of advanced nations) disappears.''

Perez de Cuellar, a Peruvian, he said is from a country that is now a democracy but remains hamstrung by serious economic problems.

''In South America, only Cuba and Haiti are now not democracies,'' he said.

Perez de Cuellar also said the United Nations is a ''victim of its own success'' because after its peace-keeping and election monitoring operation in Namibia, there is an expectation of similar roles in Cambodia and other troubled regions.

''But how can we embark on such an enomous operation if we do not have the resources?'' he said. U.N. arrears now total $500 million, and the organization continues only because a minority of nations, especially those in Europe, pay their budget dues on time. He noted the United States has promised to catch up on payments.

He said unless governments and the Security Council give it other directives, the United Nations can only continue ''preventive action'' in the Middle East. He said the situation in Israeli-occupied territories causes ''anguish, anxiety and threat.''

GENEVA (JULY 5) UPI - The biggest challenge facing the industrialized countries in a new political era will be converting from military to civilian manufacturing without causing high unemployment, a U.N. agency said Thursday.

The International Labor Organization said global defense spending runs at about $1.9 million a minute and provides 55 million jobs.

''But as the perception of a military threat weakens in the industrialized countries, the prospects for disarmament have brightened,'' it said in report.

''The biggest challenge facing policy planners in the current climate of superpower accomodation is how to convert, with the least social disruption, the military-industrial complex of nations to civil production '' the ILO said.

Titled ''Employment Implications of Disarmament,'' the report said careful planning is needed to prevent the displacement of millions of workers.

Even so, it predicted, ''a sizable share'' of jobs will be lost.

Most probably, and based on experience, only about one-third of defense industry personnel will find equal or better jobs within two to three years, the report said.

Another third will find lower paid work, at least 15 percent will take early retirement and 18 percent will remain unemployed.

''While the high average level of qualification of defense workers should make their transfer to civilian jobs easier, their often narrow specialization can also make the transition more difficult,'' the ILO said.

About 1.8 million Americans work in the defense industry, it said, and ''at least 6 million'' in the Soviet Union.

Although defense accounts for only a small share of overall manufacturing employment, it can represent a large number of jobs in specific sectors.

''In the United States, for instance, 93 percent of the output in shipping was for the military in 1985,'' the report said.

''Significant disarmament will inevitably reduce output in ship-bulding, aircraft, missiles, ordnance and some branches of communications.''

Defense companies will also look for mergers and takeovers that will lead to further jobs being lost, the report said.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole Thursday announced that the Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration has levied more than $500,000 in fines against Pyro Mining Co. for violations uncovered in the investigation of the worst mine accident in five years.

''The fine we are levying today is the largest penalty in history to result from a single mine accident,'' Dole said. ''It signifies the gravity of the violations and the commitment of the department to see that our nation's miners work under safe conditions.''

The agency has assessed Pyro Mining Co. a total of $507,996 in civil penalties for 121 violations found during the investigation of the Sept. 13, 1989, methane explosion at the coal mine, which claimed 10 lives at Pyro's William Station Mine in Union County, Ky.

''MSHA is committed to strong enforcement of health and safety in the workplace,'' said William Tattersall, assistant secretary for MSHA. ''We consider the violations in this case so flagrant and indicative of the company's negligence that this fine is warranted.''

The Labor Department said Pyro was fined $10,000 for each of 10 violations the maximum civil penalty for any violation. Twenty-six more violations received fines of $8,000 each, including 19 violations involving failure to make required pre-shift safety examinations and seven electrical violations. An additional 13 violations, mainly involving electrical safety, were assessed at $6,500 each. The remaining 72 violations received lesser penalties.

The Labor Department said the investigators' report determined that the William Station Mine explosion occurred after several violations of mine ventilation requirements allowed explosive methane gas to accumulate undetected. Investigators identified a machine with multiple electrical safety deficiencies as one of five possible ignition sources. The exact source of ignition could not be determined.

The Pyro Mining Co. may contest the citations and penalty assessments by requesting a hearing before an administrative law judge of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission, an independent agency.

HOUSTON (JULY 5) UPI - R.L. Blaffer II, grandson of an Exxon founder and great-grandson of a Texaco founder, died of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head. He was 30.

He was found dead about 4:45 a.m. Wednesday in his condominium in west Houston.

Friends and neighbors said Blaffer was not employed.

Mike Pickering, a neighbor, talked to Blaffer on Sunday and said he showed no signs of depression or anger.

Blaffer was always friendly, conversational and well-dressed, neighbors said.

''I never saw him out of a coat and tie,'' Pickering said.

Police are investigating Blaffer's death as a suicide, said Sgt. D.D. Shirley.

Blaffer and a friend had returned from a bar about 3:45 a.m. and were having drinks when the friend heard a gunshot, police said.

The friend said he was downstairs and found Blaffer fully dressed on his bedroom floor upstairs.

Police said Blaffer was killed with a semiautomatic weapon and no note was found.

Blaffer was the son of the late Houston oilman, John Hepburn Blaffer, and Camilla Davis Blaffer.

His grandfather, Robert Lee Blaffer, was a pioneer in the early days of the Texas Spindletop oil discovery after moving to Beaumont in 1902. Fifteen years later, he and three partners helped found Humble Oil & Refining Co., which became Exxon under his direction.

In 1909, Robert Blaffer married Texaco founder William T. Campbell's daughter, Sarah, in a union described as the ''conglomerate of the century.''

Blaffer died in 1942, leaving an estate valued at more than $4 million.

KAMPALA, UGANDA (JULY 5) UPI - South African nationalist leader Nelson Mandela arrived Thursday to a tumultuous welcome after winding up a successful if controversial tour of the United States and Europe.

Mandela will stay in Uganda for three days before flying to the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa, where he is scheduled to attend the Organization of African Unity heads of state summit opening next Monday.

Ugandan President Yoweri Museveni and his wife, Janet, warmly embraced the tired-looking Mandela, who had just completed an eight-hour flight from London, before introducing him to top government officials.

Mandela, a leader of the anti-apartheid African National Congress, was accompanied by top ANC officials Thabo Mbeki and Thomas Nkobi.

Cheered on by thousands of flag-waving school children and dancing citizens, Mandela and Museveni drove the 21 miles from the bullet-scarred lakeside airport at Entebbe to the capital, Kampala, where crowds of admirers had been waiting patiently since early morning for a glimpse of their southern African hero.

The normally short trip took more than an hour as Mandela's huge motorcade was forced to stop several times along the route through lush, green banana patches as people burst onto the highway to dance in front of his black limousine.

Mozambican President Joaquim Chissano and Zimbabwean leader Robert Mugabe were to join Mandela on his three-day visit to Uganda, holding private talks with him and Museveni and visiting various development projects.

Mandela's arrival in Africa concluded a monthlong tour through Europe and the United States where he was hailed as a front-rank statesman but where his stance on sensitive issues created considerable controversy.

Throughout his trip, Mandela constantly called for international support for the ANC and continued sanctions against Pretoria. He refused to renounce violence in his fight against apartheid and would not back down from his support for Cuban President Fidel Castro and Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi.

In Britain, Mandela again struck a raw nerve when he appeared to suggest that London should negotiate with the Irish Republican Army, a movement engaged in an armed guerrilla campaign to force the British to leave Northern Ireland and reunite Ireland.

Mandela is scheduled to visit the East African nation of Kenya after Ethiopia and plans to arrive home in South Africa to celebrate his 72nd birthday on July 18.

LONDON (JULY 5) UPI - The wife of the late heir to the Johnson & Johnson

Pharmaceuticals fortune paid a record $15.8 million Thursday for an 18th century Italian baroque cabinet, making it the world's most expensive piece of furniture, the auction house Christie's said.

A Christie's spokeswoman said the cabinet was bought by collector Barbara Johnson, the Polish-born wife of J. Seward Johnson.

''The bidding itself was not hectic but the hall was packed for this sale '' the Christie's spokeswoman said, adding the cabinet would be shipped to Johnson's home in New Jersey.

The loss to Britain of what has been described by the Victoria and Albert Museum as ''the most important piece of furniture in an English private collection,'' dismayed many, the spokewoman said.

Commissioned from the Ducal workshops in Florence in 1726 by Henry Somerset, the third duke of Beaufort, the 12 1/2-foot tall cabinet has always been with the family in the Beaufort home at Badminton, Christie's said. It is made up of ebony, gilt, bronze and pietra dura, or panels inlaid with marble and semi-precious stones.

The desire to make sure the cabinet ''would be able to remain in perpetuity in this country,'' initially drove the trustees of the Beaufort family and Christie's to offer the piece to the Victoria and Albert Museum ''on very generous terms of payment spread over a number of year,'' Christie's said.

The museum was, however, unable to raise the cash.

The 11th Duke of Beaufort decided on the sale of the cabinet to meet his tax liabilities on the Badminton estate after the death of the 10th duke in 1984, Christie's said.

The cabinet sale breaks the previous world record price for a piece of furniture - an 18th century Nicholas Brown desk and bookcase, which went under the hammer for $13.35 million in New York in June 1989.

Woerner added that the Western alliance is moving from ''confrontation to cooperation.'' This summit is viewed as the most important in NATO's 41-year history. NATO will seek to adopt a more political role as its military importance dwindles in response to the Warsaw Pact's shrinking threat.

TOKYO (JULY 5) UPI - The government, in a sharp departure from past directives, said Thursday Japan must lessen emphasis on its quest for material wealth and focus on the search for human fulfillment in the 1990s.

Japan's powerful Ministry of International Trade and Industry, the government agency most often credited with guiding the country to economic superpower status, appears to have changed directions in its blueprint for the next decade.

''Although Japan has achieved a high level of material wealth ... this material wealth was accomplished by emphasizing growth and production over human issues,'' the report said.

''It is now important that Japan creates an environment that will enable individuals to lead a leisurely life,'' said the report, the ''International Trade and Industrial Policy in the 1990s.''

The ministry's plan for the 1990s does not abandon the goal of economic growth but places greater emphasis on quality of life issues.

In the past three decades the ministry has pushed the Japanese to work hard and save money, while targeting specific industries for growth.

The formula has worked and the Japanese now have the highest average income among major countries.

But something is missing, the report said.

''This idea ... that successful economic development is automatically reflected in people's lives may no longer be appropriate,'' it said.

Many of the practices that contributed to Japan's economic miracle are called into question in the report.

Long working hours and men who devote their lives to the company at the expense of their families were on the ministry's hit list.

The report called for ''building a social framework that enables men and women to cooperate and share domestic tasks, such as housekeeping, child-rearing and care for the elderly that until now have fallen mostly on women.''

The ministry also said it is ''absolutely necessary'' to obtain the goal of 1,800 working hours per year, compared to the 2,100 hours per year Japanese workers average now.

Many of the changes called for - such as opening markets to foreign goods, cutting prices and streamlining the distribution system - are reforms the United States has been pushing for in its trade negotiations with Japan.

The report notes in vague language that Japan must open its own market to foreign goods if it is to maintain its access to foreign markets.

It calls for ''technoglobalism,'' or sharing of technology across borders, instead of technonationalism, a policy which limits foreign access to a nation's technology to protect domestic industries.

In a section on the environment, the ministry states that Japan ''has successfully met the combined challenges of protecting the environment while maintaining economic development'' and should offer its expertise in environmental issues to other nations.

Many environmentalist would take issue with that statement.

Environmentalists have attacked Japan as an environmental outlaw for its policies on whaling, driftnet fishing, cutting of rain forests and trade in rare animal species.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - A New York investment group said Thursday it had trimmed its stake in Multimedia Inc.

Sandler Associates, Sandler Capital Management, and SCM Partners, which are all affiliated, said in a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission that they now hold a 9.16 percent stake in the company, down from 11.95 percent of Multimedia's 11.3 million shares outstanding.

The company sold shares on the open market in May and June at prices ranging from $69 to $81 a a share.

The largest transaction was on June 29, when the investors sold 138,000 shares for $9.52 million.

Multimedia is a Greenville, S.C., firm comprised of four operating divisions, including newspaper publishing, television and radio broadcasting, cable television, and an entertainment division that produces and syndicates television programs.

Multimedia had annual revenues of $462 million in 1989.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (JULY 5) UPI - The Cambodian government has offered a $1,000 reward to any government troops who capture a foreign journalist traveling with anti-government guerrillas, a resistance group said Thursday.

''Yesterday, enemy forces in Kompong Thom province issued an order saying that any unit capturing a foreign journalist in Cambodia will be rewarded $1,000,'' said a statement issued by the Bangkok office of resistance leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

''Why is (Cambodian Premier) Hun Sen opposed to foreign journalists traveling with the resistance?'' the statement asked.

The reward offer could not be immediately confirmed with the Cambodian government.

Foreign journalists have occasionally accompanied resistance groups on trips through the Cambodian countryside. Sometimes the same reporters have visited Phnom Penh to report on both sides of the 11-year-old conflict.

The Sihanouk-led group, together with its two allies - the Beijing-backed Khmer Rouge and the U.S.-backed Khmer People's National Liberation Front - are fighting the Phnom Penh government installed by the 1978 Vietnamese invasion.

The resistance group also said it had made military progress in Kompong Thom province, 75 miles north of Phnom Penh during fighting this month.

The statement said the resistance killed 85 government troops, wounded 73, captured 31 and seized a large quantity of arms in Kompong Thom. Resistance casualties were ''very light,'' it said.

''Civilians in Kompong Thom town are gradually moving out to live in our liberated zones,'' the statement said.

Government troops stationed in the countryside have asked permission to retreat to the main towns, it said.

Meanwhile, Khmer Rouge radio said its forces killed 13 government troops June 28 north of Sisophon, a key town about 25 miles from the Thai border.

Government radio said its forces repulsed an attack in the same area on June 24, killing 10 guerrillas and wounding 13 others.

The government news agency said 88 guerrillas were killed in the last week of June in the three western provinces of Battambang, Siem Reap and Banteay Meanchey.

Analysts in Bangkok said there appears to have been an increase in resistance attacks since the rainy season began last month, but that battle reports from both sides are often exaggerated.

PANAMA CITY, PANAMA (JULY 5) UPI - Panama reduced Cuba's diplomatic representation to four members and threatened to sever ties completely if Cuba continues its ''hostile conduct'' toward President Guillermo Endara.

Foreign Minister Julio Linares issued the warning following the announcement Wednesday that the Cuban diplomatic mission in Panama will be cut down to a charge d'affaires and commercial, economic and consular attaches. The rest of the Cuban diplomatic corps has 10 days to leave the country.

Cuba has been highly critical of Endara's government, which led to the expulsion in March of Cuban Ambassador Lazaro Mora.

''If the Cuban government continues with the same line we will have to break relations. The first thing was to expel the ambassador, now we are reducing their diplomatic mission. We have no other way out,'' Linares told reporters.

''We have been giving proof of tolerance and flexibility,'' he said.

There was no immediate comment from the Cuban charge d'affaires about the order.

The Foreign Ministry said the expulsion was due to ''the repeated and systematic hostile conduct shown by the government of the Republic of Cuba against the legitimate, elected government of Panama, which has contributed to a deterioration of bilateral relations.''

Endara was installed as president during the U.S. invasion of Panama last December that ousted military ruler Manuel Antonio Noriega. Endara was considered the winner of May 1989 elections but the election was annulled under Noriega.

The Foreign Ministry cited Cuba's refusal shortly after the invasion to recognize the Endara government's ambassador to the United Nations. The Cuban ambassador said at the time the Endara government was ''not representative of the Panamanian people, but of those who seek to impose an invading force.''

On Jan. 5, Cuban Vice President Carlos Rafael Rodriguez reaffirmed his country's refusal to recognize the Endara government, the statement said.

The ministry cited several other occasions on which Cuba repeated its view that the Endara government was illegimate.

WIMBLEDON, ENGLAND (JULY 5) UPI - Zina Garrison, frustrated in 33 previous Grand Slam tournaments, Thursday upset defending champion Steffi Graf in three sets to become the final obstacle between Martina Navratilova and a record ninth Wimbledon singles crown.

The fifth-seeded Garrison, playing with the composure and consistency which had long eluded her, advanced to the first major final of her 11-year career with a 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 victory.

Second-seed Navratilova, 33, dispatched No. 4 Gabriela Sabatini 6-3, 6-4 to move within one match of the record she wants so much. The left-hander, who reached the final for the 11th time in 13 years, is tied with Helen Wills Moody with eight Wimbledon singles titles.

The odds will be heavily in Navratilova's favor Saturday. She has won 27 of 28 matches against Garrison, the only loss coming at the 1988 U.S. Open.

The 26-year-old Garrison always had struggled with her nerves and concentration but against Graf her play was impeccable.

''She didn't make any errors ... she was going for the right shots, doing the right things,'' said Graf, who blamed her own poor play for setting up Garrison's opportunites.

''I wasn't playing well at all, my serve wasn't working, I didn't feel comfortable. I was eager, I was ready, everything, but it wasn't my day at all,'' said the West German, a loser in three consecutive tournaments for the first time since 1986.

Garrison, who came into the match 1-5 against Graf, had not beaten her since 1985. But after the biggest victory of her career, she said ''the strange thing is, I was very relaxed.''

The Texan, who toppled French Open champion Monica Seles in the quarterfinals, stuck resolutely to her strategy of always playing the West German's backhand and rarely subjected herself to the powerful forehand. She came to net at every opportunity and had the speed necessary to cut off passing shots and chase down the deep placements which have brought Graf nine major titles.

Not since the 1987 Australian Open has a Grand Slam final been played without Graf, a string of 13 straight major tournaments.

Graf said her recent sinus problems were not a factor in her loss. She believes her departure opens the door for Navratilova.

''I think now it's pretty sure Martina's tournament. Zina doesn't have the game to beat Martina,'' said Graf.

Garrison, when told Graf's prediction, would only say, ''You get to a final like this on grass and anything can happen.''

In the third set, Garrison broke her opponent in the third game, blasting a backhand service return down the line to take the game at deuce. She served out the 2-hour, 4-minute match, winning her first match-point opportunity, at 40-15, with an ace down the middle.

''At first I intended to serve wide to her forehand,'' Garrison said. ''At the last moment my racket head went to the backhand. I guess it was meant to be.''

The first set was a keen display of Garrison's touch and talent. She recorded breaks in the third and fifth games, handed back a break in the sixth game then broke Graf again in the ninth game to take the set.

In the second set, Graf sharpened her game and began driving her service returns at Garrison's feet. The 21-year-old champion broke the American's serve in the fifth game, at deuce, to take a 3-2 lead and finished the set with another break, drilling a backhand crosscourt passing shot to take Garrison's serve at 30.

Navratilova downed Sabatini for the 13th time in 16 career meetings. The Czechoslovakian native executed her serve-and-volley game to perfection. Although the Argentine occasionally made brilliant shots, she never showed sufficient consistency to pose a challenge.

The first set featured five service breaks. Navratilova took a 4-0 lead, surrendered the next three games then won the next two to close out the set. The second set was on serve through the first six games, until Sabatini was broken at 30, Navratilova stroking a crosscourt backhand winner off the service return to take the game and then served out the set.

Sabatini, tennis' one-time rising star who has failed to win a Grand Slam, showed continued improvement on her serve-and-volley attack, suggesting that the long-time baseliner might eventually gain the long-awaited success by changing her style.

LONDON (JULY 5) UPI - Stock prices posted major losses Thursday on the London International stock exchange, following depressed corporate forecasts and a government warning that British interest rates might rise further.

The Financial Times Stock Exchange 100-share index lost 24.1 points to close at 2,331.4. The narrower Financial Times 30 index dropped 22.9 points to close at 1,858.2.

Volume was a moderate 386.8 million units, compared with 353 million shares Wednesday.

Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major told Parliament that British interest rates, already among the highest in Europe, would remain high and may have to be raised further.

County Natwest predicted that the FTSE index may drop to a range between 2,250 to 2,300 points this summer.

Dealers said the market drifted lower without any serious selling pressure. One dealer said investors remained very cautious in a market lacking both directions and strong activity.

The continued strength of the British pound depressed earnings forecasts for corporations which generate a significant share of their revenues from overseas operations.

Reckitt & Colman, one of Britain's largest exporters, fell 38 cents to $22.14. RMC, the largest producer of quarried minerals in Western Europe, lost 43 cents to $11.83, after its revenues from West Germany were eroded by the declining value of the deutsche mark against the pound.

Berisford International, the food and property group, declined 18 cents to $1.44 after it confirmed making large provisions for property losses in New York. The company later said it would put all of its business up for sale.

Banks were the exception to the depressed trend, on positive forecasts.

Midland gained up to 30 cents in the session on merger expectation with Hong Kong Bank, and ended the day up 14 cents to $5.39.

Elsewhere, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange closed lower.

The closely watched German Stock Index fell 10.95 points to end at 1,914.18.

OSLO (JULY 5) UPI - Confusion prevailed in North Sea oil fields Thursday as one oil company claimed a wildcat strike on a major offshore platform had been called off, but Norwegian oil workers denied they had returned to work.

Sander Bull-Gjertsen, spokesman for the Phillips Petroleum Co. said that a dozen strikers had ''surrendered unconditionally'' after two helicopters with fresh crews landed in the Ekofisk platform complex.

He said theoretically full production could be resumed Thursday.

But a spokeswoman for strikers on the Ekofisk platform, who insisted on anonymity, denied they were going back to work.

''We are waiting to see what the relief crews will do. Meanwhile, our strike continues,'' she said.

Spokesmen for the oil workers' collective union, OFS, said they couldn't confirm that the Ekofisk strike was about to end.

''We have no indications that the action there is over,'' the spokesman said, adding the situation was unlikely to be resolved for several hours.

Morten Woldsdal, spokesman for Norway's state-owned Statoil oil company, described the situation as ''confused.''

He said that if workers on Phillips' Ekofisk platform had gone back to work, this had not yet had any effect on wildcat strikes at the Statfjord, Gullfaks and Veslefrikk fields.

These three major fields were all operated by Statoil with crews predominantly belonging to the OFS union.

The wildcat strikes to protest the Norwegian government's decision to use compulsory arbitration to settle a bitter pay dispute, continued for the fourth day on Thursday with production of oil and gas creeping up towards 50 percent of the regular level.

Oil and gas production from the North Sea is a major source of income for the Norwegian government, bringing in about 150 million kroner, or $23 million, in taxation and interest revenue each day.

The center-right, minority-coalition government said the strike, which started Saturday, could deal the economy a crippling blow. It therefore introduced emergency legislation Monday to have the conflict settled by a compulsory arbitration board.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - Rasheeda Moore's former business partner became the third witness to testify about using cocaine with Mayor Marion Barry and prosecutors showed a tape Thursday on which Barry supported using undercover agents to catch drug users.

Barry's attorneys have contended he was entrapped by the FBI, which used Moore as bait to arrest him Jan. 18, but Assistant U.S. Attorney Judith Retchin said Barry's statements at a Sept. 26, 1986, news conference show that the entrapment defense is a ''facade.''

Retchin played jurors a videotape of Barry promoting the use of undercover operations against the drug trade.

''We want every drug buyer to know that the next drug buy might be from a police officer,'' Barry said a the time, adding he had ''no sympathy for those who are crybabies'' about the use of undercover officers.

In addition to the tape, jurors heard Carol Bland Jackson, testify that Barry snorted cocaine ''through the nose, with a straw,'' at an apartment in the summer of 1986.

Jackson's testimony follows claims from Moore and former city worker Charles Lewis that they also used cocaine with Barry. Moore and Lewis had both initially testified before a grand jury that they did not use drugs with Barry, then changed their stories.

Jackson was the sixth woman to testify at Barry's drug and perjury trial and like the previous five, she said Barry made sexual advances.

''He made several sexual advances to me, which I declined,'' she said.

Moore, Barry's former lover, testified during five days on the stand that she and Barry used cocaine more than 100 times during a three-year period. She also led jurors through an 83-minute government videotape, on which Barry is seen taking two long drags from a crack cocaine pipe before his Jan. 18 arrest in a sting operation.

Jackson, a former model like Moore who now works as an admissions representative at a Virginia trade school, testified she was co-founder of Project Me, which she and Moore set up with a $180,000 government contract to teach city youth self esteem in 1986 and 1987.

Moore had testified Barry personally promised her the contract would be approved, and then threatened to terminate it when Moore broke off their sexual relationship in 1988.

Jackson testified she became program director of Project Me, which she said focused on teaching inner city youngsters hair care, skin care and makeup.

Barry, on trial for 14 drug and perjury counts, faces up to 26 years in prison and fines of up to $1.85 million if convicted. He has not been charged with corruption, but Moore's testimony followed published reports that a new grand jury is looking at the city's contracting process and whether Barry ever traded contracts for drugs or sex.

Defense attorney Robert Mance asked that the videotape of the news conference be struck from the record, claiming it could show Barry as ''hypocritical.'' But U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson allowed the testimony to be admitted.

Also Thursday, a federal appeals court denied a motion filed by the American Civil Liberties Union opposing Judge Jackson's barring of two controversial black religious figures from the courtroom.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals ruled that Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan and Imani temple founder George Stallings must themselves make a formal request to Judge Jackson to be allowed into court before the appeals court would again consider the case.

Jackson barred both men from the trial last week as potentially ''disruptive'' and ''intimidating'' forces, but only Barry's attorney had asked that they be allowed to enter.

The ACLU said barring them violated Barry's constitutional right to a public trial.

CHICAGO (JULY 5) UPI - More babies born extremely underweight appear to be surviving but the severity of the infants' handicaps may be increasing along with the survival rate, researchers reported Thursday.

A study of more than 200 babies at the University of Washington medical center in Seattle found the death rate for infants born weighing less than 1 pound, 12 ounces, fell from 80 percent in 1977-1980 to 64 percent in 1983-1985.

However, the improvements in survival appeared to go hand-in-hand with an increase in the severity of brain damage among the babies.

''Prevalence of major central nervous system handicaps did not significantly differ between the two study groups, but severity of handicap was worse for the current (1983-85) study group,'' the researchers wrote in a study published in the journal Pediatrics.

In the current group, infants delivered by Caesarean section - in which the baby is surgically removed from the mother's abdomen - scored significantly higher on cognitive tests than did low-weight infants delivered vaginally.

Like past research, the Seattle study found female babies were more likely than males to survive the life-threatening complications of low birth weight.

In addition, underweight twins fared worse than underweight babies born singly. About 80 percent of twins in the 1983-85 group died and 67 percent of those who survived suffered major handicaps, researchers said.

In the 1983-85 group, the cut-off weight for survival appeared to be about 1 pound 5 ounces, with four of 25 infants in that weight category surviving. No baby weighing less than 1 pound 2 ounces survived.

An infant's chance of survival increased along with birth weight. For example, 29 percent of babies weighing between 1 pound 5 ounces and 1 pound 8 1/2 ounces survived, compared with a survival rate of 42 percent among infants weighing between 1 pound 10 ounces and 1 pound 12 ounces.

The 1977-80 group included 95 babies, while the 1983-85 group consisted of 128 infants.

PRAGUE, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (JULY 5) UPI - Vaclav Havel, the playwright who led the November ''Velvet Revolution'' that ousted Czechoslovakia's communist leadership, was re-elected Thursday as the nation's president.

Havel was named on 234 of 284 ballots in a vote by the Federal Assembly, Czechoslovakia's parliament. He will serve two years.

Havel was initially elected Dec. 29 to a six-month term as the nation's first non-communist president since 1948, just six weeks after he led the Civic Forum coalition of pro-democracy forces to overthrow 42 years of Communist Party rule.

''I promise you that within the range of my power, abilities and possibilities, I will do everything for us to successfully live through this period so that a better future may appear for our country,'' Havel told supporters in a nationally televised speech lasting barely a minute.

The selection of Havel, the diminutive playwright who inspired the largely non-violent revolution, was widely anticipated. The only other candidate was Slovak actor Stefan Kvietik, who was nominated by the Slovak National Party.

Havel was nominated Tuesday for re-election as a candidate of Civic Forum and Public Against Violence by Deputy Rudolf Battek.

After the election results were announced Thursday, the audience in Parliament stood as Havel entered the hall to the overture from Bedrich Smetana's opera ''Libuse.''

Havel, dressed in a dark suit and a maroon tie, looked around shyly as he stood, placing his left hand on the Czechoslovak Constitution to take the oath of office.

After signing the oath with a black fountain pen - leaving off the small heart that usually adorns his autograph - Havel and the crowd rose for the Czechoslovak national anthem, ''Where Is My Home.''

Afterward, Havel joined Defense Minister Miroslav Vacek in the courtyard to review the Castle guard and other army units, as the Prague Castle band resplendent in red tunics, played Leos Janacek's "Symphonietta.''

Television viewers were given a glimpse of a 1935 12-cylinder black Tatra-80 touring car, built for the country's first president, Tomas Garrigue Masaryk, and newly restored.

Since he was first elected in December, Havel has taken great pains to rebuild the dignity and symbols of the presidential office, demeaned under 40 years of Communist rule.

Havel has been given high marks for strengthening the presidency in his first six months.

''Vaclav Havel did a very good job, introduced an original way of work, and showed extreme courage even when he alone was responsible for the government's policy. He has shown a path to future presidents,'' said Milan Cic, a former high-ranking Communist who became premier of the Slovak government after the revolution in November.

Havel was expected later in the afternoon to address the nation briefly from a castle balcony and then to host a public party.

The Castle grounds were open to tens of thousands of supporters, with Havel serving sausages and beer to the crowds, and entertainment by magicians, clowns and musicians.

Last week, Havel and Prime Minister Marian Calfa named a new government of ''national sacrifice'' which is expected to press on with the rapid reform program of Calfa's previous ''government of national consensus.''

Calfa told Parliament Tuesday that Czechoslovakia's economic reforms will move forward at full speed.

He said the government would take ''the only road possible:'' democratizing society, introducing a market economy and a spirit of competition, freeing prices and foreign trade, introducing internal convertibility of the crown, privatizing most state enterprises and developing private enterprise.

Calfa also said Czechoslovakia would remain in the Warsaw Pact. Last week, the Hungarian parliament voted to leave the Warsaw Pact by the end of 1991.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (JULY 5) UPI - Susanne Albrecht, one of West Germany's most wanted terrorist suspects, was transferred Thursday from East Germany after telling authorities she was willing to stand trial, officials said.

Hans-Juergen Foerster, spokesman for the West German prosecutor general's office, said Albrecht, 39, will appear before a judge in the central city of Karlsruhe for preliminary proceedings.

He did not say whether Albrecht was taken directly to Karlruhe or when she will stand trial.

After her arrest in East Germany in June, Albrecht admitted she had been a member of the ultra left-wing Red Army Faction.

She is charged with participating in the assassination of Dresdner Bank head Juergen Ponto and a rocket bomb attack on the federal attorney's office in 1977 by the Red Army Faction.

Albrecht's East German attorney, Wolfgang Vogel, who has played a major role in several East-West spy swaps, said he will not represent Albrecht in West Germany.

''I do not have any experience in court cases involving the RAF,'' Vogel said. A West German attorney from Hamburg will represent Albrecht, he said.

Albrecht was arrested in East Germany in June, the first of eight Red Army Faction members to be arrested. They had lived there up to 10 years under the protection of the Stasi, the secret police of the former communist government.

Albrecht, who is married and has a 7-year-old child in East Germany, volunteered to stand trial in West Germany after telling German authorities she was no longer a member of the RAF.

''This is the best thing Susanne Albrecht can do,'' said Vogel, a longtime confidante of the now-disgraced communist government in East Germany.

After the June arrests, the West German government had asked East German authorities to extradite the eight extremists, but East Berlin hesitated because the legal grounds for such a move were still unclear.

When Albrecht protested last week, the East Berlin district court lifted the order to hold her in custody until extradition.

(JULY 5) UPI - Diplomatic sources in London say President Bush is proposing today that NATO leaders meeting in the British capital invite Soviet President Gorbachev to a future NATO meeting. The action also would extend to other Warsaw Pact leaders as a sign of the non-aggressive posture being taken by the Western alliance. The NATO meeting opened today with the top alliance official declaring- quoting now- ''The Cold War belongs to history.''

The playwright who led Czechoslovakia's so-called ''Velvet Revolution'' last November was re-elected today as president. Vaclav Havel was named on 234 of the 284 ballots cast in a vote by the Czech parliament. His re-election was expected. The only other presidential was a Slovak actor, nominated by the Slovak National Party. Havel is a playwright who inspired the largely non-violent movement that ousted the Communist Party after some 40 years of rule.

The Yugoslav state radio says the Republic of Serbia dissolved the government of the rebellious province of Kosovo, where ethnic Albanians declared independence. The report says the Serbian republic assumed control of the province under a two-week-old law that provides for such action under ''special circumstances.'' The report says the Serbs fired the Albanian executives and managers of the government-run radio and television stations.

The 28th Communist Party Congress got down to business today in Moscow, dividing into seven ''working groups'' to deal with socio-economic, agrarian and international policies. The news agency Tass characterized the workshops as ''a novelty in Soviet Communist Party Congres proceedings.'' During yesterday's meeting, President Gorbachev tied his fate to the success of his perestroika reforms.

(JULY 5) UPI - The Washington Post says P-L-O chief Yasser Arafat was told by the Bush administration that talks may resume if he accepts a U-S-Egyptian plan to discipline those involved in an abortive Israeli raid. The paper quotes diplomatic sources as saying the plan calls for the P-L-O to punish the Palestine Liberation Front, a radical P-L-O faction, by dumping its leader Abu Abbas from the P-L-O executive committee.

A skyrocket launched in the finale of a fireworks display in Torrington, Connecticut, last night went astray and exploded in a screaming crowd. Authorities say 19 people were injured, including a three-year-old boy who suffered third-degree burns and is hospitalized in serious condition. They say about five-thousand people were watching the fireworks display, which marked the Fourth of July and the city's 250th birthday.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (JULY 5) UPI - Engineers in California geared up Thursday for critical tests Friday and Saturday to pinpoint a fuel leak that grounded the shuttle Columbia, with workers in Florida trying to trace another leak aboard the shuttle Atlantis.

''I think by this time next week, you should start seeing some concrete results,'' said Leonard Nicholson, deputy director of the shuttle program and the NASA manager in charge of the leak investigation.

While NASA's launch schedule remains up in the air, it appears unlikely Atlantis can be ready for takeoff before mid-August and equally unlikely Columbia can get off the ground before the shuttle Discovery's high-priority Oct. 5 launch to ferry the Ulysses solar probe into space.

Working around the clock, NASA and contractor engineers across the nation are reviewing manufacturing records, flight histories, assembly procedures and the design of critical 17-inch-wide fuel line fittings to find out what caused the leaks aboard Atlantis and Columbia.

Columbia's planned launch May 30 on a 10-day astronomy flight was called off just six hours before liftoff when hydrogen gas was detected spewing into the ship's engine compartment. Atlantis's mid-July launch on a military mission was put on hold after a similar leak showed up during a test last week.

In both cases, the leaks were traced to a massive 17-inch disconnect fitting where fuel lines from the external tank enter the belly of the space shuttle.

The disconnect assembly allows the tank to be safely jettisoned after reaching space. It is made up of valves and plumbing mounted inside the shuttle, along with matching hardware on the external tank.

Both halves of Columbia's disconnect fitting were removed and flown to a Rockwell International test facility in Downey, Calif., for critical tests Friday and Saturday to isolate the leak. The tests originally were planned for Thursday but preparations took longer than expected.

With the disconnect hardware hooked back up in a simulated launch configuration, engineers planned to pump room-temperature gases through the system Friday followed Saturday by a test using supercold liquid hydrogen.

Engineers are hopeful they can duplicate the leak under laboratory conditions and, using a variety of sensors, pinpoint the problem area, something they could not do with the shuttle on the launch pad.

Back at the Kennedy Space Center, engineers are gearing up to pump supercold liquid hydrogen back aboard Atlantis's external tank next week to further isolate the location of a leak in the 17-inch disconnect fitting that showed up during a similar test last Friday.

Regardless of the leak's exact location, the fact that it involves the disconnect fitting means Atlantis, like Columbia before it, will have to be hauled from the launch pad to the Vehicle Assembly Building so the ship can be removed from the tank to give engineers access to the suspect hardware.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - The Bureau of Prisons denied Thursday that a prison inmate was held incommunicado four days before the 1988 presidential election to silence his allegation that he sold marijuana to Vice President Dan Quayle.

The prisoner, held in a federal prison in El Reno, Okla., was placed in a special punishment cell on the orders of Bureau of Prisons Director J. Michael Quinlan, a highly unusual move.

But Bureau of Prisons spokesman Greg Bogdan said the convict - Brett Kimberlin - was ordered into special detention because there were concerns about his safety, not as a result of his allegations about the vice president.

Kimberlin has filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court alleging that Quinlan and former Justice Department spokesman Loye W. Miller Jr. conspired to silence him to protect the Republican ticket of George Bush and Quayle.

Miller would not comment.

Kimberlin, who is serving a 50-year sentence for drug smuggling and participating in a series of 1978 bombings in Speedway, Ind., says he smoked marijuana with Quayle at a fraternity party in Bloomington, Ind., in 1971.

He also says he sold marijuana to Quayle more than a dozen times during the next several years.

A spokesman for Quayle has denied that the vice president used marijuana and Kimberlin has offered no corroboration for his story.

Kimberlin's suit said he was placed in ''administrative detention'' and barred from talking to reporters four days before the 1988 election.

He was allowed out after one day but then ordered back into a punishment cell on the morning of the Nov. 7 election to prevent him from calling reporters gathered at a Washington hotel to hear his story, the lawsuit said.

Bodgan, the Bureau of Prisons spokesman, said Kimberlin was placed in the punishment cell on Quinlan's orders after the Justice Department spokesman learned from a reporter that the prisoner feared for his safety.

If the Bureau of Prisons had wanted to silence Kimberlin, Bogdan said, it would not have allowed NBC News to conduct a videotaped interview with him before he was first placed under detention.

Federal prisons officials learned from the reporter that Kimberlin feared for his safety, Bogdan said. But the reporter from whom the information allegedly came denied ever making such a statement and added ''it was very clear to me they were looking for an excuse'' to keep Kimberlin from talking to reporters.

Kimberlin's contacts with reporters were known to have been closely monitored by top officials of the Bush-Quayle campaign, The Washington Post reported.

PANAMA CITY, Panama (JULY 5) UPI - Aviation authorities began a search

Thursday for a twin-engine plane carrying 10 people that disappeared on a flight between the city of Colon and the capital, civil aviation authorities said.

The Twin Otter 300 plane operated by the Aeroperlas airline left Colon Thursday at 7:17 a.m. on what should have been a 15- to 17-minute flight to Panama City, and the alarm was raised when it failed to arrive at its destination, Panama's Civil Aviation Board said.

A spokesman for the board said the plane was carrying eight passengers, as well as pilot Warren Lam, 33, and co-pilot Sergio Ortiz, 26.

A search of the route failed to produce any leads on what happened to the plane.

The spokesman said seven of the passengers were Panamanians, and the eighth, Winston Hankok, was foreign, although his nationality was not given.

An Aeroperlas Twin Otter 200 crashed into the sea off Contadora Island in April, killing 20 people. Only a woman and a boy survived that crash.

BOSTON (JULY 5) UPI - A controversial homosexual rights law enacted last year cannot be overturned by a referendum proposed for the ballot this fall, Massachusetts' highest court ruled Thursday.

The law, approved after a 17-year legislative battle, bars discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation in employment, housing, credit or public accomodation.

The split decision by the Supreme Judicial Court agreed with a previous ruling by Attorney General James Shannon, who refused to certify the proposed initative petition to overturn the law.

Shannon had ruled the new law was not subject to the referendum process because it contained language exempting religious organizations. Under the state constitution matters pertaining to religion fall under the exclusive jurisdiction of the Legislature.

A group calling itself Citizens for Family First filed suit in Suffolk Superior Court to overturn Shannon's decision, accusing the attorney general of refusing to allow voters to decide a crucial issue of public policy.

''The court's decision will spare the commonwealth from one of the ugliest most divisive and nastiest campaigns this state has ever seen,'' said Arline Issacson, co-leader of the Massachusetts Gay and Lesbian Political Caucus.

''To date it's been a campaign of misinformation, scare tactics and trying to raise the level of prejudice and homophobia,'' she said. ''Thank God they won't get a chance to do that.''

Spokesmen for those backing the suit were not immediately available for comment.

The suit argued that the religious exclusion in the constitution did not apply because the new law had no real effect on religious organizations.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) UPI - The first emergency technician to treat a woman jogger who had been raped and beaten in Central Park said Thursday the woman was so near death her pulse and blood pressure were undetectable.

Former Emergency Medical Services technician Estelle Paris told a jury in the trial of three youths in state Supreme Court in Manhattan the woman was lying in a pool of water in an isolated area of the park, her half-naked body bloody and mud-splattered.

''Her hair was matted, blooded, dirty. There was blood all over her face '' Paris testified. ''There was a large, eight-inch gash on the left side of her head. Both eyes were swollen shut, there were bruises on both cheeks. Her lips were bloodied. There were scratch marks on her chin. The skin was torn off.

The jury appeared shaken by Paris's description of the moonlit early morning discovery on April 20, 1989, after she received a call on her police radio.

Paris was the second witness to describe the victim's condition following the ''wilding'' rampage by a gang of youths through the northern end of the park.

The brutality of the attack and the ages of the youths charged with assaulting the woman, a 29-year-old investment banker, shocked a city accustomed to violent crime.

On trial are Antron McCray, 16, Raymond Santana, 15, and Yusef Salaam, 16. All three are charged with 13 criminal counts, including attempted murder, rape and sodomy.

If convicted, each faces a maximum sentence of five to 10 years imprisonment. All three were juveniles at the time of the attack. Other youths face similar charges and are awaiting trial.

Paris said the woman's pulse was ''so light'' she was unable to detect it at the wrist. She finally discovered a faint pulse at the artery in her neck.

She said she was unable to take the jogger's blood pressure at the site and had to wait until the woman was inside an ambulance on her way to Metropolitan Hospital.

''She was very cold, cold to the touch,'' Paris testified.

She said the jogger's left eye was so swollen shut she could not open it and there was no response when a light was shone into her right eye, indicating brain damage.

The woman, Paris said, was thrashing around while the technicians tried to treat her and she was ''slipping in and out of consciousness. Her elbows contracted and her knees contracted.''

Prosecutor Elizabeth Lederer then held up the jogger's bloodied running jersey and asked Paris to demonstrate how it had been binding and gagging the woman when she was found.

Paris twisted the sleeves and placed it in front of her face.

The former technician also identified the jogger's bloodied running bra, which was all she was wearing when she was found.

Paris was expected to be cross-examined by attorneys for the three defendants during the afternoon.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (JULY 5) UPI - A Soviet man hijacked a Tupolev 154 airliner with 178 people aboard Thursday, forced the plane to fly to Stockholm and surrendered to Swedish police upon landing.

He was the third Soviet hijacker to fly to Stockholm in less than a month. Two Soviet planes have been seized and brought to Helsinki since June 19.

The Tupolev 154 was on its way from Leningrad to Lvov in the Ukraine when the unidentified man took command of the plane.

''He told the captain he had explosives but it was a lie,'' said a police spokesman at the Arland airport outside Stockholm.

The hijacker surrendered to police less then an hour after landing and was taken to a police station for questioning. Police were also interrogating a passenger who talked with the hijacker during the flight.

No one on the airplane was injured, the police spokesman said.

Four weeks ago Dimitriy Semyonov, 17, hijacked a Soviet airliner and forced it to fly to Sweden. On Saturday, Anatoliy Mihkaylenko, 19, hijacked another plane to Sweden. The two are in police custody.

Both say they wish to stay in Sweden. Swedish authorities have yet to decide it they will be extradited to the Soviet Union.

The Swedish Pilots' Association and the Swedish Air Controllers' Association demanded extradition of the two Soviets to thwart further hijackings.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - Czechoslovakia may qualify to receive World Bank loans when it becomes a member of the multilateral organization, a bank official said this week.

The Central European country, which recently applied for membership in the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, could be accepted at the time of the annual meeting of both financial institutions in September, World Bank Vice President Moeen Qureshi told reporters this week. Qureshi's remarks were made during presentation of the bank's report on its fiscal year 1990 lending.

Czechoslovakia's per capita income has been variously calculated above the $4,000 level the World Bank has established as the limit for a country to qualify for lending.

Qureshi said that a recent IMF-World Bank mission to Czechoslovakia has made a preliminary estimate of the country's per capita income at about $4,000, depending on the exchange rate used.

There are "two criteria" to qualify for World Bank lending - income per capita and access to private lending, which Czechoslovakia currently lacks. On the basis of both criteria, Czechoslovakia may well qualify to receive World Bank loans, Qureshi said.

The World Bank lends for economic reform programs and development projects. The IMF provides short- and medium-term loans to any country with shortfalls in its balance of payments, and also lends in support of economic reforms in the poorest countries.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) UPI - The U.S. electronics industry showed signs of renewed strength in June, boosted by a wave of new orders, an industry survey said Thursday.

"An unusually strong 4.6 point increase in the new-orders index, from 46.4 to 51, raised the overall Quest index from 47.4 in May to 48.7" in June, said the Quest Index Report, an industry survey compiled monthly by the business publication Electronic Buyers' News.

A reading above 50 indicates economic expansion, while a reading below 50 indicates sluggish activity or recession. The report predicted that the Quest index should rise above 50 by the fall.

"Even though competition is fierce and the economy soft, we expect the fall to be busier, more profitable," the report said. "That the Quest index has not yet reached 50 despite hopeful signs of recovery in the second half is indicative of the industry's conservative mind-set."

"Despite its new orders and bidding optimism, the electronics industry still fared worse than the economy as a whole in June, with the Quest Index at 48.5, and the National Association of Purchasing Managers' Index, which measures the entire economy, at 51.1," the report said.

"The military sector is a continuing drag on both the electronics industry and the general economy. Defense Department budget cutting is taking its toll," the report added.

PASADENA, CA (JULY 5) UPI - Ralph M. Parsons Co. said Thursday it has been awarded a $125 million contract to help clean up the Department of Energy's Fernald, Ohio, uranium production plant.

Parsons said the agency's 11-year contract calls for it to provide engineering services for an "environmental remediation action project" at the facility, where production has been suspended since last July to focus on acleanup and on bringing the site into compliance with regulations. The plantmaintains the capability to produce uranium products.

Parsons spokeswoman Debra Williams said the contract is one of the largest awarded by the Energy Department in connection with a cleanup at one of its facilities.

Parsons said that the services it provides under the contract will serve as models for remediation projects at other facilities operated by the Energy Department. Williams said the contract will result in the the company adding about 400 jobs and opening a new subsidiary office in Cincinnati.

Parsons, a large privately held engineering-construction firm based in Pasadena, has previously performed work at the Fernald site but on a relatively small scale, Williams said.

The company said it will be responsible for designing environmental remediation and restoration projects based on the results of a study being conducted at the Fernald facility. Parsons said its affiliate companies, Charles T. Main Inc. and Engineering-Science Inc., will also perform the engineering services.

MONROVIA, LIBERIA (JULY 5) UPI - Government troops ransacked shops in Monrovia in an all-night looting and shooting spree Thursday, hours after the army chief of embattled President Samuel Doe fled the country as rebels tightened their grip on the crumbling capital.

Doe earlier met the U.S. ambassador, who has offered to help him flee rebel forces closing in on the capital, and fighting has penetrated the suburbs of Monrovia.

Doe's troops shot their way into shops, warehouses and restaurants and emptied them in an overnight rampage into Thursday morning as rebels battled troops in the city's eastern and western suburbs for a fourth consecutive day.

A serious food shortage in the city forced people to beg for rice.

''Give us food, we are dying,'' one man pleaded.

As morning broke, frightened Monrovians ventured out into the deserted streets and discovered at least 16 bodies after the night's shooting.

Soldiers continued to roam the streets in stolen cars, firing into the air to frighten people away while they looted. They were the only vehicles on the streets, leaving dead and wounded civilians in their wake.

A man with three bullet wounds bled for four hours in the city's main waterfront market despite pleas to soldiers to carry him to the hospital.

The main John F. Kennedy Hospital, which like the rest of the city has been without water and power for more than a week, was abandoned by doctors and nurses and most of its patients.

Soldiers fired on fishermen in canoes off the coast, claiming they were transporting rebels of the National Patriotic Front of Liberia, led by Charles Taylor, a former government official turned guerrilla leader who says he wants to topple Doe and hold democratic elections.

The rebels have tightened their grip on the city and are between 3 and 10 miles from the fortified beachside mansion of President Doe.

Shipping sources said 250,000 tons of rice bound for the stricken capital was aboard a ship, The Sea Star, steaming nervously among U.S. Navy vessels waiting in international waters off Monrovia.

The captain refused to re-enter the port after the cargo was pilfered when it first put into Monrovia last week.

The sources also said 5,000 tons of rice had been landed at the rebel-held port of Buchanan. They said the British-owned Rizcup Enterprise was hijacked with the rice on board by rebels off Monrovia last week.

Health workers said children and old people in Buchanan were falling sick and risked dying of starvation last week.

Workers at a nearby rubber plantation were eating pig feed after all other supplies ran out.

There are thousands of residents and refugees displaced in and around the capital.

The refugees have been flocking during the past two months of heavy fighting to the Liberian agricultural company rubber plantation, 20 miles north of Buchanan. The plantation is the biggest American investment in Liberia, owned by Connecticut-based Keene Enterprises.

Monrovia's food shortage has forced people to forage for leaves and roots on patches of wasteland alongside the streets.

The rebels now control all roads into Monrovia.

Doe said Tuesday he would resign if his safety and that of his Krahn tribe were guaranteed, but so far he has shown no sign of leaving. The United States has offered to help him leave if he asks.

Doe's most trusted aide, Lt. Gen. Charles Julu, left the country Wednesday. Doe has been deserted by most of his advisers as the rebels have closed in on the capital.

Julu, head of Doe's executive mansion guard and also the armed forces chief, led government troops against an uprising in northern Liberia in 1985 when more than 2,000 civilians were killed.

Julu had been chief of staff for only a few days since the weekend resignation of Lt. Gen. Henry Dubar, who also has fled.

Soldiers looted even the main government stores, the General Services Agency, which rebel leader Taylor ran before fleeing Liberia to escape fraud charges. He launched the present rebellion in earnest late last year.

PHOENIX (JULY 5) UPI - A gunman opened fire Thursday in a Mormon church parking lot where about 120 children were boarding buses for camp, wounding an off-duty police officer and a woman. He later surrendered without incident.

No children were injured in the episode at the Phoenix 36 Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Police discounted reports that one or two other victims might have been taken to hospitals in private vehicles.

Steve Checketts, 43, an off-duty officer who was at the church with his family, was hit in the left arm and chest and was taken to John C. Lincoln Hospital in serious condition.

Rachel Beech, 47, was wounded in the left ankle and taken to Thunderbird Samaritan Hospital.

The gunman holed up in a nearby house for about 90 minutes, then surrendered.

''We don't have any motive at all,'' Police spokesman Leo Speliopoulos said. ''It was an indiscriminate, random shooting.''

Speliopoulos said the suspect carried no identification and, ''He has been quite uncooperative as far as furnishing any information about his name or his background.'' Police were working from fingerprints in an effort to identify the man.

Speliopoulos said the man, armed with a handgun, hid behind a dumpster in the southwest corner of the church parking lot and began shooting as about 120 children were preparing to board buses to go to a church camp.

''The buses were being loaded at the time with luggage and people were milling about,'' Speliopoulos said.

After the 7 a.m. shooting, the man fled to a house about a block away, where he apparently had been staying with an acquaintance for a couple of days, Speliopoulos said. Several people were in the house, but they left and police negotiators persuaded the suspect to surrender.

CHICAGO (JULY 5) UPI - United Airlines said Thursday negotiations on acquiring new aircraft have been suspended temporarily. A published report said the carrier was close to signing a record deal to buy about $15 billion worth of wide-bodied jets.

United, in a statement to employees, said it suspended the talks with airframe and engine manufacturers at the request of United Employee Acquisition Corp., the organization formed by the airline's unionized workers to try to buy United and parent UAL Corp.

The talks were put off until Aug. 9, the deadline by which the employee group must have secured financing commitments to move forward with a proposed $4.4 billion takeover.

A Thursday report in the San Francisco Chronicle said the airline was close to placing an order for about $15 billion worth of wide-bodied jets, possibly from the Seattle-based Boeing Co.

Boeing, a long-time supplier to United, is the leading contender for the huge contract but faces competition from rivals Airbus and McDonnell Douglas Corp., the newspaper, citing "informed" sources, reported.

United's new order, which would come on top of its $16 billion order in April for narrow-bodied Boeing jets, is expected to cover as many as 150 planes. The contract could be the last major business decision for United's present management and Chairman Stephen Wolf.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) UPI - Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent Thursday ordered the New York Yankees to pay $200,000 to the California Angels for violating Major League rules against tampering.

Vincent also fined the Yankees $25,000 for remarks owner George Steinbrenner made in respect to the May 11 deal that sent outfielder Dave Winfield to the Angels for pitcher Mike Witt.

''Mr. Steinbrenner's statement that Mr. Winfield would be welcomed back to the Yankees if he won the arbitration and should play on a full-time basis was clearly improper,'' Vincent said in a statement released by Major League Baseball.

Vincent's action came the same day he met with Steinbrenner regarding the Yankees owner's relationships with Winfield and admitted gambler Howie Spira.

Spira pleaded innocent to an eight-count federal indictment charging an extortion attempt against Steinbrenner. Spira has said he received $40,000 from Steinbrenner in exchange for information to discredit Winfield.

Steinbrenner first claimed he gave Spira the money to help him ''straighten out his life,'' then said he did so to protect Yankees employees from damaging information Spira may have had.

Baseball's Basic Agreement gives Vincent the authority to investigate ''any act, transaction or practice charged, alleged or suspected to be not in the best interest of the game of baseball.''

Spira, charged in an eight-count indictment in U.S. District Court, was released on a $50,000 personal recognizance bond. The former freelance radio reporter allegedly threatened Steinbrenner in phone calls and letters between April 1989 and March 1990.

Outside the Manhattan courtroom, Spira, 31, referred all questions to his lawyer, David Greenfield, saying only when asked if he was still a Yankees fan, ''Absolutely and I wish George a belated happy birthday.'' Steinbrenner turned 60 July 4.

The suit was brought by U.S. attorneys in Tampa, Fla., and transferred to New York, where Spira and his lawyer are based. Spira was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Leonard Bernikow and assigned to Judge John Sprizzo.

However, at a pre-trial conference later in the day, Sprizzo said he may refuse the case because he has been a guest of Steinbrenner's at Yankee Stadium and he is friendly with Steinbrenner's lawyer, Stephen Kauffman.

''I know something about the baseball commissioner because I've discussed this informally with Steve. He's a good friend of mine,'' Sprizzo said.

The judge said if Steinbrenner were a witness in the case, it would be up to the jury to determine the team owner's credibilty.

Sprizzo is known for taking a stern approach to government prosecutions, throwing out those he deems improper.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Gregory Kehoe and defense attorney Greenfield each said they have no objections to Sprizzo continuing as judge but he urged them and Spira to think carefully about it and gave them until July 23 to reconsider.

Vincent hired John Dowd, who handled the Pete Rose investigation, to examine Steinbrenner's relationship with Winfield and with Spira. The focus of that investigation has shifted from Steinbrenner's involvement with Spira to whether he coerced Winfield to agree to a trade.

Investigators have already taken depositions from current and former team employees, including at least one former manager and two former general managers, a baseball official said.

According to one of the employees questioned, the investigation focused not on Steinbrenner's dealings with Spira but on his relationship with Winfield.

The Yankees signed Winfield in 1980 to a 10-year contract that was valued at $23 million. Their relationship, however, quickly soured and Steinbrenner repeatedly questioned his player's ability to perform in the clutch.

The main source of contention was Steinbrenner's failure to contribute to the David M. Winfield Foundation, a non-profit organization. Steinbrenner had agreed to contribute $300,000 a year, and Winfield sued. The owner filed a countersuit, saying Winfield had fallen behind in payments and that he had paid personal expenses for himself and friends from the foundation's funds.

The issue was settled out of court last September but that did not end the disputes.

On May 11, the Yankees announced Winfield had been traded to the California Angels. Winfield refused to report until a day before the matter was to go before an arbitrator.

Winfield accepted a 3-year, $9.1 million contract from the Angels and the Yankees agreed to pay $50,000 to the Winfield Foundation as damages for the six days lost while the trade was in dispute.

ERBA, ITALY (JULY 5) UPI - West German Coach Franz Beckenbauer knows all about the tension of a World Cup final. He's been there twice before.

''There is no more pressure than in Mexico (in 1986),'' Beckenbauer said Thursday, one day after his team defeated England in a semifinal shootout in Turin. ''It's the World Cup and the pressure is the same.''

By eliminating England, West Germany became the first country to qualify for three straight World Cup finals. The West Germans lost to Italy in 1982 and Argentina in 1986.

Beckenbauer coached the losing finalist in 1986 and captained the West German team that won the 1974 World Cup.

''I would like to win the trophy for the team,'' he said. ''I have already had my success,'' he said. ''It is part of the German character to succeed in these circumstances.''

The West German coach praised the way his team played Wednesday against England, adding this is the best West German team since 1974 and that his players had done only positive things for soccer.

He gave no clues about his starting lineup for the 1986 rematch in Rome with Argentina, but indicated his injured players must prove they are healthy.

''There is no point in having players on the field who are not 100 percent fit,'' he said. ''Nobody will play Sunday who is not fit.''

Before the England match, there were questions about Klaus Augenthaler (knee ligament) and Thomas Haessler (thigh pull).

But striker Rudi Voeller is probably the biggest doubt. He damaged a nerve in his right calf, temporarily paralyzing the leg. He was replaced by Karlheinz Riedle in the 38th minute, but Voeller said after the game he felt fine.

Haessler was replaced by Stefan Reuter after he damaged an Achilles tendon. However, Haessler said Thursday he did not think his heel was a problem.

Augenthaler still has knee problems, although he played the full 120 minutes against England.

Argentina will be without four suspended players: Claudio Caniggia (the scorer against Italy), Ricardo Giusti, Sergio Batista and Julio Olarticoechea.

''If they bring in some young players, they will go at it from the first second,'' Beckenbauer said. ''It is a final and the atmosphere could inspire them.''

Beckenbauer said the subdued atmosphere for most of the game in Turin should not prevail in Rome.

''Perhaps it was because Italy is no longer in the tournament that the Italian fans did not take much part,'' he said. ''That should not make a difference Sunday. A final is a final. We have several Rome-based players who should help raise the Italian fans.''

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - The Environmental Protection Agency proposed new limits Thursday on 24 pollutants in drinking water, a move expected to require additional decontamination efforts by 2,300 water systems serving 2 million people.

The 24 substances include nine possible or probable cancer-causing agents, ranging from industrial wastes such as dioxin, solvents such as methylene chloride, and pesticides such as simazine, widely used on corn and soybeans.

Other health effects of the substances include damage to the heart, kidneys, liver, reproductive organs, brain and nervous system.

The new regulations, subject to review and posible revision, would take effect in the fall of 1993, and would be in addition to restrictions already imposed on 34 other water pollutants.

EPA officials said most of the 24 contaminants are rarely found in drinking water at dangerous levels, although they acknowledged there is little monitoring data about some of them.

They also said ground water surveys have found some cases of pesticide residues higher than allowed by the proposed limits.

However, the pollutant with the widest health impact of the 24 is sulfate, a metal that can cause stomach upset and diarrhea and is most dangerous to infants, the officials said.

Of the nation's 80,000 water systems, the EPA said an estimated 2,300, serving approximately 2 million people, would have to take additional decontamination measures to reduce excessive levels of one or more of the 24 substances.

About 1,100 of affected systems will have to take action against sulfate, which seeps into ground water from naturally occurring deposits of sulfur and from waste discharges from steel, metal and fungicide plants.

EPA officials said most sulfate-affected systems were in the Midwest and West due to greater prevalence of natural sulfur in those regions.

Sulfate causes an estimated 105,000 cases of travelers' diarrhea each year in the United States, EPA officials said, but poses a serious threat to infants, who can suffer dehydration from diarrhea, leaving them weak and more susceptible to other diseases.

The EPA estimated the cost of monitoring and controlling the 24 additional contaminants at $87 million, with $67 million of that amount going to address sulfate pollution.

It said most Americans would see little increase in their water bills, but that 1,700 small water systems - those serving 500 or less customers - could incur substantial costs, ranging from $60 to $1,750 per household.

The agency said it would consider various alternative enforcement plans to cushion the blow to customers of hard-hit systems.

The proposed limits are open to public comment for three months and final rules are scheduled to be issued by March 1992. The limits would take effect 18 months later.

The EPA officials said the long delay in imposing the new limits was due to the need to work with many smaller systems to cushion the costs of compliance. They also said other contaminant limits would soon be proposed with the goal of regulating a total of 85 pollutants by 1992.

The 24 pollutants regulated under Thursday's proposal are these:

-Six metals and minerals: Antimony, beryllium, cyanide, nickel, thallium and sulfate.

-Nine pesticides: Dalapon, dinoseb, diquat, endothall, endrin, glyphosate, oxamyl, picloram and simazine. Use of dinoseb and endrin have been banned by the EPA due to health concerns.

-Nine organic chemicals, typically solvents or industrial wastes: Methylene chloride, di-ethylhexyl-adipate, di-ethylhexyl phthalate, hexachlorobenzene, hexachloro-cyclopentadiene, benzo-a-pyrene, 1,2,4-trichlorobenzene, 1,1,2-trichloroethane and 2,3,7,8-TCDD, commonly known as dioxin.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) UPI - A man who uses a blowgun to shoot tiny darts at women on the crowded streets of Midtown Manhattan has hit more than two dozen victims, Police said Thursday.

''There have been more attacks,'' said Lt. Raymond O'Donnell, a police spokesman.

By Wednesday, police had confirmed 26 such attacks, with about half occurring near Pennsylvania Station since June 26.

O'Donnell said detectives planned to release a sketch late Thursday of the suspect, who they believe has used a large straw to blow homemade needle-darts into the backs and buttocks of women. Most of the attacks occur in the afternoon.

The two most recent attacks occurred Tuesday and were consistent with the pattern reported since women were first hit with the blow darts, O'Donnell said.

The Guardian Angels planned to beef up their patrols near Penn Station Thursday in an effort to prevent further attacks, spokeswoman Lisa Sliwa announced.

''We will distribute fliers in English and Spanish warning women about the attacks and warning the dart man, 'Turn yourself in or we will make a dartboard out of you,''' said a statement from the civilian patrol group.

Witnesses have said the man approaches his victims from behind on crowded sidewalks, blowing the darts from about about 10 feet away.

Police said they were preparing a sketch of the suspect, and reportedly hoped to have it ready for distribution by Thursday.

There have been no attacks reported on weekends or on the Fourth of July. Since the first attack June 26, there were three on June 27, six on June 28, seven last Friday, seven Monday and two Tuesday, police said.

Most assaults have occurred in the afternoon. In every incident, the victims have been white or light-skinned Hispanic women dressed in business attire and walking in the midtown area on a weekday.

(JULY 5) UPI - Hundreds of English soccer fans vented their rage at England's loss to West Germany in the World Cup semi-finals last night. Scotland Yard says fans rampaged in at least 12 towns, breaking windows and wounding about 10 police officers. There's NO official count of how many people were arrested in the violence, but one report says there were about 600 arrests.

In Torrington, Connecticut, an investigation is under way to determine just what caused a rocket to go astray in the grand finale of a Fourth of July fireworks display last night. Authorities say the rocket veered off into a crowd of about five-thousand spectators and exploded... injuring 19 people. Officials say it's NOT known whether the rocket was faulty or slipped off its holder as it was being launched.

China urges Western nations to take what it calls ''positive steps'' to improve ties with Beijing. The statement comes as a prelude to a ''Group of Seven'' industrialized nations summit next week in Houston. The Chinese government admits being hurt by the sanctions that were imposed by Western nations after last year's crackdown on the pro-democracy movement. A Chinese government spokesman says Beijing ''is always willing'' to improve ties with the West.

(JULY 5) UPI - The French tourism minister resigned in Paris amid revelations that he paid actors and students to cheer Socalist speakers at a conference he organized. French officials say the tourism chief resigned last night, but sources say he did so at the request of the Prime Minister Michel Rocard. The incident was highly embarrassing to authorities after a brouhaha over an amnesty law passed last year to protect lawmakers from prosecution for campaign financing irregularities.

Japanese authorities issued directives pressing for the nation to reduce its emphasis on material wealth to focus on the search for human fulfillment. The Ministry of International Trade and Industry issued a report saying Japan's high level of material wealth was accomplished by emphasizing production rather than human issues. It calls for Japan to change its focus to human fulfillment in the 1990's.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - Federal regulators said Thursday the government has initiated action seeking retribution and civil penalties of $24 million from the former chief executive of Columbia Savings and Loan Association, of Beverly Hills, Calif.

OTS Director Timothy Ryan said the administrative action requires Thomas Spiegel to repay Columbia $18.9 million for alleged misuse of corporate funds and thrift property.

The government is seeking an additional $5 million in civil penalties and an order to prohibit Spiegel from ever participating in a federally insured financial institution.

Ryan said this is the largest retribution ever sought by the agency against an individual. "This is a landmark action by OTS in more than sheer magnitude," he said at a news conference. "It exemplifies just how seriously we intend to pursue violations of fiduciary responsibilities to protect the taxpayer."

Regulators said Spiegel used the thrift's money for a variety of personal expenses including $7,000 worth of tickets to concerts by Michael Jackson and Steve Winwood, $2,000 for a French wine tasting course and several thousands of dollars for a collection of 55 guns.

The government order also seeks to force Spiegel to repay Columbia $2.8 million for a bonus that regulators have deemed unauthorized; $463,000 for personal travel expenses and entertainment costs and $6.4 million for maintaining aircraft and a luxury aircraft hangar for his personal benefit in a partnership with Michael Milken, the former junk bond guru of now bankrupt brokerage Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc.

Other expenses for which retribution is sought include $5.7 million for losses suffered by the thrift from $28 million in loans to Howard Schneider, a luxury car dealer and friend of Spiegel's, and $1.1 million for Spiegel's "unjust personal enrichment" stemming from his personal use of condominiums in Jackson Hole, Wyo., Indian Wells, Calif., and Park City Utah.

Joan Nichols, the OTS senior enforcement attorney in charge of the Columbia case, said the Jackson Hole condo was used exclusively for free by Milken and his brother Lowell, with Columbia footing the tab.

The action also seeks repayment of $2.3 million for unauthorized payments made by the thrift to the Columbia Savings Charitable Foundation, which was controlled by Spiegel.

"These charges present a classic case of a corporate officer who has used corporate funds to benefit himself and his associates," said Harris Weinstein, OTS chief counsel.

The agency issued a temporary cease and desist order against Spiegel requiring him to set up an escrow account to guarantee payment of the $24 million.

Columbia is struggling to avoid seizure by regulators by selling its $3 billion junk-bond portfolio after huge losses in that grouping wiped out all its capital. The thrift lost $591 million last year and $293.3 million in this year's first quarter.

Speigel left Columbia as chief executive late last year with the plan to act as a consultant to market the junk bonds, but cut his ties to the thrift several months ago.

At the company's annual meeting last month, Edward Harshfield, the company's president and chief executive officer, tried to distance himself from Speigel by saying that the thrift had been placed "in harm's way" by the previous management, rather than blaming the regulators. Ryan said Columbia's present management has been "fully cooperative" with federal regulators.

ATHENS, GREECE (JULY 5) UPI - Pilgrims flocked Jeddah airport in a rush to leave Saudi Arabia following the deaths of 1,426 Moslems in a tunnel disaster during the annual Islamic Haj pilgrimage, reports said Thursday.

Saudi and other Moslem officials in Mecca had difficulty identifying the bodies of the pilgrims killed in the disaster Monday, the reports said.

The Cairo newspaper Al Messa quoted returning Egyptians as saying pilgrims jammed Jeddah airport to return home.

El Siyyad Hassan, an engineer, said the pedestrian tunnel incident frightened pilgrims and ''we decided to return home ahead of schedule because our families were worried about us and we could not get in touch with them.''

Some 814 bodies of Indonesian, Turkish, Malaysian and Lebanese pilgrims killed in the tunnel were identified, but identification was difficult because the pilgrims carried no papers in the pocketless white robes they wore at the annual Haj rites.

The 1,426 Moslem pilgrims died in the tunnel, 8 miles from Mecca, in what Saudi officials said was a stampede that began when seven pilgrims fell off a bridge at one end of the tunnel.

A radio station run by the fundamentalist pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God, claimed that Saudi police trapped the pilgrims in the tunnel after they began a demonstration.

The radio, quoting unnamed African witnesses, said police threw firebombs into the tunnel and fired on the pilgrims. There was no confirmation from other sources, and Saudi Arabia ignored the Hezbollah claim.

Egyptian press reports quoting witnesses at the scene said Saudi police hurled oxygen bottles into the tunnel to keep the pilgrims from suffocating, and ropes to help fallen pilgrims drag themselves out.

The Cairo newspaper Al Akbar said the victims were mainly Indonesians, Malaysians, Indians and Pakistanis.

In Jakarta, Coordinating Minister of Social Affairs Supardjo Rustam said 541 Indonesian pilgrims died in the incident, and the death toll could rise with the positive identification of 21 more victims.

Another 350 victims were identified as Turks, from the Turkish emblems they wore on their robes, the semi-official Anatolia News Agency said in Ankara.

Anatolia quoted a Turkish official as saying some 280 of the bodies could not be identified by name because the robes had no pockets and the pilgrims carried no identification papers when they died in the tunnel.

Reports in Ankara said 73 Turkish pilgrims were still unaccounted for and another 67 were wounded in the incident.

In Kuala Lumpur, officials said 19 Malaysian pilgrims were killed, including 12 women and seven men. A Lebanese Foreign Ministry official in Beirut said at least four Lebanese pilgrims were killed and many others injured in the tunnel.

There was no immediate word from India or Pakistan on how many pilgrims from those countries were among the victims.

Egyptian Health Minister Ragheb Dowidar said after checks in Saudi hospitals that committees he set up found no casualties among Egyptian pilgrims.

Al Akbar, another Cairo newspaper, quoted a survivor as saying pilgrims shoved each other in panic to escape, and that he felt himself at times lying on bodies of other pilgrims, while some just missed trampling him.

Saudi state television said ambulances rushed to the scene after the disaster and rescue workers pumped oxygen into the tunnel to keep more pilgrims from suffocating.

Egyptian pilgrims who were at the site of the disaster said they saw a bus hit the tunnel's air conditioning system, knocking it out and aggravating the problems inside, where pilgrims died from the heat and lack of air.

Hassan said he was standing with other pilgrims about 200 yards from one end of the tunnel when the panic started, and saw pilgrims running out, screaming and gasping for breath.

He and others gave the survivors water and first aid until the Saudi ambulances arrived.

''We were shocked to see so many pilgrims killed,'' he said.

Mustafa al Salamouni, another Egyptian who returned to Cairo, said many of the victims were elderly people from Asia and Africa who preferred to use the tunnel because of the heat outside.

HELSINKI, FINLAND (JULY 5) UPI - The Palestine Liberation Organization will urge the Arab League to break the diplomatic relations with Finland and other countries that assist Jewish immigration to Israel, the PLO's representative in Finland said Thursday.

''Economic and political sanctions may also be discussed,'' said Zuheir al Wazir, the PLO representative in Finland.

Wazir held discussions with PLO foreign-political leader Farouk Kaddoumi in Tunisia after Finland's decision Tuesday to allow transit flights of Soviet Jews from Finland to Israel.

The Arab League foreign ministers were set to discuss the transit flights at a meeting in Tunis, July 16.

Finland has initially granted the Israeli airline El Al rights to land with four airplanes at the Lappeenranta airport, near the Soviet border. Each plane can carry 195 passengers.

However, Finland's Foreign Minister Pertti Paasio said a condition for the transit flights was that the immigrants do not settle on the occupied territories.

News reports in Finland said several hundred Jews had already been granted permission to leave for Israel through Finland by the Soviet authorities.

Some 10,000 Jews are living in the Leningrad area close to Finland, but the number wishing to leave Soviet Union through Finland was not immediately known.

Finland increased the security measures for its United Nations soldiers in Lebanon and between Israel and Syria on Wednesday, following harsh reactions to the transit from the PLO.

Finland has some 1,000 soldiers working in the United Nations peace-keeping forces in the Middle East.

PARIS (JULY 5) UPI - Curators closed five smaller Parisian museums to individual visitors Thursday after a daring art thief cut a masterpiece by French impressionist painter Auguste Renoir out of its frame at the Louvre Museum as tourists milled around during visiting hours.

Jacques Sallois, director of the museums of France, said curators' security policy would be examined following criticism by police that officials at the museums had treated it as ''a taboo subject'' in the past and been slow to use new techniques to prevent thefts.

Sallois, who started his job five weeks ago, said that five smaller museums in Paris would be closed to individual tourists and visitors pending a security review. They are the Eugene Delacroix, Gustave Moreau, Jean-Jacques Henner, the Hebert and Ennery. Group visits will be allowed.

Sallois said any number of rooms at the large museums, the Louvre, Orsay and Versailles, may be closed if security is found to be deficient.

He said he would hold a meeting with directors of museums next week to decide how to introduce new technology in security.

''I plan to take my inspiration from methods in use at the banks,'' he said.

Louvre Director Michel Laclotte said 135 attendants were on duty Wednesday at when the thief made his daylight raid and vanished with Renoir's ''Portrait of a Seated Woman.''

The work, executed between 1890 and 1895, measures only 14 by 10.8 inches. Officials at the museum said the thief used a knife to cut the canvas from its frame Wednesday afternoon. The painting was protected by an alarm, said the Louvre officials, but they offered no clue as to why it did not work.

Two other thefts were carried out in minor museums Wednesday in Paris and police said they did not rule out that the three might have been carried out by the same person or by a gang of art thieves.

A thief Wednesday afternoon stole Ernest Hebert's painting ''Monaluccia,'' painted around 1870, from the Left Bank museum named after the painter. An 1816 painting by French landscape artist Paul Huet, ''The Mills of Ice House,'' was stolen from the Carnavalet museum Wednesday morning.

Paris City Hall also said it was reinforcing security at museums administered by municipal authorities in the capital. Visitors will be obliged to leave bags, raincoats and cloaks in the cloakrooms of museums. The Carnavelet Museum is administered by the city of Paris.

Authorities for the first time last week published a list of paintings and sketches stolen from museums in France since 1979.

The Renoir theft was the most dramatic in France since the Oct. 27, 1985, theft by a gang of burglars of impressionist master Claude Monet's ''Impression of the Sun Rising'' from the Marmottan Museum in Paris, art experts said.

PENSACOLA, FL (JULY 5) UPI - Hundreds of UFO enthusiasts - from scientists and ministers to self-claimed abductees - are gathering in Pensacola for a weekend symposium about flying saucers and extraterrestrials.

The 21st annual Mutual UFO Network Symposium features a host of speakers and a tour of a suburb where residents claim to have seen UFOs, paralyzer beams, and diminutive aliens over the past few years.

Kathryn Ware, publicity chairwoman, said Thursday 720 people from across the United States and abroad are registered to attend the symposium Saturday and Sunday.

"Most of them are serious researchers, investigators, part of the MUFON organization," said Don Ware, eastern regional director of the private group that looks into reports of UFO sightings.

"We do get a number of other people, some apparently as a result of on-board experiences," said Ware, who did not know how many of the attendees claim to have been abducted by aliens.

Ware said past symposiums have attracted some undesirable elements. He said some vendors sold "kooky" art and other "far-out stuff" at past events. Ware said he did not expect any such vendors at the Pensacola symposium.

VIENNA (JULY 5) UPI - At least 112 more Albanians made a dash toward freedom Thursday, clambering over embassy walls in Tirana to join hundreds of their countrymen seeking asylum from the communist regime, diplomatic sources said.

The latest wave of refugees came as leaders of the United Nations and European Community called on Albania to respect human rights and grant safe passage out of the country for about 220 Albanians who have been holed up in 10 foreign embassies since Monday. Diplomats and official sources said the rush followed street battles between demonstrators and security forces.

The disturbances in Tirana were seen as an embarrassment to the government of hard-line communist leader Ramiz Alia, who presides over the last avowedly Stalinist country in Europe. Despite initiating political reforms this spring, Alia has vowed never to abandon communism.

Many of the newcomers Thursday are among hundreds of people who lined up outside foreign embassies in the morning to apply for visas to travel to the West, according to French diplomats in Paris.

More than 100 new refugees entered the French Embassy, diplomats said, and there were at least five new arrivals at the West German Embassy, as well as seven more at the Hungarian mission.

The influx of refugees is reminiscent of a similar invasion last year by East Germans who poured into West German embassies in Berlin, Prague, Warsaw and other cities, a move that contributed to the eventual collapse of East Germany's communist government.

A reporter for the Austrian news agency APA witnessed two Albanians scampering over a 9-foot fence around the West German Embassy compound, the news agency said, but another asylum-seeker was seen being beaten and dragged away by police.

Other reports from Tirana said police made no effort to stop the new arrivals.

''The police forces have appeared completely disoriented. They have not been preventing people from getting into the embassies,'' said a diplomatic source in Belgrade. ''They don't shoot, they don't try to prevent them from getting inside.''

In an apparent indication that the unrest was spreading, workers at the huge state-run Stalin Textile Mill on the outskirts of Tirana were staging a symbolic strike, halting work for five minutes every hour, a diplomatic source in Belgrade said.

APA said Albanian dissidents in the capital were planning a silent protest arch through downtown Tirana.

In Brussels, the European Community urged Albania to ''ensure the physical safety of the persons who have taken refuge in embassies, to refrain from reprisals against their families ... and to guarantee their free departure from Albanian territory.''

''The community and its member states are deeply disturbed by the gravity of the situation in Albania, where human rights and the fundamental principles of international law are being violated,'' the EC said in a statement.

The Yugoslavian ambassador to Albania, Novak Pribicevic, acting as representative for the foreign diplomatic corps in Tirana, met with Albanian Foreign Ministry officials Thursday in an attempt to resolve the refugee question, Belgrade radio reported.

Pribicevic reportedly urged the Albanian government to begin talks with the foreign embassies sheltering refugees, and he appealed for medical help for the sick and wounded, the broadcast said.

In Bonn, West Germany, a civilian aircraft stood ready for takeoff loaded with emergency supplies for the refugees holed up in the West German Embassy. But so far, Albania has refused to grant clearance for the plane to enter its airspace.

The Austrian news agency, citing diplomatic sources in Tirana, reported at least two people died as a result of clashes Monday between police and Albanians trying to enter the West German Embassy.

The Bonn government, in a statement Thursday, said it had no knowledge of the deaths.

West Germany has confirmed at least two Albanians were wounded trying to scale a wall to enter the embassy compound. The government condemned the shootings and requested free passage out of the country for the refugees.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar pledged to use his influence to persuade Albania to respect human rights and allow the asylum-seekers to leave the country. He went to Albania in May in the first visit there by a U.N. chief.

(JULY 5) UPI - Diplomatic sources quote President Bush as saying NATO must adopt a non-aggressive military posture. The 16 NATO leaders are meeting in London. In opening remarks, Bush formally proposed that nuclear weapons be used as a last resort in any war. Sources say Bush called for a non-aggression declaration toward the Soviet Union as part of a plan to invite Mikhail Gorbachev to address NATO in the future.

East Germany's prime minister wants the Western alliance to abandon its ''flexible response'' plan on using nuclear weapons. In East Berlin, Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere says he has NO ''great expectations'' from a two-day NATO summit in London. But de Maiziere called for NATO to reform ''its structure and strategy,'' linked to the use of nuclear weapons to repel an overwhelming attack by conventional Waraw Pact forces.

South African black leader Nelson Mandela was greeted by crowds of cheering people in Uganda. The African National Congress deputy president arrived in Uganda after ending a successful tour of the United States and Europe. Thousands of flag-waving children were among those lining the streets as Mandela drove from the lakeside airport 21 miles into the capital at Kampala. He plans a three-day stay, before flying to Ethiopia.

The European Community urged Albania today to permit safe passage to the West of about 220 refugees holed up in foreign embassies in the Albania capital of Tirana. The E-C called on Albania's hard-line communist government to ''ensure the physical safety of the persons who have taken refuge in embassies.'' The Austrian news agency A-P-A reports that heavily armed police watched as Albanians formed long lines outside virtually every Western mission in Tirana, seeking to flee the country.

MOSCOW (JULY 5) UPI - Soviet leaders defended themselves Thursday against blistering attacks from fellow Communists who accused them of capitulating to the West, pampering Baltic nationalists and turning a blind eye to ethnic conflict.

Delegates to the 28th Communist Party Congress also debated changing the party's name and dropping all reference to communism amid increasing signs of the Marxist ideology's sinking prestige in the first country to base a government on it.

''We have approached fundamental changes in the life of our country,'' Central Committee official Alexander Lebedev quoted President Mikhail Gorbachev as having told a group of delegates. ''We should not endulge in empty talk. We must understand the monopoly of the party has run its course.''

Justice Minister Veniamin Yakovlev defended the creation of an emerging law-based nation but acknowledged ''the possibility of losing control of society'' during the transfer of power from single-party rule.

Politburo hardliner Yegor Ligachev told the Novosti news agency: ''Society is torn by ethnic and social conflicts. In many regions people live in fear for their next of kin and for the future of their children. This is something we never experienced before.''

The intense examination of virtually every serious ill plaguing the vast country came a day after Gorbachev linked his political future to the fate of his ''perestroika'' reform drive and said the party's leadership should resign if it fails to solve the nation's problems.

Communist activists exchanged barbs on the fourth day of the key meeting, which broke into seven working groups on the major problems confronting the Soviet Union and the party that has ruled it for more than seven decades.

At a section meeting on foreign policy, Gen. Ivan Nikulin, head of the South army's political department and a member of the powerful Defense Council, criticized the Soviet Union's ''unbridled disarmament race'' and lambasted as a ''myth'' Gorbachev's goal of a common European home.

''Where do you see improvement in the international situation?'' Nikulin said. ''Is it in our loss of allies in Europe?''

Nikulin accused Soviet leaders of ''looking at the world through rose-colored glasses'' and said ''the West is building up its own security exclusively at our expense.''

Gen. Mikhail Moiseev, chief of the Soviet general staff, defended Gorbachev's ''new thinking'' in international relations.

''What will be left after disarmament will be enough for defense,'' Moiseev said. ''During the years of perestroika, since 1985, we have deprived the West of the opportunity to describe the U.S.S.R. as an enemy of the world.''

Yevgeni Primakov, an alternate member of the party's ruling Politburo and a member of Gorbachev's new Presidential Council, said: ''The party's international policy during the period under discussion was not only correct but also truly triumphant.''

In a working group on ethnic relations, Central Committee secretary Andrei Girenko defended Politburo member Alexander Yakovlev, also a member of the Presidential Council, against delegates' charges that he had ''pampered Baltic nationalists,'' the official Tass news agency said.

Yakovlev, a prominent historian and key adviser on the rebellious Baltic region, said this week he would leave the Politburo to concentrate on his government duties.

Speakers drew ''stormy applause'' when they accused Gorbachev, Yakovlev and other top party leaders of caving in to the three Baltic republics' demands for secession and of failing to foresee the outbreaks of ethnic violence throughout the country, Tass said.

Delegate Dmitri Volkogonov, a military historian, told a working group on party renewal that communism is an ''ephemeral goal'' and that the party should adopt the name of Democratic Socialism and switch to a Western-style parliamentary model.

But a poll of the conclave's 4,683 delegates, published in the official Izvestia government newspaper, said 80 percent of those surveyed favor keeping the name Communist Party.

At a section on party-state relations, Parliament chairman Anatoli Lukyanov, also a candidate Politburo member, admitted the country faces a ''power vacuum'' because local ''party committees have practically ceased to rule and Soviets (government councils) have yet to master administrative functions.''

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA (JULY 5) UPI - Wildfires raged Thursday throughout Alaska, but a blaze on the outskirts of Tok filled the town with smoke, threatened homes and a Coast Guard communications site, and temporarily closed the airport and the highway between Alaska and Canada, state and federal fire officials said.

A week of unusually hot, dry weather combined with thousands of lightning strikes to set forests aflame throughout interior Alaska.

The Alaska Fire Service reported 159 fires burning on some 172,500 acres of land, said Pete Buist at federal Bureau of Land Management fire headquarters in Fairbanks. He said 57 of those fires started Wednesday. In one day, new and expanding fires devoured 99,000 acres, he said.

''Half the smoke jumpers in the entire country are in Alaska right now,'' said Sue Mitchell at the BLM fire office refering to crews who battle forest fires.

The 1,250-acre fire southeast of Tok, population 1,200, posed the biggest threat. Tok is in eastern Alaska near the Canadian border and is the first Alaska stop for tourists driving the Alaska-Canada Highway. Tok is 200 miles east of Fairbanks and 300 miles northeast of Anchorage.

''It's really smoky. You can only see around 300 feet,'' said Pamela Johnson, owner of Tok Lodge, 3 1/2 miles from the fire. She said she packed her photo albums and business papers in case the fire forces a quick evacuation.

''Your eyes kind of burn and it's hard to breathe,'' Johnson said. Her lodge alternately filled with tourists and fire crews and she expressed confidence the town would be saved.

''Evacuation is not imminent, but some outlying houses closer to the leading edge of the fire are in more danger, and we've advised them to look around and see what you have that you might want to take if you have to leave in 10 minutes,'' said Rob McWhorter, state forestry spokesman in Tok.

Forty-four Coast Guardsmen flew in from the Kodiak Island base to help protect the Loran communication station, which sends out signals used by mariners and aircraft pilots for navigation, spokesman Ed Moreth said from Juneau.

''They're clearing brush from around the towers and buildings using picks, shovels and chainsaws,'' Moreth said. There are four 700-foot towers at the station, which continued to operate with flames 1 1/2 miles away.

The Tok River had kept the fire safely away, though still uncomfortably close at 5 miles distance, until late Wednesday when wind-blown flames jumped across the river and moved toward town, Mitchell said.

State officials called a town meeting Thursday to give residents the latest facts about the fire and answer questions.

Alaska-bound drivers at the Canadian border were being informed of the fires ahead, told to drive with headlights on and warned of possible road closures, said Richard Burton of the state highway office in Tok. The highway closed for four hours Thursday.

Tourists wandering into the Public Lands Information Center in Tok seemed more amused and curious than threatened, said Lisa Rallo, noting that picture-takers had to be ordered away from the blaze. She said several people with respiratory problems left Tok and the lands building, a tourist information center, was smoky inside.

The Tok airport closed except for firefighting airplanes, which were often grounded by smoke, Mitchell said.

The fire was burning state land and Tetlin Indian land, McWhorter said.

The state's biggest fire burned 30,000 acres in the Yukon Flats National Wildlife Refuge north of Fairbanks but posed no danger to the town of Beaver 10 miles away.

Buildings were saved by firelines at another blaze north of Fairbanks at Cleary Summit.

No firefighters have been injured, but U.S. Forest Service employee Michael Landton died of a heart attack waiting in Fairbanks for a flight to firelines, Buist said.

Daily temperatures in the 80s - reaching as high as 90 in several places along the Arctic Circle - have turned forests into kindling for daily lightning strikes.

But the weather changed Thursday on the Kenai Peninsula south of Anchorage and Mitchell said a 48-degree drizzle was helping firefighters conquer blazes there.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) UPI - Second-quarter operating earnings of major oil companies are expected to decline on average from a year ago as a result of lower crude-oil, chemical and natural gas prices, industry analysts said Thursday.

But actual net earnings of some companies may rise and run counter to the trend as a result of one-time items such as property sales and to the extent companies focus on refining and marketing, where margins are higher the analysts said. The oil companies will begin reporting their earnings for the second quarter ended June 30 in about two weeks, the analysts said.

To the degree companies are weighted toward the pumping of crude oil and natural gas and the manufacture of petrochemicals, they will experience a decline in operational earnings relative to 1989's second quarter, they said.

Michael Young of Smith Barney Harris Upham & Co. in New York placed companies such as Amerada Hess Corp., Mobil Corp., Amoco Corp., Occidental Petroleum Corp., and Unocal Corp. in this category.

Those with a stronger relative presence in refining and marketing such as Exxon Corp. Royal Dutch/Shell, and Chevron Corp. stand to benefit from this year's higher refinery margins stemming from lower crude prices and relatively higher prices for gasoline and other refined products.

"Combining all these, we're estimating operating earnings overall will be down about five percent from a year ago," Young said. Net reported earnings on average may be up as much as 20 percent, he said, as a result of extraordinary items such as the sale of assets.

Eugene Nowak, senior vice president and senior oil analyst of Dean Witter Reynolds in New York, said he was estimating operational earnings on average would be down seven to eight percent from a year ago.

Young estimated that operational earnings from the pumping of crude and natural gas would decline about 29 percent for the second quarter and earnings from petrochemicals would be 35 percent less than last year, while operational profits from refining and marketing would rise 66 percent.

He said the decline in petrochemical prices has already been discounted, and questioned how much the price of oil stocks would be affected by second-quarter results. "Oil stocks have been underperforming and are bottoming out," Young said.

William Randol of the First Boston Corp. forecast that the high refinery margins would not last through the current third quarter because of declining demand for gasoline nationally.

"I think we've seen the peak in refinery margins," Randol said. On a year-to-year basis, he said demand for gasoline has recently fallen 5.4 percent or 400,000 barrels a day. Outside of the West Coast, demand for gasoline has been "lackluster, especially in the eastern sector of the country," Nowak agreed.

Young estimated Exxon's second-quarter operational earnings would be 85 cents a share compared to last year's 81 cents. "A flat quarter is relatively positive in the type of environment today," he said.

Young estimated Royal Dutch/Shell, also widely diversified, at $1.75 a share versus $1.74 in 1989. Texaco Inc. was estimated at $1.25 a share compared to $1.45 last year.

Chevron, heavily weighted to refining and marketing, was estimated by Young to have operational earnings of $1.50 a share compared to $1.25 a share last year.

Young estimated Mobil's second-quarter operational earnings would decline from last year's $1.27 a share to $1.05, while Amoco would fall from $1.08 to 75 cents a share.

Nowak forecast that Amerada Hess would just about break even in the second quarter compared to $1.65 a share in 1989. He said Unocal would have operational second-quarter earnings of about 20 cents a share compared to 37 cents last year partly because accidents at its refineries and partly because some of its refining and marketing operations were sold to Venuzuela last year in the form of a joint venture.

Young estimated Occidental would show an operational profit of 15 cents a share versus 31 cents last year. Nowak forecast Atlantic Richfield Co., another company weighted toward the pumping of crude and natural gas, would report operational earnings of $2.20-$2.25 a share compared to $2.61.

LONDON (JULY 5) UPI - President Bush, moving to establish the Atlantic alliance as a cooperative force in the new Europe emerging from communism's collapse, proposed Thursday that Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev be invited to attend a future NATO meeting, a spokesman said.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said that at the opening of a two-day meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Bush also suggested that the Warsaw Pact be invited to establish ''some kind of liaison'' with NATO.

Both proposals were part of a package Bush presented to deal with the changing role of NATO in view of a diminished Soviet threat on the continent, where four decades of Cold War tension has virtually vanished with the spread of democratic reforms.

''The president said, 'We will show that NATO has a new dimension of cooperation with the Soviet Union and with the new democracies of Eastern Europe,''' the spokesman said.

Fitzwater said the president told the gathering of 16 NATO leaders the Atlantic alliance ''is still necessary because free nations must stand together in an uncertain world'' and ''because collective security is better than national rivalry.''

Fitzwater said Bush wanted to show that NATO is ''reaching out to old adversaries'' and to emphasize the defensive role of the Western alliance in light of the changing political picture.

Bush said he hoped an agreement on reducing conventional forces in Europe would be reached by the end of the year.

Such an agreement, he indicated, would trigger the beginning of negotiations on all short-range nuclear missiles and the start of withdrawal of all nuclear artillery shells from Western Europe, provided all Soviet forces are removed.

Bush, apparently in contention with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, also wants a follow-on negotiation to a conventional forces, or CFE, treaty to determine the future size of the German army.

In addition, he suggested it would be useful for the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe to have ''an institutional status,'' with a possible regular schedule of meetings and a permanent staff.

Several NATO members have sought an enhanced role for the CSCE, with some even suggesting it take on a peacekeeping role that has been solely in the jurisdication of NATO.

Some of Bush's proposals seemed aimed at easing Gorbachev's concerns about German unification and the new Germany's role in NATO.

Fitzwater emphasized that all of the ideas Bush proposed were still under discussion at the end of the day's meeting, and that following a dinner hosted by Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace Thursday evening, the foreign ministers would resume drafting a final communique to be issued on Friday.

Bush looked tired after an all-night flight to London from his seaside estate at Kennebunkport, Maine, to London, but all of the leaders may have been fatigued, since they broke up their afternoon session 90 minutes ahead of schedule.

The final round of talks was to be held Friday.

After a formal reading of the communique by NATO Secretary General Manfred Woerner, Bush planned to hold a news conference and then board Air Force One for a 10-hour flight to Houston, Texas, where he will play host to an economic summit with leaders of six major industrial democracies, most of who attended the NATO meeting.

Fitzwater said the controversial quesion of Western economic aid to the Soviet Union did not come up at the Thursday meetings, but it was expected to be high on the agenda at Houston.

As for the military and tactical issues on the table in Lonson, Fitzwater said NATO is ''at a turning point and the debate is real.''

He said he did not believe Bush had given Gorbachev a preview of his invitation because it would be a matter for all NATO members to decide.

As for a Warsaw Pact liaison, Fitzwater said it had not yet been worked out, but might take the form of observers or a liaison office with direct access to NATO ''so they will know where we are coming from.''

NEW YORK (JULY 5) UPI - Position-squaring ahead of the release of crucial U.S. jobs data lifted the dollar against most European currencies in New York trading Thursday, but it slipped against Japan's yen and Britain's pound.

Currency traders said foreign exchange participants fearing surprises in the potentially market-moving June employment data bought dollars to offset their short positions, or commitments to sell dollars.

"People got too short over the last few days so there's short-covering," said Manufacturers Hanover trader Radhika Rajan. "The market is just a little wary before the number tomorrow," she explained.

Analysts said the market believed U.S. nonfarm payrolls gained about 150,000 jobs in June. Any less would reinforce the view that the Federal Reserve must bring interest rates down to jog the economy.

But lower U.S. interest rates, channeling investment funds into currencies on which higher interest rates prevail, would weaken the dollar.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 1.6505 German marks, up from 1.6495 marks Tuesday, and 150.50 Japanese yen, off from 151.

Corporate adviser Michael McGuinness of the Harris Trust & Savings Bank said some players dealt with pre-employment data jitters by shifting funds into the British pound, a so-called high-yield currency.

Though the dollar lost ground against the yen over the July 4th holiday, it was up from its five-week low of 150.30 set in Tokyo Wednesday.

McGuinness said expectations that the Bank of Japan will hike interest rates are probably overblown. But he added that the Tokyo Stock Exchange's recovery has encouraged yen purchases for equity investments.

Other dollar rates: 1.3990 Swiss francs, up from 1.3930; 5.5390 French francs, up from 5.5375; and 1,210.75 Italian lire, ahead from 1,210.50. The pound rose to $1.7810 from $1.7760 at Tuesday's close.

In Europe, the dollar rose against the key currencies on the eve of the U.S. trade figures. But some predicted a dollar slide.

"We're still bearish on the dollar," said Nicholas Murphy, a currency analyst with Barclays de Zoete Wedd. "The prospects for it aren't good."

Andy Baxter of the London branch of the Bank of America agreed, saying the Fed could trim dollar demand if it eased credit. The U.S. unit would suffer as well if German and Japanese rates should be lifted.

In Frankfurt, the dollar rose to 1.65 deutsche marks against 1.6455, and also was higher in Zurich, at 1.3980 Swiss francs against 1.3930 Wednesday.

In London, the pound fell for the first time in a week. Sterling closed at $1.7825 compared with $1.7843 Wednesday.

But some analysts predicted sterling will break the $1.80 level on hopes the currency will be integrated into the exchange-rate mechanism of the European Monetary System by the end of the year.

The U.S. unit also moved up in Paris, Brussels and Milan, to 5.5365 francs against 5.5260, 33.9050 Belgian francs against 33.8600, and 1,210.20 lire against 1,207.80 at the previous night's close.

Earlier in Tokyo, the U.S. closed at 151 yen, up 0.70 yen from Wednesday's close at 150.30 yen. The dollar rebounded from its five-week low the previous day as players corrected from earlier overselling.

Political uncertainty in the Soviet Union also gave the U.S. currency a lift, Tokyo dealers said.

In Zurich, gold declined to $360 an ounce against $362.50 Wednesday. It was also lower in London at $360 compared with $362.50.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $360.50 an ounce, off from $361.50 Tuesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold at $361.40 an ounce, down from $362.10.

Silver closed lower in Zurich, at $4.90 an ounce against $4.95. The metal fell in London to $4.90 an ounce from $4.94.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.88 an ounce, down from $4.94 Tuesday. Comex silver settled at $4.869 an ounce, off from $4.919.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) UPI - A survey of help-wanted advertising volume in the nation's major newspapers indicated continued lackluster performance in May, the Conference Board reported Thursday. The business group's help-wanted index dropped two points in May, coming in 15 points below its year-ago level.

"The word 'cautious' best describes the labor market right now," said Ken Goldstein, an economist for the board. "There is a definite softness in demand: consumers, government and some elements of business investment appear quite sluggish."

The South Atlantic region showed an increase in help-wanted advertising volume, as did the East South Central and West South Central regions. Advertising volume declined in the other six regions of the country tracked in the index, the board said.

"The ongoing severe declines in the New England and Middle Atlantic regions show no sign of ending soon. And the declines that set in earlier this year in the Mountain and Pacific regions continue unabated," Goldstein said.

"Still, the export-driven economic growth expected in the second half of this year is likely to lend momentum to the labor market," he said. "The turnaround should show up first in the western labor markets and then sweep eastward."

The Conference Board surveys help-wanted advertising volume, which has proven to be sensitive to labor market conditions, in 51 major newspapers across the country.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (JULY 5) UPI - The Republic of Serbia Thursday dissolved the government of Kosovo and took control of the rebellious province after a declaration of independence by lawmakers of the ethnic Albanian majority.

The communist Serbian Assembly approved the steps under a 2-week-old law providing for such actions due to ''special circumstances,'' including a threat to the territorial integrity of Serbia.

''They tried to declare Kosovo a republic and by that they endangered Serbia and Yugoslavia,'' said Zoran Sokolovic, the president of the Serbian Assembly. ''By a decree, we are dissolving the parliament, the government and the administrative bodies of Kosovo Province.''

The assembly also dismissed the ethnic Albanian executives and managers of Kosovo's government-run radio and television stations, Albanian-language newspapers and major coal and lead mines.

The communist-ruled republic sent paramilitary police armed with machine guns and wearing bulletproof vests into radio and television studios in the Kosovo capital of Pristina, 200 miles south of Belgrade, to evict their ethnic Albanian staffs.

Film footage on the evening news on state-run Belgrade Television showed parts of the operation, including the manhandling of at least one man by officers.

The television said a cameraman and a journalist were taken into custody for resisting the police.

Albanian-language Radio Pristina and Pristina Television were shut down, with officers posted throughout the buildings, said employees reached by telephone from Belgrade.

They said the radio returned to the air with music after a more than 4-hour suspension, while television broadcasts remained suspended into the evening.

Ethnic Albanians constitute a majority in Kosovo. The province has been wracked by sporadic outbreaks of anti-Serbian unrest for nearly a decade, with ethnic Albanians alleging a lack of human and political rights.

More than 30 people have been killed this year and hundreds injured.

The province's Serbian minority, for its part, contends it is persecuted and charges that ethnic Albanians want to unite Kosovo in a ''Greater Albania'' with Albania, the neigboring Marxist country of 3 million bordering Yugoslavia, Greece and the Adriatic Sea.

Kosovo is regarded with fanatical devotion by Yugoslavia's 8.5 million Serbs, the largest ethnic group in the country of 23 million. Serbs see Kosovo as the ''cradle'' of their centuries-old heritage and Orthodox religion. There are about 200,000 Serbs in Kosovo.

Efforts to resolve the crisis have been deadlocked for years.

Thursday's move by the republic's assembly was announced in the Kosovo provincial legislature by its president, Djordje Bozovic.

''Under a decree of the Serbian Assembly, the assembly and government of Kosovo Province are no longer functioning,'' he was quoted as saying by state-run Belgrade Radio.

''Officials and their deputies in these organs have been dismissed,'' he said.

The move transferred administrative and judicial functions to the government and judiciary of Serbia and the legislative functions to the republic's assembly.

Only about 60 Serbian deputies were in the 186-member provincial legislative chamber to hear the announcement because all 114 ethnic Albanian lawmakers boycotted the session.

Monday, the ethnic Albanian deputies issued a declaration in the Kosovo capital of Pristina, 200 miles south of Belgrade, declaring the province was breaking with Serbia and becoming an autonomous republic within the Yugoslav federation.

The declaration was provoked by a referendum Sunday and Monday seeking approval of the Serbian communist leadership's political program, which calls for a new republic constitution withdrawing virtually all autonomy from Kosovo to stifle separatist aspirations among its 1.7 million ethnic Albanians.

Serbian Election Commission Chairman Caslav Ignjatovic announced overwhelming approval of the program, which had been expected because of the emotions evoked among Serbs by the Kosovo crisis.

He said that of about 5 million votes cast, 96.8 percent were in favor. A total of 6.6 million people had been eligible to cast ballots.

Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, concerned about a loss of popularity hopes that eliminating virtually all self-rule for Kosovo will regain support for the communists before promised multi-party elections, the date for which he has yet to announce.

Multi-national Yugoslavia is composed of six republics. Serbia has two autonomous provinces, Kosovo in the south, and Vojvodina in the north.

#90186u1795 07/05/1990 ~United Press International
DETROIT (JULY 5) UPI - U.S. vehicle sales in June slipped 0.8 percent from a year ago despite strong showings by General Motors Corp. and American Honda Motor Co. that boosted deliveries during the final ten days of the month by 11.9 percent.

Sales of domestically built cars alone during the latest month slipped 1.2 percent below June 1989 levels, even with an 11.5 percent gain posted in the June 21-30 period. Light truck sales among domestic manufacturers rose 1.9 percent during the month, helped by a 12.7 percent jump in late June.

Import car sales during June were estimated at 224,100 units, off 9.7 percent from 248,300 units in June 1989. Imports accounted for 26.1 percent of total U.S. car sales last month, vs. 27.9 percent in June 1989.

The annual sales rate for domestically built cars - the most common measure of industry performance - was 7.1 million cars during June, up slightly from 7.0 million in June 1989. During both months, buyer incentive offers were extended from revised programs announced earlier in the year.

But the annual selling rate for domestic car sales during late June soared to 7.9 million units from 6.9 million a year before, as both GM and Honda posted strong year-to-year gains.

"Sales in the final 10 days were quite good, thanks to General Motors," noted Tom Webb, chief economist of the National Automobile Dealers Association, which represents about 25,000 dealers nationwide.

While sales in June may have improved slightly after a poor spring selling season, Webb still said NADA does not see any further, significant gains because of "weak underlying demand and a cautious consumer."

Modest increases announced late last month by top carmakers on 1990 models because of increased manufacturing and marketing costs were not seen as pulling ahead sales in late June, analysts said. But the higher stickers will seemingly minimize price increases on 1991 models to debut this fall.

Nine auto companies - GM, Honda, Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp., Nissan Motor Manufacturing U.S.A., Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A., Mazda Motor Manufacturing (USA) Corp., Mitsubishi Motor Sales of America Inc. and Subaru-Isuzu Automotive Inc. - registered combined sales of 633,020 cars and 368,553 trucks in the United States during June. This compares with 640,673 cars and 361,751 trucks sold in the year-ago period.

The daily selling rate of 38,522 vehicles was only 33 units less than in June 1989. There were 26 selling days in both months. So far this year, the firms have sold nearly 3.58 million cars, down 4.5 percent from the 3.72 million units sold during the first six months of 1989. Light truck sales were just over 2.11 million units, 1.2 percent less than the 2.13 million units sold up until the halfway mark last year.

Sales of GM's domestically made cars during June slipped 3.3 percent. But GM was the only one of the Big Three to post a gain in late June, with a sharp 12.9 percent rise from a year ago. GM's light truck sales rose 5.6 percent in June, fueled by a 29.9 percent jump during the final 10 days of the month.

Analysts attributed GM's surge to stronger fleet sales and comparisons with relatively weak year-ago levels when some dealer incentive programs expired.

Second-ranked Ford saw its domestic car sales slump 9.9 percent for the full month, but its light truck sales rose 7.5 percent. Ford's car sales during late June slipped 4.7 percent, but trucks were up 14.1 percent.

Chrysler's domestic car sales fell 14.9 percent during June, while late June sales were 11.3 percent lower. Its light truck sales during June fell 13.4 percent, after a 10.8 percent drop during the final ten days of the month.

Among foreign-based automakers producing cars in the United States, Honda saw its sales soar 83 percent, boosted by a 128 percent jump in late June. But the latest results were compared to a dropoff in sales one year ago, after cash allowances to dealers ended.

Toyota's car sales rose 40 percent from relatively low production volumes a year ago for the entire month. Nissan reported a 1.6 percent slip in sales of its U.S.-built cars in June, while domestically made compact truck sales were 6.2 percent below year-ago levels.

Mazda sold 4,855 cars produced at its Flat Rock, Mich. assembly plant, vs. 3,515 a year ago. Mitsubishi reported sales of 4,727 Eclipse cars built at its joint venture plant with Chrysler in Illinois, vs. 2,810 a year ago. SIA reported sales of 1,505 cars and 2,653 trucks built at its new joint venture plant in Lafayette, Ind.

(JULY 5) UPI - Diplomatic sources in London say President Bush opened today's NATO summit by urging the Western alliance to alter its nuclear response philosophy. The sources say Bush called for a shift from the so-called ''flexible response'' to one in which nuclear weapons would be used as a ''last resort.'' He also reportedly called for NATO to adopt a NON-aggressive military posture.

South African anti-apatheid leader Nelson Mandela received a hero's welcome today when he arrived in Uganda. (JULY 5) UPI - At least 13 people are hurt in an Amtrak train accident today in Meridian, Mississippi. NONE of the injuries was believed serious. Authorities say the accident occurred when the train carrying 170 passengers slammed into a tractor-trailer at a marked rail crossing near downtown Meridian. The train was en route from New Orleans to New York.

A gunman opened fire today in a Mormon church parking lot in Phoenix, Arizona, where about 120 children were boarding buses for camp. Police say NO children were believed injured in the incident, but a woman and an off-duty police officer were hurt. The assailant later surrendered without incident.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) UPI - Stocks snapped their five-day winning streak Thursday by closing broadly and sharply lower in very light post-holiday trading, pressured by profit taking and program selling.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 12.37 Tuesday, tumbled 32.42 to close at 2879.21. The market was closed Wednesday for the Fourth of July holiday.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index lost 2.16 to 194.45 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index tumbled 4.48 to 355.68. The price of an average share fell 39 cents.

Declines pounded advances 1,066-406 among the 1,948 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 128,320,000 shares, vs. 130,050,000 shares traded Tuesday.

The market's string of gains - its longest since a seven-day stretch from April 30 to May 8 - seemed doomed from the outset. Profit taking and repeated bouts of program selling, used to profit on price spreads between stocks and stock-index futures, pushed prices down.

After about a half hour of trading, the Dow industrials were down 20 points with losing issues leading gainers by just a little less than four to one. Except for an early afternoon bid to bounce off the lows, prices eroded steadily throughout the day.

"I'd rather have gotten a root canal," said John Burnett, senior vice president and head trader at Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corp. "The combination of a lack of players after the holiday, a weak bond market and talk about taxing securities sales all helped make it a kind of yucky session," he said.

Both stocks and bonds felt pressure from nervousness about the June employment data due out early Friday and reports that top Bush administration officials are considering a plan to impose a tax on the sale of securities as a way of cutting the budget deficit also contributed to the early pressure, analysts said.

They said there was concern that the job figures may not press the Federal Reserve to lower interest rates, which some in the market expect to happen soon. The report is expected to show non-farm payrolls rose 83,000 last month, with a rise of 132,000 if layoffs of temporary census workers are excluded. Treasury bond futures were down about 10/32 in afternoon trading.

"Without doubt I'd say this was warranted after the runup," Burnett said. "I don't think it's the beginning of a prolonged selloff but who knows, maybe it could be if there were more people around."

On the trading floor, Avon Products was the most active issue thanks to a big block trade, down 3/4 to 37. Two partners in the investor group Chartwell Associates have raised their stake in the company and agreed to buy more Avon stock within 30 days from investors Irwin Jacobs and Amway Corp.

British Steel followed, off 7/8 to 24 3/8. AT&T was third, off 1/2 to 38 1/8. Philip Morris was next, down 1/2 to 47 1/2.

Among the other blue chips, IBM fell 1/4 to 117 3/8, Eastman Kodak lost 3/4 to 40 1/4, General Electric fell 7/8 to 70 1/4, Merck dropped 1 1/2 to 86 1/8, General Motors lost 1 1/4 to 47 1/4, and Coca-Cola eased 5/8 to 44 1/4.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 153,227,900 shares, compared with 161,231,870 shares traded in the previous session. Prices closed lower in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index fell 2.18 to close at 358.49. The price of an average share fell eight cents. Declines led advances 327-220 among the 785 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 10,035,700 shares, compared with 13,768,050 traded Tuesday. Hillhaven led the Amex issues, off 1/8 to 1 3/4.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index fell 2.57 to 459.19.

CHICAGO (JULY 5) UPI - Jurors in the racketeering and fraud trial of three Chicago Mercantile Exchange traders said Thursday they had a partial verdict, but U.S. District Judge Ann Williams instructed them to continue deliberations and try to decide all 110 counts.

The panel of nine women and three men, which has been deliberating for nine days, sent Williams a note Thursday saying they had reached verdicts on some of the counts against Swiss franc traders Robert Mosky, Danny Scheck, and David Zatz.

Williams summoned prosecutors and defense lawyers Thursday afternoon to consider whether to accept those verdicts under seal and send jurors back to consider the remaining counts. After lengthy discussions, however, she decided not to accept any sealed verdicts.

Williams summoned jurors back into court and instructed them to return to their deliberations, repeating her original instructions that they consider all the evidence and "discuss your differences with open minds." The note from the jury foreman gave no hint of which counts jurors had decided or whether the verdicts on those counts were innocent or guilty.

Jurors spent nearly seven weeks hearing evidence in the case, which included some 130 audio tapes secretly recorded by an FBI undercover agent. They began deliberations June 22.

Mosky, 34, of Chicago, is charged with racketeering conspiracy and 75 counts of fraud and violating commodities laws. He could face up to 395 years in prison if convicted.

Scheck, 28, of Skokie, Ill., is charged with 20 counts of fraud and violating commodities laws and could face up to 90 years in jail if found guilty.

Zatz, 43, of Chicago, is charged with 14 counts of fraud and violating commodities laws. He could be sentenced to up to 70 years in jail if convicted.

Mosky, Scheck and Zatz are the first defendants to face trial on charges resulting from a two-year FBI undercover fraud investigation at the CME and the Chicago Board of Trade.

Forty-eight people were indicated as a result of the investigation. Sixteen have pleaded guilty. The trials of the remaining 29 - 16 traders from the CME Japanese yen pit and 13 from the CBOT soybean pit - are scheduled to begin in September.

PORTLAND, ORE (JULY 5) UPI - The U.S. Navy has awarded STC Submarine Systems Inc., a contract worth $39.95 million to build an undersea fiber optic cable to link U.S. military bases in Japan, STC officials said Thursday.

The undersea cable will be manufactured in STC's Portland, Ore., factory which currently employs about 120 people. Land-portions of the cable will be assembled by STC's parent company, STC-PCL, in the United Kingdom.

The 900-kilometer cable will link Sasebo, Japan and Gesashi, Okinawa.

STC marketing director Brian P. Roussell said the military was upgrading its communication systems with fiber optics which provide more secure communications than microwave or satellite transmissions.

Roussell said the contract, which begins immediately and runs for 14 months, would allow STC to continue operations at its Portland plant at approximately current levels.

The company is just finishing a $300 million contract to build 5,900 kilometers of undersea fiber optic cable for a consortium of companies led by Pacific Telcom. That company is building the first undersea telephone link across the North Pacific linking the United States directly to Japan. All other transpacific telephone cables go through Hawaii.

About 3,000 kilometers of that cable were manufactured in Portland and are currently being tested at the Portland factory. Roussell said cable-laying ships are due to pick up the cable next month.

Roussell said the Portland plant is the only undersea fiber optics cable manuacturing facility at a port on the West Coast.

STC Submarine Systems has been building and installing undersea cables for 124 years, starting with the first successful transatlantic telepgraph cable laid between North American and the England in 1866. It installed the first undersea fiber optic cable between England and Belgium in 1986.

The company opened its Portland manufacturing plant in October 1989.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - The Office of Thrift Supervision will hold a public hearing to determine whether to issue a cease and desist order against Neil Bush, the president's son, OTS Director Timothy Ryan said Thursday.

The hearing, open to the public, will be held September 25 in Denver, where Bush served as director of the failed Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan Association.

Ryan said the agency reversed its previous policy to close to the public all administrative hearings involving enforcement cases. Under the new policy, the hearings will be open unless there is a compelling reason for confidentiality.

"The change is necessary in today's environment to reassure the public that as regulators we are doing everything possible to assure the integrity of thrift institutions and the protection of the taxpayer," he said.

Although he said Bush's attorney had requested the hearing be closed to the public, Ryan - appointed three months ago by President Bush - decided the hearings would be open.

"The Office of Thrift Supervision is of the opinion that Neil M. Bush engaged in unsafe or unsound practices in conducting the business of Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan Association," said a notice of charges and hearing dated February 5. The notice seeks the cease and desist order against Bush, who has denied any wrongdoing during his three years as a member of Silverado's board.

In January, the OTS considered action that would have banned Bush from ever again serving as a thrift or bank director, saying he violated conflict of interest rules on three occasions by failing to disclose relationships with his business partners.

Upon further investigation, the agency decided there was not enough evidence to support the stiff penalty and agreed to seek the softer cease and desist order, which would prohibit Bush from violating conflict of interest rules in the future.

Bush served as a director of Silverado from 1985 to August 1988, shortly before his father was elected president. The thrift was taken over by government regulators in December 1988, four months after Bush stepped down as a director. Rescuing the failed thrift is expected to cost taxpayers $1.6 billion. The OTS notice details three counts as grounds for the cease and desist order against Bush.

The first count stems from transactions with Bill Walters, a partner in Bush's JNB Exploration Co., an oil and gas exploration company. The OTS notice said Bush failed to disclose his business relationship with Walters and voted, while a member of Silverado's board, to approve loans to Walters and purchase real estate from him.

The OTS said Bush breached his fiduciary duty to Silverado "by voting to approve transactions with and loans to entities owned or controlled by one of his business partners or creditors."

The second count stems from transactions involving Kenneth Good, who owned a 25 percent stake in Bush's oil company. Good and Bush formed a silent partnership in 1986 for an oil and gas deal in Argentina and Good received a $900,000 line of credit from Silverado for the venture.

The OTS said that although Bush abstained from the line-of-credit vote and disclosed his relationship with Good, the disclosure was "inaccurate and insufficient."

"Bush's conflict of interest arose not merely from his venture's affiliation with Good International Inc., but from the fact that his own business would benefit from the approval of the line of credit.

"Neither the nature of the relationship between Bush and the borrower nor the fact that Bush would benefit from the transaction was disclosed to the directors of Silverado," the notice said.

The third count involves modifications to loans made by Silverado to Good in 1986, releasing him from $11.5 million in loan collateral in exchange for a payment of $3 million.

The OTS said that while Silverado's board was considering the loan modifications, Bush failed to tell fellow directors that Good was contemplating making a $3 million contribution to JNB, which would remove or decrease Bush's personal debt obligations.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) UPI - Assets of the nation's 513 money market mutual funds decreased $2.24 billion to $382.70 billion for the week ended Wednesday, the Washington-based Investment Company Institute reported Thursday.

The institute said broker-dealer fund assets decreased $1.29 billion to $157.88 billion, assets of general purpose funds decreased $723.9 million to $133.21 billion and institutional fund assets fell $222.8 million to $91.61 billion.

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports the assets of money market funds to the Federal Reserve Board each week.

The Donoghue Organization of Holliston, Mass., said Tuesday average seven-day simple yields were at 7.68 percent, up from 7.67, and 30-day simple yields stood unchanged at 7.67 percent. The average maturity of fund portfolios was 45 days, up from 44.

The Bank Rate Monitor of North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money market deposit accounts, 5.98 percent, down from 6 percent; Super-Now accounts, 5 percent, unchanged; six-month certificates of deposit, 7.70 percent, unchanged; one-year CDs, 7.84 percent, unchanged; 2 1/2-year CDs, 7.84 percent, unchanged; and five-year CDs, 7.91 percent, up from 7.90 percent.

The average rate for a one-year, adjustable-rate mortgage was 8.48 percent down from 8.50 percent.

The average rate on a 15-year, fixed-rate mortgage fell in the latest week to 9.75 percent, against 9.78 percent, while the average rate for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage was 9.93 percent, down from 9.98 percent.

The average rate for a four-year automobile loan was 12.29 percent, up from 12.27 percent.

SAN FRANCISCO (JULY 5) UPI - Homeless people camped out in a plaza underneath the mayor's City Hall office window were warned by police Thursday they must move out or be evicted.

At the behest of Mayor Art Agnos, police warned they will begin evicting the homeless squatters from the tree-lined Civic Center Plaza they have claimed the last two years with their tents, makeshift shelters and shopping carts.

The San Francisco encampment has become an eyesore for Agnos, whose office balcony overlooks the plaza.

City residents and merchants have complained bitterly about the shabby camp. But Agnos refused to order the residents - who sometimes grew to more than 300 - out because of a shortage of city shelter space.

The mayor finally ordered a sweep of the plaza after two new centers to put the homeless in a variety of city shelter facilities opened Monday.

Most of the Civic Center Plaza homeless have complied with Agnos's program to move them off the street. But some of several dozen still remaining say they'll refuse police orders to leave.

''I call it standing up for what I believe in,'' said Jake Howard, has been homeless since the October earthquake.

For one thing, they say, they don't want to be forced indoors. They also don't want to have to obey the rigid rules and suffer the lack of privacy at shelters.

Police said they would begin warning the plaza settlers Thursday night they will no longer be able to stay. Enforcement of the city law against overnight sleeping in a public area will begin Friday, Larry Bush, mayor's spokesman, said.

The plaza was the only place where the city ban against sleeping overnight was suspended.

''This has been a zone where people were, in a sense, almost invited because they were told there would be no enforcement,'' Bush said.

Violators will be ticketed and then arrested if they persist in camping, Bush said.

San Francisco's eviction deadline came one day after about 250 homeless protesters from San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, San Jose and Sonoma County took chartered buses to Santa Cruz to fight the resort town's anti-camping law.

They staged a noisy two-hour Fourth of July downtown march and rally at the county courthouse, decrying Santa Cruz's ordinance against sleeping overnight on public lands and its lack of affordable housing.

''Jesus was homeless by choice,'' one of their signs read.

But their demonstration triggered a counter-rally at nearby City Hall by about 1,000 angry members and supporters of ''Take Back Our Town'' who urged even tougher measures against ''bums, freeloaders and squatters.''

''We've got a real homey town with some sparkle and we're losing it,'' Tony Correia, 23, Soquel, an organizer of the rally who wore a red shirt with ''Get a job'' stenciled on the back, said.

AKRON, OHIO (JULY 5) UPI - General Tire, a subsidiary of Continental AG of West Germany, said Thursday prices for replacement tires were increasing up to 4 percent.

General Tire said the increases were ''necessitated by the continued escalation of various related costs.''

Prices on all passenger tire lines will increase 4 percent, with the exception of high performance lines at 3 percent.

Light truck radial tires will increase 3.2 percent with bias constructed tires being raised 3 percent. The S-330 and D-440 medium truck tires will increase 4 percent.

All other medium truck, off-the-road specialty tires, farm and industrial tires will increase 3.5 percent.

Continental AG is the world's No. 4 tire maker, behind Michelin, Goodyear and Firestone.

(JULY 5) UPI - NATO leaders open a pivotal two-day summit in London... Liberia's government teeters on the brink of collapse... And third witness testifies about using cocaine with Marion Barry... These top stories and more, next, from U-P-I.

The 16 NATO leaders wrapped up the first session of their two-day summit in London today, 90 minutes ahead of schedule. But despite the quickness of the opening meeting, the leaders appeared to have taken steps to reflect the on-going transformation of Europe.

President Bush kicked off the gathering by calling on his colleagues to adopt a softened stance toward the Soviet Union. He went on to propose that Soviet President Gorbachev address NATO at some point in the future.

Bush's cohorts agreed in principle to his bid that NATO issue a NON-aggression declaration toward the teetering Warsaw Pact. The 16 heads of state also embraced a European security structure that Gorbachev seeks.

The steps are designed to ease Soviet opposition to a united Germany's membership in the Western alliance. They also correspond to Bush's previously stated intent of helping Gorbachev chart his way through Moscow's treacherous political waters.

Chaos reins in the capital city of Liberia.

Government troops are reported to have ranacked shops and restaurants in Monrovia in an all-night looting and shooting spree. This came as other troops battled insurgent forces in the eastern and western surburbs for a fourth straight day.

The army chief of staff is reported to have fled the country. Embattled President Samuel Doe is said to have met with the American ambassador, who has offered to help Doe leave the country.

There is NO immediate word on Doe's reaction to the proposal.

Meantime, soldiers continued to roam the streets, firing their guns in the air to scare away anyone who attempts to halt their looting. At least 16 bodies were spotted in the streets after the overnight looting.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (JULY 5) UPI - Close to 30,000 family members, wounded veterans, orphans and widows of the Contra rebels began their return to Nicaragua Thursday after as long as eight years in exile in Honduras.

Some 200 of the dependents crossed into Nicaragua Thursday from Las Trojes Honduras, about 100 miles east of the Honduran capital of Tegucigalpa and 150 miles north of Managua, said Santiago Murray, director of the Organization of American States Support and Verification Commission in Nicaragua.

The group made the first of numerous such crossings that will take place over the next four months at three border points.

''We are picking them up in Jalapa (about 10 miles from the border),'' Murray said. ''We have a reception center there. Then we are going to move them around according to where they are going to live.''

Nearly 30,000 dependents have been camped in the Yamali Valley and surrounding areas for as long as eight years while the U.S.-backed Contras fought a civil war against the Sandinista army that claimed more than 30,000 lives.

With the war over and the Contras disarmed, the dependents are returning home, some to live with families in former hometowns and others to live in resettlement zones allocated for the Contras by the Nicaraguan government.

''A lot of ex-Contras and dependents don't want to go to the resettlement zones,'' said Angelica Hunt, a spokesman for the U.N. group that oversaw the Contra's disarmament. ''They want to go home to where they came from and start their lives again.''

The Contra dependents are among hundreds of thousands of Nicaraguans who still live in exile. Another 15,000 are in refugee camps in Honduras under the auspices of the U.N. High Commission for Refugees and have been gradually filtering back into Nicaragua over the past month.

Others are spread around the globe, many of them in Central America, Miami Fla., and other U.S. communities.

Many who fled the war are now returning to peace. Some fled from the Sandinista government for various reasons, and are also returning now that the Sandinistas are no longer in power. Others still have made homes in their new countries and plan to stay.

The Contra dependents will share in the $47 million in U.S. aid that was allocated for the disarmament process and to ease the Contra's transition to civilian life.

OAS officials said $24 million from the U.S. Agency for International Development has been set aside to help the Contras and their families rebuild their lives.

The money is providing for building materials, medical supplies, food and other items as well as expert advice and assistance on constructing new homes and farming.

Murray said the dependents are expected to visit families first before moving to the resettlement zones, where former Contras are currently busy establishing themselves, forming a political party and police force and talking with government officials about how the project is going to work.

At Las Trojes, the OAS built a new border crossing and bulldozed a new road so the exiles would not have to make the mountainous trek south to the next border point.

(JULY 5) UPI - Federal prosecutors tried to discredit Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry's entrapment defense today at Barry's drug and perjury trial in the nation's capital.

Government lawyers showed the jury a videotape of comments Barry made four years ago about the possible use of covert methods by authorities to nab drug users. Among statements culled from the 1986 news conference was Barry saying he had- quote- ''NO sympathy for those who are cry-babies'' about the use of undercover officers.

Barry's defense counsel has claimed that the beleaguered mayor was entrapped by federal and local authorities intent on derailing the career of a nettlesome black politician.

Also during today's proceedings, a third witness testified about using cocaine with Barry. Carol Bland Jackson told jurors that she witnessed Barry snort cocaine in 1986.

The federal Bureau of Prisons says there's NO validity to an inmate's charge that he was held incommunicado four days before the 1988 presidential election to silence his allegations about Vice President Quayle's drug use.

Prisoner Brett Kimberlin has filed a federal lawsuit claiming that he was placed in special detention two years ago to protect the G-O-P ticket of George Bush and Quayle.

Quayle has denied through a spokesman ever using marijuana. Kimberlin, however, says he and Quayle smoked pot at a fraternity party in 1971... and that he sold the vice president marijuana more than one dozen times in the next few years.

A spokesman for the prison system says the unusual move of placing Kimberlin in a special punishment cell came about after officials learned through a reporter that Kimberlin feared for his safety.

However, the reporter denies ever making such a statement and added that it appeared as if officials were- quote- ''looking for an excuse'' to prevent Kimberlin from talking to reporters.

AUSTIN, TEXAS (JULY 5) UPI - In the wake of the Mega Borg oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico, the Texas Water Commission called Thursday for a 2-cent-per-barrel fee on crude oil entering Texas Gulf ports to build a state oil spill response plan.

Water Commission Chairman Buck Wynne said the fee could raise $50 million for the Texas Spill Response Fund, which could be used to purchase equipment and fund other proposed intiatives.

''Now that the Mega Borg crisis has passed, it's time to evaluate our preparedness to deal with major oil spills in light of this recent experience and make some changes,'' Wynne said.

An estimated 3.9 million gallons of light crude oil escaped into the Gulf off Galveston after an explosion in the Norwegian tanker Mega Borg's pump room June 8.

The Coast Guard said most of the spilled oil either burned in a fire that followed the blast, evaporated in the summer heat or was recovered through skimming operations.

''The main problem with our current program is its grossly inadequate funding. We were lucky to have been dealing with a financially responsible spiller this time, who could afford to hire the best private contractor available. We may not be so fortunate next time, and we need a vast infusion of money to be fully prepared.''

The strategy unveiled by Wynne calls for the purchase and stockpile by the state of equipment for dealing with such emergencies and establishment of standby contracts covering the entire coast as a fail-safe measure in case the party responsible for the spill is unable to perform an adequate or timely cleanup.

Wynne also called for establishment of a research and development program for new oil spill technology, such as bioremediation tested on the Mega Borg slick, and recommended that the state re-open consideration of an offshore terminal for the transfer of oil.

He called on Congress to enact oil spill legislation which enhances national oil spill response capability while preserving individual states' ability to recover from the responsible party the actual costs and actual economic and environmental damages.

In addition, Wynne called on the Petroleum Industry Response Organization to locate a fully funded and operational regional oil spill response center on the Texas Gulf Coast. If industry is willing to make this commitment, he said, it should receive credit against the proposed 2-cent-per-barrel fee for funding state oil spill preparedness.

(JULY 5) UPI - Albanians seeking to escape the harsh rule in their homeland continue to converge on foreign embassies in the capital city of Tirana .

In the latest effort to flee, 105 more people are reported to have climbed over Embassy walls in the capital, seeking diplomatic sanctuary. Many of these were among hundreds of people who linked up outside foreign embassies this morning, seeking visas that would allow them to travel to the West.

At least 10 embassies are said to be affected by the exodus movement. At least 100 people are reporeted to be holed up in the French Embassy. And at least 50 more are reported to have joined 86 refugees already sheltered in the West German Embassy.

The European Community has called on the hard-line communist government to assure the safety of the refugees. It also accused the regime of human rights violations.

Saudi Arabian authorities are encountering problems identifying people killed in a tunnel disaster near the holy city of Mecca on Monday.

Authorities say at least 14-hundred-26 people died during a rampage in the tunnel. But a radio station run by a fundamentalist pro-Iran group says the pilgrims were trapped in the tunnel by police when they began demonstrating.

The radio report says police threw firebombs into the tunnel and fired at the pilgrims. The effort to identify all the victims continues.

The Saudis say this is complicated by the fact that many of the victims wore long robes that contianed NO pockets. As a result, many carried NO identification papers.

Meanwhile, reports from Cairo say pilgrims flocked to Jeddah airport in a rush to leave Saudi Arabia following the tragedy during the annual Islamic pilgrimage.

DES MOINES, IOWA (UPI) - A new vaccine against Lyme disease in dogs may help cut the spread of the illness to humans, officials with a veterinary drug company said Thursday.

Thomas Corcoran, chief executive officer of Fort Dodge Laboratories, said his firm's vaccine represents the first protection available for a mammal against the tick-borne disease.

Company researcher Michael Gregoricka recommended that every dog receive an inoculation of the new product, which officials estimated will cost less than $50 per shot.

To date, scientists have no clear evidence that Lyme disease is spread by anything other than several species of tiny deer ticks which attach themselves to the skin of a person or animal and inject infection-causing bacteria into the bloodstream.

But Gregoricka said new data suggests that the disease can spread among birds and mammals without the benefit of ticks through urine or saliva.

''The extent to which infected domestic animals place their human owners at risk for acquiring Lyme disease is unclear,'' Gregoricka said.

''However, recent studies have shown that both livestock and household pets may transmit the infective organism through urinary contact. Careful handling of body fluids from aniamls in endemic areas is prudent.''

A Connecticut doctor recently speculated that deerflies or horseflies also may transmit the disease. But Harvard University researcher Andrew Spielman, who discovered that ticks spread the disorder, said he felt such transmission was ''close to being impossible.''

Gregoricka said he does not know how many dogs contract the disease, but said experts estimate the incidence in animals is six to 10 times that of humans. He also offered no estimate how many humans would be spared Lyme diseseif dogs are vaccinated on a widespread basis.

Lyme disease has been reported in 44 of the 50 states, with the human incidence tripling since 1984, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control. Symptoms in humans include arthritis-like muscle pain, flu-type symptoms, fatigue, fever and rash.

Corcoran said a human vaccine is under investigation by other companies. But he emphasized that just because a dog inoculation is available does not mean that a human counterpart is close behind.

The new dog vaccine, called Borrelia Burgdorferi Bacterin, was developed after Fort Dodge Laboratories bought the patent from the University of Minnesota. The university will receive royalties, Corcoran said.

Tests on 451 dogs show that the vaccine effectively protected against symptoms of Lyme disease and reduced - but did not eliminate - levels of disease-causing bacteria in the blood. The company recommends dogs older than 12 weeks receive one dose of the vaccine then a booster two to three weeks later followed by yearly shots.

NEW YORK (JULY 5) UPI - Beleaguered real estate developer Donald Trump was forced Thursday to pay the city at least $13.6 million in real estate taxes 11 days early and a little more than a week after a "Band-Aid" bank loan package saved him from bankruptcy.

Trump was one of 400 of the city's biggest landowners who faced a midnight deadline for their July property tax installment under a law aimed at helping the city ease a cash-flow crisis.

Mayor David Dinkins signed the measure into law in the late afternoon, saying it was necessary because of short-term financial problems created by the state Legislature's late action on the budget.

The payment is normally due on July 16. The deadline for all other taxpayers remains the same as usual. Dinkins said the measure was in no way directed at Trump but at all landowners with properties assessed at more than $15 million.

Trump was able to meet the accelerated deadline, spokeswoman Norma Foederer said. "It's been paid in full," she said, but refused to confirm or deny how much Trump had to ante up.

City Finance Department spokesman Kip Bobroff said Trump was billed $7.3 million for the Plaza Hotel, $4.3 million for the former Pennsylvania Railroad yards on Manhattan's West Side and a little more than $2 million for the commercial floors of Trump Tower, which also has condominium apartments.

Bobroff said Trump's other major New York properties - Trump Parc and Trump Plaza - are condominiums that are assessed according to individual apartment ownership and not due until July 16, along with most other taxable properties in the city.

Other department sources, who asked not to be identified, said Trump's tax bill actually was about $15 million when the taxes on minor properties were added in. They said the payment check must be postmarked by midnight Thursday to meet the deadline.

Trump faced bankruptcy of Trump Castle - one of his three Atlantic City, N.J., casinos - when $43 million in interest and principal payments became due June 27 plus payment on bank loans totaling $30 million. A $65 million "bridge" bank loan provided by American and European banks to whom Trump is indebted made it possible for him to pay off on time.

The agreement included a five-year moratorium on interest payments on $850 million of the $2 billion that Trump owes the bank consortium. In the meantime, he will receive revenues from his three casinos, hotels and office properties free and clear and will have time to dispose of some of his luxury assets, including a private jet, one of the world's most expensive yachts and the largest estate in Palm Beach, Fla.

SAN JOSE, CALIF (JULY 5) UPI - In the second Taiwanese acquisition of a Silicon Valley computer company this year, the Acer Group said Thursday it would buy struggling Altos Computer Systems for $8.35 a share, or about $94 million.

The purchase followed the sale of Wyse Technology Inc. of San Jose, Calif. to Channel International Corp. of Taiwan in January for $160 million.

''This merger adds stability and resources to Altos,'' Altos President Ronald Conway said. ''We will have the critical mass to succeed in an increasingly competitive industry.''

Altos, a maker of multi-user computer systems, will retain its name and operate as an Acer subsidiary, the two companies said. Conway will remain as president. Founder David Jackson, who owns about 36 percent of the stock, will leave the company.

Altos, an early Silicon Valley success story, has struggled in the past year in the midst of a weak national market for microcomputers. In the first nine months of its current fiscal year, the company lost $3.1 million on sales of $102.6 million.

Acer, the largest personal computer maker in Taiwan, said the purchase was part of a global strategy to increase its presence in worldwide markets it serves.

''Altos provides Acer with complementary channels and a team experienced in delivering and servicing multi-user systems,'' Leonard Liu, president of the Acer Group, said. ''The addition of Altos' San Jose facility enhances Acer's existing manufacturing capabilities in the United States.''

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - Federal wildlife managers have not developed a program to detect and clean up contaminants that are killing birds, fish and other animals in the nation's wildlife refuges, Interior Department investigators reported.

An audit by the department's office of inspector general cited several cases, most of them in California, where the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service either overlooked potential contamination of its refuges or endlessly studied the situation.

The report, released this week, comes 10 months after the General Accounting Office concluded that mining, off-road vehicles, recreational boating and military flights are damaging 59 percent of wildlife refuges.

Adding to that list of woes, the inspector general's office finds that the response to chemical contamination of refuges has been haphazard.

''The (Fish and Wildlife) Service has not taken the steps necessary to implement a viable contaminant detection and resolution program for all refuges,'' the report sasid.

The approach of the wildlife service, which manages 452 refuges, ''has primarily been one of reacting to adverse situations rather than attempting to achieve long-term solutions,'' the report said.

The national wildlife refuge system, a loosely structured network of lands and marshes covering 89 million acres, was established as a haven for animal life, especially migratory birds and endangered species.

However, drainage of pesticides, industrial waste water, selenium and other contaminants have poisoned many refuges. Also, much of the land is shared with other federal agencies whose efforts conflict with the goals of wildlife preservation.

The exact scope of refuge contamination is unknown, the inspector general's report said.

The problem drew national attention in the mid-1980s when high levels of selenium, a naturally occurring substance, washed into the Kesterson Wildlife Refuge in California from the drainage canal of a federal irrigation project. The selenium was blamed for the death and deformities of thousands of water fowl.

Since then, the service has estimated that nearly 68,000 birds died from June 1986 through March 1989 on wildlife refuges in California's Sacramento and Klamath river basins.

Although most of these deaths are attributed to diseases such as botulism and fowl cholera, Fish and Wildlife Service research indicates an undetermined number may be due to pesticides and other contaminants, the inspector report says.

A 1986 survey identified 85 refuges that were or could be similarly tainted, but that study ''was a limited assessment and was not designed to reveal the extent of refuge contamination,'' the inspector's report said.

Without a uniform, long-term program to detect or prevent contamination, the poisoning of wildlife refuges is continuing, the report found.

Among the examples it cited were the following:

-The service declined in 1987 to monitor drainwater contamination at Kern National Wildlife Refuge even after the state of California issued health warnings on the human consumption of migratory birds taken from evaporation ponds next door to the refuge.

-A 1989 proposal for the fourth year of a 10-year study of contamination in the San Francisco Bay Refuge complex cited elevated levels of selenium, cadium and mercury, but ''lacked milestones for determining what resolution action, if any, could be taken.''

SAINT JOHN, New Brunswick (JULY 6) UPI - Northern Telecom said Thursday it will close an unprofitable manufacturing and repair plant in Saint John, eliminating 122 jobs.

The plant, which produces transformers and inductors used in telephone switching equipment and cable connectors, will close on November 5, the company said.

Northern Telecom said production losses would be absorbed at other plants in Atlantic Canada, especially in Amherst, Nova Scotia.

The market for the products made at Saint John has been in steady decline, said Bill Smith, vice-president of Northern Telecom Canada's Atlantic division.

''As the technology changes, more of the components made here are being designed right into the integrated circuits, meaning less demand for the product,'' Smith added.

Northern Telecom said it will spend $4.25 million to assist the 122 workers who will lose their jobs.

The company also said it would increase the number of customer sales and service staff to about 50 people from the 10 currently employed at the Saint John plant.

Bob White, president of the Canadian Auto Workers, which represents the plant's manufacturing employees, called on the provincial government to pressure Northern Telecom to find a new product for the plant.

''These jobs belong to New Brunswick, and Northern Telecom must not be allowed to kill them,'' White said in a letter to New Brunswick Premier Frank McKenna.

LONG BEACH, CALIF (JULY 5) UPI - McDonnell Douglas Corp., which is facing severe internal cutbacks, said Monday it had delivered 59 of its MD-80 series twin jets during the first half of this year, the most for the period since it introduced the jetliner a decade ago.

McDonnell Douglas, which builds the MD-80 short- to medium-range aircraft at its Douglas Aircraft plant in Long Beach, said it has delivered 745 of the planes. Analysts estimate each plane is worth about $30 million.

Douglas spokesman John Thom said Douglas delivered 36 of the planes during the first six months of last year, then made 82 MD-80 deliveries in the second half. Douglas has tended to deliver more planes during the second half of the year, Thom said.

McDonnell Douglas currently has 390 firm orders for MD-80s, extending into 1995, along with 414 options for the planes.

St. Louis-based McDonnell Douglas, which has been hit with poor earnings, recently announced it would cut back its operating costs by $700 million a year. Douglas, which already has laid off 4,000 regular employees and 3,000 contract workers this year, probably will lay off 2,000 to 4,000 more employees in response, a spokesman said last week.

CLEVELAND (JULY 5) UPI - The attorney representing Rite Aid Corp. President Martin Grass Thursday called the bribery case against Grass and Rite Aid the product of vindictive Ohio Board of Pharmacy officials and a disgruntled employee.

But the prosecution contends that a $33,000 check Grass allegedly gave a Board of Pharmacy member - as well as an agreement to provide the state official with health insurance worth more than $63,000 - was a bribe to get him to resign from the board.

Defense lawyer George Moscarino said during opening statements in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court that pharmacy board officials were upset because Rite Aid wanted to advertise prices in Ohio.

Moscarino said it was board member Melvin Wilczynski of Toledo who first brought up the idea of resigning during a March 29, 1989, meeting with Grass in Toledo.

That meeting came 26 days after Rite Aid's acquisition of Lane Drug was announced. Wilczynski, a former Lane Drug vice president, was serving as a consultant for Lane Drug as well as a member of the state pharmacy board.

The meeting, according to the defense lawyer, was scheduled in response to an angry telephone call Wilczynski made to a Rite Aid official the day the acquisition was announced.

Moscarino said the meeting became somewhat hostile after Wilczynski told Grass he didn't like Rite Aid. Moscarino quoted Wilczynski as saying, '''What do you want me to do, resign?' Mr. Grass said, 'Yes.'''

Grass was arrested April 27, 1989, at a Cleveland Hopkins International Airport hotel after giving a company check for $33,293.93 check to Wilczynski.

The defense claims the payment was a buyout of the consulting contract with Lane Drug and that Grass was prepared to go ahead with the buyout agreement even if Wilczynski refused to resign from the board.

In his opening statement, William Caine, an assistant county prosecutor, said Wilczynski was asked to meet with Grass in Toledo and Grass wanted him to resign. At one point, according Caine, Grass told the pharmacy board member that things were in place in Gov. Richard Celeste's office for someone more favorable to Rite Aid to replace Wilczynski.

The eight Ohio Board of Pharmacy members are appointed to four-year terms by the governor. Celeste has denied any promises were made to Rite Aid.

Moscarino said disputes between Rite Aid and the board included interpretation of who would have access to pharmacies at former Gray Drug stores Rite Aid had purchased, and how long Rite Aid would have to bring them in compliance with Ohio regulations.

Rite Aid paid a $50,000 fine in January 1989 to settle that dispute.

Since Grass' arrest, the board issued a warning to Rite Aid pharmacists for failing to do the proper paperwork in returning out-of-date drugs.

Moscarino said pharmacy board investigators bypassed the Ohio Attorney General's office, the Franklin County prosecutor's office in Columbus and the Lucas County prosecutor's office in Toledo in an attempt to find a prosecutor willing to take the case.

He said Wilczynski refused to meet with Grass again in Toledo and insisted on a face-to-face meeting in Cleveland.

Grass was arrested after that meeting and later both he and the company were indicted on charges of bribery and possession of criminal tools. The alleged criminal tool was the corporate jet Grass flew in from Harrisburg, Pa., to Cleveland.

The bribery charge carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a $5,000 fine, and the possession of criminal tools charge carries a penalty of 18 months in prison and a fine of $2,500.

Rite Aid, founded by Grass's father with a single Pennsylvania store, is the nation's largest drugstore chain with 2,360 stores in 22 states, including 355 stores in Ohio.

WASHINGTON (JULY 5) UPI - Mitch Snyder, the Madison Avenue executive turned unpaid homeless advocate, was found hanged Thursday at the shelter he operated in the nation's capital in an apparent suicide, District of Columbia police said.

''We don't suspect foul play, it was an apparent suicide,'' said police spokesman Reginald Smith, who said a note was found with ''suicidal references,'' apparently over a broken love relationship.

Snyder, 46, head of the Community for Creative Non-Violence and perhaps the nation's foremost advocate for the homeless, apparently had been hanging for at least several hours from his third-floor room at the shelter when his body was discovered at about 2 p.m., said Smith. ''He's been up there for a while.''

Snyder, who clashed with the federal and local government for two decades, once said he spent more than two years of his life in hunger strikes.

''We are more committed now than ever to continue our struggle to serve homeless people, to advocate for their rights as human beings and to continue our fight for overnight shelter and affordable housing,'' said Carol Fennelly, Snyder's longtime companion at CCNV who recently broke a marriage engagement with him.

The suicide note ''clearly made homicidal references to what appeared to be a domestic quarrel,'' said Smith.

Homeless people milled outside the 1,300-bed shelter Snyder operated Thursday afternoon, some weeping, others simply stunned.

George Gilchrist, a shelter resident, compared Snyder to Jesus Christ and said the suicide was ''letting the world know that Mitch Snyder gave his life for this cause.''

Snyder's death followed by days a major defeat in the D.C. City Council, which voted to curb the city's landmark 1984 voter-mandated Intiative 17, which guaranteed emergency shelter for anyone in need.

Snyder had been instrumental in passing Initiative 17, and had said he would challenge the council decision in court and lobby for a new referendum to be placed on this fall's ballot.

''Mitch Snyder represents the legacy of the selfless, suffering servant who became our nation's point of reference on the crisis of homeless and abandoned people,'' said Jesse Jackson. He said Snyder left wishes to be cremated and that a funeral service would be held Tuesday.

Mayor Marion Barry went to the shelter, a few hundred yards from federal court, straight from his trial on drug and perjury charges. ''Mitch and I shared the same feeling ... that everybody born on this earth is a human being, and should be treated with respect and dignity,'' he said.

In 1984 he went on a 51-day hunger strike that ended when President Reagan made a promise just before the November election to renovate an aging shelter for Washington's homeless people several blocks from the U.S. Capitol. He upgraded the shelter, the city's largest, which now houses 1,300 people.

Snyder led a national campaign this year to persuade the homeless not to participate in the Census Bureau's first ever count of the homeless, saying it would lead to a gross undercount and a cut in funds for the needy.

Hardon Thomas, 29, who had been at the shelter six years, said Snyder ''was like a brother to the homeless people; he was like a father. It's hurting a lot of people. I feel hurt.''

Snyder ended his most recent 10-day fast March 19, protesting cuts in the city's budget for the homeless.

''It's devastating,'' said council member H.R. Crawford, often at odds with Snyder over his tactics. ''Mitch has played a significant role here in the city and throughout our country. ... He has always focused the attention on the plight of those in need of assistance.''

Snyder grew up poor in New York City and had a high school career that lasted one month. Starting as a 16-year-old mailroom clerk, however, he worked his way into a prestigious $50,000-a-year job as a Madison Avenue consultant by the time he was 25.

At age 26, in 1969, he said he walked away from affluence, a wife and two children for a life he felt had more meaning.

Critics called Snyder an incurable egomaniac while supporters called him a savior. All agreed his antics were headline makers.

''Mitch Snyder was the greatest voice for the homeless in America, and he served as our nation's conscience in facing the fact that each night thousands upon thousands of citizens have no home,'' said Rep. Joseph Kennedy, D.-Mass. ''Mitch Snyder's death signifies the tragedy of homelessness.''

SEABROOK, NH (JULY 5) UPI - The controversial Seabrook nuclear power plant automatically shut down Thursday because of possible oil-pressure problems, just hours after reaching its highest operating level to date, a plant spokesman said.

''Seabrook Station automatically disconnected from the New England power grid and shut itself down at 4:29 p.m. (Thursday),'' said plant spokesman Robert Williams.

''The shutdown occurred when an electronic monitoring system which monitors equipment associated with the plant's turbine and generator sensed low oil-pressure in a hydraulic control system on the non-nuclear side of the plant.

The $6.5 billion Seabrook plant received its operating license in March, capping nearly 20 years of regulatory delays, court challenges and demonstrations by anti-nuclear activists who claim the plant is unsafe and in the wrong location.

''At the time of the shutdown, the plant's reactor was operating at a power level of 75 percent, its highest level yet during the ongoing start-up testing program, producing about 900 megawatts of electricity,'' Williams said.

The plant reached the 75 percent level, producing enough electricity to supply 750,000 homes, at 11:15 a.m. Thursday.

Seabrook opponents say the 10-mile emergency planning zone around the plant is too populated to be evacuated safely in the event of a nuclear emergency.

Members of the Clamshell Alliance are planning a demonstration Saturday at nearby Hampton Beach State Park to show the vulnerability of summer beach-goers.

Clamshell members say they will don radiation suits and pass out anti-Seabrook leaflets on the beach.

District of Columbia police say militant homeless advocate Mitch Snyder was found hanged in a shelter he ran in Washington... an apparent suicide. Authorities say Snyder's body was found in the shelter near the Capitol. Snyder's death comes several days after he suffered a major setback in his campaign to ensure shelter for those in need. The D-C City Council curbed a voter-mandated initiative that would provide homeless persons with shelter.

A federal appeals court refused to rule today on a motion by two controversial black religious leaders barred from attending the trial of Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry. Residents of the city say smoke has reduced visibility to the length of a football field. Dry conditions, hot temperatures and lightning strikes are blamed for the rash of blazes.

PHILADELPHIA (JULY 5) UPI - A federal appeals court Thursday reversed itself in an age discrimination case involving thousands of Westinghouse Electric employees, this time ruling in favor of the Pittsburgh-based diversified electronics company.

In a decision handed down by the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Westinghouse was judged not to have discriminated against older employees not given severance pay after layoffs.

In the seven-year-old suit, the employees had contended they were forced to retire before the age of 70 so they could collect retirement benefits because severance pay was not available to workers of retiring age in the event of a layoff.

Westinghouse had offered to settle for $35 million with the approximately 4,000 affected employees in 1988.

Government lawyers with the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission rejected the settlement and the appeals court subsequently found in favor of the employees.

That ruling was appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

However, the nation's highest court ruled last year that in light of new standards the case should go back to the appeals court.

''The choice between retirement and unpaid layoff does not constitute involuntary retirement,'' said Appeals Judge Anthony Scirica in Thursday's ruling.

He added that continued work was ''not an option for any of the affected employees and the employees' layoff status was unrelated to age.''

District of Columbia police say Snyder left a note with what they termed ''suicidal references,'' apparently over a broken love relationship. Police say they do NOT suspect foul play.

Carol Fennelly, Snyder's long-time companion at the shelter, recently broke a marriage engagement with him. She says the organization is more committed now than ever to continue its struggle to serve homeless people.

The 46-year-old head of the Community for Creative Non-Violence apparently had been hanging for at least several hours in his third floor room at the shelter when his body was discovered this afternoon.

Homeless people milled around the 13-hundred-bed shelter... some crying, others simply stunned.

The Environmental Protection Agency says it will try to further clean up the nation's water supply.

The E-P-A today proposed new limits on 24 pollutants in drinking water. The new limits are expected to require additional decontamination efforts by 23-hundred water systems serving two-Million people.

E-P-A officials say most of the 24 contaminants are rarely found at dangerous levels in drinking water... although they acknowledge there is little monitoring data about some of them.

The 24 substances include nine possible or probable cancer-causing agents, ranging from industrial wastes such as dioxin to pesticides such as simazine, widely used on corn and soybeans.

In San Francisco today, environmentalists charged major chemical firms with ''manufacturing'' death. The Sierra Club and the Environmental Defense Fund say there are cancer-causing risks in a dozen brands of paint remover, spot remover and water repellent products. The targeted products carry NO cancer warning on the labels... but environmentalists say they contain two chemicals known to cause cancer.

(JULY 5) UPI - Utility companies in the nation's capital and Baltimore resorted to rolling blackouts today to provide essential electricity in record-breaking heat.

The blackouts followed the break-down of two auxiliary oil-burning power stations that provide electricity to the Washington area during peak-demand periods. The two units were brought back on line in the late afternoon... about the time thunderstorms brought lower temperatues to the area.

The temperature in Washington, D-C, dropped from 100 degrees to 95 in one hour. The mid-day temperature hit a record 104 in Baltimore.

High temperature records in the upper 90's and 100's also were set in Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia and North Carolina. Temperatures were in the 90's across the southern Plains, the South and up the Atlantic Coast to New York City.

Wildfires are raging throughout Alaska.

A week of unusually hot, dry weather combined with thousands of lightning strikes to set forests on fire. The Alaska Fire Service reports 159 fires burning on 172-and-one-half-thousand acres of land.

The most threatening blaze is on the outskirts of Tok. That blaze filled the town of 12-hundred with smoke, and threatens homes and a Coast Guard communications site. The airport and the highway between Alaska and Canada were closed temporarily because of thick smoke.

Residents of the Albanian capital continue to show their disatisfaction with the hardline communist government.

At least 112 Albanians made a bid for freedom in Tirana today by climbing over walls surrounding foreign embassies. Their hope is to eventually gain visas that will allow them to travel to the West.

Hundreds of people have gained entry to 10 embassies since Monday. Others have lined up outside the embassies to apply for visas.

More than 100 new refugees entered the French Embassy. And there were at least five new arrivals at the West German mission.

The influx is reminiscent of a similar invasion last year by East Germans who poured into West German Embassy in Berlin.

In Albania, reports said the police have made NO effort to halt the wall climbers.

(JULY 5) UPI - Neil Bush, the son of the president, is to be the subject of hearing scheduled by the Office of Thrift Supervision, the federal agency that monitors savings and loans.

Agency director Timothy Ryan says the public session will be held September 25th in Denver. It will center on whether O-T-S should issue a cease and desist order against Neil Bush.

He served as director of the failed Silverado Banking and Loan Association in the Colorado capital. The agency has issued a notice dated February 5th saying it believes Bush engaged in what it termed ''UNsafe or UNsound practices'' in handling Silverado's affairs.

Neil Bush served as a director of Silverado from 1985 to August 1988, shortly before his father was elected president. The thrift institution was taken over by government regulators in December 1988.

The younger Bush has denied any wrongdoing.

The Census Bureau has issued a mixed report on the rise and fall of people below and above the poverty line.

It says about one quarter of poor people escape from poverty in a given year. But they are replaced by an almost equal number of people who fall below the poverty line.

The bureau says that although the majority of persons who were poor in 1985 were still poor the following year... nearly 24 percent of poor people were NOT still poor by 1986. It says the figures for those moving out of poverty in 1986 were about the same as the exit rate for 1984-85.

In 1986, the poverty threshold for a family of four was 11-thousand-203 dollars.

(JULY 5) UPI - NATO leaders wrap up their two-day summit tomorrow in London. Today, the heads of the 16 Western alliance nations agreed in principle to a NON-aggression stance toward the Soviet Union and Warsaw Pact. President Bush also urged NATO leaders to allow Soviet leader Gorbachev to address a future session.

America's homeless community lost one of its most outspoken advocates today. 46-year-old Mitch Snyder was found hanged in the shelter he ran in the nation's capital... an apparent case of suicide. Authorities say Snyder left a note with ''suicidal references'' over a failed love relationship.

Alaska authorities say more than 150 fires have broken out across the state, with more than one third starting yesterday. The raging blazes have engulfed 172-thousand-500 acres of land, with the most serious inferno outside the eastern Alaskan town of Tok. Authorities have ordered a partial evacuation of the town of 12-hundred along the U-S-Canadian border.

Jesse Jackson is tossing his hat in the ring for a newly created political office. Jackson says he wants to become one of Washington, D-C's, two so-called NON-voting ''shadow'' senators. Jackson says if he wins he would lead the drive for statehood for the nation's capital.

(JULY 5) UPI - A spokesman for New Hampshire's beleaguered Seabrook nuclear power plant says the facility experienced an automatic shutdown this afternoon... possibly because of oil-pressure problems. The plant had reached 75 percent of its power level... its highest operating point yet... before shutting down.

Delegates to the Soviet Union's 28th Communist Party Congress continue their session tomorrow in Moscow. Today, conservative members of the organization pointed fingers at reformers, saying attempts to change the party had created turmoil and mistrust throughout the trouble-plagued country.

Although he's been the target of pointed attacks by hardliners, Soviet President Gorbachev abided by the protocol set forth by Miss Manners and sent a thank-you note to Minnesota Governor Rudy Perpich. Minnesota welcomed Gorbachev to the land of 10-thousand lakes June 3rd.

New York City police today released a sketch of the man they think is behind a series of dart attacks in Midtown Manhattan. The suspect is said to be a neatly dressed black man in his 30's, bearded and about five-foot seven. He is believed to have shot 46 women with his makeshift blowgun.

Fire officials in Pasadena, Texas, say they are gaining an upperhand on a massive blaze at what was once touted as the ''largest honkytonk in the world.'' (JULY 5) UPI - Environmentalists today released medical information they say refutes allegations leveled against two environmental activists. Supporters of Earth First! activists Judi Bari and Darryl Cherney say the injuries the pair received when a bomb ripped through their car in May were such that they were caused by an explosive device planted beneath the front seat. Police have said the two were transporting a bomb that was in plain sight.

Doctors in Portland, Oregon, say they helped Academy Award winning actor Gene Hackman avoid a heart attack Tuesday by using a balloon-catheter to unblock an artery supplying blood to the actor's heart muscle. 60-year-old Hackman drove to a hospital after experiencing chest pains. A little more than one week ago, Trump avoided bankruptcy by receiving a bank loan package.

The Texas Water Commission is proposing a two-cent-per-barrel fee on crude oil entering Texas Gulf ports. SALT LAKE CITY (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Questar Corp. (NYSE:STR) Friday announced that a new natural gas field-extension well in southern Wyoming flowed at a rate of 7.6 million cubic feet per day after stimulation.

Questar affiliate Celsius Energy Co. has a working interest in the well located southwest of Rawlins, Wyo.

The 12,797-foot option test well, Celsius State No. 16-1, is east of the Dripping Rock field just north of the Colorado state line. It initially tested at 1 million cubic feet of gas per day. However, that figure was revised following stimulation of the well between 12,250 and 12,269 feet. Stimulation involves fracturing the gas-bearing rock surrounding the well by injecting fluids under extremely high pressure.

The option test well, located in the SW1/4NW1/4 of Section 16, T14N, R94W, 6th P.M. Sweetwater County, Wyo., is one mile east of the Dripping Rock field discovery well. It was drilled by Union Pacific Resources Co. under a ''farmout option'' agreement with Celsius.

Under the agreement, Celsius has a 30 percent working interest in the well during payout and 47.5 percent after payout. In addition, Celsius holds a call on the gas produced by the well and owns approximately 8,000 net acres in the area.

The initial test well, Horsetrap No. 10-1, drilled under a farmout option agreement by Union Pacific and located in the SE1/4SW1/4 of Section 10, T14N, R94W, 6th P.M., was drilled to 12,588 feet to test the Almond formation. It was dry and was plugged and abandoned on Nov. 17, 1989. This well was located one mile east of the option test well Celsius State No. 16-1.

The option test well is about five miles southeast of the Mulligan Draw Unit No. 1, a wildcat well that flowed 2.2 million cubic feet per day prior to fracture stimulation during a 48-hour test in February. Celsius and Union Pacific Resources Co. each have a 50 percent working interest in the Mulligan Draw Unit No. 1 well, and Celsius is the operator of the Mulligan Draw Unit.

DENVER (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Strengthening its investment in the Rocky Mountain Region's ''promising future,'' Korn/Ferry International has promoted F.M. ''Tim'' Schaefer Jr. to principal in charge at the Denver regional office of the world's largest executive search firm.

Korn/Ferry's Denver office is responsible for executive searches in Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming on behalf of local, national and international clients. It also coordinates the firm's national and international resources as required to meet the special needs of Rocky Mountain Region clients.

''Korn/Ferry International is the world's premier resource for locating and providing to clients high quality executive leadership capable of meeting the full spectrum of business challenges,'' said Michael D. Boxberger of Chicago, senior vice president.

''Tim Schaefer's promotion is an integral part of a reorganization process which resulted from our analysis of regional needs. That process will further extend our ability to respond to the needs of Rocky Mountain businesses as they expand locally and even globally in the new decade.''

Schaefer brings to the position experience in banking, manufacturing, management consulting and commercial real estate as well as executive search. Prior to joining Korn/Ferry International as a senior associate in 1988, he was a senior partner with a regional executive search firm.

Schaefer began his career with Shawmut Bank and Harris Upham in Boston. He advanced to president of Schaefer Marine Inc., of New Bedford, Mass., the world's leading manufacturer of sailboat hardware, and was executive vice president of the Center for Business Planning in Weston, Mass., before moving to Colorado in 1984 to manage operations of a commercial real estate company.

A graduate of Boston University, he is a member of the MIT Enterprise Forum of Colorado, Japan America Society of Colorado and the Greater Denver Chamber of Commerce.

Korn/Ferry International, with 41 offices in 19 countries and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, established its Denver regional office in 1981.

DALLAS (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - E-Systems announced Friday several management changes with Paul Arnone being named to the newly created position of vice president for Advanced Technology Marketing.

Arnone, a founder and president of Engineering Research Associates (ERA), an E-Systems subsidiary based in Vienna, Va., acquired in August 1989, will report to A. L. Lawson, president and chief operating officer, effective immediately.

Concurrently, Dr. Terry Collins was named vice president and general manager and Victor Sellier as vice president and assistant general manager of ERA.

Both Collins and Sellier have been with the company for more than 10 years serving in a number of technical and management capacities and have made significant contributions to ERA's growth and success in intelligence and surveillance systems. Collins spent 10 years at the Naval Research Laboratories in their Communication Sciences Division and also taught graduate level courses at George Washington University.

In announcing the appointments, Lawson said: ''Mr. Arnone will primarily focus on the development of new markets for E-Systems technology. This addition to the E-Systems corporate structure is in keeping with its planned objective of expanding existing corporate capabilities to meet the growing competitive challenges ahead.''

''Mr. Arnone will coordinate multi-divisional new business opportunities, assist in charting new business directions and participate in the identification and evaluation of corporate acquisitions. E-Systems unique position in the reconnaissance and surveillance defense system market provides a strong base of technology directly applicable to other government and industrial markets,'' Lawson said.

E-Systems, (NYSE:ESY), is a major worldwide developer and producer of electronic systems and products in the areas of intelligence, reconnaissance and surveillance systems, command and control, electronic warfare, specialized aircraft maintenance and modification, guidance, navigation and control, communications and data systems.

LOS ANGELES (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - The board of directors of Health Care Property Investors Inc. (NYSE:HCP) Friday announced the declaration of a dividend distribution of one common stock purchase right on each outstanding share of the company's common stock.

Each right will entitle shareholders to buy one newly issued share of the company's common stock at an exercise price of $95. The rights will be exercisable only if a person or group acquires 15 percent or more of the company's common stock or announces a tender offer for 30 percent or more of the common stock.

The company will be entitled to redeem the rights at 1 cent per right at any time before the 10th day after a 15 percent position has been acquired.

The rights are designed to assure that all company shareholders receive fair and equal treatment in the event of any proposed takeover of the company and to guard against partial tender offers and other abusive tactics to gain control of the company without paying all shareholders a control premium.

If a stockholder acquires 15 percent or more of the company's outstanding common stock, each right will entitle its holder to purchase, at the right's then-current exercise price, a number of Health Care Property Investors common shares having a market value at that time of twice the right's exercise price.

If the company is acquired in a merger or other business combination transaction, each right will entitle its holder to purchase, at the right's then-current exercise price, a number of the acquiring company's common shares having a market value at that time of twice the right's exercise price.

''The rights are intended to enable all Health Care Property Investors shareholders to realize the long-term value of their investment in the company.

''They do not prevent a takeover, but should encourage anyone seeking to acquire the company to negotiate with the board prior to attempting a takeover,'' said Kenneth B. Roath, president, chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Health Care Property Investors.

The dividend distribution will be payable to shareholders of record on July 30, 1990. The rights will expire in 10 years. The rights distribution is not taxable to shareholders.

IRWINDALE, CA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - GAF Building Materials Corp. announced Friday that it will close its glass fiber manufacturing plant in Irwindale, Calif., effective Sept. 4, 1990.

The closure will enable the company to consolidate its glass fiber operations at its glass fiber requirements met by outside suppliers. The glass fiber is utilized in GAF's roofing products.

''While it is always unfortunate when you close a facility and people lose their jobs,'' said John M. Sergey, president of GAF Building Materials Corp., ''the decision to mothball Irwindale enables us to consolidate our glass fiber production at Nashville and thereby reduce costs. GAF remains committed to providing the highest quality roofing products at competitive cost and continuing as one of the county's leading roofing products at a competitive cost and continuing as one of the country's leading roofing manufactures.''

The Irwindale plant employs 99 people. All employees will remain on the payroll until September 4.

REDWOOD CITY, CA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Bay Area Bancshares, parent of Redwood City-based Bay Area Bank, Friday announced its 10th consecutive quarter of record earnings.

Bay Area Bank posted earnings for the quarter ended June 30 of $215,000 on assets of $65.7 million and $417,000 for the first six months. This compares to $156,000 and $352,000 for the like periods in 1989.

Bay Area Bancshares posted earnings of $275,000, or 42 cents per share, for the six months, up 67 percent from $164,000 or 27 cents per share for the first six months of 1989.

Daniel L. Webb, president and chief executive officer of the bank, attributed performance to strategy changes implemented in 1989 and favorable economic for banks in the Bay Area. Webb expects the company to continue to continue its record pace at least through 1991.

WEST HOLLYWOOD, CA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Sherman L. Andelson, chairman of the board of BKLA Bancorp, Friday announced that the company's subsidiary, Bank of Los Angeles, has increased its reserve for loan losses by $700,000.

The bank will immediately charge off $988,000 in loans, which will leave the bank with a reserve for loan losses of approximately $1.3 million. These actions were approved in recognition of certain loans that had become non-performing or were likely to become non-performing in the near future and reflect discussions with the FDIC after its recent examination of the bank.

The increase to the loan loss reserves is expected to produce a second-quarter loss for 1990 of between $400,000 to $425,000; and a loss of between $200,000 to $225,000 for the first six months of 1990.

The company believes it can return to profitability during the third quarter and achieve a net profit for the year. Moreover, the institution's capital-to-assets ratio after the charge off continues to exceed regulatory requirements and its liquidity position remains sound.

Founded in 1982, Bank of Los Angeles markets both business and consumer financial products and has regional offices in West Hollywood, Beverly Hills and Hollywood.

The common stock of the West Hollywood-based BKLA Bancorp, is traded under the symbol BKLA on the NASDAQ National Market System and Western OTC.

PROVO, UT (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Novell Inc., developer of NetWare systems software products, and Unisys Corp., Friday announced a licensing agreement and cooperative technology undertaking under which Unisys will provide Novell's Portable NetWare, initially, on its U6000 Series UNIX-based server platforms, with plans to expand to its S/Series family in the future.

When the product becomes available later this year, Unisys will offer it under the brand name ''NetWare for U Series.'' It will be offered as a part of the Value Added Platform on U6000 Series computers and marketed through the Unisys direct commercial sales channel to Fortune 1000 customers.

Unisys customers in lines of business such as government systems, financial systems and commercial systems are expected to benefit from the capability to connect to dissimilar networking environments.

This announcement extends a solid working relationship between the two companies that dates back to 1986, when Unisys was the first systems manufacturer to OEM NetWare under the USERNET label. Unisys is currently a NetWare Service Organization (NSO), whereby its worldwide service organization is contracted to service NetWare customers.

Unisys is also part of Novell's Independent Manufacturers' Support Program (IMSP) which has certified that Unisys' LAN equipment is compatible with NetWare. In addition, Unisys is certified by Novell as a NetWare training center and participates in the Strategic Engineering Support (SES) program.

As an SES member, Unisys joins a select group of systems manufacturers that Novell has qualified to perform NetWare compatibility testing in-house.

Unisys Corp. is a $10 billion manufacturer of commercial information systems, defense systems and related services. It has approximately 80,000 employees and 60,000 customers in more than 100 countries.

Novell Inc. is the leading independent provider of open, high-performance systems software products. The company's NetWare network operating system has become a standard for personal computer-based local area networks.

HOUSTON (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - James D. Lee, president of Republic Waste Industries Inc. (NASDAQ:RWIN) and Manuel Asadurian Sr., chairman of the board of G.I. Industries, jointly announced the two companies have entered into an agreement in principle for the acquisition of G.I. Industries by Republic Waste Industries Inc.

The agreement in principle contemplates a tax-free reorganization in which G.I. Industries shareholders would receive shares of Republic Waste Industries Inc. common stock in exchange for G.I. Industries common stock.

The exchange ratio is to be determined based on a value of $3.50 per share of G.I. Industries common stock and the market price per share of Republic Waste Industries stock at the time of merger. With approximately 4.3 million shares of G.I. Industries common stock outstanding, the value of the transaction to shareholders of G.I. Industries is approximately $15 million.

Closing of the transaction is subject to negotiation and execution of a definitive agreement, receipt of regulatory and other approvals, approval of the boards of directors of both companies, approval of G.I. Industries shareholders and satisfaction of other conditions.

''This acquisition represents our strategic entry into the expansive southern California market. We are pleased to have Manuel Asadurian Sr. and the G.I. Industries family as part of the Republic Waste Industries management team,'' commented James D. Lee, president of Republic Waste Industries.

''We are pleased with the terms of the agreement and believe this merger will be of equal benefit to both companies. We look forward to a long and mutually profitable relationship with Republic Waste,'' said Asadurian of

G.I. Industries.

Republic Waste Industries Inc. is a company specializing in the collection processing and disposal of solid waste. Republic Waste Industries Inc.'s common stock is traded over the counter under the NASDAQ symbol RWIN.

VENTURA, CA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Benton Oil and Gas Co. (OTC: BNTN) announces the acquisition of working interests in the West Cote Blanche Bay Field, located in a shallow water bay five miles off the southern coast of Louisiana.

In June, 1990, Benton acquired for approximately $2.1 million a 5.47 percent working interest from a group of independent oil and gas companies. At the same time, Benton signed an agreement to acquire for approximately $6.5 million an additional 16.47 percent working interest currently owned by the same sellers.

That agreement is subject to certain closing conditions, including financing considerations and preferential rights held by the other working interest owners. Both agreements are effective Jan. 1, 1990, for the purposes of allocating reserves, revenues and expenses.

West Cote Blanche Bay Field, approximately 3.5 miles long and two miles wide, is situated on one of the largest salt domes in the Gulf of Mexico. It has produced just under 200 million barrels of oil from approximately 680 wells and has produced approximately 195 billion cubic feet of gas (mostly used for gas lift and other operations).

"The West Cote Blanche Bay Field is attractive not only because of its current production, but especially because it has considerable upside potential," said Alex Benton, president. "We expect to participate in the further development of the field by recompleting certain existing oil wells, drilling shallow infill wells, drilling gas cap wells, and drilling deep gas wells with high potential targets."

Benton Oil and Gas Co., based in Ventura, Calif., is an independent oil and gas exploration and production company with operations in California, Colorado, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana.

ANCHORAGE, AK (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - National Bancorp of Alaska's (NBA) net income for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, was $6.2 million, up 12 percent from the $5.6 million reported for the second quarter of 1989, according to Ed Rasmuson, chairman of the board.

Net income for the first six months of 1990 was $12.5 million, an increase of 21 percent over $10.3 million for the first six months of 1989.

''We attribute the increase in net income to the improving Alaska economy, as well as added expense control,'' Rasmuson added.

The earnings per share for the second quarter of 1990 were 78 cents, compared to 70 cents for the second quarter of 1989. The earnings per share for the first six months of 1990 are $1.57, compared to $1.29 for the first six months of 1989.

As of June 30, 1990, National Bancorp of Alaska's total assets were nearly $2.1 billion, a decrease of 10.7 percent from assets of $2.3 billion for the second quarter of 1989. Total shareholders' equity as of June 30, 1990, was $206 million compared to $185 million as of June 30, 1989.

''The decrease in total assets is primarily attributable to the runoff of brokered deposits which were acquired in the Alliance Bank transaction in April 1989,'' Rasmuson said. ''As these deposits matured, they were not renewed. It is our policy not to acquire brokered deposits, but to rely on traditional core deposits that create a strong and stable bank.''

SANTA CLARA, CA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Integrated Device Technology, (IDT)(NASDAQ:IDTI) announced Friday that it expects to report lower sales and earnings for the first fiscal quarter ended July 1, 1990 than those reported for the fourth fiscal quarter ended April 1, 1990.

The company expects sales to be approximately $49 million and profits to be near break even.

Revenue for the fourth fiscal quarter was $52.1 million and earnings per share were 12 cents. Revenue for the year ago quarter ended July 2, 1989 was $51.6 million and earnings per share were 20 cents.

''The first fiscal quarter was disappointing. Orders booked during the quarter for shipment within the quarter did not meet our expectations,'' said D. John Carey, chairman and chief executive officer.

''Our problems were primarily centered in the TTL I/O SRAM area and stemmed from two sources. The first was increased competition in the high-speed SRAM marketplace which resulted in lower selling prices. The second was that we experienced delays in bringing to market very high-speed versions of some of our SRAMs.

Integrated Device Technology Inc. designs, manufactures and markets high-speed CEMOS VLSI integrated circuits with sub-micron features sizes. The company's nine product lines are synergistic and are all focused for high-performance systems.

The product lines include fast SRAMs, the FCT logic family, high-density modules, FIFOs, complex logic products, specialty memories, ECL I/O BiCEMOS products, RISC SubSystems, and the microprocessor family which includes the 79R3000 and 79R3001 RISController microprocessors.

Headquartered in Santa Clara, IDT employs approximately 2,050 people worldwide.

IRVINE, CA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - AST Research Inc. (NASDAQ:ASTA) has named Philip Wong managing director of the company's newly formed Asia-Pacific sales region.

Alex Chu replaces Wong as director of AST Asia.

The Asia-Pacific region, directed from AST offices in Hong Kong, includes Australia and New Zealand as well as China, Korea, Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia and other Far East nations.

''The Pacific Rim is an important marketplace for AST and the formation of the Asia-Pacific territory demonstrates our intent to expand into new markets,'' said Tom Yuen, AST's co-founder and chief operating officer.

''Under Wong's guidance, the company has obtained significant market share in Asia. In his new position, Wong will play a key role in AST's continued international growth,'' he said.

Wong has been with AST since 1987 and will oversee the marketing, sales and technical-support activities of the Asia- Pacific region.

Chu, who joined AST in 1985, has served as the regional technical services director of AST Asia. His responsibilities now include marketing and sales for that region.

Wong received a bachelor's degree in finance and accounting from the University of New Brunswick in Canada and a bachelor's degree in computer science from the University of Guelph in Canada.

AST Research is a leading manufacturer of high-performance personal computers, enhancement and data communication products. The company is represented in 89 countries and international sales account for 35 percent of total revenues.

LOS ANGELES (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Signifying an acceleration of the company's production activities, Stephen Deutsch has been appointed president of production at Dino De Laurentiis Communications (DDLC), effective immediately, it was announced by Dino De Laurentiis.

Deutsch's long-standing relationship with Richard Berger, president of MGM/UA, signifies the potential of DDLC's continuing its close association with MGM/UA. In January, Berger acquired ''Timers,'' a project developed by and brought to MGM/UA by Deutsch, who had been headquartered at MGM/UA until his appointment at DDLC.

Deutsch is particularly enthusiastic about ''Over My Dead Body,'' which is an American version of Dino De Laurentiis' classic Italian comedy, ''Crimen,'' and which will commence production this winter for a summer 1991 release. John Candy is already committed to the project, which will be directed by Eugene Levy, and Deutsch indicated that additional major cast announcements are forthcoming.

DDLC currently has two films that will be released this year by MGM/UA.

The first is ''Desperate Hours,'' directed by Michael Cimino and starring Mickey Rourke, Anthony Hopkins, Kelly Lynch and Mimi Rogers, which will be released nationally on Sept. 28.

From 1985-86, Deutsch served as executive vice president in charge of production at New Century Productions. He was senior vice president at Rastar from 1976-79.

Deutsch also emphasized that both Jude Schneider, vice president of development, and Christy Humphrey, story editor, would remain at DDLC in their present capacities. ''They're both very talented and I will be relying heavily on them,'' Deutsch added.

MILPITAS, CA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Xicor (NASDAQ, NMS: XICO) Friday reported results for the 12-week second quarter which ended on June 17.

Revenues for the 12-week second quarter of 1990 were $20,417,000, compared to $21,979,000 for the second quarter of 1989. During the second quarter of 1990, Xicor incurred a loss of $4,778,000 (26 cents per share) compared to net income of $2,261,000 (12 cents per share) for the comparable quarter of 1989.

For the 24-week first half of 1990, Xicor's revenues were $40,172,000 with a loss of $11,756,000 (65 cents per share) compared to revenues of $43,948,000 and net income of $5,186,000 (28 cents per share) for the like period of 1989.

Raphael Klein, president, stated: ''We believe that during the second quarter we achieved a turn-around situation in manufacturing. During this quarter, we have seen a marked improvement in the gross profit margin and a modest increase in revenues relative to the first quarter of 1990.

''The gross profit margin improved as a result of a number of yield and productivity improvement programs implemented during the last nine months. These improvement programs, together with more new employees becoming trained and productive, enabled us to attain increased factory utilization and yields. We expect further improvements in the gross profit margin during the third quarter of 1990.

''During the second quarter, we achieved many of our goals for the improvement of our wafer fabrication operation, including a second quarter wafer output increase of 30 percent compared to the first quarter of 1990 and almost doubling of the die yield for the 256K CMOS EEPROM relative to the August 1989 yield level.

''Our wafer fabrication operation is on a path towards achieving a top performance level and we are now devoting significant efforts to achieve the same in our test operation. We are on a fast learning curve to mass-produce the very complex EEPROM devices, which are becoming volume commodity items sold at prices which are significantly below those of a year ago.

''The increasing unit production is also enabling us to significantly reduce lead times for product availability. We now offer our customers a much better response time backed by a solid and more predictable manufacturing operation.

''Booking for the second quarter again exceeded sales. Provided bookings continue to improve, our growing product availability will now enable us to increase revenues at a higher rate than during the past two quarters.

''As I previously advised Xicor's shareholders, our fixed costs have increased significantly as a result of our investment during the last two years of more than $50 million in equipment upgrading and plant modernization and the establishment of a state-of-the-art 6-inch wafer fabrication line.

''In addition, our manufacturing payroll costs have increased and the 1990 level of R&D expenditure is significantly higher than in 1989 as we are utilizing the new 6-inch line to develop and bring to market a series of advanced products ranging from small to large densities.

''Consequently, profitability can be reestablished only after a significant increase in revenues and a concurrent fuller and more efficient utilization of the factory, which we presently anticipate will take place during the latter part of 1990. In addition, considering our high level of depreciation expense and reduced capital spending, we believe that we will reach break even cash flow during the fourth quarter provided our bookings level for short-term deliveries continues to increase.''

Klein concluded: ''We are looking forward to reporting to you further improvements during the third quarter of 1990, including initial shipments from the 6-inch line.''

Xicor, a semiconductor manufacturer, is the leading supplier of proprietary devices which retain their information without power yet can be easily reprogrammed in the system. These advanced products, based on a technology called ''full-featured EEPROM,'' enable customers to manufacture systems with reduced service costs, improved readiness, automatic self-calibration capability and simple end-user customization.

Xicor products are now widely accepted in all the traditional markets which use semiconductors: computers and peripherals, consumer products, telecommunications, industrial controls, the military and transportation. Xicor's customer base encompasses many of the top-tier electronics companies in the United States, Europe and the Far East.

Xicor offers its customers the most complete EEPROM capabilities in the industry: products with high quality and reliability, a wide range of densities, interfaces and package configurations, proven wafer fabrication and product testing, advanced CMOS and NMOS technologies with a clear path to the future and highly competent on-site technical customer support.

SAN DIEGO (JULY 7) BUSINESS WIRE - Personal Computer Products Inc. (NASDAQ: PCPI) Friday announced it has signed a definitive agreement to acquire Office Automation Systems Inc., a privately held competing manufacturer and marketer of laser printers, in exchange for PCPI stock.

Upon successful completion of the transaction, Office Automation Systems will become a wholly owned subsidiary of PCPI. Both companies have headquarters in San Diego.

PCPI's estimated revenues for its fiscal year ended June 30 were $13 million. Office Automation Systems estimates that its revenues for the six months ended June 30 were $9 million.

"The combination of the technologies and resources of PCPI and Office Automation Systems will strengthen both companies," said Edward W. Savarese, chairman, president and chief executive officer of PCPI.

PCPI manufactures and markets laser printers under the LaserImage brand name. Office Automation Systems markets its laser printer product line under the LaserPro brand name. Additionally, PCPI markets and licenses to a variety of laser printer manufacturers throughout the world proprietary laser printer controller designs using ASIC chips developed with Motorola Inc.

Office Automation Systems markets its proprietary EXPRESS Command Language for business graphics.

John C. Belden, president and chief executive officer of Office Automation Systems, will join the PCPI board of directors and will serve as an officer of PCPI. Savarese will remain chairman, president and chief executive officer of PCPI.

The merger is subject to approval by Office Automation Systems' shareholders and is also subject to PCPI's approval of the recent resolution of a dispute between Office Automation Systems and one of its major suppliers regarding purchased equipment.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - ASIAMERICA EQUITIES, LTD. (NASDAQ/NMS Symbol: ASIAS) Friday announced that it has agreed to terms with Spectrum GmbH and HPY Industries Ltd., the parent of Spectrum, to assist in the restructuring and reorganization of their 40 percent interest in Fulgurit GmbH, a major manufacturer and distributor of building supplies and materials in West Germany.

Under the proposed plan, ASIAMERICA may acquire a controlling interest in HPY and Spectrum, subject to final documentation, due diligence and regulatory approvals. The first phase of the reorganization involves a U.S. $2 million bridge loan facility, which may be increased as the reorganization proceeds and is convertible into equity of HPY. Fulgurit is a family business founded in 1938 and one of West Germany's most well known and respected building supply companies. It employs over 700 workers and has seven sales offices and 17 distribution centers throughout West Germany. Fulgurit had revenues in excess of U.S. $74 million 1/8DM 118 million3/8 in 1989.

ASIAMERICA views this opportunity as an excellent operating and undervalued asset situation. The Company stated it believes Fulgurit's business will expand due to the changing building regulations and the elimination of asbestos in building materials. Fulgurit is already one of the largest producers of specialist non- asbestos tiles for the housing market in Germany. In addition, there exists the immediate potential for growth in East Germany. Fulgurit is presently negotiating a joint venture agreement with a leading East German building supply company. This project is in line with ASIAMERICA's stated corporate strategy of expanding its activities internationally with specific emphasis in Europe.

SACRAMENTO, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Unify Corp. Friday announced ACCELL/Workstation Plus, the company's total application development solution for the commercial Unix workstation market.

ACCELL/Workstation Plus offers native support for multiple graphical and character-based user interfaces, an enhanced graphical application generator, and full development support for all leading Unix RDBMS engines.

''With ACCELL/Workstation Plus, Unify has introduced a software development package designed to meet the current and future application migration and productivity needs of workstation developers,'' said Bill Osberg, Unify's director of product marketing.

''Our support of all leading user interfaces, both graphical and character means that Unix developers can easily port current applications to run under new GUIs or bring GUI applications down to PC or terminal users.''

Specifically, ACCELL/Workstation Plus includes native support for multiple graphical user interfaces, including Open Look and Motif. This native support allows developers to readily build applications under either GUI quickly and easily.

They can port one application to the other GUI with no additional programming. ACCELL/Workstation Plus also supports character-based interfaces, allowing developers to mix and match their interface support throughout a network to suit individual users.

ACCELL/Workstation Plus also includes the advantages of ACCELL/SQL's support of all leading Unix database engines. ACCELL/SQL is becoming recognized as the ''Open Systems Standard 4GL'' by many leading Unix developers because of its ability to support application-building with multiple client/server architecture databases, including SYBASE, ORACLE and UNIFY 2000.

This added flexibility of ACCELL/Workstation Plus, allows developers to write an application only once, and have it run across heterogeneous hardware and database platforms across a network.

ACCELL/SQL increases productivity and performance with a unique integration of 4GL technologies, including a visual application generator, an event-driven 4GL and a responsive window manager. The generator provides developers with a ''fill-in-the-blanks'' approach to field and form definition, for more efficient development. Almost 80 percent of all business applications can be built using the generator alone.

ACCELL/Workstation Plus has improved the ACCELL/SQL development system by adding graphical features to the application generator. The new features eliminate the need for arrow or function keys, and bring GUI techniques to application developers themselves.

Among those features included in the enhanced graphical application generator are: drag and drop for fields and trim; mouse support for line and box drawings; and a point-and-click for form and field attributes.

All components of ACCELL/Workstation Plus will be available in Q3 1990, except for the enhanced graphics-based generator, which will be available in Q1 1991. Prices for ACCELL/Workstation Plus start at $10,500. The ACCELL/SQL for Motif development support module is available separately, starting at $3,200.

Unify Corp. is a leading manufacturer of Unix-based application development software tools. Based in Sacramento, Unify employs 250 people in 19 offices across the United States, Europe and Japan. Unify's ACCELL/SQL ''Open Systems 4GL'' was chosen by the U.S. Air Force as its foundation software technology for its $1 billion worldwide Unix conversion project awarded to AT&T as contract AFCAC-251.

RESTON, VA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Rolls-Royce engines worth more than $1 billion will power 33 new Boeing 747-400 airliners ordered by British Airways.

Twenty-one of the additional 33 will be firm offers. These new aircraft are in addition to 21 already on firm order, plus a further 10 options.

All will be powered by 58,000-pound thrust RB211-524G engines. Deliveries are scheduled from March 1992 to December 1999.

British Airways, the world's largest operator of Rolls-Royce RB211 engines has had 747-400s powered by the -524G in service for a year.

Sir Ralph Robins, deputy chairman of Rolls-Royce plc, said, ''British Airways' fleet of 747-400s will grow through the 1990s, extending the long-standing relationship that has built up between Rolls-Royce and British Airways. We are very pleased to see the RB211 remain the backbone of the British Airways fleet.''

Lord King, chairman of British Airways, said in Rolls-Royce Magazine recently: ''Make no mistake about it, we do not buy out of pure patriotism but for quality and price. But having said that, there is no doubt that the company's reputation for reliability is reassuring for passengers when they fly BA and see the famous Rolls-Royce name on the side.''

Total orders and options for the RB211-powered 747-400 now stand at 143 aircraft, giving Rolls-Royce one third of the market.

The RB211 has the best fuel efficiency and performance retention on the 747-400. After more than one year of service on the 747-400, initial figures show that the -524G is upholding the RB211 family's achievement of best performance retention.

Rolls-Royce RB211 engines power a wide range of aircraft in British Airways' service. They are Lockheed L-1011 TriStars; earlier versions of the Boeing 747; and Boeing 757, 767, and 747-400 airliners.

Three hundred and fifteen RB211 engines are currently in service and on order or option for British Airways. The new additional 747-400s require approximately 160 engines, including spares.

Rolls-Royce is a world leader in the design, development and manufacture of civil and military aviation, marine and industrial gas turbine engines.

KENT, WA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Sun Sportswear Inc. (NASDAQ: SSPW) Friday announced that first half 1990 net sales will be up approximately 12 percent over comparable 1989 net sales which where $41.5 million.

Second quarter net sales ended June 30, 1990, will be approximately 12 percent lower than comparable 1989 quarter net sales which were $25.1 million. As a result of these sales levels for the second quarter of 1990, net income and earnings per share for the six months and for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, will be considerably below comparable 1989 results, particularly due to the increase in shares outstanding.

Aggressive customer purchases in first quarter combined with cool spring weather resulted in inventory build up at the retail level, slowing second quarter orders. At the same time certain licensed products supplied by competitors were and are unusually popular. These factors may continue to effect Sun's sales in the third quarter.

The company's outlook for the fourth quarter of 1990 is optimistic. The company is experiencing strong acceptance of the company's new girls and junior apparel and expects growth in its licensed business through introduction of new licensed products, including colleges. In addition, the ongoing popularity of its proprietary designs and the continued strong growth of Sun's key customers support this optimism.

Sun Sportswear is one of the nation's largest screen-printers of casual sportswear for the mass-merchandising segment. It's largest customers are Wal-Mart, Target and K mart.

NEWTON, MA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Biotechnology Development Corp. (BDC) Friday announced the first order for its newly introduced production size Microfluidizer (M610) to a major producer of industrial products.

The purchase follows completion of a product development and testing program enabled by Microfluidizer technology. The price is approximately $320,000.

Irwin J. Gruverman, president and chief executive officer of BDC stated, ''Our Microfluidics Corporation Division has shipped more than 600 laboratory systems and 25 pilot/manufacturing systems since the introduction of this novel, patented equipment six years ago. Applications for the unique uniform, submicron size structures produced by the equipment have been founded in virtually every plant in which hard-to-mix materials are used, or wherever deagglomeration, encapsulation, or membrane disruption is desired.

''Our equipment has been recognized as an indispensable formulation/mixing tool in the pharmaceutical, food, chemical, cosmetic and biotechnology industries. Discussions with many users of our laboratory units are in progress, some of which are expected to lead to production system orders.''

The president of Microfluidics, Michael T. Rumley pointed out, ''The M610 is the first production scale machine to employ a hydraulically driven double-acting intensifer pump to propel the process stream into our patented interaction chamber to produce the desired results. We are excited about the M610 Microfluidizer.

''It enables Microfluidics Corporation to offer larger capacity and higher pressure (over 25,000psi) to its customers. These capabilities have great customer appeal and we expect to benefit from increased product interest and acceptance in both domestic and export markets.''

Biotechnology Development Corp. is a source of innovative equipment and technology for the biotechnology and process industries.

CHICAGO (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - St. Paul Federal Bank For Savings, the principal subsidiary of St. Paul Bancorp Inc. (NASDAQ:SPBC), announced that it was directed Thursday by the Office of Thrift Supervision (''OTS'') to increase its general loan loss reserves by $26 million.

As a result of this addition, St. Paul Bancorp Inc. Friday reported a loss of $20.8 million, or $1.72 per share, for the three months ended June 30, 1990 as compared to net income of $5.5 million, or 45 cents per share, for the comparable period of 1989. Without the addition to general reserves, St. Paul would have had second quarter 1990 net income of $5.2 million, or 43 cents per share.

Net income for the first six months of 1990 reflected a loss of $15.5 million, or $1.27 per share, compared with earnings of $10.6 million, or 86 cents per share, in the first six months of 1989. The 1990 first half and second quarter results include the $26 million addition to the bank's general reserves as a provision against potential loan losses.

According to Joseph C. Scully, chairman and chief executive officer, the standards now being applied to the bank represent a new position of the OTS as to the required level of general reserves and the additional reserves do not relate to any new problems with any specific loans.

The board of directors and management of the bank disagree with the new position taken by the OTS. The bank continues to believe that its reserves for loan losses prior to the OTS directive were adequate and compared favorably with the amount of reserves of other major savings institutions relative to non-performing loans.

Although the Bank does not agree with the necessity of increased loan loss reserves, in veiw of OTS' broad regulatory authority the bank has entered into a Suprvisory Agreement with the OTS pursuant to which the bank has agreed to comply with the OTS directive to establish the additional general reserves as of June 30, 1990. Pursuant to the terms of the Supervisory Agreement, the bank has retained its right to seek arbitration of the general reserve amount through an informal procedure established by the OTS.

The additional provision has reduced the bank's after-tax income for the second quarter by $26 million. After giving effect to the additional reserve, however, the bank's capital will continue to exceed its tangible capital, core capital and risk-based capital requirements by approximately $142.8 million, $95.8 million and $83.3 million, respectively.

The bank's tangible capital as of June 30, 1990 was $192.9 million. Its tangible, core and risk-based capital ratios at that date stood at 5.781 percent, 5.869 percent and 9.804 percent, respectively.

The $26 million in additional general reserves results from a change in the OTS position as to the required level of general reserves from that taken by the OTS in its examination report sent to the bank on April 26, 1990.

As of May 31, 1990 the bank had established $12 million in general reserves and $8.6 million in specific reserves and was recording an ongoing general monthly loan loss provision of $1 million.

These reserve levels were in compliance with the directives contained in the OTS examination report. The OTS has indicated, however, that it has re-evaluated the level of general reserves which it will require the bank to establish.

The additional provision now required by the OTS is based on a combination of factors, including primarily the amount of the bank's classified substandard multi-family loans, the amount of the bank's remaining portfolio of multi-family loans and the amount of multi-family loans which have been sold with recourse.

LONDON (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - July 6, 1990,--British Gas (NYSE:BRG) and the Welland Fields' owners (ARCO, operator, 25 percent) Mobil North Sea Limited (30 percent), Gas Council (Exploration) (20 percent), BP (12.5 percent), and Occidental (12.5 percent) signed agreements for the sale of natural gas from the Welland fields it was announced Friday.

Following the Monopolies and Mergers Commission report on contract gas prices in 1988, the Welland deal marks the third contract to be signed within the last six months where British Gas will only buy 90 percent of the gas produced. The remaining 10 percent will be sold to customers in direct competition to British Gas. First gas from the Welland fields will flow in October of this year.

A spokesman for British Gas stated: ''The Welland deal, which is the culmination of many months of negotiation, demonstrates that British Gas is prepared to agree to terms which facilitate the early availability of gas for direct sales into the market.''

Commenting on the agreements, Stephen Mut, ARCO's managing director said, ''The Welland owners welcome the opportunity to be first to deliver gas directly to the UK market under a 90/10 arrangement.''

At plateau production rates the Welland fields will deliver an average daily quantity of up to 30 million cubic feet a day for direct sales by the fields' owners. Welland gas will be delivered via the Thames pipeline to the Bacton, Norfolk, terminal where it will enter the British Gas transmission system.

British Gas, headquartered in London, is the largest integrated gas company in the Western world and is primarily involved in the purchase, transmission, and sale of natural gas to domestic, industrial and commercial customers in Great Britain. Important support activities to its marketing efforts include appliance trading and customer service to domestic gas customers. British Gas is also active in the exploration for and production of hydrocarbons both offshore and onshore. Expertise developed in the gas business is offered for sale overseas through the British Gas International Consultancy Service. British Gas American Depositary Receipts are traded on the New York Stock Exchange. One ADR is equivalent to the ten ordinary shares.

BELTSVILLE, MD (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - North American Vaccine Inc. (ASE: NVX), Friday announced that its subsidiary, AMVAX Inc., has executed a modification to its contract with the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (''NICHD''), effective June 29.

Under the terms of the contract, as modified, AMVAX will prepare and deliver to the NICHD its acellular pertussis toxoid in combination with diphtheria and tetanus toxoid to be used by the NICHD in Phase III clinical trials, designed to evaluate the efficacy of the DTP vaccine in the prevention of pertussis (whooping cough) in infants.

The Phase III clinical trials are scheduled to commence in late 1990 and to be completed during 1991. Under the modified contract, AMVAX will prepare and deliver to the NICHD the DTP vaccine and will receive from the NICHD reimbursement of costs and expenses of up to an additional $3.4 million.

AMVAX will share in the cost of the project in the form of unreimbursed costs and expenses. The contract is scheduled to expire on Jan. 31, 1991. Wenlii Lin, Ph.D., director of Pertussis Production, has been given primary responsibility for directing AMVAX's pertussis vaccine project, replacing Ronald Sekura, Ph.D., who is no longer with the company.

In addition, the company announced today that Sharon Mates, president, will be assuming primary responsibility for overseeing the company's conjugate vaccine research and development effort, pending the retention of a suitable candidate to replace Lance Gordon, Ph.D., who is no longer with the company.

North American Vaccine Inc., both directly and through its subsidiaries, is engaged in the research, development, manufacturing and marketing of human immunobiological products with emphasis on vaccines to prevent pediatric infectious diseases.

MIAMI SPRINGS, FL (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - International Recovery Corp. announced Friday that it has applied for listing of its common stock on the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE), and expects its security to begin trading on the NYSE by the end of July under its existing INT trading symbol.

The Company's security has been trading on the American Stock Exchange (ASE) since June 8, 1987.

''We believe that the timing is right for our move to the NYSE as the Company continues its expansion in the worldwide aviation fueling marketplace and pursues additional opportunities in the non-hazardous carbon remediation segment of the environmental services industry.

''We also believe that the NYSE can best meet the requirements of the global institutional shareholder market,'' said Ralph R. Weiser, IRC chairman of the board.

IRC recently reported record earnings and revenue for the fiscal year ended March 31, in which net income increased by 78 percent and revenue jumped 121 percent -- representing 13 consecutive quarters of year-over-year advances.

For the year, revenue more than doubled to $142.2 million from $64.5 million. Net income increased to nearly $4.0 million, or 87 cents per share on approximately one million additional shares, from $2.2 million, or 62 cents per share, in the prior year.

IRC is strategically focused to maximize business opportunites in environmental services and aviation fueling as the result of unique relationships which link the Company to various segments of the global petroleum industry.

The Company's environmental group of subsidiaries do the work in providing integrated non-hazardous carbon-based waste management and remediation services. IRC also holds a leading position in the marketing of aviation fuel to a worldwide niche market on non-major commercial operators of large aircraft.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - A color display system for the NeXT computer that will be the first to be available commercially was unveiled in Seoul Friday by Daewoo Telecom Co., Ltd.

The image processing system, which will be available commercially in early 1991, will be distributed in the United States by Leading Edge Products, Inc. of Canton, Massachusetts, which is owned by Daewoo Telecom. The system will be distributed by Daewoo Telecom in other parts of the world.

''We believe the image processing system is the world's sharpest, fastest and will be the least expensive,'' said Dr. Sung-Kyou Park, president of Daewoo Telecom.

''The most immediate application of the Daewoo Imaging & Graphics System is in medicine -- displaying the results of CAT scans or magnetic resonance images. The system can also be used in desktop publishing, computer-added design and manufacturing, and scientific computing requiring enormous data bases of pictures that are twice the quality of high-definition television,'' said Dr. Park, demonstrating the new product.

The system was developed with financial support from Daewoo Telecom by the Image Computing Systems Laboratory at the University of Washington.

A license agreement, which provides the company with worldwide sales rights, also stipulates that Daewoo Telecom will be the only Asia-based company permitted to use the technology.

The display system, which consists of a single circuit board, can produce so-called true color images -- 16.7 million colors compared to the 256 limit of most computers.

''The Daewoo Imaging & Graphics System executes very complex functions at a speed approximating a supercomputer, but will cost several times less than image processing systems for other computers, which sell from about $65,000 to $300,000, depending on the application,'' said Dr. Park, noting that the Daewoo system will sell in the $30,000-$60,000 price range for most applications.

Daewoo Telecom manufactures and markets personal computers, other office automation products and telecommunications systems. The company is a member of Korea's Daewoo Group, which is engaged in trading, construction, a broad range of manufacturing activities and financial services. The group's total sales in 1989 were about $20 billion.

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE, ENGLAND (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - NEI ABB Gas Turbines Ltd., of Newcastle upon Tyne, has been awarded a contract by National Power worth between 200 million pounds and 250 million pounds to build a 650MW gas-fired combined cycle power station at Killingholme on Humberside.

The station will use three 150MW gas turbine generators, plus a 200MW steam turbine generator driven by steam produced by boilers using the heat from the gas turbine exhausts. It is due for completion in July 1993.

NEI ABB Gas Turbines will have United Kingdom project management responsibility and the contract will provide considerable work for NEI companies in the North East and the Midlands.

Alan Dixon, managing director of NEI ABB Gas Turbines said, ''I am delighted that National Power has shown its confidence in the technology and experience that we have been able to offer. I am sure that our very high thermal efficiency and our proven low NOx combustion system were important factors in our winning this major contract.''

NEI ABB Gas Turbines is a 50-50 joint venture company established in January 1990 after the merger of NEI with Rolls-Royce. Rolls-Royce already had strong links with ABB.

HOUSTON (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Continental Airlines Friday announced it has selected six cities for further consideration in conjunction with the airlines' search for a site for new maintenance facilities. The six communities are: Beaumont, Texas; Corpus Christi, Texas; Denver, Colo.; El Paso, Texas; Houston; and Shreveport, La.

In May, Continental invited 13 cities to submit proposals on bringing its new aircraft maintenance center and/or engine overhaul facility to their communities.

The aircraft maintenance complex calls for a 150 acre land site, an ultimate employment base of 4,000 persons, with a potential $150 million annual payroll.

A separate engine overhaul facility calls for a 35-50 acre land site, 1,000 employees and a potential $35 million annual payroll.

Continental's planned fleet expansion, and the closure of Denver's Stapleton Airport, will render existing shop and hangar capacity inadequate by the mid-1990s.

In addition, the new facilities will increase Continental's capacity to accommodate aircraft check requirements, and offer opportunities for expanded maintenance activities.

Continental also reviewed proposals and held discussions with seven other communities; Albuquerque, N.M.: Austin, Texas; Phoenix, Ariz.; San Antonio Texas; Tampa, Fla.; Texarkana, Ark., and Tucson, Ariz.

FAIRFIELD, NJ (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Equity Growth Corp. (OTC) announced that it is in violation of its loan agreement with Gibraltar Corporation of America.

The Company has had and continues to have discussions with Gibraltar regarding repayment, continuation of financing and efforts by the Company to obtain additional capital. In addition, the Company is considering seeking protection under the bankruptcy laws. The Company also announced that it will omit the dividend on preferred stock which, if declared, would have been payable on July 15, 1990.

The Company has been unable to issue interim financial statements for the first and second quarters of the 1990 fiscal year because of the unavailability of audited financial statements for its fiscal year ending September 30, 1989. The Company does not expect that the audit of its financial statements will be completed in the immediate future.

The Company previously announced that it had suffered substantial losses for its 1989 fiscal year. The Company has continued to suffer substantial losses through June 30, 1990, the first nine months of its 1990 fiscal year.

The Company further announced the election of Walter Dragon as President and a director and the resignations of Donald T. Byrne as President and a director, Milton J. Wallace as Secretary and a director, Hershel Krasnow as a director, and Richard J. Tucker as Chairman of the Board. Mr. Tucker continues as a director.

BATON ROUGE, LA (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - Premier Bancorp (NASDAQ/NMS:PRBC) reported net income for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, of $2.1 million, or 9 cents per share, bringing earnings for the first six months of 1990 to $3.2 million, or 13 cents per share.

The increase in income for the second quarter represented the fourth successive quarter of improvement in earnings. For the second quarter and year-to-date 1989 the company incurred net losses of $99.4 million, or $4.04 per share, and $106.7 million, or $4.34 per share, respectively.

The 1989 performance for both periods included the effect of $78 million in provisions and $3.2 million in ancillary expenses recorded in conjunction with the company's proposed asset restructuring plan.

Premier Management has determined that market conditions are not favorable for the completion of the asset restructuring plan in the form announced last year. The Special Assets Division has experienced better than forecasted results relative to the collection of the underperforming assets proposed to be sold to Florida Street National Bank.

Collections to date total $108.4 million, or 25 percent of the total amount projected to be collected. The team of asset disposition professionals assembled in mid-1989 will remain intact to collect the portfolio of underperforming assets under the established liquidation plans, while the remaining segments of the company focus on improving the profitability of its core business units.

At June 30, 1990, nonperforming assets, including loans past due 90 days or more, were $243.2 million, compared to $254.1 million at March 31, 1990 and $274.7 million at June 30, 1989. The provision for possible credit losses amounted to $6.0 million for the second quarter and net charge-offs totaled $5.0 million, resulting in a slight increase in the allowance for possible loan losses at the end of the second quarter from the reserve reported at the previous quarter-end.

The allowance for possible loan losses of $86.2 million coupled with the reserve for potential write-downs of repossessed property of $18.4 million brings total reserves to $104.6 million at the end of the quarter.

Premier's primary and total capital ratios were 5.61 percent and 6.62 percent, respectively, at June 30, 1990, and Premier Bank's comparable ratios were 6.56 percent and 6.60 percent. These ratios are improved from the first quarter of 1990 and exceed minimum regulatory requirements. At June 30, 1990, total assets were $4.1 billion and total deposits amounted to $3.5 billion.

Premier Bancorp common stock is traded on the over-the-counter market, NASDAQ National Market System, under the symbol PRBC.

NASHVILLE, TN (JULY 6) BUSINESS WIRE - J.C. Bradford & Co. has executed a $129.5 million private financing transaction, the firm's largest deal of this type.

The private financing was arranged for Ramsay Health Care Inc., a New Orleans-based psychiatric hospital company.

Bradford served as the financial advisor to Ramsay, developing the strategy and placing the offering to refinance the health care company's senior and subordinated debt.

''We've always done a lot of private financing in the health care field, but this is certainly the largest one to date,'' Robert S. Doolittle manager of Bradford's Corporate Finance division, said.

''We're very pleased to have been able to put together such an impressive offering for Ramsay Health Care,'' Jeannene Page, director of private placements, said.

Ramsay entered into new credit agreements on April 30 with a group of insurance companies led by Aetna Life Insurance Co. and a group of banks led by HomeFed Bank and First Union National Bank of North Carolina.

Nearly $111 million of the $129.5 million was applied to Ramsay's senior bank debt, Page said. The company used $12.5 million to purchase a psychiatric hospital in DeSoto, Texas, and $3 million to reduce its 13 percent subordinated promissory note. The balance was applied to transaction costs.

WASHINGTON (JULY 6) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows on June 25, 1990, Bozek & Co. declined to stand for reelection as the independent auditors of Great Bay Bancshares for the company's fiscal year ended June 30, 1990. Bozek's decision was based solely on its unwillingness to attempt to engage profitably in the auditing of companies subject to SEC reporting, owing to the increased operating costs of such practices for the auditor.

For the previous two fiscal years, audits performed by those former auditors contained no adverse opinion or disclaimer of opinion nor were they modified as to uncertainty, audit scope, or accounting principles.

For the previous two fiscal years, there were no disagreements between those former auditors and the company.

On June 27, 1990, the decision to accept Bozek's refusal as well as that to engage the firm of KPMG Peat Marwick for the auditing of the company's finances for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, were unanimously appoved by both Great Bay's board and its audit committee.

WASHINGTON (JULY 6) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows in a press release dated June 27, 1990, People's Heritage Financial Group announced that it possessed non-performing assest of approximately $100 million. That figure constitutied 3.5% of total assest on June 30, 1990. On March 31, 1990, non-performing assets were approximately $80 million, or only 2.75% of total assets.

The company stated that it was considering increasing provisions for loan losses as a result of this increase in non-performing assets as well as related increases in charge-offs.

According to Weston L. Bonney, president and CEO of People's Heritage, the company continues to suffer from a depressed New England real estate market, and will therefore, "continue its historically conservative approach to establishing provisions for loan losses and will be carefully evaluating whether a change in the company's dividend policy is appropriate at this time."

WASHINGTON (JULY 6) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows Audrey Resources Inc. reported that it suffered its first mining operations loss in its history in the quarter ended March 31, 1990. Several contributing factors were mentioned.

In the Mobrun mine, lenses 850, 870 and 930 were not accessible to ore hoisting for a period of five weeks during the quarter, due to the unexpected need to relace and modify the grizzly used for crushing high-grade ore on the sixth level of that mine. Also during January and February of 1990, concurrent with the Mobrun delay, the company mined of a 52,000 metric ton low-grade ore block in order to blast for recovery a 180,000 ton ore block. The expenses of these operations combined with the delays in the Mobrun mine served to effect the loss.

WASHINGTON (JULY 6) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows on June 25, 1990, Aequitron Medical Inc. issued a voluntary safety alert warning of the potential effect of electromagnetic intereference (EMI) on its model 8200, 9200 and 9500/9550 apnea monitors.

Aequitron announced that it would provide external adaptor kits to all users of the units to help reduce the interfence. The Aequitron stated that new models would include the interference-reducing adaptors.

Increased use of CB radios and cellular telephones, the company reported, has dramatically increased the presence of EMI in the environment of late. Close proximity to airports, strong transmitting towers, police or fire stations or ham radio stations, the company elaborated, may cause the units to not perform as intended.

Since EMI can interfere with the effectiveness of the units, the company reminds parents of the potential interference from CB radios and cellular telephones. The safety alert further reminds parents to keep their apnea monitor several feet away from such devices as televisions, nursery monitors, intercoms and oscillating fans and humidifiers. The alert does not, however, suggest the discontinuance of the use of an apnea monitor.

The company issued an additional voluntary safety alert warning of the potential of an apnea alarm reset condition with its model 9200 and 8200 apnea monitors, whereby the resperatory alarm might not sound continuously as intended in the event of an alarm. The company is advising dealers to return all affected 9200 monitors for replacement of the affecting component. Certain of the 8200 models built before 1985 are to be modified by the company, if necessary, during the course of routine inspections, or earlier if requested. The component replacement will be made free of charge.

In the company's fourth quarter ended April 30, 1990, a reserve of $375,000 was set up to cover the costs of these projects. This one-time charge, the company reported, resulted in lower than expected operating results for the period.

The company anticipates a downturn in sales as a result of the alerts, but is uncertain of the extent or duration of that decrease in revenues.

On June 29, 1990, Ramtron Australia announced that its Australian shareholders have approved a private placement of special preference shares for up to US$10 million by issuing up to 5 million shares at US$2 each.

The new capital will enable Ramtron Australia to continue to maintain its majority ownership control of its US subsidiary, Ramtron International Corp.

Also, Ramtron Australia said it expects to report total revenues of US$4.9 million for the year ending June 30, 1990 and a group consolidated loss of several million dollars.

These amounts are the results of a transference of previously-projected revenues to the Ramtron/NMB joint venture company and other revenue deferrals.

STAMFORD, CT (JULY 9) COMTEX - Texas American Bancshares Inc., the Fort Worth, Texas, bank holding company, has won a $5 million judgment against the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which, as receiver, misallocated the company's assets upon liquidation.

After seizing the holding company's assets in 1989, the FDIC distributed the assets of Texas American Bank/Fort Worth, the company's lead bank, in such a way that it violated the National Banking Act, the company said in a Securities and Exchange Commission filing.

Under the liquidation, the FDIC paid off all of Texas American Bank/Fort Worth's creditors in full, while 13 allegedly solvent banking subsidiaries of the company received little or no payment.

Texas American was declared insolvent a year ago by the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency and the Texas Banking Commissioner.

The FDIC has agreed to pay the $5 million judgment.

JOHANNESBURG (JULY 6) - Production at Goldfields, South Africa's third-biggest mining company, increased by one percent in the second quarter of this year, but profits slumped by 23 percent, company spokesman Mike Tagg said.

While production increased from 26,278 kilograms (57,810 pounds) to 26,560 kilos (58,430 pounds), after-tax profits dipped to 261.1 million rand (98.43 million dollars) compared with 338.5 million rand (127.6 million dollars) in the previous quarter.

Mr. Tagg said the decrease in profits was due to the slide in the gold price, which fell from 33,678 rand (12,696 dollars) per kilo (2.2 pounds) to 31,437 rand (11,851 dollars) per kilo in the June quarter.

A loss of 20 million rand (7.54 million dollars) was recorded at Kloof mine, which since the December 1987 quarter has shown a profit of between 10 million and 50 million rand (3.77 million and 18.8 million dollars).

The fourth lowest-cost gold producer in South Africa, Kloof contributes about 40 percent of Goldfields profit.

The other mines in the group include Driefontein Consolidated, which contributes more than 50 percent of group profits, Libanon, Venterspost, Doornfontein, Deelkraal and Vlakfontein, which will be closed within the next three months.

LAGOS (JULY 6) - Ten Nigerian students, suspected of belonging to a secret cult, have been arrested for illegal possession of a human skull, reports said on Friday.

Police said the skull was recovered during a raid on the home of a student, now on the run, who was suspected of having burgled the flat of another student and made off with his belongings.

Other items recovered included knives, a matchet, several red dresses, an incense pot, candlesticks and other items used in rituals.

Police said the students from Bendel state university, in Ekpoma, southern Nigeria, would soon appear in court.

The federal government recently raised the alarm over the increase in terrorist organizations and secret societies responsible for murders and other crimes on university campuses.

PARIS (JULY 6) - A strike by Air France ground staff at Paris' Roissy airport forced the airline Friday to cancel about 60 flights leaving from the airport, the airline announced.

About 10 of the cancellations were long-haul flights and the rest medium-range.

Services were badly affected to major European cities, like London, Frankfurt, Amsterdam, Milan, and Geneva.

Air France said the strike should have no impact on other airlines or the domestic carrier Air Inter, whose flights the company's ground crews assist at Roissy, Paris' major airport.

The striking ground staff, who planned to continue their work stoppage on Saturday, are demanding more hirings to handle the work load.

Their strike comes on the heels of a three-day strike by air-traffic controllers at the Athis-Mons air-control center which deals with air traffic in Paris and in the north of France.

ROME (JULY 6) - Argentine soccer fans drove round with ''Bilardo, perdon'' (Sorry Bilardo) car stickers after their team won the World Cup in Mexico four years ago.

The stickers, asking forgiveness for the fans' criticism of the controversial Argentine coach, are back in fashion again.

Argentina has confounded all the critics by reaching the final again. And the man who played a decisive role in the team's fortunes then, as well as now, is Dr. Carlos Bilardo.

The independent-minded and often misunderstood coach - dubbed ''Big Nose'' by the Argentine press - has again shown his detractors that he knows exactly what he is doing when it comes to football.

But his achievement in Italy is greater than in Mexico where he had a vastly superior side and a Diego Maradona who was at the peak of his career.

Despite the joy at reaching the final again, the 54-year-old Bilardo is tired. The unabated criticism of his team's performance before and during the competition in Italy has left its mark.

''Whether we win the title or not in Italy, I will definitely be retiring '' says Bilardo, a qualified gynaecologist who has never practised medicine.

After 30 years in football as a player and coach, he says he wants to have a look at the game from the other side.

''It is my dream to end my career as a coach with a second World Cup title under my belt and then to work in the field of journalism,'' Bilardo says.

Other coaching opportunities or the offer to enter politics and take up a senior post in the Sports Ministry back home fail to entice the politce and well-groomed Argentine.

Bilardo, who took over as Argentine coach in 1983, a year after Cesar Luis Menotti quit, is familiar with the Rome Olympic Stadium where Sunday's final against West Germany is being played.

He was a member of the Argentine football squad that played there in the Olympic Games in 1960.

TOKYO (JULY 6) - Nicaraguan President Violeta Barios de Chamorro has called on Japan to provide fresh credit to supplement loans from the World Bank to Nicaragua, a Japanese economic newspaper reported Friday.

Mrs. Chamorro was also quoted by the Nihon Keizai newspaper as saying in an interview Thursday that Nicaragua would "closely cooperate" with the International Monetary Fund and shortly work out a program to readjust its economy.

She said she hoped that the annual summit of the Group of Seven leading industrialised nations next week in Houston, Texas, would produce specific measures to help Nicaragua and said she would visit Japan in November to seek economic assistance.

Mrs. Chamorro, who beat Daniel Ortega in a presidential election in February, said Nicaragua's economy went bankrupt during 10 years of leftwing rule and it needed help in "all fields," particularly in the fishery, cotton, and dairy industries.

She also invited foreign investment in Nicaragua's tourism and Japanese technological assistance to rehabiliate its economy, Nihon Keizai said.

MUNICH, WEST GERMANY (JULY 6) - One of the most wanted international terrorists was allowed to stop over in East Germany, former East German Stasi secret service head Markus Wolf said Friday.

In an interview with the daily Sueddeutsche Zeitung, Mr. Wolf, who commanded the Stasi from 1952 until 1987, revealed the notorious terrorist Carlos used East Berlin's Schoenefeld airport as a stop-off point.

East German 'moles' including former chancellor Willy Brandt's advisor Guenther Guillaume were active in West Germany, he also told the newspaper.

Mr. Wolf said he "remembered vaguely that the Carlos group made threats against the East German Embassy in Paris unless certain things were approved."

But he had never seen Carlos and did not know if he was dead or alive.

At the end of June, former Hungarian deputy interior minister Karoly Ladvansky revealed the Communist regime there had harboured Carlos, alias Ilych Ramirez Sanchez and his group, among other terrorist outfits.

Mr. Wolf said Janos Kadar's communist regime had closed its eyes to certain facts to get rid of Carlos and to avoid the threat of terrorism.

Mr. Wolf repeated claims that former Stasi spies may have been recruited by Middle East regimes.

"In the Middle East and elswhere there were people with a lot of money," he said.

The former espionage boss denied that his services were linked with the West German terrorist group the Red Army Faction, eight members of which were arrested recently in East Germany. He said he had never signed a death warrant while in the secret service.

East Germany had had " slightly less than 2,000" Stasi spies, 30 to 70 of them high-ranking, working in West Germany.

This would put it on the same footing as Lufthansa, in which the West German Government holds a 51 percent stake.

Lufthansa said in May it was to take a 26 percent stake in the East German airline, and planned to double this at a later date, arousing objections from the West German monopolies office.

MOSCOW (JULY 6) - The Soviet Union responded warmly Friday to the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (Nato) call in London for East and West formally to end their adversarial relationship.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennadi Gerassimov, announcing a July 14 date for the first-ever visit to Moscow by a Nato secretary general, Manfred Woerner, called the Nato summit declaration ''good news which we welcome''.

Gerassimov said that the Nato leaders had ''taken steps which are aimed at changing the character of Nato''.

He said Moscow's information so far was only from press reports and that further study of Nato's message was needed.

''But if our estimation is correct, then we welcome the results of the Nato summit as a practical step on the road towards changing the confrontation in Europe and towards a revision of (Nato's) military doctrine and structure,'' Gerassimov said.

This remark was seen by political analysts here as of crucial importance in the question of a unified Germany's future position.

With the West insisting that Germany be a full member of Nato, Moscow said it would approve of such membership only if Nato changed its structure and doctrine.

In London, U.S. President George Bush said after the summit he hoped that Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev would regard the Nato reforms as a ''very positive step forwards'' and as an encouragement of the Kremlin leader's domestic and foreign policy reforms.

Nato had demonstrated that it was defence-oriented and was not a threat, Bush said.

BRUSSELS (JULY 6) - U.S. Special Trade Representative Carla Hills warned Friday that the world faces a dangerous tide of protectionism if the Uruguay Round of GATT talks fails to resolve a conflict over farm trade.

In a press conference beamed by satellite from Washington only three days before the seven top industrialised democracies meet in Houston for a trade summit, Mrs. Hills said time was running out for the four-year General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade negotiations.

"If we have no rules on a third of our trade, then nations will adopt their own rules," she said.

"There will be friction, there will be a diminution in trade, I fear, as nations look inward to protect their own national interests," she said.

The liberalisation of agriculture was "the key" to success at the talks, and without it, there was no hope for agreements in the 14 other negotiation areas, which also cover services, investment and intellectual property, she said.

Mrs. Hills accused the European Economic Community (EEC) of maintaining a defensive stance on agriculture support, in contrast to "forward-leaning" U.S. proposals to scrap all "trade-distorting" farm subsidies within 10 years.

The two sides set up working groups in April in the hope of narrowing the gap before a week-long negotiation effort in Geneva, from July 23, that will aim for a framework agreement which would be wrapped up in December.

But Mrs. Hills said the Community's negotiators, the European Commission, were now dangerously behind schedule.

"My understanding is that they still do not have a clear negotiating mandate in agriculture. With only 149 days remaining in our negotiation, this is very, very troubling."

At present, 1.5 trillion dollars in annual world commerce is not covered by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), Mrs. Hills said.

Nearly half of that is trade in services, she said. In this sector, U.S. exporters do well in the industrialised democracies but run up against protectionist barriers and regulations in the developing countries, she said.

Subsidies to farmers in the 24-nation Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) cost around 240 billion dollars a year, according to a recent OECD report.

If the industrialised nations fail to agree on reducing this support, there is no reason why the developing countries should lower their barriers to western bankers, insurance and investment services, Mrs. Hills said.

In such an event, she warned, the United States would not withdraw its controversial array of trade weaponry, such as the "Super 301" Omnibus that it has used to pry open sectors that are not covered by GATT.

Trade Act,

"If we get watered-down rules, and we don't get good agreements, it will not be possible for me to persuade (the U.S.) Congress not to protect our national interests," she said.

ERBA, ITALY (JULY 6) - One of the big question marks hanging over the West German line-up for Sunday's World Cup final against Argentina is who will be marking Diego Maradona.

One person it won't be is team captain Lothar Matthaeus, who was accorded that unenviable task in the Mexico final four years ago when the South Americans won 3-2.

The West Germans will be out to avoid repeating the mistake of Mexico when they shadowed Maradona so closely that they forgot about Burruchaga and Valdano, who each scored a goal.

This time around, Coach Franz Beckenbauer is likely to rely on the services of Thomas Berthold or Guido Buchwald, experienced defenders who have both played well in Italy.

''If I'm fit, I can play against anybody in the world, even Maradona. He won't get away from me,'' says Berthold, who effectively shut out Holland's Ruud Gullit earlier on in the competition.

''Our paths have crossed a few times, but I have never played directly against him,'' says Berthold, who like Maradona earns his living in the Italian league.

Buchwald has marked Maradaona once before, in the Uefa cup final between Stuttgart and Naples in 1989. Mardona's club ended up winning.

Matthaeus has some advice to offer his teammates about Maradona -a player he calls the brains of the Italian squad.

''You have to tackle him as soon as he gets the ball. Don't allow him any space to move, because once he starts his short, quick strides, the ball sticks to his foot like glue,'' says Matthaeus.

JERUSALEM (JULY 6) - Residents of the Gaza Strip staged a general strike on Friday, while the bodies of two Palestinians accused of collaborating with Israeli authorities were found in the occupied territories.

Arab sources said the strike was called by Islamic Jihad, an outlawed Sunni fundamentalist group, as part of protests against Israeli rule.

The bodies of two Palestinians who disappeared earlier this week, 20-year-old Firas Hassoun and Fadi Abu Aziz, 22, were found in the Gaza Strip and West Bank.

The latest killings brought to 212 the number of suspected collaborators killed by fellow Arabs since the start of an anti-Israeli uprising in December 1987, according to Palestinian reports.

The sources said a 17-year-old Palestinian girl, Rafa'ah Alyam, died of gunshot wounds despite a series of operations in Tel Aviv and Cairo hospitals. She was shot by Israeli troops during unrest in Gaza City on June 15 last year.

She was the 700th Palestinian fatally wounded by Israeli gunfire since the start of the uprising, according to a toll compiled by Agence France-Presse.

The military imposed a curfew on Friday on the northern West Bank village of Bydia, where two petrol bombs were thrown at an Israeli vehicle. There were no casualties.

The Jerusalem Post newspaper reported that soldiers had confiscated T-shirts worn by Palestinian youths bearing the words "Black Sunday" to mark the killings in May of seven Arabs near Tel Aviv.

Troops stopped two Palestinians, aged 12 and 13, wearing the T-shirts near Bethlehem on the West Bank and threatened to hit them unless they removed them immediately.

The T-shirts were designed to commemorate the killing of seven Palestinian labourers on Sunday, May 20, by a lone Israeli gunman in the Tel Aviv suburb of Rishon le Zion, the English-language daily said.

FRANKFURT, WEST GERMANY (JULY 6) - The Frankfurt stock exchange ended the week on a firm note Friday, with foreign buying, particularly from Britain, helping to push the DAX index up almost a full percentage point.

The DAX ended the day up 0.97 percent or 18.62 points at 1,932.80, while the Commerzbank index gained a marginal 0.9 points to 2,355.2.

In the auto sector, BMW put on one Deutsche mark to 604, Daimler was up four at 844 and Volkswagen gained five to 643.

In energy stocks, Preussag gained 7.2 to 439.2 and RWE put on two to 498, while chemicals also regained ground with BASF putting on 4.3 and Bayer gaining 5.5.

Steels were irregular, with Thyssen and Hoesch gaining 2.5 and 3.5 but Mannesmann slipping four Deutsche marks to 344.5.

Deutsche Bank was the star of the banking sector, putting on 9.2 to 828, while Dresdner gained a modest 1.3 to 451.3 and Commerzbank a respectable three to 301.

The slight recovery on the bond market seen Thursday continued Friday, with the average yield rate on public loans rising from 8.75 percent to 8.76.

The Commerzbank index shed 0.132 points to 101.44 as mortgage rates were lowered.

BUDAPEST (JULY 6) - The Hungarian government said Friday it was raising the minimum guaranteed monthly wage from 4,800 to 5,200 forint (74 to 80 dollars) to help cope with inflation, currently running at an annual 25 percent.

The measure will affect 800,000 people and will cost the state some three billion forint (46 million dollars), government spokesman Balasz Laszlo told a press conference.

The government had also decided to cut the salaries of senior officials in state enterprises, limiting their annual bonuses to less than 100 per of their basic salary, and to introduce rules preventing people holding several company headships simultaneously.

ALGIERS (JULY 6) - Eleven people were injured in new clashes Thursday in the southern town of Berriane, where three people were killed a fortnight ago in violence related to the June 12 local elections, officials said here Friday.

Two of the injured were police, and some of them were in serious condition, according to a local official quoted by the news agency APS.

Firearms were used in the clashes, said APS, and several persons were later arrested for carrying weapons.

Numerous businesses were ransacked or set afire by the rioters, according to sources contacted in Berriane, who said that calm had returned to the town.

The atmosphere remained tense, however, with police guarding the streets.

The clashes began with stone throwng between groups of youths Thursday night during the celebration of the 28th anniversary of Algerian independance.

The situation deteriorated when one of the groups, using firearms, attempted to occupy the mayor's office.

The preceding clashes in this town of 20,000 inhabitants resulted from a victory by independent candidates in the June 12 elections, which was challenged in court by the Islamic Salvation Front (ISF) and the National Liberation Front.

When the court rejected the appeal, calls for "holy war" by a religious leader close to the ISF led to violence between the various factions, causing several injuries and damaging numerous businesses and the mayor's office.

Delegations sent by the leadership of the FLN and the FIS succeeded in calming the situation, but many of the inhabitants of the town have continued to call for the arrest of the persons whom they say instigated the violence.

The same parties are demanding the rapid installation of the communal assembly elected on June 12 and an investigation to determine the source of the weapons used in the clashes.

HENGELO, Netherlands (JULY 6) - The Netherlands defence subsidiary of French group Thomson-CSF is to axe almost a fifth of its workforce by the end of next year, the Dutch company said here Friday.

A total of 900 of the current 5,000 jobs at Hollandsche Signaalapparaten (HSA) will disappear, HSA chief Jan Bosma told a press conference, blaming East-West political detente which he said would see sales plunge by up to 25 percent in the next five years.

HSA, the flower of the Netherlands' defence industry, is expecting turnover to shrink to 700 million guilder (350 million dollars) a year in the next five years against 900 million (450 million dollars) in recent years, Mr. Bosma said.

The company would have to continue cutbacks beyond 1991 "unless there are major changes in the current trend in the defence market," he warned.

HSA, the European leader in equipment for processing information aboard warships, was sold to Thomson by Dutch electronics giant Philips in January.

ROME (JULY 6) - Rome's impressive Olympic Stadium, the venue of the 1990 World Cup final, has had a fair share of scandals, sensations and tragedies in its 46-year-history.

West Germany won the European soccer championship here in 1980, U.S. sprinter Wilma Rudolph scored her Olympic triumphs at the stadium in 1960 and Ben Johnston set a world record in the 100 metres in a sensational duel with Carl Lewis three years ago.

More recently, the arena has been surrounded by scandal. Labour unions have protested at the large number of accidents during construction improvements made for the World Cup.

The stadium roofing had to be torn down and replaced because of a structural error, and ambulances and fire trucks cannot pass through the entrances because they are too narrow.

The interior ministry was forced to issue a special decree saying the stadium's safety standards met official requirements after an independent investigation pointed out numerous shortcomings.

Most fans are enthralled by the exquisite ornamental work on the stadium's white roof. new seating arrangements which can comfortably accommodate 85,000 fans have also met with fan approval.

But Italian architects take a different view.

''A crime of historic proportions,'' was how the Committee for Modern Monuments described the new roof to the stadium, which was built by fascist dictator Benito Mussolini for the 1944 Olympics. The Games were never held because of the war.

Improvements to the stadium cost 170 million dollars - more than what it cost to build two completely new World Cup stadiums at Bari and Genoa.

But there is already talk of more improvements being needed after the World Cup - and some people would even like to see the white filigree roof go as well.

FRANKFURT, West Germany (JULY 6) - The West German Bank fuer Gemeinwirtschaft (BfG), currently facing major financial problems, is planning to axe 2,700 jobs or almost 40 percent of its workforce, the bankworkers' union said here Friday.

Troubleshoooter Paul Wieandt was put in to try to rescue the bank in March by its majority shareholder, the insurance group Aachener und Muenchener (AMB).

Mr. Wieandt has drawn up a recovery plan including "an iron hand when it comes to expenses," and job cuts had been expected although the bank has so far produced no figures.

On Friday the West German bankworkers' union HBV said that BfG was planning to axe 2,700 of its 7,430 jobs, and in a letter to BfG workers a senior union official said he would reject any recovery plan which included major job cuts.

Mr. Wieandt could also face opposition from the bank's other major shareholder -- the West German trades union holding BGAG, which has a 49 per- cent stake.

Franz Steinkuehler, the head of the powerful metalworkers' union IG Metall, represents BGAG on the BfG board.

BfG is West Germany's 13th largest bank, and last year only managed to show a profit through selling off its central Frankfurt building for 300 million Deutsche marks (179 million dollars).

PARIS (JULY 6) - Ancient Egyptian necklaces, bracelets and earrings were discovered missing from the Louvre, Paris, in the latest of a series of thefts from French museums, museum officials said Friday.

The dozen pieces of second and third century jewellery were noticed missing Wednesday as museum officials carried out an inventory after the theft of a small Renoir portrait cut out of its frame in broad daylight earlier in the day.

Other works of art snatched recently include Paul Huet's 1816 canvas entitled "Les Moulins de la Glaciere", taken from the Carnavalet Museum, and Ernest Hebert's 19th century "Portrait de Mona Luccia".

The Egyptian jewellery, which had been on display, was "not of great value" a spokesman said, adding it had probably been taken some time before the painting thefts.

The series of thefts have called into question security measures in French Museums, recently criticised in the French press.

LONDON (JULY 6) - Britain cannot hope to see a rapid reduction in inflation, Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major warned a ruling Conservative Party conference on Friday.

As a result, interest rates would have to remain high in the immediate future to contain inflation, running at an annual 9.7 percent in May according to the latest official figures.

"Disppointingly, we have still to see the retail prices index turn down, and I fear it will be a while before it does so decisively," Mr. Major told the conference in Llandudno, North Wales.

"Demand was slowed by a very considerable amount, but it is proving to be a longer haul than anyone expected."

Analysts are expecting the inflation figures for June, due out next Friday, to show a further increase in the inflation rate.

LUANDA (JULY 6) - Direct peace talks between Angola and UNITA rebels, the third to date, will resume next week in Portugal, well-informed sources said here Friday.

A previous round held near Lisbon were suspended in mid-June after negotiators failed to agree a cease-fire.

Angolan army chief Antonio Franca N'Dalo will be in charge of the committee leading negotiations, the source said.

Angolan President Jose Eduardo Dos Santos recently told visiting South

African journalists he believed the only way to end the 15-year-old civil war was through "dialogue".

He expressed fresh support for a nine-point peace plan. Rebels had accepted some of the points and Luanda remained "flexible" about its implementation, he said.

However Mr. Dos Santos refused to go into further detail saying "delicate issues" were at stake and he did not want "to confuse the (peace) process".

The last round of talks, held between June 16 and 18, were suspended after UNITA's military headquarters in Jamba, southern Angola, recalled their delegates for consultations.

UNITA said the move was because negotiations had reached the stage where questions linked to a cease-fire were under discussion.

But Luanda dismissed the explanation as a pretext to pull out of the negotiations.

UNITA leader Jonas Savimbi said Tuesday in Lome that a cease-fire could be implemented in August and hinted "total peace" might come by the end of the year.

An initial cease-fire accord, reached at talks in Zaire a year ago, failed to take hold and heavy fighting erupted earlier this year as Angolan troops launched an offensive against rebel troops in the south.

WINDHOEK (JULY 6) - Finance Minister Otto Herrigel made history Friday when he tabled Namibia's first post-independence budget, amounting to 2,366 million rands (896.4 million dollars), in Parliament here.

Saying the 1990-91 budget was geared to promoting a mixed economy based on social responsibility, Mr. Herrigel stressed that taxes would not be raised to meet an expected deficit of 210 million rands (79.5 million dollars).

"I intend to raise loans to finance the deficit and once Namibia's own central bank is established an overdraft may be arranged for part of it," Mr. Herrigel said.

He envisaged a dynamic role for the private sector and said nationalisation did not form part of the government's economic strategy.

"But we will endeavour to set realistic aims in regard to the development process of the economy, to narrow the gap between rich and poor, to eliminate the misery of unemployment and to create an environment of stability and trust," Mr. Herrigel said.

No tax increases were planned, he added, because Namibia was already heavily taxed, but mining taxation was under review and was expected to lead to a more uniform taxation structure in future.

He noted that the amount to be financed through loans almost equalled the government's current loan repayment of 163 million rands (61.7 million dollars) so that the government debt position essentially remained the same.

Included in the revenue estimate is a 542 million rand (205.3 million dollar) contribution from the South African Customs Union, an import-export accord between South Africa and most neighbouring countries.

He said this represented an increase of 95 million rands (35.9 million dollars) on the previous year.

"It is my contention that Namibia did not receive in the past what was rightfully due to her," Mr. Herrigel said, adding that since independence from South Africa on March 21, Namibia was now a full member of the Customs Union.

He was budgeting for a 160-million rand (60.6 million dollar) foreign aid contribution from pledges made at a conference in New York last month. This included South Africa's contribution of 26.6 million rands (10 million dollars).

An estimated 20 million rands (7.5 million dollars) surplus would be carried over from the previous financial year.

The total expected expenditure amounted to 2,576 million rands (976 million dollars), which included a statutory obligation of 316 million rands (119.7 million dollars) relating to payment of interest and capital on government debt.

Government planned to increase expenditure on capital projects from 189 million rands (71.6 million dollars) the previous year to 261 million rands (98.8 million dollars) this year to stimulate the economy.

WASHINGTON (JULY 6) - Financial aid from the West cannot "bail out" Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in the absence of concrete economic reforms in the Soviet Union, a high-level U.S. official said Friday.

"No amount of Western money is going to solve his problems if it doesn't go into a structure which would change the character of the current Soviet economy," said Brent Scowcroft, President George Bush's national security advisor.

"No, the West cannot bail him out," Mr. Scowcroft added in an interview conducted at the end of the NATO summit in London and televised by Cable News Network.

Mr. Gorbachev has had a number of plans on economic restructuring, said Mr. Scowcroft, but so far there has been "very little implementation."

The U.S. official also implicitely confirmed reports that Mr. Gorbachev had sent a letter this week to British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher asking for Western economic help.

Asked about the message, Mr. Scowcroft called it a "clever" ploy "to try to coopt the West into helping him with his problems."

"I think its partly a ploy and it partly reflects the seriousness with which he views his own position," he said.

"I think it's also an attempt on his part to demonstrate an ending of the Cold War and the changed relationship between the Soviet Union and Western Europe," he added.

BUENOS AIRES (JULY 6) - A consortium led by Iberia Air Lines of Spain was the only bidder to meet the deadline for making an offer to take control of the Argentine national airline, Aerolineas Argentinas, officials said Friday.

Last-minute rumors that another consortium, including Air France, might enter the fray proved to be untrue.

Other airlines which had recently showed interest, but failed to make the deadline for bidding, included Italy's Alitalia, Brazil's Varig, the U.S. American Airlines and KLM of the Netherlands.

The Iberia consortium's bid was made up of 529 million dollars in cash plus 1.5 billion dollars' worth of Argentine foreign debt notes for an 85 percent stake in the state-owned airline.

The privatization of Aerolineas Argentinas represents the second "debt-for-equity" swap initiated by the government of President Fernando Collor de Mello following the sale last month of the state telephone company, ENTEL, to the Spanish national telephone and the U.S. Bell Telephone.

JOHANNESBURG (JULY 6) - Escalating labour conflict involving tens of thousands of black workers across South Africa is a deliberate show of political force by their trade unions, labour experts said Friday.

Nearly 30,000 hotel, supermarket, hospital and municipal workers were on strike nationwide Friday following breakdowns in their respective annual wage bargainings.

The coal mining and metal industries are also bracing for strike action after two of the biggest black unions, the militant National Union of Mineworkers (NUM) and the National Union of Metalworkers of South Africa (NUMSA), declared wage disputes involving about 235,000 workers.

Labour expert Clive Thompson told Agence France-Presse that the spate of industrial action was helped on by "the massive amount of (black) expectancy following the general (political) transition in the South African society".

Another labour expert, who asked not to be named, said it was a known fact that the million-strong labour federation, the Congress of South African Trade Unions (COSATU), was "trying to insinuate itself into the political scene".

The expert said COSATU wanted to "demonstrate to South Africa, including the African National Congress, that they are the guys with the troops".

The guerrilla-backed ANC, like COSATU, is fighting the overthrow of the white minority Pretoria government but although both organisations are allies, they have different power bases.

The experts said that since the ANC was legalised after 30 years in February, it had stolen centre stage in anti-apartheid politics from COSATU and tended to speak for all its allies.

But, with constitutional negotiations with the government on the horizon, COSATU was, through the strikes, showing that it is a force on its own.

Mr. Thompson said black trade unions had a long history of resistance against apartheid and this had been displayed throughout the four-year state of emergency which in June was lifted everywhere but in Natal Province, where rival Zulu factions are engaged in a bloody power struggle.

He said the trade unions had continued to organise even though other anti-apartheid political organisations had been muzzled by the state of emergency.

Also fuelling the strikes was Pretoria's failure to implement a June 7 agreement between COSATU, its smaller rival the National Council of Trade Unions (NACTU) and the employers' South African Consultive Council on Labour Affairs (SACCOLA).

That agreement recommends changes to parliamentary amendments introduced last year to the 1956 Labour Relations Act (LRA), which COSATU says restrict the right to strike and enable companies to sue unions for litigation damages.

Late last month COSATU attempted to push parliament into legislating the agreement before it rose for the year, but Manpower Minister Eli Louw and President Frederik de Klerk refused to yield to the pressure, though Mr. De Klerk did meet a COSATU delegation to discuss their grievances.

Meanwhile, a major showdown is also looming between the 200,000-strong NUMSA and the employer body, the Steel and Engineering Industries Federation of South Africa (SEIFSA), after SEIFSA announced in a statement here Friday that a special meeting with the union had failed to resolve the wage dispute.

"Wage bargaining in the metal industry, now in its fourth month, has reached a critical stage", SEIFSA executive director Brian Angus said in the statement.

Also Friday, 10,000 members of the South African Commercial, Catering and Allied Workers Union (SACCAWU) went on strike at 177 stores of the supermarket giant, Checkers -- joining 7,500 SACCAWU members from the rival O.K Bazaars supermarket chain who have been on strike for more than a month.

SACCAWU spokesman Solly Matlhabe said the union was demanding a minimum wage of 830 rands (312 dollars) and an across-the-board increase of 165 rands (62 dollars) and also staff discounts on par with that of white workers.

Hotel workers at three Cape Town hotels on Friday continued their sit-in in the hotel canteens while management of two hotel groups in the Transvaal, Holiday Inns and Southern Sun, threatened to summon police to evict about 4,500 black workers from hotel canteens. The workers had been on strike since Monday.

Members of the National union of Wine, Spirit and Allied Workers (NUMSAW) will embark on a national strike Monday at six major companies in the liquor industry, demanding an extra 40 rands (15 dollars) a week.

LONDON (JULY 6) - The African National Congress accused Pretoria of laxity toward South Africa's extreme rightwing, which the ANC suspects was responsible for Friday's terrorist bomb that wounded 24 people in Johannesburg.

In a statement, it said: "The ultra-right and neo-fascist forces and paramilitary groups are on the rampage, emboldened by the authorities' extremely permissive attitude towards them.

"The ANC demands that the authorities disarm and disband the ultra-right groups and other neo-fascist organisations promoting racial violence against our people".

BUENOS AIRES (JULY 6) - As President Carlos Menem prepares to celebrate his first anniversary in power Sunday, the Argentine economy is finding its international image improving despite an unsteady year, according to political analysts.

Mr. Menem's popularity -- which adds to his ability to take some unpopular economic decisions -- has been boosted by the general feeling of well-being in this football-crazy country whose national team will be playing in the World Cup finals on the very day the president celebrates his first anniversary in office.

"A year ago, Menem took over a country which had been reduced to ashes economically; today, the economy is moving in the right direction and the government is strong even if in the short run things are going to be difficult," a major Buenos Aires banker said.

The economic austerity program introduced in January by Antonio Erman Gonzalez, already the third finance minister of the Menem administration, has succeeded in reducing inflation to around 12 percent a month compared to nearly 200 percent last July.

Since January, the austral's exchange rate has remained stable against the dollar despite the double-digit monthly inflation rate.

The greenback is currently worth 5,200 australs, although many businessmen believe the rate should be around 7,000 or 8,000 australs.

After riding a stormy period during December and January, when the country plunged into hyperinflation and social unrest, the president's personal popularity ratings, which have constantly remained better than those of his government, have picked up according to the latest public opinion polls.

Mr. Menem's marital mishaps, which culminated with him banning his wife from the presidential palace last month, have been more keenly noted abroad than in this country, where Argentinians have become accustomed to the first couple's frequent and public bickering.

On the economic front, Mr. Menem -- elected as a Peronist, or follower of the late president Juan Peron -- has turned his back on the traditional Peronist ideology of running a welfare state.

Instead, he has embarked on a massive program of privatizing publicly-owned companies including the telephone company, the railway system, the national airline and the nation's highway network.

The first major privatization -- of the ENTEL national telephone company to a partnership lead by Telefonica de Espana and the U.S. Bell Atlantic company -- was judged a success by most analysts.

And the privatization has helped the nation regain some international approval with the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the World Bank and the U.S. Government all publicly welcoming the draconian economic reforms underway.

The managing director of the IMF, Michel Camdessus, arrived Friday in Buenos Aires with a group of IMF experts to discuss the government's economic reforms.

With a population of 32 million, Argentina carries an external debt of around 64 billion dollars, including 38 billion dollars owed to foreign private banks.

Buenos Aires has promised to make some interest payments on these debts this year, for the first time since April 1988.

In a letter to the IMF outlining its plans and expectations, Buenos Aires anticipated a monthly inflation rate of just four percent between now and the end of the year and a growth of 0.9 percent in the gross domestic product (GDP).

However, independent analysts here, believe there will be a recession with the GDP declining by between five percent and six percent this year.

While industrial recession has been compensated in part by an increase in oil production and a slight improvement in consumer demand, the social costs have been enormous, with 4.3 million people of an estimated active population of 12 million currently out of work.

New shantytowns are developing on the outskirts of major industrial cities as middle-class workers join the growing ranks of homeless, hit by the combination of unemployment and inflation.

NOORDWIJK, Netherlands (JULY 6) - The international ban on commercial whaling was upheld, while fresh attempts to curb whaling for scientific research were made at the close of an International Whaling Commission (IWC) meeting here Friday.

Environmental groups had feared whaling nations such as Japan, Norway Iceland and the Soviet Union would overturn the ban which came into force in 1982. But the 42nd annual meeting firmly rejected several attempts at modification.

One European delegate said the ban had been "somewhat strengthened" as several countries previously abstaining from votes backed measures to reinforce the moratorium.

Greenpeace spokesman Andrew Davies told AFP "We are thrilled and encouraged that the nations of the IWC sent such a clear and unequivocal message to the whaling nations that commercial whaling will not be tolerated."

World Wide Fund for Nature delegate Elizabeth Kemf said "the message of conservationists has never been stronger than this year."

Important new resolutions were also adopted.

Some 23 countries agreed to recommend "non-lethal" methods for scientific study on whales, not having the power to introduce a ban. The measure was seen as a criticism of whaling for scientific purposes, suspected of being a cover for commercial hunting.

Delegates also adopted a resolution on "small sea mammals" such as dolphins, calling for statistics on numbers caught intentionally or accidentally.

Figures will be presented at the next annual meeting in Reykjavik, Iceland.

Britain, Finland, the Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States submitted a successful resolution calling on Japanese authorities to cut back porpoise catches to the 1986 level of about 10,000 a year.

Last year 29,000 were harpooned by Japanese fishermen, a scientific committee said, some 28 per cent less than the previous year. But some delegates believed the Japanese cutback was intended as a sweetener in Japan's efforts to get the commercial moratorium altered.

The IWC agreed to back a resolution on a world ban on driftnets, adopted by the United Nations and due to come into effect in 1992.

QUETTA, Pakistan (JULY 6) - At least 40 people celebrating an Islamic festival were feared drowned when an overcrowded boat capsized and sank in the middle of a lake near here late Friday, official said.

Officials quoting relief workers said 18 bodies had been recovered so far. Rescue operations were hampered due to darkness.

When it sank, the overcrowded boat had about 60 people on board, mostly youths who had gone to Hanna lake, about 15 kilometers (nine miles) north of here to celebrate the Eid ul Azha festival, which falls at the end of the hajj pilgrimage to Mecca.

Officials said about 20 people had been rescued by another boat.

In a separate incident, four youths were drowned while swimming in Clifton beach in southern Karachi.

MOSCOW (JULY 6) - Several mines in the Donbass region in the Ukraine have come out against a strike call next Wednesday issued by the regional strike committee, Tass news agency reported on Friday.

The miners support the main demands formulated by the committee -- for the resignation of the present government and an end to Communist Party influence over the army, interior ministry and KGB secret service -- but are divided over whether to strike, it said.

Miners are due to hold a mass meeting in Donetsk to make a final decision on whether to go ahead with a strike.

Soviet television reported on Friday night that miners in Vorkuta, in the far north, are also undecided on whether to come out on strike and are thinking instead of holding a rally in the city centre on July 11.

Miners in Kuzbass, in western Siberia, are reportedly similarly divided on the strike call.

FREETOWN (JULY 6) - The West African ministerial meeting meant to bring a peaceful solution to the Liberian civil war has been adjourned to Tuesday to give a rebel delegation time to attend, it was announced here Friday.

The committee, appointed by the Economic Community of West African States (Ecowas), said the delay was due to a late message received by the committee Friday that envoys of the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (Npfl) would arrive in Sierra Leone on Monday.

The foreign ministers of Ghana, Nigeria, Togo, Mali and Gambia who form the Ecowas mediation committee said they needed to have all the interested parties present for talks to start.

Guinea and Sierra Leone are also associated with the peace efforts, which are to be chaired by Gambia.

The Ecowas peace plan, proposed at the Ecowas summit in the Gambian capital Banjul in May, calls for a ceasefire, end of unnecessary destruction of life and property and acceptance by the warring factions of free elections.

In the United States, media reports said Washington had found a friendly country willing to take Liberian President Samuel Doe if he was willing to flee his country. The African state was not named.

Reports said the Liberian capital, Monrovia, was without water or electricity and almost no food was left there. The Npfl rebels have reinforced their hold of suburbs to the east and west and reportedly outnumber Doe's government troops.

TOULON, FRANCE (JULY 6) - Almost 400 tourists fled from two holiday villages near this southern French town as a fire which had already ravaged more than 350 hectares (860 acres) of forest and brushland approached, local officials said.

There were no reports of casualties.

A similar fire in the same region killed three firefighters and one civilian last June 21.

The holiday villages involved in Friday's evacuation were at La Londe and Bormes-les-Mimosas.

AMSTERDAM (JULY 6) - At least one person was hurt as several bombs exploded late Friday in a building in central Amsterdam, police said here.

The blasts were thought to have gone off in a building housing the Brazilian bank, Banco do Brasil, a police spokesman said.

Police said "several bombs" were thought to have been involved. There were no other immediate details.

On Saturday a bomb blew off the facade of a building housing both the British tourist office and the Amsterdam offices of South African Airways.

Nobody was hurt in that blast, which has so far not been claimed.

SANTIAGO (JULY 9) - Visiting New Zealand Foreign Minister Mike Moore joined with his Chilean counterpart, Enrique Silva Cimma, Friday to call for a total ban on nuclear testing in the South Pacific.

In a joint communique, the two ministers also stressed the need to preserve marine resources in the Pacific.

They expressed support for measures to strengthen trade between the two Pacific rim nations.

ABIDJAN (JULY 9) - Acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS, has become the most common cause of death for men in this West African metropolis, and the second most frequent killer of women after deaths from complications due to pregnancy or childbirth, a United Nations agency has said.

A study carried out last year by the World Health Organization (WHO) on bodies in Abidjan's two main morgues found that 15 percent of all male deaths, and 13 percent of female ones, were caused by AIDS.

That study came on top of an epidemiological survey carried out last year which found that 7.5 percent of the urban population of Ivory Coast between the ages of 15 and 55, and five percent of rural dwellers in the same age group were carriers of the AIDS virus.

The figures show an incidence of AIDS around 100 times as high as that found in industrialized countries.

A French doctor working in this city, which is one of the biggest and most cosmopolitan in West Africa, estimated the true proportion of AIDS carriers in Abidjan at around 10 percent -- or some 400,000 people in all.

"Ivory Coast is top of the West African AIDS league," he said, noting the country's high incidence of prostitution, and the fact that moral standards are more relaxed than in other more strongly Moslem countries in the region.

As is the case in most other African countries, but unlike the situation in north America and Europe, AIDS is spread here mainly through heterosexual, rather than homosexual, relations.

The disease is also often transmitted from mother to child.

SINGAPORE (JULY 9) - A team of doctors performed Singapore's first heart transplant Friday night on a 59-year-old man, whose condition was satisfactory following the operation, hospital sources said.

The donor heart came from a 41-year-old construction worker who died in an industrial accident.

Neither the donor nor the recipient were named by hospital authorities.

The transplant was carried out by surgeons from the Singapore General Hospital and the National University Hospital.

The operation was the first ever performed locally. The Ministry of Health recently gave the go-ahead for heart and liver transplants on a trial basis.

Singaporeans needing heart transplants previously had to go overseas for the operation. Two other Singaporeans, including the former chief editor of the defunct Singapore Monitor newspaper, have had heart transplants in Sydney.

The family of the donor also offered his kidneys for transplant and these would possibly be transplanted into two patients Saturday, medical sources said.

HANOI (JULY 6) - Floods in northern Vietnam's Son La province have killed at least 13 people since mid-June and caused heavy damage, the Quan Doi Nhan Dan newspaper reported Friday.

Heavy rains between June 16 and July 2 in the mountainous province, 170 kilometers (105 miles) northeast of here, caused flooding in nine districts, it said.

The floods had killed 13 people as of Tuesday, and submerged 4,000 hectares (9,880 acres) of rice as well as other cropland.

The newspaper said 265 schools were also under water.

Recent torrential rains have also caused deaths and damage in the neighbouring provinces of Lai Chau and Hoang Lien Son.

BEIJING (JULY 6) - The Chinese and Bahraini governments signed an agreement here Friday on economic, trade and technological cooperation, the official Xinhua news agency reported.

The agreement was signed Chinese Minister of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade Zheng Tuobin and Bahraini Foreign Minister Mohammad bin Mubarak al-Khalifah.

The two countries plan to cooperate in the fields of construction, chemical industry, petroleum, light industry, public health, agriculture and fishery.

Cooperation will include setting up joint ventures, personnel training, technology exchange and trade exhibitions together with contract and labour exchange projects.

BEIJING (JULY 6) - The Chinese government is to draw up measures to encourage more medical college graduates to work in rural areas hit by a lack of health professionals, an official newspaper reported Friday.

China Daily, quoting a Ministry of Public Health official, said the move was part of a wider effort to train more qualified medical personnel for the countryside, where 80 percent of China's 1.1 billion people live.

It did not say what measures could be taken to lure more graduates to the countryside.

But it pointed out that backward medical equipment, as well as an inferior working and living environment, had prompted many rural health workers to seek jobs in urban areas in recent years.

Currently there is one medic for every 500 people in China's rural areas, or a third of the total found in urban areas.

This is despite a six-fold increase in the total number of medical professionals during 40 years of Communist Party rule to 3.8 million, China Daily said.

The Ministry of Public Health plans to send medical experts in urban areas to rural districts "on a regular basis" to share their skills with local doctors, the newspaper said.

The ministry is also to enhance the training of medical staff in remote and poverty-stricken regions and make medical schools "duty bound" to produce more rural medical specialists, it said.

China's last big push to expand rural health services came during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution when thousands of young school-leavers were given basic medical training to serve as "barefoot doctors."

China Daily said they have virtually disappeared, as the youths drifted back to cities in search of better jobs and the government spent more money on urban health services.

Aggravating the situation is the fact that China has no national health insurance scheme that guarantees free health care for all.

Most farming families must pay for health services out of their own pockets, while 80 percent of city dwellers have their medical costs met by their workplaces, China Daily said.

HONG KONG (JULY 6) - China is to hold talks with Hong Kong for the first time on the problem of cross-border pollution and other environmental protection issues next week, a government spokesman said Friday.

A high level delegation from neighboring southern China's Guangdong province is to arrive here for the July 10-12 talks, he said.

Graham Barnes, secretary for planning, environment and land, is to lead the Hong Kong group to the meeting which will focus on pollution around Deep Bay, which borders both China's Shenzhen and Hong Kong's New Territories.

The talks will also discuss Hong Kong's plan to build a long ocean outfall, part of a 15 billion dollar (1.9 billion U.S.) sewage scheme, which will cross into Chinese territorial waters.

The spokesman said the discussion is the first of its kind to be held between Hong Kong and China, which resumes sovreignty over the British colony in 1997.

NOORDWIJK, NETHERLANDS (JULY 6) - Six members of the International Whaling Commission (IWC) have asked Japan during the 42nd annual IWC conference here to substantially reduce catches of porpoises.

Britain, Finland, the Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United States submitted a resolution to the IWC conference here Thursday after a scientific committee concluded that harpoon catches by Japanese fishermen had increased greatly.

The resolution called on Japanese authorities to cut back porpoise catches to the 1986 level of about 10,000 a year.

The IWC said Japanese fishermen caught 29,000 porpoises last year, or 28 percent less than the preceding year.

IWC chief Ray Gambell told Agence France-Presse late Tuesday that the Japanese reaction could be a show of goodwill.

Before the annual IWC meeting here, there had been growing fears among conservationists that a 1982 moratorium on whaling, which came into effect in 1985, was at risk.

Norway's chief delegate Dagfinn Stenseth meanwhile regretted that the IWC was incapable of taking appropriate decisions.

He also announced that Norway, Iceland, Greenland and the Faroe Islands had agreed on creating an international whaling forum focusing on research and conservation of the mammals.

TOKYO (JULY 6) - Children's toys which shoot a stream of air bubbles in the bathtub are proving a hit with stress-plagued young Japanese adults, toy sellers said here Friday.

Young women account for 70 percent of customers who claim the ''massaging action'' helps relieve stress, said a saleswoman at the Daimaru department store.

A typical toy has a battery-operated motor turning screws to mix air with water and shoot it into the bathtub.

''We now sell about 250 a month of the simpler bubbling toys in the shape of cartoon characters popular among children. They cost between 4,000 and 4,500 yen (26 to 30 dollars),'' the saleswoman said.

A 22-year-old woman who bought one of the toys in a Tokyo store says she uses it every day in the bath.

''I work as a shop attendant standing for eight hours a day. The bubbles and water current are not as strong as real machines used at public bathhouses but it has a relaxing effect,'' she said.

Tokyo (JULY 6) - A japanese transport company will begin in August a freight transport service using the Siberia continental railway in a joint venture with the Soviet railway ministry.

Jeuro Container Transport, based in Yokohama, southwest of Tokyo, said it had formed a joint venture, ''Eurasia Trans,'' with a capital of some 250,000 roubles or 260 million yen (1.7 million dollars) to start the regular transport service.

The railway transport service will reduce significantly transport time, compared with the shipping transport between Japan and Eastern and Western European nations, according to a Jeuro Container Transport official.

Cargo trains are scheduled to start services bewteen Vostocheny, near Nakhodka, to three western Soviet cities Brest, Lujaika, and Tallinn, the official said.

Transportation between Vostochny and the three cities will take 11 days. Tranport between Japan and Finland will require 15 days and that between Japan and Eastern and Western Europe between 20 and 30 days, he said.

TOKYO (JULY 6) - The Japanese government Friday approved a 1.5 percent cut in prices paid to rice farmers, officials said here.

The cut, proposed by the Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry, will see government prices for farmers cut from 16,743 yen (111 dollars) per 60-kilogramme (132 pound) bale to 16,500 yen (110 dollars) for this year's harvest.

Prices were lowered by 5.95 percent in 1987 for the first time in 31 years and cut further by 4.6 percent in 1988.

There was no change last year due to strong opposition from within the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, many of whose MPs rely on farmer support.

Observers said the government had apparently decided on the cut this year to head off foreign criticism over Japan's ban on rice imports and other protectionist farm trade policies ahead of the Houston, Texas summit of seven major industrialised nations next week.

BRUSSELS (JULY 6) - British Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major on Friday attacked the "two-speed" approach to EEC monetary union that diplomats say seems to be gaining ground among decision-makers.

In an article published in the Belgian financial daily Les Echos de la Bourse, Mr. Major said the idea "hardly" met with the idea of European Economic Community (EEC) cohesion.

"Logically, economically and politically," he said, no-one could prefer "division and revolution to unity and evolution."

The president of the West German central bank, Karl Otto Poehl, set the ball rolling on June 10, suggesting that "a smaller number of countries" could join a proposed system of European central banks.

"Others who have not reached the same degree of (economic) convergence would be invited for later," the Bundesbank chief added.

His idea was supported and amplified last week by the Belgian government, after the Belgian central bank governor, Alfons Verplaetse, said West Germany, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg could establish monetary union by 1995.

The French bank governor, Jacques de la Rosiere, has also spoken of a progressive path to union.

Britain, alone among the 12 states, objects to the goal of setting up a central EEC bank which would control a single currency.

In the runup to the EEC's big debate about monetary union, Mr. Major published proposals last month calling for the coining of a joint currency the ECU.

It would circulate in parallel with the EEC currencies and never be devalued, according to the proposals. But the idea met a lukewarm response at the EEC summit in Dublin on June 25 and 26, with some Community leaders saying it failed to meet the target of a single currency that would eliminate the cost of currency transactions.

MOSCOW (JULY 6) - Akiko Suwanai, an 18-year-old Japanese violinist, won the gold medal with a stunning performance at the prestigious Tchaikovsky music competition that ended here Thursday, the Tass news agency reported.

The silver medal for violin went to Soviet Eugeny Buchkov, Tass said, while Alissa Park from the United States won the bronze.

In the piano competition, Boris Berezovky won the top prize, while fellow Soviet Vladimir Michchuk won the silver medal. American Kevin Kenner, Johan Schmidt from Belgium, and Soviet Anton Mordasov shared the bronze.

West German Gustave Rivinius won the gold medal for cello, while Francoise Groben from France and Soviet Alexandre Kniaziev shared the silver. The bronze was shared between American cellist Bion Tsang and Timothy Hugh of Britain.

American singer Deborah Voigt won the gold medal in the lyric opera category for women. Soviet Marina Chaguch took the silver while Emia Oprea of Romania and Maria Khokhlogorskaia from the Soviet Union shared the bronze.

In the men's category, the gold went to U.S. singer Hans Choi, the silver medal to Soviet Boris Statsenko, while the bronze was shared between Soviet Oleg Kulko and Wojciech Drabowicz from Poland.

About 400 young musicians and singers competed in the ninth annual competition that started on June 14.

LISBON (JULY 6) - U.S. auto giant Ford has chosen Portugal over Spain to set up one of Europe's largest car assembly plants, the Portuguese newspaper Publico said Friday, citing sources close to the U.S. negotiators.

But a spokesman for Ford-Portugal said that "nothing has yet been decided." The trade ministry, where talks have been under way since Thursday, refused to make any comment.

Ford has also been studying the possibility of siting the plant in Murcia or Seville in Spain.

The Publico said that Ford had decided two weeks ago that the new plant would be set up on a 200-hectare (500-acre) site near Setubal, 50 kilometers (31 miles) south of Lisbon.

Ford would invest more than 250 billion escudo (1.7 billion dollars) in the plant which would have an assembly line for a new Ford model currently under study of the same type as the Renault-Espace, it said.

Some 90 percent of production, or 200,000 vehicles, would be destined for export, making the Ford plant the biggest auto exporter in the country. The current top exporter is Renault-Portugal with 50,000.

TAIPEI (JULY 6) - Taiwan approved a record 730 million U.S. dollars' worth of overseas investment projects by local businessmen in the first half of this year, the Investment Commission said Friday.

The investment value of the 159 approved cases reflected a whopping 546 per- cent surge over the same period last year, the official commission said.

But investment officials have estimated the value of outbound investment made by local businessmen without government approval to avoid taxes at between seven to 10 times greater than the 730 million dollar value of approved projects.

The United States replaced Malaysia as the most favored country for the island's investors, attracting 52 projects totalling 237 million dollars, it said. Malaysia drew 24 projects worth 112 million dollars.

The banking and insurance industries were the most popular fields for Taiwan investors shifting their capital and operations abroad to bypass the deteriorating investment climate here, the commission noted.

Spiraling land and labor costs, worsening social order, escalating environmental protection sentiment and serious labor shortages have pressed the island's export-oriented industries to seek overseas investment channels while discouraging foreign investors.

The value of approved projects here by foreign investors in January to June rose a mere 8.76 percent over the same period last year to 1.23 billion dollars, compared with 135 percent growth in the first six months of 1989.

The 195 approved projects by non-Chinese foreign nationals totalled 1.12 billion dollars, down 0.08 percent over the same period of 1989, the commission said. Forty-three other projects worth 112 million dollars were from overseas ethnic Chinese, a 23 percent rise in value.

Japan was Taiwan's largest foreign investor in the first six months with 390 million dollars of projects approved, a 20.84 percent growth. It was trailed by the United States, with 320 million dollars, up 53.4 percent over the same period last year.

The chemical manufacturing sector was most favored by foreign investors, absorbing 27.73 percent of overall foreign investment, while the trading sector followed with 14.57 percent.

OSAKA, JAPAN (JULY 6) - Electronics equipment concern Techno Advance Co. said Friday it had developed a device to enable parents to control the time their children spend watching television or playing video games.

Techno president Kunimitsu Kawamura said that with the "TV reception time conroller," parents could input the desired operation time into a control unit connected to a television or video game display.

In order to turn on the television, the child would have to insert a special card into the unit.

The pocket-size device automatically shuts off the television at the end of the designated time limit.

Mr. Kawamura said his company planned to market the device for 15,000 yen (100 dollars) or license production with major electronics manufacturers in the near future.

The national television network NHK said in a recent survey that Japanese schoolchildren aged between six and 12 were spending nearly two and a half hours daily sitting in front of the television.

MOSCOW (JULY 6) EFE - Delegates to the Soviet Communist Party Congress regrouped Friday to debate reports by working committees on basic party ideology, a regulated market economy, agricultural reforms and ethnic conflicts.

The 2,700 delegates to the 28th party congress broke up into seven working committees on Thursday, and representatives from each were to address the congress Friday, the fifth day of meetings.

President Mikhail Gorbachev and Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov attended the agricultural committee, which was presided over by communist hardliner Yegor Ligachev.

Meanwhile, Soviet press reported Friday that Gorbachev had lobbied for unity between radical reformists and moderate conservatives in order to head off a permanent party split.

The press interpreted Gorbachev's presence in the committee as an attempt to partially control Ligachev, who has been one of the harshest critics of Gorbachev's perestroika reforms.

Gorbachev said during committee meetings that solving chronic shortages of foodstuffs caused by ineffective Soviet agrarian policies would "eliminate two-thirds of the country's social and economic problems".

The president also urged rural delegates not to "yield to the calls of extreme-left adventurists or to those who want to return to the past".

Several Soviet dailies reported Friday that there had been sharp polemics during the congress.

The official party newspaper Pravda reported, "Discussions in the congress covered a wide gamut of issues, were profound and centered on the objectives and methods of the party and movement toward a humane and democratic socialism".

SANTIAGO (JULY 6) EFE - A French journalist and a doctor were arrested by soldiers after photographing an Army regiment based in southern Chile which has been accused of executing leftists and labor activists after the 1973 military coup, officials said.

French reporter Marc de Barville and Dr. Cesar Reyes were detained Thursday by soldiers in the southern province of Valdivia, 835 km south of Santiago, after they took photographs of the Cazadores regiment, Deputy Interior Secretary Belisario Velasco said.

Both men were released after being questioned by a military prosecutor, Velasco told reporters, adding that the two had been arrested "as a security measure which is internationally applied".

Members of the Cazadores regiment have been accused of murdering leftist politicians and labor leaders and burying them in clandestine graves in the months after former dictator Gen. Augusto Pinochet seized power in September 1973.

Reyes, who is director of the Chilean Legal Medical Institute, is heading a team of forensic experts who are excavating an area where victims of the Cazadores regiment are allegedly buried.

It was not clear who the French journalist worked for.

On Thursday some remains of what are believed to be 18 farmers who disappeared shortly after the coup were dug out of a grave near the village of Chihuio, in Valdivia.

The discovery of these bodies and 20 others pulled from a clandestine grave in the northern town of Pisagua has sparked indignation from human rights groups and politicians who have called for soldiers and officers guilty of executions to be prosecuted.

They have also urged democratically-elected President Patricio Aylwin, who took office from Pinochet in March, to force Pinochet to step down as Army chief.

Under the military-drafted constitution he may remain in his post until 1997.

The former head of the Cazadores, Sen. Santiago Sinclair, has denied the executions took place.

However, a lawyer representing the Chilean Roman Catholic Church has said documents exist which implicate members of the regiment in the killings.

MANAGUA (JULY 6) EFE - The Sandinista People's Army (EPS) and the Interior Ministry have confiscated 25,000 weapons from civilians under a plan implemented by President Violeta Chamorro to demilitarize Nicaragua after the end of the nine-year civil war.

At a press conference Thursday in Managua, Army chief Joaquin Cuadra and Interior Minister Carlos Hurtado said that the hunting and small calibre weapons had been rounded up from civilians who did not possess the relevant licenses for the arms.

Cuadra told reporters that the "National Disarmament Plan" among civilians had been implemented as "the war is over and there is no reason for civilians to be armed".

Last week, almost 20,000 U.S.-backed Contra rebels, who fought for nine years to overthrow the former leftist Sandinista government, completed their demobilization as agreed in an accord signed with U.S.-backed Chamorro.

More than 30,000 people died in the war.

Chamorro's government took office in April after defeating the Sandinistas in February elections.

Hurtado said that under the disarmament plan civilians had until July 30 to legalize any arms they had. Civilians who have information on the hoarding or trafficking of weapons should report this to local police under the program.

Seized weapons are being stored at Army barracks.

According to unofficial estimates, shortly after toppling former dictator Anastasio Somoza in a 1979 revolution, the Sandinistas distributed some 100,000 arms among civilians under a plan to defend the country against a possible U.S. invasion.

Contra leaders had complained to Chamorro that their security would not be sufficiently guaranteed once they demobilized as thousands of Sandinistas supporters still had weapons.

Last month Chamorro announced that the EPS, the largest standing force in war-ravaged Central America, would be reduced from 80,000 men to 41,000.

Cuadra said that the plan to reduce the military force also included collecting weapons from civilian militia groups, civil defense units and peasant cooperatives.

The Army cuts and the disarmament program have been supported by Defense Minister Gen. Humberto Ortega, who also served under the Sandinistas.

Contra chiefs opposed Ortega continuing in the post until it became clear that the minister was prepared to implement the Army cuts.

Pamplona, Spain (JULY 6) EFE - Thousands of revelers cheered Friday as a sky rocket exploded above a packed square to signal the beginning of the nine-day San Fermin festival, Spain's wildest fiesta featuring the world-famous "Running of the Bulls."

Tourists joined thousands of residents of the northern city of Pamplona in the plaza to witness the official "chupinazo", or rocket, be set off from a city hall balcony at noon.

The bang was echoed by the sound of cork-popping as hundreds of bottles of Spanish champagne were opened.

San Fermin is one of the country's most colorful and dangerous festivals, which mixes round-the-clock dancing, drinking and partying with religious ceremonies.

But the highlight of the fiesta occurs shortly after dawn each day as six bulls weighing more than 500 k race through the cobblestoned streets, egged on by hundreds of daring young men dressed in the traditional costume of red neckerchief, red sash and red beret.

Each year some of the runners are gored or trampled by the bulls as they make their way to the ring where the animals will face top matadors in the afternoon,

Dozens of people have died since the annual fiesta was first staged in the Middle Ages.

The nine-day festival to pay tribute to the city's patron saint was made famous in Ernest Hemingway's 1926 novel +The Sun Also Rises+.

But the tens of thousands of revelers, many of whom are drunk by noon, give the once religious festival more the air of Rio de Janeiro at carnaval time.

The first day includes the +Riau Riau+, a civic-religious procession in which local authorities in full dress and accompanied by the municipal band march to a church to celebrate vesper services.

PALMA, SPAIN (JULY 6) EFE - Six English football fans arrested this week on the Spanish holiday isle of Majorca and held for three days were released without charges Friday, authorities said.

The six, aged between 18 and 22, were detained in the early hours of Monday after a celebration for England's World Cup win over Cameroon turned into a riot.

Over 500 rowdy English fans poured out on to the streets of the resort town of Magaluf, cheering and singing.

But the celebation soon turned ugly after 10 police officers tried to move the fans, who were blocking traffic.

The hooligans began to throw bottles and chairs, injuring three policemen and a number of passers-by.

The six were arrested and held in the Mediterranean island's capital of Palma.

On Wednesday, violence returned to Majorca following England's defeat at the hands of West Germany.

Three youths were arrested after a group of some 600 trouble-makers began throwing bottles and tins of beer in Magaluf.

The three, named only as John Thomas A. aged 18, and two brothers, Stephen and John B., aged 20 and 21, respectively, were ordered to be held for 72 hours Friday, charged with attempted to assault police officers, breach of the peace, and resisting arrest.

MANILA (JULY 6) XINHUA -- THE PHILIPPINE SUPREME COURT TODAY ORDERED PAN AMERICAN WORLD AIRWAYS TO PAY DAMAGES AMOUNTING TO 379,814.75 PESOS (ABOUT 16,500 U.S. DOLLARS) FOR ITS PERSONNEL'S INDISCRIMINATE ACT OF INSULTING ONE OF ITS PASSENGERS.

ACCORDING TO A REPORT OF THE PHILIPPINE NEWS AGENCY, THE PAN AM PERSONNEL INSULTED THE PASSENGER WHEN THE LATTER SOUGHT THE FORMER'S HELP FOR LOCATING HIS LUGGAGE LEFT BEHIND BY THE CARRIER.

THE SUPREME COURT'S DECISION AROSE FROM A DAMAGE SUIT WHICH PAN AM APPEALED TO THE HIGH TRIBUNAL.

IN ITS PETITION FOR APPEAL, PAN AM QUESTIONED THE LEGALITY AND VALIDITY OF THE COURT OF APPEAL'S DECISION AFFIRMING THE RULING OF A LOWER COURT THAT THE PASSENGER BE PAID DAMAGES.

IN ITS DECISION, HOWEVER, THE SUPREME COURT RULED THAT IT IS CLEAR THAT NONE OF THE PAN AM EMPLOYES EXERTED THE EFFORT TO ASSIST THE PASSENGER LOCATING HIS LUGGAGE WHICH WAS LEFT BEHIND IN MANILA. THE PASSENGER WAS FOR LOS ANGELES VIA HONOLULU WHEN HE FOUND OUT THAT ONE OF HIS LUGGAGE IS MISSING.

THE COURT SAID THAT THE PASSENGER WAS SHOUTED AT BY THE PERSONNEL OF PAN AM.

"SURELY, THESE ACTS OF CALLOUS INDIFFERENCE TO THE PLIGHT OF A PERSON IN A FOREIGN LAND COULD NOT BE LESS DISTRESSING, DEPRESSING OR DISHEARTENING TO HIM," THE SUPREME COURT SAID.

TOKYO (JULY 6) KYODO - THE EXPORT-IMPORT BANK OF JAPAN AND NINE JAPANESE COMMERCIAL BANKS HAVE DECIDED TO OFFER A TOTAL OF 51.8 BILLION YEN IN NEW LOANS FOR A POWER GENERATION PROJECT IN MEXICO, A FINANCIAL SOURCE SAID FRIDAY.

IT WILL BE THE FIRST FRESH LENDING TO MEXICO SINCE A U.S.-INITIATED DEBT RESCUE PLAN WAS APPLIED TO THE COUNTRY EARLIER THIS YEAR.

OF THE PLANNED AMOUNT, THE EX-IM BANK WILL OFFER ABOUT 30 BILLION YEN AND THE OTHER NINE BANKS WILL OFFER THE REST AT AN INTEREST RATE OF 7.3 PERCENT PER YEAR.

NACIONAL FINANCIERA SNC (NAFIN) OF MEXICO, WHICH IS TO BORROW THE MONEY, WILL EXCHANGE AN OFFICIAL AGREEMENT WITH THE JAPANESE BANKS IN AUGUST, THE SOURCE SAID.

THE PROJECT IS TO CONSTRUCT TWO POWER PLANTS, ONE COAL-BURNING AND ONE OIL-BURNING, WITH A TOTAL GENERATION CAPACITY OF 350,000 KILOWATTS.

IN MARCH, THREE COMPANIES FROM JAPAN'S MITSUBISHI GROUP -- MITSUBISHI CORP., MITSUBISHI HEAVY INDUSTRIES LTD. AND MITSUBISHI ELECTRIC CORP. -- RECEIVED AN ORDER FOR CONSTRUCTION OF THE POWER PLANTS IN THE NEWLY DEVELOPED INDUSTRIAL AREA OF LAZARO CARDENAS DISTRICT IN SOUTHWEST MEXICO.

MEXICO IN MARCH WAS THE FIRST COUNTRY TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE SO-CALLED BRADY STRATEGY, A RESCUE PROGRAM FOR DEBT-RIDDEN COUNTRIES PROPOSED BY U.S. TREASURY SECRETARY NICHOLAS BRADY. AS PART OF THE BRADY PLAN, JAPANESE BANKS AGREED TO REDUCE THE PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYMENTS ON MEXICO'S DEBTS, BUT REFUSED TO OFFER NEW LOANS.

THE SOURCE SAID THE BANKS THIS TIME AGREED TO MAKE NEW LOANS BECAUSE THEY ARE ASSURED OF REPAYMENT THROUGH THE EX-IM BANK'S ASSOCIATION WITH THE PROJECT.

TOKYO (JULY 6) KYODO - TORAY INDUSTRIES INC. SAID FRIDAY IT WILL ESTABLISH A SUBSIDIARY IN MALAYSIA TO PRODUCE AND MARKET ACRYLONITRILE BUDADIENE STYRENE (ABS) RESIN USED MAINLY IN ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES AND ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT, STARTING IN THE SPRING OF 1992.

THE NEW FIRM, TORAY PLASTICS (MALAYSIA) SDN. BERHAD (TPM), WILL BE SITED IN PENANG. IT SHOULD MEET GROWING DEMAND FOR THE PRODUCT FROM AN INCREASING NUMBER OF JAPANESE ELECTRIC APPLIANCE MAKERS IN ASIA, TORAY SAID.

TPM'S ANNUAL PRODUCTION CAPACITY OF 35,000 TONS IN THE FIRST YEAR WILL BE RAISED TO 65,000 TONS IN 1994, AND COULD BE RAISED TO AS MUCH AS 130,000 TONS IF NECESSARY, THE COMPANY SAID.

WORK ON THE 10 BILLION YEN PLANT WILL START UPON APPROVAL BY THE MALAYSIAN GOVERNMENT.

TOKYO (JULY 6) KYODO - A CONSORTIUM OF EIGHT JAPANESE COMPANIES HAS AGREED WITH TURKEY ON A 130 BILLION YEN POWER PLANT PROJECT, NOW SUSPENDED FOLLOWING OF OPPOSITION FROM ENVIRONMENTALISTS, A CONSORTIUM OFFICIAL SAID FRIDAY.

THE AGREEMENT FOLLOWS A PLEDGE BY THE JAPANESE TO INSTALL DESULFURIZATION EQUIPMENT DESIGNED TO PREVENT AIR POLLUTION FROM GASES EMITTED FROM TWO COAL-FIRED POWER PLANTS WHICH FORM PART OF THE PROJECT, SAID THE OFFICIAL AT ELECTRIC POWER DEVELOPMENT CO., A PUBLIC ENTITY.

"WE CAN TAKE A BIG STEP FORWARD TOWARD REALIZING THIS PROJECT AS A BASIC PROBLEM HAS BEEN SETTLED," SAID THE OFFICIAL, WHO SPOKE ON CONDITION OF ANONYMITY.

THE JAPANESE HAD ORIGINALLY PLANNED TO EMBARK ON THE PROJECT THIS SPRING, BUT IT WAS SHELVED AFTER A WAVE OF LOCAL DEMONSTRATIONS PROTESTING IT BECAUSE OF FEARS OF AIR POLLUTION.

THE OFFICIAL SAID THE JAPANESE WILL BEGIN WORK ON SETTING UP A JOINT COMPANY WITH THE TURKISH ELECTRIC POWER AGENCY NEXT WEEK AND PRESENT A REPORT ON ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT LATE THIS MONTH TO THE TURKISH GOVERNMENT.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE PLANTS IS EXPECTED TO BEGIN NEXT SPRING AT THE EARLIEST AS IT TAKES SOME ONE YEAR FOR THE TURKISH GOVERNMENT TO ASSESS THE REPORT FOR OFFICIAL APPROVAL OF THE PROJECT, THE OFFICIAL SAID.

AMONG THE SEVEN OTHER JAPANESE COMPANIES IN THE CONSORTIUM ARE MITSUBISHI CORP. AND KAJIMA CORP.

THE JOINT COMPANY, TO BE OWNED 70 PERCENT BY THE JAPANESE AND THE REMAINDER BY THE TURKISH, WILL CONSTRUCT THE TWO PLANTS IN AN AREA ALONG THE AEGEAN SEA. USING IMPORTED COAL, EACH PLANT WILL GENERATE 500,000 KILOWATTS OF ELECTRICITY.

THE PLANTS WILL BE MAINLY RUN BY THE JAPANESE FOR A CERTAIN PERIOD AFTER COMMISSIONING, ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIAL.

BUT TURKS WILL TAKE OVER FULL OPERATION OF THE PLANTS ONCE THE JAPANESE

PARTICIPANTS HAVE RECUPERATED THE MONEY INVESTED IN THE PROJECT FROM EARNINGS FOR POWER SUPPLY, THE OFFICIAL ADDED.

TOKYO (JULY 7) KYODO - IN AN ATTEMPT TO FULFILL JAPAN'S COMMITMENT TO STEPPED-UP EFFORTS TO IMPROVE THE QUALITY OF LIFE OF THE PEOPLE, THE FINANCE MINISTRY HAS DECIDED TO RAISE INVESTMENT-RELATED OUTLAYS BY 5.5 PERCENT IN FISCAL 1991 BEGINNING NEXT APRIL, MINISTRY SOURCES SAID FRIDAY.

THE SOURCES SAID THE MINISTRY WILL BOOST PUBLIC WORKS EXPENDITURES BY 2.7 PERCENT IN THE FISCAL 1991 BUDGET AND ADD 200 BILLION YEN TO SUCH OUTLAYS OUTSIDE THE BUDGET IN ITS BUDGET REQUEST GUIDELINES.

THE MINISTRY ALSO PLANS TO INCREASE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT SUBSIDIES FOR PUBLIC WORKS UNDERTAKEN BY LOCAL GOVERNMENTS TO THE LEVEL SEEN IN FISCAL 1986.

THIS GROWTH IN THE OUTLAYS, THE FIRST IN 10 YEARS, IS EXPECTED TO BOOST ANNUAL GENERAL EXPENDITURES FOR THE NEXT FISCAL YEAR BY 4 PERCENT TO NEARLY 37 TRILLION YEN, THE LARGEST INCREASE SINCE FISCAL 1982.

ANALYSTS SAID THE ACTION IS INTENDED TO HONOR A PLEDGE TO SUBSTANTIALLY INCREASE JAPAN'S INFRASTRUCTURE INVESTMENT OVER THE NEXT 10 YEARS, SPELLED OUT IN A FINAL REPORT ON JAPAN-U.S. BILATERAL TRADE TALKS KNOWN AS THE STRUCTURAL IMPEDIMENTS INITIATIVE (SII) AIMED AT ELIMINATING BARRIERS TO TRADE AND INVESTMENT.

THE MOVE IS NOT, HOWEVER, A SIGNAL OF ANY SHIFT IN THE AUSTERE BUDGETARY STANCE OF THE MINISTRY, WHICH IS CONCERNED ABOUT A SLUGGISH RISE IN TAX REVENUES, A HUGE GOVERNMENT BOND BURDEN, AND INFLATIONARY PRESSURES, DESPITE THE ECONOMIC BOOM.

IN ORDER TO PARTIALLY BALANCE THE INCREASED EXPENDITURES, THE MINISTRY WILL IMPLEMENT A 10 PERCENT CUT IN CURRENT EXPENDITURES, SUCH AS OFFICE EXPENSES, AND WILL BE TIGHT WITH RESPECT TO SPENDING RELATED WITH DEFENSE AND OVERSEAS ASSISTANCE, THE SOURCES SAID.

THE BUDGET REQUEST GUIDELINES, TO BE FURTHER DETAILED THROUGH WORKING-LEVEL DISCUSSIONS, IS SCHEDULED TO BE APPROVED AT A CABINET MEETING ON JULY 27, ACCORDING TO THE SOURCES.

BANGKOK (JULY 6) KYODO - THAILAND'S ECONOMIC GROWTH RATE FOR 1990 WILL BE 10 PERCENT PLUS, INSTEAD OF THE 8.5 PERCENT EARLIER ESTIMATED, THE BANK OF THAILAND ANNOUNCED FRIDAY.

IN ITS MID-YEAR REVISION OF THE COUNTRY'S MAJOR ECONOMIC INDICATORS, THE BANK PUT THE INFLATION RATE FOR THE YEAR AT 6.5 PERCENT. SIRI KARANCHAROENDI, A SENIOR OFFICIAL OF THE BANK SAID THE LOW RATE WAS ATTRIBUTABLE TO THE BANK'S CAUTIOUS MONETARY POLICY.

EXPORT GROWTH WAS REVISED DOWNWARD TO 17 PERCENT FROM AN EARLIER 20 PERCENT, OR FROM 24.7 TO 24 BILLION DOLLARS, DUE TO DECREASING WORLD PRICES FOR AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES, WHICH FORM A SIZABLE EXPORT EARNING FOR THE COUNTRY, SIRI SAID.

IMPORTS ARE NOW EXPECTED TO GROW 21 PERCENT, TO AROUND 31 BILLION DOLLARS, INSTEAD OF AN EARLIER ESTIMATE OF 20 PERCENT OR 30.6 BILLION DOLLARS, ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIAL.

BEIJING (JULY 6) KYODO - THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT IS EXPECTED SHORTLY TO INSTITUTE A PRICE REFORM MEASURE FOR THE FIRST TIME IN ABOUT TWO YEARS, ACCORDING TO THE PEOPLE'S DAILY.

QUOTING A XINHUA NEWS AGENCY REPORT, THE CHINESE COMMUNIST PARTY ORGAN SAID CHINESE MINISTER OF MATERIALS LIU SUINIAN HAS ANNOUNCED A PLAN TO OVERHAUL THE PRODUCER GOODS PRICE ADMINISTERING SYSTEM.

UNDER THE PLAN, THE PRESENT DUAL-PRICE SYSTEM WITH ITS CONTROLLED PRICE AND MARKET PRICE FOR THE SAME COMMODITY WILL BE PHASED OUT, AND REPLACED WITH A SINGLE-PRICE SYSTEM WITH EITHER A CONTROLLED PRICE OR MARKET PRICE.

IT IS BELIEVED THAT A SIMILAR MEASURE WILL ALSO SHORTLY APPLY TO CONSUMER GOODS.

UNDER THE NEW PRICING PLAN, THE STATE WILL SET PRICES FOR SUCH PRODUCER GOODS AS COAL, ELECTRICITY, PETROLEUM, AND RAILWAY TRANSPORTATION SERVICES.

IMPORTANT COMMODITIES SUCH AS STEEL PRODUCTS AND NONFERROUS METALS WILL BE PRICED ON THE BASIS OF ENTERPRISE COSTS, SUBJECT TO GOVERNMENT APPROVAL.

MARKET PRICES WILL BE SET FOR ALL OTHER TYPES OF PRODUCER GOODS. THE DUAL-PRICE SYSTEM GAVE RISE TO CASES OF CORRUPTION INVOLVING SOME GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS, GIVING RISE TO PUBLIC COMPLAINT.

UNDER THE BELT-TIGHTENING POLICY ADOPTED AFTER THE TIANANMEN SQUARE INCIDENT IN JUNE LAST YEAR, THE CHINESE ECONOMY COOLED DOWN EXCESSIVELY.

EARLY THIS YEAR, THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT SWITCHED TO A POLICY OF STIMULATING BUSINESS BY BRINGING PRICE REFORM TALKS TO THE FORE.

LIU CLARIFIED THE DIRECTION OF PROPOSED PRICE REFORM FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THEN.

NEW DELHI (JULY 6) KYODO - THE WORLD BANK HAS DECIDED TO CONTINUE TO FUND A CONTROVERSIAL DAM PROJECT IN INDIA AMID PROTEST FROM ENVIRONMENTALISTS BOTH IN INDIA AND ABROAD, THE BANK SAID FRIDAY.

THE BANK, WHICH APPROVED A 450 MILLION DOLLARS LOAN FOR THE SARDAR SAROVAR DAM ON THE NARMADA RIVER IN WESTERN INDIA IN 1985, HAS AGREED TO FUND A YEAR'S EXTENSION OF THE PROJECT FROM JULY.

LOCAL AND OVERSEAS ENVIRONMENTALISTS HAVE STAGED DEMONSTRATIONS AGAINST THE DAM PROJECT AND CALLED FOR THE SUSPENSION OF FUNDING BY THE WORLD BANK SAYING THAT THE PROJECT WOULD RESULT IN DISPLACEMENT OF 100,000 PEOPLE AND DESTRUCTION OF THE ENVIRONMENT.

IN AGREEING TO THE EXTENSION, THE BANK CALLED ON THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT TO TAKE APPROPRIATE MEASURES FOR ENVIRONMENT PROTECTION AND RESETTLEMENT OF THOSE SUBJECT TO REMOVAL.

THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT HAS DECIDED TO RELEASE 2,700 HECTARES OF FOREST LAND TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MAHARASHTRA FOR THE RESETTLEMENT AND REHABILITATION OF TRIBAL PEOPLE TO BE UPROOTED BECAUSE OF THE DAM CONSTRUCTION TO FULFILL THE PRE-CONDITIONS FOR EXTENSION OF THE WORLD BANK AID.

JAPAN PROMISED IN 1985 TO COFINANCE 2.85 BILLION YEN IN LOANS FOR HYDROELECTRIC POWER GENERATING EQUIPMENT AND HAS ALSO BEEN ASKED BY INDIA TO EXTEND ADDITIONAL LOANS.

#90187m0002 07/06/1990 ~Market Consensus Surveys
FALLS CHURCH, VA (JULY 6) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"I think the Fed adopted an asymmetrical directive with a bias toward easing," says JOSEPH LIRO of S.G. WARBURG SECURITIES & CO. (WSJ, 7/6)

"The financial markets may be focusing solely on the employment report, but not the Fed, even though the June number is very important because it follows three very weak [employment] reports," says DAVID JONES, chief economist at AUBREY G. LANSTON. "I think they will want to wait for a portion of the economic data coming out over the month," including June producer prices, retail sales, industrial output and second-quarter real gross national product. Mr. Jones says, "The decision won't hinge solely on employment." ("Investor's Daily", 7/6)

"The market is expecting the Fed to lower rates sometime this summer," says BILL ORSINI of the BANK OF MONTREAL. "We are also expecting rates abroad to move higher. So, between the two, we're probably looking at a lower dollar." Orsini expects the yen to benefit from higher Japanese interest rates, 10 1/2% first quarter economic growth and the U.S.-Japan trade agreement. (FNN "World Business Update", 7/5)

In a criticism of the Fed interest rate policy, TREASURY SECRETARY NICHOLAS BRADY says: "In the United States, it is not wise to emphasize an undying attack on inflation if it hampers economic growth." (NYT, 7/6)

Some currency dealers were buying dollars yesterday to square up their positions ahead of today's employment report, says LOU CALVELLO, a trader with PRUDENTIAL-BACHE SECURITIES INC. The market has been anticipating the Labor Department's report for several days. "Hopefully it will spark some activity," says JIM CHOREK, an analyst with MMS INTERNATIONAL in Chicago. ("Investor's Daily", 7/6)

"Some [bond] dealers decided to lighten up their positions and take profits in response to the auto sales report, which came in much stronger than expected," says WILLIAM SULLIVAN, director of money- market research at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. "If auto sales had come in weaker, then [dealers] may have decided to buy into the market instead of sell into it." (WSJ, 7/6)

THE ECONOMY:

"This is a very dicey time," says ROBERT DI CLEMENTE of SALOMON BROTHERS. "It could be we are on the verge of a recession, but the signals are mixed. It isn't as if the economy is going down in a straight decline." (NYT, 7/6)

ROBERT BRUSCA, chief economist for NIKKO SECURITIES, believes today's unemployment figures will show that 75,000 new jobs were added, somewhat below what he says is the consensus of around 115,000. Technical factors "are showing a lot of softness in the economy," says Brusca. He says that the Fed is unlikely to ease "until they get some little piece of bad news " but that the easing needs to be done as soon as possible. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 7/5)

"If [auto] sales continued at this level for the next few months, we may want to declare the auto recession over," says SCOTT MERLIS, a MORGAN STANLEY auto analyst of June sales. However, he says he "would not be surprised to see them drop back down." (NYT, 7/6)

"You don't find the confidence in the economy that you once did, at any level, in the small towns or the cities," says REP. LEE HAMILTON, D. - Ind. "There is a widespread uneasiness; that's the best word to describe it." (NYT, 7/6)

NEW YORK (JULY 6) PR NEWSWIRE - Bio-Technology General Corp. (NASDAQ: BTGC) announced that its board of directors today approved a private placement of 1,666,666 units, consisting of one share of common stock and a warrant to purchase a half share of common stock at a purchase price of $6 per share. The purchase price per unit, which was negotiated prior to the current increase in the company's stock price, will be $3. Although the company has agreed to register the shares and warrants as soon as possible after the closing, the purchasers will be prohibited from disposing of their shares and warrants for a period of six months from the closing. The company anticipates that the closing of the private placement will occur within the next two to three weeks.

Sim Fass, president and chief executive officer of Bio-Technology General Corp., stated that approximately $2 million of the proceeds from the private placement will be used to increase research and development activities, upgrade pilot plant equipment, and fund pre-clinical and clinical studies. The proceeds from this placement, when combined with anticipated revenues, should be sufficient to fund the company's operations through the end of 1992.

Bio-Technology General Corp. is engaged in the research, development and manufacture of genetically engineered products for human and animal health care.

WHITE PLAINS, NY and ATLANTA (JULY 6) PR NEWSWIRE - IBM Corp. (NYSE: IBM) and Delphi Technology Inc. (DTI) today announced the formation of an alliance in which IBM will manufacture automated photo machines (APMs) for DTI, an Atlanta-based photo processing company.

DTI will design the APM interactive multimedia merchandising kiosk. IBM will manufacture the units at its facility in Charlotte, N.C.

The APMs will provide consumers with a convenient way to process their photographic film. They are self-service systems that feature "touch screens" so that customers can easily process their orders.

The kiosks will be located in high traffic consumer locations such as supermarkets, large office buildings and mass market retailers and will be available 24 hours a day and seven days a week. Film will be sent twice daily to DTI's Processing and Distribution Centers and returned to the kiosk overnight. Payment can be made with cash, check or credit card.

The initial APMs produced, the Model RS300, will bear the "R. Stevens Express"(i) brand name. They will feature IBM Personal System/2(ii) and IBM multimedia technology.

The APMs are also designed to dispense product promotional coupons for supermarkets and other merchandise.

Shipments will begin in the fall to selected supermarkets in the southeastern states.

"This agreement demonstrates how IBM's technology can be applied to better service customers," said Marvin L. Mann, president of IBM's Services Sector Division.

Steve Bostic, DTI's chairman of the board, said: "IBM's focus on quality, technological leadership and manufacturing excellence, makes for a great alliance partner. Consumers will benefit from the high-quality, convenience and competitive pricing of photo processing available through the R. Stevens Express APMs."

DTI, formed in 1989, is headed by a management team with extensive experience in the film processing industry. Bostic was founder and chief executive officer of American Photo Group, a multi-plant company in wholesale photo processing, before assuming his present position.

PONTIAC, MI (JULY 6) PR NEWSWIRE - First Federal Bancorp, Inc. (AMEX: FFS) announced Thursday that it, along with various affiliated entities, has filed suit in the Federal District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan against the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and their predecessors, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

The announcement was made by Leo D. Ottoni, president and CEO of FFB. First Federal Savings Bank and Trust (FFSBT) and Citizens Federal Savings Bank (CFSB) are wholly owned subsidiaries of FFB, which is listed on the American Stock Exchange under the symbol FFS.

The suit seeks, among other things, the rescission of the acquisition of CFSB in Jacksonville, Fla., by FFSBT, alleging that actions taken by the regulatory agencies have frustrated the purpose of the acquisition and that, therefore, the acquisition is void and unenforceable.

The suit further alleges that any action taken by the OTS or FDIC toward the appointment of a conservator or receiver of FFSBT is unwarranted, unjustified and unconstitutional.

Acting on this lawsuit, the Court Thursday issued a temporary restraining order against the defendants and scheduled a hearing on the request for a preliminary injunction for Wednesday, July 11, 1990, at 8 a.m.

FFSBT, headquartered in Pontiac, is the fifth-largest thrift institution in Michigan. FFSBT has 28 branches in six southeastern Michigan counties and employs approximately 400 people. CFSB has four branches in Jacksonville.

Both FFSBT and CFSB are members of the Federal Home Loan Bank System and their deposits are insured up to the applicable limits by the FDIC. FFB had total assets of $1.4 billion as of March 31, 1990.

BRENTWOOD, TN (JULY 6) PR NEWSWIRE - United Cities Gas Co. (NASDAQ: UCIT), the Nashville-area based natural and propane gas distributor, announced today its wholly-owned subsidiary, UCG Energy Corporation, has acquired the assets of Southern Gas Corporation, a propane distribution company in Jackson, Tennessee,

"This acquisition represents the company's first venture into West Tennessee's propane market," said Gene C. Koonce, United Cities' president and chief executive officer. "The current propane market in Jackson is strong and the opportunity for future growth is also good," said Koonce.

The Southern Gas Corporation serves approximately 1,200 customers and is valued at approximately $1 million. Although it is the first West Tennessee property purchased, it follows sixteen other propane acquisitions completed by UCG Energy over the past ten years.

UCG Energy's propane division is based in Tennessee and Georgia, but additionally serves customers in North Carolina, Florida and Alabama. Approximately 31,000 propane customers are currently being served.

The subsidiary is also engaged in other activities complementing the natural gas business through its rental and utility services divisions. Collectively, these three divisions of UCG Energy Corporation contribute approximately 30 percent of United Cities' profits.

United Cities Gas Company distributes natural and propane gas to approximately 290,000 customers in parts of eleven states. The company is also engaged in other energy-related businesses.

WHIPPANY, NJ (JULY 6) PR NEWSWIRE - Encore! Productions, a business communications firm specializing in the creation of audio- visual, video and multimedia presentations for corporate meetings as well as the design, production and execution of training programs and corporate image events, has launched its new entertainment division.

Encore! Entertainment offers a full spectrum of entertainment services to corporations and individuals for business or social affairs, ranging from live music for small gatherings to complete theme decor events.

The latter includes the design and execution of three-dimensional, larger-than-life theme decor tied together by music and live entertainment.

"We're not satisfied with the traditional or ordinary theme party," explained Encore! Executive Vice President and co-owner Mark Antonacci. "We are the source and not the middle man, and therefore creativity does not mean expense."

"It's a logical extension of our current business base," explained Alexis Montalto, who founded Encore! Productions along with Rick Monte three years ago. "We have a reputation for exceptional quality and value, and the new entertainment division delivers the same."

Encore! Productions has produced meetings or events for clients such as Ortho Bio-Tech, Sony of America, Pfizer Pharmaceuticals, ADT Security Systems, and AT&T.

Recently Encore! Productions utilized a Cable News Network television format for the first joint meeting of the three sales divisions in the newly merged Bristol Myers-Squibb company.

"Our production used state of the art electronic video technology," said Montalto. "Although a sales meeting, the video production met all broadcast standards. It resulted in a rousing standing ovation from the more than 200 attendees present."

The video tape recorded during the meeting will ultimately be shown to all employees throughout the merged company.

"That's the kind of experience and attention to detail we bring to Encore! Entertainment," said Antonacci. "The company is called Encore! because our customers keep coming back."

DES MOINES, IA (JULY 7) PR NEWSWIRE - Board Chairman and President John E. Evans today announced that Allied Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: ALGR) and its parent, Allied Mutual, have completed the exchange of the company's life subsidiary for 2.7 million shares of the company's common stock valued at $36.5 million. The transaction took place upon receipt of a favorable private letter ruling from the IRS.

"The sale of the life company," Evans said, "allows us to begin the final phase of our restructuring plan proposed in October to increase capacity in our core business, property-casualty insurance. We expect the entire process to be completed before the end of the month."

Earlier, the company's property-casualty subsidiaries' pooling participation was increased to 53 percent from 41 percent effective Jan. 1 1990. The percentage determines how property-casualty premiums, losses, and underwriting expenses are divided between the property- casualty subsidiaries of Allied Group, Inc. and Allied Mutual.

"The change in percentage gives us a much larger stake in the pool's performance," added Evans. "Over the past five years, that performance has been impressive. From year-end 1985 to year-end 1989, the property-casualty pool achieved an average premium growth rate of 18 percent in an industry averaging around 10 percent and stayed well ahead in terms of underwriting.

Allied Group, Inc. currently markets personal and commercial property-casualty lines in 21 western and midwestern states through approximately 1,800 independent agencies and 63 AIDCO agencies that contract to sell all personal lines through Allied. The company also markets directly to consumers through telemarketing systems affiliated with financial institutions. The business mix is approximately 60 percent personal and 40 percent commercial. From 1985 to year-end 1989, the average premium per policy increased by $190 to $569.

The Allied pool's 1989 statutory combined ratio, a measure of underwriting profitability, was 102.7 -- much better than the industry average of 110.4. The company is committed to maintaining adequate reserves. Because management is unwilling to bet on unknown claims costs, the pool's loss reserves for 1987, 1988, and 1989 grew faster than earned premiums.

Investment strategies support the company's dual objectives of sustained growth and fiscal strength. Investments are used to create income, provide asset-liability matching, and protect the company's tax position. It is the company's practice to purchase only investment grade securities and their equivalents.

The final phase of the restructuring includes leveraging the company's employee stock ownership plan (ESOP) to purchase 2.4 million shares of convertible preferred stock valued at $36 million and using the proceeds to retire debt, transfer an additional $8 million to the property-casualty subsidiaries, and increase the company's working capital.

When the restructuring is complete, the ESOP will be a 37 percent owner of the company and Allied Mutual's ownership will be reduced to 37 percent from 75 percent. The company's book value will increase by approximately 7 percent to 8 percent.

SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO (JULY 6) PR NEWSWIRE - First Federal Savings Bank of Puerto Rico (NASDAQ: FFPR) announced today losses totaling $14,164,765 or $3.87 per share for the quarter ending June 30, 1990 strictly attributable to a non-recurring extraordinary increase of $16,717,000 in the bank's general valuation reserves following its normal regulatory examination by the Office of Thrift Supervision and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Results for the for the same period in 1989 showed a profit of $3,295,746 or 59 cents per share.

Board Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Mariano J. Mier, indicated that: "while the increase in our reserves affects our current results, it strengthens the bank's fiscal position and significantly enhances our earnings potential for the rest of the year. Third and fourth quarter results, not affected by this action, are expected to have a significant positive impact on our overall 1990 performance."

The bank's allowance for loan losses as of June 30, 1990 amounts to $18,882,609 as compared to $6,693,967 the level it had at year end 1989.

Results for the six months ended June 30, 1990 reflecting the non-recurring extraordinary increase in the bank's reserves showed, according to Mier, accumulated losses of $11,545,001, or $3.37 per share versus a profit of $6,401,933 or $1.25 per share for the first six months of 1989.

Discounting the extraordinary increase in the bank's reserves the institution, according to Mier, would have shown a net income of $2,552,235 or 47 cents per share for the second quarter ending June 30, and an accumulated net income of $5,171,999 or 97 cents per share for the first six months of 1990. Results for the second quarter of 1989 showed a net income of $3,095,746 and a cumulative $6,401,933 for that year's first semester.

"These figures show that even in light of additional costs associated with increased regulatory fees our institution was able to maintain stable operational results," Mier said.

The increase in the institution's reserves, responsible for the second quarter loss has been mandated in part, according to Mier, "to new standards established by regulators affecting all savings and loan institutions in the nation following the enactment of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989."

"These new standards are more far-reaching and do not fully take into account the historical experience of an institution in the handling of risk," Mier added, "Therefore, based on a comprehensive five-year audit of our risk management experience we feel extremely confident that operational results for the rest of the year will be positively affected by these actions."

First Federal's allowance for reserves to total commercial, consumer and other loans following today's actions will be 2.61 percent far exceeding the standard for the last five years which, according to Mier, fluctuated from a low of .18 percent in 1985 to a high of .98 percent in 1987. The bank's allowance for reserves for the year ending Dec. 31, 1989 was .93 percent.

"This allowance does not only far exceed our now historical levels but also those of other banking institutions on the island, including the two largest -- Banco Popular de Puerto Rico and Banco de Ponce," Mier said. Banco Popular showed an allowance of 1.45 percent of total commercial, consumer and other loans at year-end 1989, while Banco de Ponce finished the year with 1.77 percent.

Net interest income for the three months ended June 30, 1990 amounted to $15,669,178 versus $14,356,582 or 9.14 percent.

First Federal assets increased from $1,927,835,776 at year end 1989 to $1,961,585,631 at June 30, 1990 a $33,749,855 or 1.75 percent increase.

First Federal currently has a 28 branch network in Puerto Rico and the United States Virgin Islands and three in Florida operating under its mainland wholly owned subsidiary, First Florida Savings Bank. Additionally the bank operates First Tropical Mortgage, an Orlando, Fla. mortgage origination company established in 1989 to service the growing Hispanic community of Central Florida.

TROY, MI (JULY 6) PR NEWSWIRE - Volkswagen United States today announced that 1991 Golf, GTI, Jetta, Passat and Vanagon models have begun arriving in dealer showrooms. These models carry an upward price adjustment averaging two percent.

A company spokesperson said, "This minimal pricing move will have little impact because in October of 1989, retail prices were reduced by 6.7 to 16.6 percent on these same models with the exception of the Passat which was introduced in March at an extremely competitive price."

The full Volkswagen model line pricing will be announced this fall when the remaining 1991 vehicles become available. Base prices on the available 1991 models are as follows:

Model	Current Pricing	1991 Pricing
Golf GL 2-door	$ 8,695	$ 8,895

MINNEAPOLIS (JULY 6) PR NEWSWIRE - Boards of directors of Medtronic, Inc. (NYSE: MDT) and Bio-Medicus, Inc. (NASDAQ: BMDS), today announced that they had approved and signed a definitive agreement to merge the two companies. Bio-Medicus operations would become part of Medtronic's cardiopulmonary business.

The agreement is subject to approval by Bio-Medicus shareholders, qualification for pooling of interests accounting treatment, and regulatory approvals.

The tax-free merger will be based on a ratio of 3.1 shares of Bio-Medicus common stock for each share of Medtronic stock. The final exchange ratio will be based on the 10 trading days prior to the effective date, expected to be in September.

The exchange ratio will be 3.1 shares of Bio-Medicus common stock for each share of Medtronic stock so long as the price of Medtronic stock is between $77.50 and $92. Above $92 the ratio will adjust to provide $29.68 in value to Bio-Medicus shareholders.

Between $72.50 and $77.50 the ratio will adjust to provide $25 in value to Bio-Medicus shareholders. Below $72.50 the ratio will adjust to provide $25 in value to Bio-Medicus shareholders, but Medtronic can elect to terminate the agreement instead of adjusting the ratio below $72.50.

Both companies are headquartered in Minneapolis. Bio-Medicus is the world's largest manufacturer of centrifugal blood pumps used in open-heart surgery. Medtronic is a leading developer and manufacturer of biomedical devices for improving cardiovascular and neurological health.

CHERRY HILL, NJ (JULY 6) PR NEWSWIRE - SAI Group Inc. (OTC) announced today that it had received an offer from Proteg Verzekering Beheer N.V., a Dutch insurance company that is an affiliate of Hooge Huys Verzekeringen N.V., the owner of approximately 13 percent of its outstanding common stock, to acquire the remaining shares of the company for $.0625 (six and one quarter cents) per share.

Previously, the company reported receiving two offers, one on April 9, 1990, from Fortuna Holding, a Swiss insurance company and owner of approximately 25 percent of the outstanding common stock of the company, and another on April 19, 1990, on behalf of Royal American Insurance Services Inc., and certain other unnamed persons and entities, to acquire the common stock of the company for $.0425 per share and $.0625 per share, respectively. The company said that the board of directors has requested that its investment banking firm, Howard, Lawson & Co., assist it in evaluating the offers and has scheduled a board meeting for July 10, 1990, to consider them.

SAI Group said that the Proteg proposal contemplates the merger of the company into a wholly owned subsidiary of Proteg. It was made subject to completion by Proteg of its due diligence investigation, execution of a definite agreement and approval of the final terms by Proteg's board of directors.

SAI Group is an insurance direct marketing organization operating in its own name in the United Kingdom and as a consultant to insurance companies primarily in other countries in Western Europe.
